AL FRANK, editor of "The Prudent Speculator," recommends OEX puts as insurance against an overbought market. "I expect the market to go up 15% or 20% this year and we might see that infamous number 3600. ... So I'm willing to spend 1% or 2% of the portfolio [on puts] from now on each month [as a hedge] as long as the market is so overbought." (FNN's "Marketwrap", 5/23)

FROM THE BEARS:

"Four Dow stocks have accounted for almost half of the entire rise in the Dow since the January 30 low," says JOE GRANVILLE of the "Granville Market Letter." He says that these four - BOEING, COCA- COLA, IBM and PROCTOR & GAMBLE - are causing a "dangerous solo walk," where the blue chips go up, but the rest of the market lags behind. Granville states that this situation has "bearish implications," and predicts that the market will test January's lows by the end of June. (FNN's "Marketwatch", 5/23)

I believe there's more risk than opportunity in the market short- term," says ARGUS RESEARCH CORP. director of research A.C. MOORE. "The stock market is up against trendline resistance. I am ... apprehensive because the market is overbought short-term, and many stocks have reached near-term objectives." Moore expects the market to decline to around 2750 before beginning another rally. ("Investor's Daily", 5/24)

WAYNE WONG, managing director in charge of fixed-income investing at MARINVEST, foresees a 200-point correction in the Dow just around the corner. He also thinks bond prices will tread water until a clearer picture of the economy emerges. (WSJ, 5/24)

STOCK MARKET:

"Any kind of pullbacks here are going to be very nominal, and I think you're going to see a lot of money flooding into the market" on any weakness, says ALEXANDER PURDIE JR., head of block trading at ROBINSON-HUMPHREY CO. in Atlanta. "The market's still looking very attractive in a lot of ways." (WSJ, 5/24)

Noting that stock market sessions usually go up before a three-day weekend ROBERT STOVALL of STOVALL/TWENTY-FIRST ADVISERS predicts that the S&P 500 would break the record today or tomorrow and "that'll bring in more professional buying." (NYT, 5/24)

"We can't knock the market down," says JIM ANDREWS, trader at JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT. "People are still convinced the Dow is going to 3000." ("USA Today", 5/24)

"News of a sharper than expected drop in durable goods orders helped provide a rationalization for selling, " said MICHAEL METZ of OPPENHEIMER & CO. Metz feels that there is "too much euphoria in the market," and that a correction is in the offing. "We're not about to make another leap." (Reuters, 5/23 and "The Washington Post", 5/24)

"The weak numbers for durable goods and car sales helped bonds and in turn helped stocks," says PETER GRENNAN, head of stock index futures trading for SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON INC. "What the numbers mean is that interest rates will stay at low levels" which encourages stock buying. Mr. Grennan also notes, "A lot of people are badmouthing the stock market. They're very skeptical of the market rally; therefore they have a lot of cash and would prefer that the market go down so they won't be embarrassed for having so much cash. This is actually bullish for stocks. The more skeptics there are means the more selling that's already taken place. It's cash that can come back into the market if prices continue to rally." (NYT, 5/24)

"The market is still exhibiting a decided reluctance to give in to profit-taking," says EUGENE PERONI, JR., director of technical research at JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT in Philadelphia. "The market's ability to rally late in the day was encouraging. I think it is handling its excesses well. I wasn't concerned by the mini-reversal Tuesday." ("Investor's Daily" and WSJ, 5/24)

SHEARSON's NEWTON ZINDER is heartened that the market held relatively firm yesterday even while traders took profits. "I think it's the fact that the market gave up little ground earlier today that supported prices into the close." (UPI, 5/23)

STOCK TIPS:

NEWTON ZINDER of SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON focuses on stocks which are not too extended. He describes ARCHER DANIELS MIDLAND as "both an environmental and agricultural stock" because of its cleaner burning ethanol fuel. Zinder also likes the company's success exporting agricultural products to the U.S.S.R. and Eastern Europe. "It's not a rapid moving stock but it moves up steadily - I think its a good purchase even at this level." UPJOHN is one of the least extended drug stocks, and Zinder says it looks good on a technical and fundamental basis. After breaking out above 40 earlier this week, the stock has pulled back somewhat, says Zinder who sees little downside risk. (FNN's "World Business Report", 5/24)

The PC business is getting more cost competitive as computer buyers increasingly look for lower priced IBM clones. STEPHEN SMITH, computer analyst with PAINEWEBBER, likes three clone makers which he says are gaining market share against the higher priced manufacturers: AST RESEARCH, ADVANCED LOGIC SYSTEMS and EVEREX SYSTEMS. (CNN's "Business Morning", 5/24)

Stock in INTERMEC, a maker of barcodes used at store check-outs, plunged 4 1/2 to close at 18 1/4 yesterday on disappointing earnings. PETER MUSSER of RAGEN MACKENZIE rates the stock a hold and expects it to earn $1.70 a share in fiscal 1991. He says a new line of products, including a hand-held bar code reader, should offset a continuing shortfall in government purchases. ("USA Today", 5/24)

One of the companies that will benefit from MICROSOFT's Windows 3.0 software is INTEL CORP. "We think it is one of the best technology stocks

" says MERRILL LYNCH & CO. analyst THOMAS KURLAK. Kurlak's firm has chosen Intel as its "focus stock of the week", because of Intel's role in the "home microcomputer revolution," and because Intel produces the microchip on which Windows 3.0 runs. ("Investor's Daily", 5/24)

KEN HEEBNER of CAPITAL GROWTH MANAGEMENT, who manages two of the top performing funds, is neutral on the market as a whole, but feels that there are some individual stocks which should do well. He likes PHILIP MORRIS, BRISTOL-MEYERS SQUIBB, NIKE and L.A. GEAR. (FNN's 3 "Business Tonight", 5/23)

SALT LAKE CITY (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - American Stores Co. (NYSE: ASC) today announced sales for the 13 week first quarter ended May 5, 1990 of $5,422,498,000, an increase of 4.02 percent over 1989. Like store sales for the quarter increased 3.13 percent over the prior year.

First quarter net earnings were $27,927,000 or $.81 per common share compared to $21,515,000 or $.57 per common share in the first quarter of 1989. The first quarter of 1990 includes earnings of $.03 per common share from the sale of assets, while the first quarter of 1989 included earnings of $.21 per common share from the sale of assets. In addition, the LIFO charge to earnings in the first quarter of 1990 decreased earnings per common share by $.32 compared to $.33 in the prior year's first quarter.

Operating profits in the first quarter of 1990 increased 10.92 percent to $145,907,000 compared to $131,547,000 reported in the prior year's first quarter. The company's grocery and combination stores pre-LIFO operating profit increased 10.13 percent to $140,218,000 from $127,324,000 in the 1989 first quarter. The strongest improvements in operating profit were from Lucky, Alpha Beta and American Food and Drug. The drug stores' pre-LIFO operating profit increased 14.34 percent to $31,521,000 from $27,567,000 a year ago. Prior year results at the drug division were impacted by the reintroduction of the Sav-on name in California. In the first quarter of 1990, grocery and combination like store sales increased 2.68 percent, while drug store like sales increased 5.55 percent.

Interest expense for the first quarter 1990 declined to $90,947,000 from $100,453,000 a year ago, primarily due to lower interest rates and a slight reduction in the company's outstanding debt.

Average common shares outstanding for the year were 34,479,000 in the first quarter of 1990 and 30,240,000 in the first quarter of the prior year. There were no preferred dividends in the first quarter 1990 compared to $4,293,000 in 1989. This was a result of the conversion of 3,809,000 shares of the company's Series A Preferred Stock into 4,105,000 shares of common stock and the related elimination of preferred dividends on Oct. 13, 1989.

American Stores Co.'s principal grocery and combination store operating subsidiaries include American Superstores Inc. and it subsidiaries Acme Markets Inc., Jewel Food Stores and Star Market; American Food and Drug Inc., and its divisions, Skaggs Alpha Beta, Buttrey Food-Drug and Jewel Osco; Lucky Stores Inc. and Alpha Beta Co. American Stores Co.'s drug subsidiary is American Drug Stores Inc., which operates under the Osco Drug and Sav-on names. The company operated 1,897 retail food, drug and combination food/drug stores (including 141 Jewel and Osco combination stores) in 40 states as of May 5, 1990.

EXTON, PA (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Intelligent Electronics Inc. (NASDAQ: INEL) (IE) today reported net income of $6.6 million for its second quarter, ended April 30, 1990, compared to $2.0 million for the same period last year.

Earnings per share for the nation's largest network of computer resellers were $0.95 on 7.0 million shares outstanding, compared to $0.45 on 4.6 million shares for the second quarter last year.

Net income for the six-month period ended April 30, 1990, of $12.6 million or $1.82 per share, compared to $3.1 million, or $0.69 per share for the prior half-year. Revenues for the second quarter totaled $346.3 million, compared to $157.8 million for the same period last year.

There were a number of positive financial indicators for IE in the second quarter, according to Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Richard D. Sanford.

"First, gross profit margins were up quarter-to-quarter, to 8.3 percent from 8.1 percent in the first quarter of 1990," Sanford noted. "Net income as a percentage of revenue was 1.9 percent, compared to 1.7 percent in the first quarter.

"Selling, general and administrative expenses for the second quarter were 4.5 percent of revenues compared to 6.4 percent one year ago.

Sanford noted that measurable improvements have been made in IE's working capital management. Second quarter net interest expense was reduced by $870,000 from the first quarter.

"During our second quarter, net cash provided by operating activities was $48.1 million. This enabled the company to completely repay our bank financing and increase our cash position to $37 million," Sanford said.

There are now 883 computer centers in the Intelligent Electronics network, whose chains include Connecting Point of America, Entre' Computer Centers and Todays Computers Business Centers.

Intelligent Electronics' revenues come primarily from wholesale sales by IE of personal computer equipment to its reseller network. IE earns its gross profit from a mark-up on the equipment sold.

BUFFALO, NY (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Comptek Research, Inc., (AMEX/BSE: CTK) today announced record sales and earnings for its fiscal year 1990, which ended March 31, 1990. The company also reported an all-time high year-end contract backlog.

Sales of $49,584,000 for the fiscal year were up 3 percent from the $48,250,000 level experienced in the prior year. Net earnings were $1,352,000, or $.63 per share, a dramatic increase of 147 percent from the $548,000, or $.25 per share, experienced last year. Jack E. Wagner, chairman, president and CEO, attributed the earnings increase to cost cutting and internal efficiences. "More effective business development and program management have enabled us to increase revenues and improve contract performance," he said.

At year-end, the company's contract backlog of $49,472,000 was up 53 percent compared with $32,420,000 at March 31, 1989. Wagner said, "Our strong backlog indicates to me that Comptek's products and services are recognized for quality and good value by our military and commercial customers."

Sales for the fiscal 1990 fourth quarter were a record $14,188,000, and up 18 percent compard with $11,979,000 last year. Fourth quarter earnings of $356,000, or $.17 per share, are up 60 percent from $223,000, or $.10 per share, achieved in the comparable period in the prior year. "Fourth quarter sales levels and year-end backlog validates a relatively strong demand by the Department of Defense for our technology, notwithstanding the trend toward reduced defense spending," Wagner noted.

The company's annual meeting will be held at the Albright-Knox Art Gallery 1285 Elmwood Ave., Buffalo, N.Y., beginning at 10 a.m. on July 25, 1990.

MONROE, CT (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Taunton Technologies, Inc. (NASDAQ: TTEK) and VISX, Incorporated (NASDAQ: VISX), leaders in the development of sophisticated ophthalmic devices which potentially can eliminate the need for eyeglasses or contact lenses, today signed a definitive merger agreement calling for the combination of the two firms. The agreement, which has been approved by the boards of directors of the two corporations and is subject to shareholder approval, provides for the issuance of one share of Taunton stock for each 1.3597 shares of VISX outstanding. After the merger, VISX's present shareholders will own approximately 32 percent of the combined company.

Taunton, headquartered in Monroe, and VISX, located in Sunnyvale, Calif., are clinically testing independently developed systems utilizing excimer lasers to alter the focusing power of the eye by reshaping the cornea. These systems are also intended to treat other eye disorders.

Officials of both companies stress that the merger will result in the termination of patent litigation between the two companies and permit them to devote their full energies and resources to the perfection of the excimer laser devices.

On the effective date of the merger, Dr. Munnerlyn will become the chairman and chief executive officer, and Alan R. McMillen, current president of VISX, will become president of the combined companies. Dr. Warner will consult for the company on evaluation of products, patents and technology, as well as activities associated with clinical studies. Alcon Laboratories Inc. and Alcon Pharmaceuticals, Ltd. will continue to retain exclusive worldwide marketing rights.

Taunton plans to file a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission covering the shares to be issued, and both firms contemplate the completion of the merger in late summer.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Carter Hawley Hale Stores Inc. (NYSE: CHH) today reported that earnings before interest expenses and income taxes (EBIT) for the third quarter were $31.2 million compared with $35.9 million in the third quarter of fiscal 1989, reflecting a 3.5 million pretax charge as a result of the LIFO method of accounting for inventories in this year's quarter compared with a credit of $1.0 million in last year's period. Excluding the LIFO provision, EBIT was $34.7 million in this year's period compared with $34.9 million in the third quarter of 1989.

The net loss for the quarter was $6.6 million, or a loss of $.24 per share compared with a net loss of $3.2 million, or a loss of $.15 per share, in the prior year period.

Sales for the quarter were $590.9 million, an .8 percent increase over the $586.2 million for the third quarter of fiscal 1989. Last year's sales exclude the Emporium store in Oakland, which has been closed since the earthquake in the Bay Area. Including Oakland, last year's sales were $595.4 million. On a comparative store basis, sales increased .3 percent for the period.

Excluding the LIFO provision, gross margin in the quarter was 28.0 percent of sales compared with 28.7 percent in the prior year period. Selling, general, and administrative expenses, aided by higher finance charge income, was 22.1 percent of sales compared with 22.8 percent in 1989. Inventories at the end of the quarter were down approximately three percent compared with the prior year.

Sales for the first nine months of fiscal 1990 were $2,234.5 million, an increase of 4.6 percent from the $2,136.8 million in the prior year period excluding Oakland. Including Oakland, last year's sales were $2,162.8 million. On a comparative store basis, sales increased 2.3 percent for the period.

EBIT for the first nine months of fiscal 1990 was $146.5 million compared with $143.1 million in 1989. Earnings from operations for the period were $10.0 million, or $.40 per share, compared with $14.7 million, or $.68 per share in the prior year period. This year's results reflect a $5.5 million LIFO charge compared with a $3.0 million charge in 1989, and higher interest expense.

Net earnings for the first nine months of both fiscal years were affected by special items. Net earnings in this year's period were a loss of $.5 million, or a loss of $.02 per share, after a charge of $10.5 million to cover expenses associated with the October earthquake in the Bay Area. Net earnings of $21.7 million, or $1.00 per share in the first nine months of fiscal 1989 includes an $8.3 million after tax charge for the early retirement of debt and an after tax credit of $15.3 million due to the

Fiscal 1990 will include 53 weeks compared with 52 weeks in fiscal 1989. As a result, the first nine months of fiscal 1990 includes 40 weeks compared with 39 weeks in fiscal 1989. An extra week was added to the 1989 period to calculate comparable store sales.

SOUTH WINDSOR, CT (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Gerber Scientific, Inc. (NYSE: GRB) today reported fourth quarter and annual operating results. For the year ended April 30, 1990, consolidated sales increased 3 percent to $307,189,000 form $299,339,000 for the previous year.

Earnings per share rose 1 percent to $1.36 for the year ended April 30, 1990 from $1.35 for the previous year, based on average shares outstanding of 23,864,000 and 24,337,000, respectively. Consolidated net earnings were $32,423,000 compared with $32,852,000 last year.

Consolidated sales for the fourth quarter ended April 30, 1990 increased 1 percent to $80,934,000 form $79,884,000 for the same period last year. Earnings per share decreased 8 percent to 35 cents in this year's fourth quarter from 38 cents last year, based on average shares outstanding of 23,615,000 and 24,019,000, respectively. Consolidated net earnings for this year's fourth quarter were $8,321,000 compared with net earnings of $9,072,000 for the fourth quarter of last year.

The company reported that new orders received for the year ended April 30, 1990 were $295,200,000 compared with $299,500,000 in the prior year. Backlog at April 30, 1990 was $70,800,000 compared with $82,800,000 at April 30, 1989. The decline in backlog at April 30, 1990 from the prior year was the result of several factors. Certain of the company's newer products have significantly shorter lead times from order entry to product delivery, resulting in faster turnover. In addition, European order entry was adversely affected by economic conditions, including a stronger U.S. dollar and higher European interest rates, as well as stronger foreign-based competition. Order entry for apparel manufacturing equipment was also delayed by the bankruptcies of certain major U.S. and Canadian retailing chains and currency restrictions in South American markets.

YANCEYVILLE, NC (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Lamplighter Industries Inc., a manufacturer of high-technology lighting equipment, located in Yanceyville N.C., today unveiled plans to merchandise an innovative new lighted sign product for the consumer market.

Known as the Nightfinder illuminated address plaque, the item incorporates ceramic electroluminescence -- a low-cost, solid-state lighting technology formerly used mainly to backlight instrument panels in military and industrial applications. "We think we've picked a real winner," declared Lamplighter CEO, Dr. Arden Kelton. "Our market research indicates that, once the public becomes award of the advantages of ceramic EL, and they see how attractive and stylish the nightfinder plaque is, they'll find it to be an excellent addition to home or office," he said.

Although the demand for lighted address signs has increased sharply in recent years, due in part to requirements by local governments across the country, most units are still manufactured with incandescent and fluorescent elements. Ceramic EL is known to be superior in durability, low operating cost, low maintenance, and in providing a more uniform lighting pattern.

"The Nightfinder address plaque is just one of several key product developments which we expect will fuel our growth in the future," stated Dr. Kelton. "Our current estimates of company growth call for the creation of up to several hundred new jobs within three to five years. We look forward to playing an increasingly vital role in the economic development of North Carolina for many years to come," he said.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Neutrogena Corp. (NASDAQ: NGNA) today reported lower sales and earnings for its second fiscal quarter, as had been predicted by the company in its mid-April release.

For the second fiscal quarter ended April 30, 1990, net income was $1,325,000, or $.05 per share, contrasted to $6,275, or $.23 per share in the last year's second quarter. Sales for the period were $46,647,000, down from $50,399,000 in the comparable prior year period.

Net income for the current six months was $10,075,000, or $.38 per share, versus $15,023,000, or $.56 per share for the same period a year ago. Sales for the company's first half rose slightly to $101,621,000 from $100,095,000 a year ago.

Lloyd E. Cotsen, president and chief executive officer, said "Sales for the qaurter decreased about as much as we had anticipated, but earnings fell further. This was primarily due to one-time expenses related to trade allowance adjustments, inventory write-offs and executive severance."

Cotsen added, "In spite of a disappointing first half, we still think there will be sales and earnings improvements in the second half."

SIMSBURY, CT (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Kollmorgen Corporation (NYSE: KOL) announced today that, as part of its previously announced plan to dispose of its entire electronic interconnections business segment, it intends to close its Multiwire Division facility located in Hicksville, N.Y., in approximately 60 days. This facility, which employs 142 people, manufactures proprietary interconnection products.

John Youngblood, president, chief executive officer and chairman of the board, said, "Although it is always difficult to make a decision of this type, our new management team has carefully reviewed this situation and believes that this action is in the best interest of all our constituencies. Kollmorgen will make all necessary arrangements to honor existing Multiwire contracts. We will continue our efforts to find a buyer for the Multiwire Division during the 60-day period, although our efforts to date have not been encouraging, and we believe it unlikely that a transaction will be concluded. If a sale of the Multiwire Division is not concluded within 60 days, we will close this operation." Youngblood concluded by stating, "This action, together with the sale of the discrete wiring portion of the PCK Technology Division, which we recently announced will complete the disposition of our entire electronic interconnections business segment. As previously announced, the closing of this facility, taken together with the sale of the discrete wiring portion of the PCK business, will not result in a significant gain or loss to the corporation."

Kollmorgen has continuing operations focused in two business segments: special purpose servo motors and controls and electro-optical instruments.

DALLAS (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - ENSERCH Corporation (NYSE: ENS) today announced that a judgment has been entered in favor of ENSERCH and its subsidiary, Ebasco Services Incorporated, in a lawsuit to enforce two insurance policies and to recover costs and expenses relating to their defense of several class-action lawsuits brought in 1983 and 1984. The litigation arose out of a default under bonds issued by the Washington Public Power Supply System (WPPSS) to finance the construction of nuclear-power projects in the State of Washington.

In order to avoid the escalating costs of these lawsuits, in early 1989 Ebasco executed a settlement agreement pursuant to which it agreed to pay approximately $7.2 million in cash to the WPPSS plaintiffs and to transfer to them a share of any collection from two insurance policies with total coverage of $50 million.

The Court's judgment in the amount of approximately $65 million will be allocated between ENSERCH/Ebasco and the WPPSS plaintiffs in a manner that makes ENSERCH and Ebasco whole for the $14.4 million of expenses incurred in both lawsuits. An appeal of the judgment is anticipated.

ENSERCH's and Ebasco's claim for punitive damages against the insurance companies for their bad faith in failing to honor their obligations under the policies will be the subject of a second trial. Any recovery of punitive damages will be shared equally between ENSERCH/Ebasco and the WPPSS plaintiffs.

WOBURN, MA (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Thermedics Inc. (AMEX: TMD) has entered into agreements appointing three Southeast Asian companies as exclusive distributors of its EGIS(R) explosives-detection devices and Sentor(tm) drug-detection devices. The agreements include initial commitments for $1.3 million in EGIS and Sentor devices. Sales targets for the first year of the contracts have been set at a total of 38 units.

In one of agreements, Thermedics has signed China Advanced Technologies Corporation (CATC) as the distributor for its detection devices in Taiwan. CATC is an engineering firm specializing in aviation defense systems and engineering support services.

Thermedics has appointed Intraco Ltd. as the distributor for its detection systems in Singapore, Malaysia, Brunei, Indonesia, and Thailand. Intraco is a large trading company based in Singapore.

Securair International Limited of Hong Kong has been signed as the distributor for Hong Kong and Macao. Securair is half-owned by Cathay Pacific and is the contractor for security at Hong Kong International Airport.

The EGIS device is designed to detect small amount of explosives, including plastics, which may be hidden in luggage, packages, or automobiles, while the Sentor device is designed to detect trace amounts of cocaine and heroin. The devices are based on related technologies developed by Thermedics.

John W. Wood Jr., president of Thermedics Inc., commented, "We are extremely pleased to have signed these three firms to distribute our equipment in Southeast Asia, in addition to our previously announced agreement with Nissho Iwai Corporation in Japan. We understand that there is tremendous interest in this part of the world in both explosives detection and drug detection."

AUSTIN, TX (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Dell Computer Corporation (NASDAQ: DELL) today announced that net income increased 161 percent to a record $5.3 million or $.28 per share in the first quarter of fiscal 1991, vs. net income of $2.1 million or $.11 per share in the first quarter of fiscal 1990.

Sales in the quarter ended May 4, 1990, increased 38 percent to $120.3 million -- the highest quarterly sales in the company's history. Sales were $87.5 million in the first quarter of fiscal 1990, which ended April 28, 1989.

"Our earnings improvement exceeded our expectations and is the result of outstanding efforts by Dell employees," said Michael S. Dell, chairman and chief executive officer.

"Earnings benefited from an inventory reduction program which enabled us to deplete higher-cost inventories of memory components over the course of last year. These inventories had depressed our gross margins and profitability," he said.

Dell said increased revenues, driven by strong demand for the company's newer products, also contributed to the earnings improvement.

"We have introduced six new products over the past 10 months," Dell said, "including our first laptop and two desktop systems, all based on the popular 386SX microprocessor." Dell's first entry into the market for 486 EISA-based systems, the Dell System 425E, began shipping at the end of the first quarter, ahead of schedule.

First quarter sales gains were led by higher international sales, which more than doubled over the first quarter of fiscal 1990. International sales represented 36 percent of worldwide revenues in the first quarter of fiscal 1991, compared with 23 percent of revenues in the comparable, year-ago quarter. Dell has international subsidiaries in the United Kingdom, Canada, West Germany, France and Sweden.

ROCHESTER, NY (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Rochester Community Savings Bank (NASDAQ: RCSB) announced today the adoption of a shareholder rights plan to preserve the long-term value of the company for shareholders in the event of any threatened takeover which appears to be unfair or coercive, and to encourage any potential acquiror to negotiate directly with the company.

In commenting on the plan, Rochester Community Savings Bank's chairman and CEO, Leonard S. Simon, said, "The rights plan is similar to plans adopted by numerous publicly traded companies and is designed to assure that all shareholders receive fair and equal treatment in the event of a potential takeover of the bank. It was not initiated in response to any specific offer, nor was it designed to discourage a friendly takeover, merger or acquisition on terms that are favorable and fair to all shareholders. Rather, it is designed to protect the interests of shareholders if the bank is confronted with coercive or unfair takeover tactics. Our goal, as we've stated frequently in the past, is to enable shareholders to realize the full long-term value of their investment in RCSB."

The rights plan provides for the declaration of a dividend of one right for each share of Rochester Community Savings Bank common stock held as of June 4, 1990. Each right will entitle the holder to purchase one one-hundredth of a share of a new issue of preferred stock at an exercise price of $100 under certain conditions. The rights are exercisable only if a person or group acquires 20 percent or more of the company's outstanding stock, or announces a tender offer that would result in the ownership of 20 percent or more of the outstanding common shares. In the event the rights become exercisable and the company is the subject of a takeover not deemed to be fair and in the best interests of the shareholders by the board, holders of the rights will be entitled to purchase, at the right's exercise price, shares of the bank or of the surviving company having a value of twice that exercise price. The rights will expire on June 3, 2000, unless previously redeemed by the company.

The rights will trade with Rochester Community Savings Bank common stock and no certificates will be issued unless and until the rights become exercisable. A summary of the rights agreement will be sent to shareholders on or about June 8.

Rochester Community Savings Bank is state chartered, FDIC-insured through the Bank Insurance Fund (BIF) and headquartered in Rochester. The company operates 24 retail banking offices in the greater Rochester area and owns subsidiaries engaged in retail banking, mortgage banking, automobile financing, commercial real estate banking, insurance and securities brokerage. As of Feb. 28, 1990, the end of its first quarter, the bank had assets of $4 billion and deposits of $2.5 billion.

PORT WASHINGTON, NY (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Luxottica Group S.p.A. (NYSE: LUX) today announced that it has signed an agreement with Yves St. Laurent to manufacture and distribute YSL eyeglass frames and sunglasses in Europe and North America.

Claudio Del Vecchio, executive vice president of Luxottica, said, "In keeping with our commitment to expand Luxottica Group's portfolio of designer lines, we are very excited about the addition of Yves St. Laurent eyewear. Equipped with modern manufacturing facilities, top- notch designers, and a broad and controlled distribution network all over the world, we have every reason to believe that YSL will become one of our most important lines."

Luxottica initiated its designer lines at the end of 1988 with the launch of Giorgio Armani eyewear in Italy, and introduced it in other international markets in 1989.

Since then, Luxottica has introduced other designer lines -- Genny, Byblos, Giugiaro, and Valentino -- which have allowed the company to increase its share of this fast-growing, high-margin end of the eyeglass frame market.

Del Vecchio added, "We are confident that significant growth opportunities exist through the expansion of our current designer lines and the introduction of new lines. The introduction of styles by fashion designers has had a dramatic effect on the eyewear industry and has created a new market among fashion-conscious consumers who view eyewear not only as a necessity, but as a fashion accessory."

Luxottica Group is a world leader in the design, manufacture and marketing of high quality eyeglass frames in the mid- and premium-priced categories. The company's products, which are designed and manufactured in Italy and include over 850 styles available in a wide array of colors and sizes, are sold through wholly owned distributors in the United States, Canada, Italy France, Sweden and West Germany and 50 percent- owned distributors in Spain and the United Kingdom.

TROY, MI (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Acustar, Chrysler's stand-alone components subsidiary, today announced it will make a $37.9 million investment at two existing parts-making operations in the city of Detroit.

Acustar Chairman Erick A. Reickert said the projects at McGraw Glass and Detroit Axle will help maintain existing work forces at the two facilities and also offer opportunities for future business growth.

Up to 100 jobs may be added at the Detroit Axle plant on Lynch Road near Van Dyke on the city's east side. The plant recently won a bid to supply up to 100,000 additional axles to Chrysler over the next two years. The added work is a major boost, according to Farmer. Current employment at Axle is about 1,000.

Acustar and Chrysler officials have also been meeting with state, city and union officials to spruce up the neighborhood and redesign Lynch Road to make it more attractive for other industrial firms to locate there.

McGraw Glass, at McGraw and Wyoming on the city's west side, has about 800 employees. Plans for the plant include site improvements to improve access and provide space for growth.

Farmer said the $36.3 million project at McGraw includes demolishing old warehouses along Wyoming, already under way. New construction includes a 225,000-square-foot addition to replace the warehouse and add a new Energy Conversion Center and primary substation. The exterior modifications complete an extensive revamping of McGraw's internal processes.

McGraw, Aucstar's primary glass facility, was the site of a massive technological upgrade over the past three years with the company just completing a $65 million investment.

Chrysler and Acustar officials expressed appreciation to city and state leaders for helping bring about the Detroit investments. They said Gov. James J. Blanchard and Mayor Coleman A. Young were of great assistance in achieving these plans to revitalize the plants.

The state of Michigan has pledged labor training assistance for the new workers at Detroit Axle, plus site preparation aid for McGraw Glass, according to Michael M. Glusac, Chrysler's executive director of Government Affairs. He indicated the company would soon be filing an application for tax abatement for the new investments at McGraw.

WEST CHESTER, PA (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Weston Services Inc. (WSI), a wholly owned subsidiary of Roy F. Weston Inc. (NASDAQ: WSTNA) (WESTON), has been selected as a subcontractor on one of the largest projects to be let by the U.S. EPA under its Alternative Remedial Contracting Strategy (ARCS) program to remediate Superfund sites.

WSI has a multi-million dollar contract with NUS Corp. of Wayne, Pa., to perform remediation services at the Douglassville Disposal Site, a former waste oil refinery, in Berks County, Pa.

According to Weston Project Director Richard M. Leuser, P.E., the Douglassville job is unique not only in terms of its large size but also in terms of the scope of work WSI will perform.

Activities will include decontamination of certain facilities and equipment, dismantling and demolition of the refinery and disposal of hazardous wastes, demolition debris and waste oils and sludges currently on site.

Weston initiated work on its portion of this project in February 1990 and is expected to finish by the end of October 1990.

Headquartered in West Chester, WSI provides comprehensive remediation and environmental construction services through offices across the country. Services provided include hazardous waste site remediation, facility decontamination and demolition, transportable thermal treatment, landfill and TSD facility construction, storage tank management and renovation programs, municipal and industrial water/wastewater treatment facility construction and facility contract operations.

Weston, WSI's parent company, is a recognized leader in the environmental engineering, design and consulting industry. Weston provides nationwide analytical laboratory services, consulting and engineering, technical information management and major program management services. Its clients include many Fortune 500 companies and all levels of government.

Weston is headquartered in West Chester, and operates a network of four analytical laboratories and 44 offices, including Los Angeles, Houston, Chicago, Atlanta, Boston, New York and Washington, D.C.

NEW YORK (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - John F. Lee, president of the New York Clearing House Association (NYCH), today announced that William M. Walsh had been named executive vice president and George F. Thomas had been promoted to senior vice president and director of data processing.

Walsh, who was previously senior vice president and director of data processing, has been with Clearing House since 1983. In his new position he will continue to oversee all paper-based and electronic payment systems operations while taking on new executive responsibilities.

A resident of Pleasantville, N.Y., and a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College, Walsh was a branch technical manager at Burroughs Corporation from 1962 to 1969. After working as a management consultant with Booz Allen and Hamilton, he served as assistant vice president of systems services at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York until 1976. Walsh was senior vice president of corporate services at Carteret Savings and Loan Association until joining in 1981 the Connecticut National Bank as senior vice president -- executive officer of the data services division. He is a board member of the National Automated Clearing House Association, the U.S. Council on International Banking, and the Electronic Banking Economics Society. He is married and has two sons.

Thomas was systems support manager for the New York commercial district at Burroughs Corporation before joining Clearing House in 1981 as manager of technical services. In 1984, he was promoted to vice president-systems development and technical services. In his new post, Thomas will supervise systems development and technical services, computer and telecommunications operations, and payments systems support. Thomas attended Adelphi University, and currently lives in Oakdale, N.Y., with his wife and two daughters.

The New York Clearing House is the nation's oldest and largest bankers' clearing house. It participates actively in all regulatory, legislative and litigative matters of importance to commercial banking. On a normal day, it provides document exchange and settlement services for about 5 million checks, drafts and other paper items. The daily paper exchanges average $33 million.

BEAVERTON, OR (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - FPS Computing (NYSE: FLP) today announced the signing of an agreement with Canon Sales Company, Inc. to distribute FPS Computer Systems in Japan.

Canon has extensive experience in the Japanese computer market, particularly in the workstation segment, and is planning to expand into the systems integration market. The current technical computing market in Japan is expanding rapidly and Canon views this partnership with FPS Computing as a natural and logical extension of their already successful computer workstation and systems business.

Under the terms of this partnership agreement, Canon Sales will acquire certain assets from FPS Computing and expects to trade using the name FPS Computing. Instrumental in arranging this partnership was Fuji Bank Ltd., of Tokyo, a well respected Japanese bank.

This agreement follows a series of successful FPS Model 500EA Supercomputer installations by major Japanese Corporations, including Sony NTT, and Matsushita. This partnership further endorses the Model 500EA as a leading contender in the supercomputer market. FPS Computing will continue to focus on key market segments including design engineering, signal processing, and computational chemistry.

Canon Sales Company, Inc. is responsible for all Canon sales activities including office equipment, workstations, and computer systems in Japan.

FPS Computing designs, manufactures, and markets high performance computer system solutions for scientific, engineering, and technical applications. Founded in 1970 as Floating Point Systems Inc., FPS Computing is headquartered in Beaverton and is listed on the New York and Pacific Stock Exchanges.

ATLANTA (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Georgia-based Colorocs Corp. (NASDAQ: CLRX) today announced the opening of a Cleveland office for the direct marketing and support of the company's full color copier.

Tom Woltz was named branch manager and will be responsible for Colorocs copier sales and service throughout the Cleveland area.

The new Colorocs branch, located at 9885 Rockside Road in Valley View, Ohio will provide full service sales and maintenance and is starting with a staff of five. Woltz expects to have between eight and 10 employees within the next few months. All employees will be selected from the local area.

The Colorocs copier features a patented two-belt transfer system that builds multiple color planes onto an intermediate surface and then transfers the full-color image onto the paper in a single pass. This innovative Colorocs technology allows the paper to pass through the machine one time in a straight path, instead of multiple times wrapped around a drum.

The machine can copy either in full color at 7.5 copies per minute, or in black-and-white at 22 copies per minute and enlarges and reduces from 64 percent to 154 percent in 1 percent increments.

The Colorocs copier copies on 8 1/2-by-11 and 11-by-17 plain paper as well as transparency film for overhead projection presentations. A slide adaptor that can produce full color copies of slides is also available.

According to Woltz, the copier finds ready acceptance with printing companies, advertising agencies, computer users and corporate graphic arts departments. The branch is now offering a special CPC (cost per copy) program that avoids front end capital or lease expenses.

Colorocs was formed in 1982 to develop and distribute full color copiers and electronic printers. Shipments of its first product, a full color copier, commenced in June 1989, and through April 30, 1990, had exceeded 4,000 units.

DANBURY, CT (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Union Carbide Chemicals and Plastics Company Inc. (UCC&P) today announced plans to construct a latex manufacturing plant in the Jebel Ali Free Zone in Dubai, United Arab Emirates.

"The new plant will meet increasing customer demand in the Arabian Gulf market and help enhance our worldwide leadership position in latex production," said F.J. Costello, president of the solvents and coatings materials division of UCC&P. "It is an important phase of an overall expansion plan intended to assure a continued, reliable supply of quality latex products throughout our international business areas."

UCC&P currently operates a terminal in the Jebel Ali Free Zone, and the new latex plant will supplement an existing investment in local facilities and services. The plant is designed to incorporate the most modern latex production technology, including environmental protection.

The broad range of latex polymers produced at the new plant will meet customers' needs for interior and exterior paints, roof coatings, adhesives and sand/dust control materials. UCC&P has been serving the Arabian Gulf market with imports for a number of years.

Start-up of the new plant is expected to be in late 1991. This will be UCC&P's 10th latex plant outside the continental United States.

LONDON (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - The VPI Group PLC announced that it had commenced legal action today in New York against Donald C. Carter. The complaint, filed in Federal District Court, alleges that Carter misrepresented the business and financial condition of The Carter Organization in connection with its sale to the group in July 1987 and seeks actual and treble damages.

On March 20, 1990, Carter pleaded guilty in New York Supreme Court to grand larceny in connection with certain client billing matters and to income tax evasion in connection with personal expenses charged by him to The Carter Organization.

Commenting on the group's legal action, Angus Maitland, Group chairman and chief executive, said: "Our shareholders and employees have suffered badly as a result of this affair. We have been more than willing to reach an out of court settlement with Mr. Carter, but in that effort we have been frustrated at every turn. PITTSBURGH (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Speaking before Landmark Savings Association's (AMEX: LSA) stockholders at today's annual meeting, President and Chief Executive Officer J. Richard Eshleman criticized the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA) as shortsightd and punitive.

As a result of FIRREA, he said, a profitable institution with tangible capital was "swept into a net with unprofitable institutions."

"Landmark's basic financial health did not change between May 1989 and January 1990, but the rules did," he stated. Eshleman also noted that except for the effect of the 1989 fourth quarter write-off of goodwill, Landmark has reported profits consistently since it became a public company in 1984.

Eshleman told stockholders that the association's capital plan approval by the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) projects the association will meet all of the new capital standards. Two of the standards will be met by the end of 1990, and the third in 1993.

Acknowledging that stockholders have a right to be angry about the suspension of the dividend, a condition of Landmark's capital plan approval by the OTS, Eshleman called upon the stockholders to make their voices heard in Washington.

In the business meeting, Landmark stockholders today elected Eshleman, David L. Lloyd, Paul A. Neely and W. Edward Sell to the association's board of directors for a three-year term. The elections were held at Landmark's annual meeting at the Westin William Penn.

Landmark's stockholders also ratified the appointment of KPMG Peat Marwick as independent auditors of the association.

Landmark Savings Association is a Pennsylvania-state chartered, publicly owned savings association with assets of approximately $1.6 billion. It is the 149th largest thrift institution in the United States. Landmark common stock is listed on the American Stock Exchange (AMEX), trades under the symbol "LSA," and is reported in the financial press as "LdmkSv."

TAMPA, FL (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Southnet announced today that it has formally activated a new service called "EasyFax."

"EasyFax" is a unique service for anyone who needs to send facsimile documents to multiple destinations simultaneously, either immediately or at later scheduled delivery times.

"EasyFax is a significant enhancement to any business's facsimile capabilities," according to Robert J. Zradicka, president and CEO of Southnet. "Instead of resending the same document over and over to various destinations, a business can now transmit their document one time to EasyFax. The system will automatically deliver your message to every destination you specify. And, it can deliver it now or it can be held for timed release as you require. Furthermore, you can send your request directly to EasyFax from a PC, eliminating the need for you to create an original document. EasyFax will reproduce high resolution graphics as well as printed material, is universally available and can transmit to anywhere worldwide. Our service is custom tailored to public relations, media broadcast, stockholder relations and advertising applications, as well as any general businesses who have a need to broadcast their facsimile documents. The number of hours saved in re-faxing alone will be a tremendous value to EasyFax customers."

The EasyFax service is designed to transmit over 2,800 documents per hour and is available for access 24 hours a day. Initital sales projections by Southnet for EasyFax is $500,000 in year one. "We believe our service will grow at a very rapid pace," stated Zradicka. "As the market for residential facsimile develops, the applications for EasyFax expand tremendously."

NEW YORK (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Air Canada is offering a 50 percent discount off the business class fare (Executive Class) to any immediate family member traveling with a full fare executive class passenger.

Effective for travel between June 16 - Sept. 7, 1990, on all of Air Canada's routes in North America where Executive Class is available, the discounted fare is available to one accompanying spouse or immediate family member between the ages of 12 and 21. Both customers must travel together on all portions of an itinerary.

The passenger traveling on the discounted fare will enjoy all the amenities associated with business class travel but will not be subject to restrictions usually associated with discounted fares such as advance booking and ticketing requirements. In addition, the discounted passenger will also be eligible for the 35 percent executive class premium on Air Canada's frequent flyer (Aeroplan) mileage program.

Air Canada is the only airline that offers a business class between the U.S. and Canada on its flights from New York, Miami, Los Angeles and San Francisco. The airline is introducing executive class on one of its four daily weekday flights between Newark and Toronto on July 2, 1990.

Additional information and bookings are available through travel agents or by calling Air Canada.

NEW ORLEANS, (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Cable & Wireless Communications, Inc. took the lead in the 800 market today when it announced a service that allows companies to shift 800 calls from one terminating location to another by directly accessing the Cable & Wireless network database.

This capability, formerly available only for very large users, is now cost effective for any 800 customer with a local line termination. The service was announced at the ICA '90 Conference and Exhibition held in New Orleans this week.

Customers will not have to purchase additional equipment or software to use the new service which will be available in June for the low monthly fee of $10.

Called PROGRAMMABLE 800, the service represents an important breakthrough for 800 customers who need to immediately redirect 800 traffic to any location within the continental United States.

The new Cable & Wireless PROGRAMMABLE 800 feature is unique because it:
-- does not require a pre-defined routing plan.
-- does not require the customer to call in to a customer service center to place an order.
-- is cost effective for smaller 800 customers.
-- does not require purchase of additional equipment.

According to Charles J. Gibney, senior vice president of marketing and sales for Cable & Wireless Communications, PROGRAMMABLE 800 offers customers unprecedented control and flexibility.

DALLAS/FORT WORTH AIRPORT, TX (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - American Airlines will begin its expansion into Central and South America on July 1 and plans to have its entire route network in place there by Aug. 15, the airline announced today. The focal point for the expansion will be American's new hub at Miami.

American will start the expansion with service between Miami and Argentina Brazil and Chile.

The airline also announced that it will begin daily non-stop service on July 1 between Miami and London and will add Miami-Madrid non-stop service in April 1991.

In addition, American will introduce Miami-Orlando service on Aug. 1 and Miami-Tampa service on Aug. 15 to further strengthen the Miami hub's domestic route structure.

Donald P. O'Hare, American's vice president of field services for the Florida/Caribbean/Latin America division, said the expansion will add more than 1,300 Central and South American employees to American's system and will result in 1,700 new jobs at the Miami hub.

By the time all of the Central and South American services are implemented O'Hare said, American will have invested more than $42 million in facilities expansion and improvements in Miami and will have invested more than $106 million in the overall Latin America start-up program.

The schedule for inaugurating Central and South American service, subject to foreign government approval, will be:

July 1	July 21
Buenos Aires, Argentina	La Paz, Bolivia
Rio de Janeiro, Brazil	Panama City, Panama
Sao Paulo, Brazil	Asuncion, Paraguay
Santiago, Chile	Lima, Peru
Aug. 1	Aug. 15
Barranquilla, Columbia	Belize City, Belize
Bogota, Columbia	San Salvador, El Salvador
Cali, Colombia	San Pedro Sula, Honduras
Guayaquil, Ecuador	Tegucigalpa, Honduras

Quito, Ecuador Caracas, Venezuela

This summer's flights will bring American's Miami hub service to a total of 70 flights a day to 42 cities, from the current 47 daily flights to 21 cities. Of these, 169 flights a week will be international flights. The Miami-Madrid start-up next spring will launch a further expansion which will bring American to a total of 120 flights a day by mid-1991.

American Eagle, the airline's regional commuter carrier which also has a hub in Miami, currently operates an additional 33 flights a day to eight cities. By early 1991, Eagle is expected to grow to 48 flights a day to 16 cities from Miami. These passengers will help feed the Central and South American routes.

BOONTON TOWNSHIP, NJ (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Digital Optronics Corporation (NASDAQ: DOCC), a manufacturer of defense electronic systems and coherent laser radar and measurement systems, announced today that its bank line of credit has been expanded to $3 million from $2.2 million by United Jersey Bank.

Commenting on the new bank line, Terence C. Byrne Jr., president of Digital Optronics, stated, "This larger credit line will provide sufficient working capital to meet our operating goals through at least the end of the current calendar year. With our current backlog at the $27 million level, this increased credit line enables us to support our sales growth. We expect relatively good earnings for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1990, and our backlog encourages us to believe this trend will continue next year."

For the six months ended March 31, 1990, Digital Optronics had sales of $8,875,011 and net income of $729,795, or $.11 per share, compared with sales of $3,184,322 and net loss of $720,387, or $.11 per share, for the same period in 1989.

TROY, MI (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Ovonic Imaging Systems, Inc. (OTC: OVONC) announced today that it has established a joint venture in Taiwan with several leading Taiwanese companies to manufacture OIS' proprietary amorphous silicon scanning sensors for use in facsimile machines, document scanners and other imaging applications. The new joint venture plans to break ground for its facility south of Taipei in the Hsin Chu Science-Based Industrial Park later this year.

Named UNIPAC Optoelectronics Corporation (UNIPAC), the new joint venture is incorporated in Taiwan with an initial paid-in capital of $12 million (U.S.). UNIPAC's partners include OIS, Sampo Technology Corporation (a $450 million electronics company), Teco Information Systems Co. (a $400 million electronics and electrical company), United Microelectronics Corp. (a $180 million integrated circuit manufacturer), two venture capital corporations and individual investors. UNIPAC was approved recently by the government of Taiwan and is now incorporated.

OIS has granted UNIPAC a worldwide, royalty-bearing, non-exclusive license for its amorphous silicon scanner/sensor technology. OIS owns 10 percent of UNIPAC and has the right, subject to UNIPAC achieving certain milestones, to sell its 10 percent equity to other joint venture partners for $3 million (subject to currency evaluations).

Over a period of seven months, from date of signing, OIS will receive $500,000 for the technology transfer of which OIS received the first payment. OIS also has exclusive U.S. marketing rights for facsimile machines manufactured by International Communications Systems Corp. (ICSC) using UNIPAC sensors, subject to achieving sales of certain quantities. ICSC is a Taiwanese manufacturer of fax machines which is owned by some of the partners in UNIPAC.

Dr. Zvi Yaniv, OIS president, said, "Although OIS continues to concentrate its resources on the development of active matrix liquid crystal flat panel displays, the establishment of UNIPAC is a perfect opportunity for OIS to enter the vast market of imaging applications. Now, for the first time, OIS has a source of manufacturing for both sensor modules and scanners incorporating its proprietary amorphous silicon technology. It also provides the chance for us to evaluate the future of this rapidly growing market."

OIS develops electronic displays and scanning systems. Currently, OIS is focusing its proprietary display technology on avionic and military applications in order to become a leading U.S.-based manufacturer of flat panel displays.

DEARBORN, MI (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS) today announced a unanimous Michigan Court of Appeals decision vacating the preliminary injunction issued on April 26, 1990, by the Ingham County Circuit Court restricting the transfer and other use of CMS Energy's debt and equity interests in the Midland Cogeneration Venture (MCV).

As argued by CMS Energy, the Court determined that the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC) possesses only those powers conferred upon it by statute and does not have the power to make management decisions or to extend its jurisdiction by consent or conduct. In arriving at its decision, the Court relied upon the unanimous Michigan Supreme Court Union Carbide vs MPSC decision of 1988.

The Court remanded to the Ingham County Circuit Court the question of whether any statutory basis exists for the MPSC to specify how the proceeds of the MCV plant assets should be used.

The company believes this Court decision will enhance the prospects for the proposed MCV sale/leaseback to go forward and will support its position in other court proceedings. CMS Energy further believes that the decision supports the company's view as to the lack of jurisdiction by the MPSC over CMS Energy's non-utility business activities including its MCV interests.

CMS Energy Corporation is a $3 billion (sales) diversified energy company with businesses engaged in the distribution of electricity and natural gas interstate storage and transmission of natural gas, oil and gas exploration and production, independent power generation and utility services. CMS Energy Corporation's principal subsidiary is Consumers Power Company, Michigan's largest utility and the nation's fourth- largest combination utility.

NEW ORLEANS (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Cable & Wireless will begin providing "one-stop" digital private line services between the United States and Canada to its customers beginning July 1990.

The new transborder services will include T-1, fractional T-1 (DS-0), DDS, voice tie lines, analog data service and a unique facilities management service offered by Cable & Wireless in the United States and Unitel Communications, Inc., formerly CNCP, in Canada. Transborder service commencement is subject to FCC approval.

According to Charles J. Gibney, senior vice president for marketing and sales at Cable & Wireless Communications, Inc., the new services are being introduced to the marketplace in response to an overwhelming increase in demand for transborder service into Canada.

"Many of our customers are becoming more aggressive in pursuing global markets, and are extending their networks into other countries to reach new customers and markets," said Gibney. He added that the need for service into Canada is growing at a rapid pace.

Cable & Wireless customers who use its fractional T-1 service, called INTELLI-FLEX, will be able to choose from several options including a unified T-1 access option, called UNI-T and 64kbs clear channel service. Under the UNI-T arrangement, customers will have the ability to integrate switched voice and private line traffic over the same T-1 local loop and have C&W split traffic to a variety of terminating sites in both the U.S. and Canada.

The most unique option available to Cable & Wireless customers with Canadian-bound traffic is a facilities management service, called Tele-Site. Cable & Wireless is the only long distance carrier to offer this type of service as a standard offering. Tele-Site enables companies to establish network nodes in remote cities by locating equipment in Cable & Wireless terminals.

Cable & Wireless will work with UniTel to provide service throughout Canada. Detroit will serve as the primary gateway site.

Cable & Wireless Communications, Inc., the nation's largest telecommunications company which exclusively serves businesses, is a subsidiary of Cable & Wireless plc, a multi-national telecommunications organization. The company provides a comprehensive range of switched and private line business communications services via an all-digital fiber optic-based network which stretches from coast to coast.

BOSTON (MAY 24,) PR NEWSWIRE - Chancellor Corporation (NASDAQ: CHCR) reported a net loss from continuing operations of $985,000 or 26 cents per share for the three months ended March 31, 1990, compared to a net loss from continuing operations of $356,000, or 9 cents per share in 1989. Revenues for the three months ended March 31, 1990 were $12,219,000 as compared to $14,143,000 in 1989.

Stephen G. Morison, vice chairman and chief executive officer, stated that "the results", while disappointing, were in line with our expectations. The loss was principally attributed to a decline in the volume of new leased equipment sold to investors. A low inventory level of leased equipment available for sale at the beginning of the quarter combined with a low level of new equipment, deliveries during the quarter was the primary reason for the loss."

Founded in 1977, Chancellor has, in recent years, concentrated on the leasing of transportation equipment. It is also involved in the leasing of aircraft, communications, medical, agricultural and other equipment. SYCAMORE, IL (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Duplex Products Inc. (AMEX: DPX), a leading business forms manufacturer, today reported reduced sales and earnings for its second fiscal quarter ended April 28, 1990.

Sales for the quarter were $77,310,000, a decrease of 10 percent from $85,812,000 in the second 1989 quarter. Net income was $2,724,000, equal to 35 cents per share, compared with $3,841,000, or 50 cents per share, in the corresponding period last year. This represents a 30 percent decrease in earnings per share.

For the first six months of the year, sales were $152,448,000, down 8 percent from $165,723,000 in 1989. Net earnings declined from $7,052,000 to $6,148,000, with earnings per share decreasing 14 percent from 92 cents to 79 cents.

"Results for the quarter were disappointing," said Carl L. Peterson, president and CEO. "Weak demand along with the excess capacity in the business forms industry has created extreme competitive price pressures. The resulting decline in our revenues offset the positive effect of lower average material costs and our profit margins were unfavorably impacted. Although we have not seen any improvement in our markets currently, we would expect a strengthening in business forms demand either in our fourth quarter or early in the next fiscal year.

"As part of our ongoing effort to maximize return on investment, we will be closing our forms plant in Union City, Calif. This is scheduled to be accomplished in the third quarter and should result in an increase is capacity utilization."

Duplex Products Inc. is a leader in the manufacture of quality business forms and related services for commercial and industrial use. Its product line includes continuous and unit set business forms, forms- related services, pressure sensitive labels, envelopes, tabulating cards and other specialties. The company's products are primarily sold through its direct sales force and also through its catalog division. BOULDER, CO (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Synergen Inc. (NASDAQ: SYGN) announced today the appointment of Michael Catalano, M.D. to the position of vice president and medical director. Catalano will direct human clinical trials of new pharmaceutical products developed by Synergen.

"We are delighted to have an individual of Dr. Catalano's caliber and particular experience accept this position at Synergen as we continue to move more of our products into clinical trials," said Jon Saxe, president and chief executive officer.

Synergen is currently developing its bFGF product in Phase II human clinical trials for the treatment of chronic skin ulcers. Phase I clinical trials should be launched later this year to investigate two more of the company's products, IL-lra for the treatment of arthritis and other inflammatory diseases and SLPI for the treatment of cystic fibrosis and genetic emphysema. These products are all protein therapeutics made by Synergen using recombinant DNA technology.

Catalano most recently was executive director of anti-inflammatory and pulmonary drug development at CIBA-GEIGY U.S.A. where his responsibilities included obtaining FDA approval for CIBA-GEIGY's anti-rheumatic drug Voltaren. Catalano joined CIBA-GEIGY in 1984 as director of anti-inflammatory drug development in which position he concentrated on novel drugs for rheumatoid arthritis.

Catalno received his M.D. from Yale Medical School and his B.S. degree from Boston College. He is Board certified in both Rheumatology and Internal Medicine. Catalano's post-doctoral training was at the University of Kentucky in Lexington and at Scripps Clinic in San Diego. He has also been director of the Arthritis Center and associate professor of medicine at the University of Hawaii.

Synergen is a biotechnology company developing products to treat inflammatory diseases, vascular disorders and neurological conditions using recombinant DNA technology and the latest advances in molecular and cellular biology.

ATLANTA (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - IBM today announced over $80,000 in grants for Atlanta-based dependent care agencies as part of its $25 million dependent care fund established to support local child care and elder care programs.

Atlanta is one of 11 communities to benefit from the first series of programs under the new IBM fund.

Child Care Solutions, a referral service of Save the Children, will receive $57,000 to fund the creation of a Family Day Care Resource Room to enhance the quality of care and ease registration procedures for family day care providers. The Resource Room will serve as a hub of recruitment and training activities to improve the quality and number of family day care providers in north Atlanta where IBM has its greatest concentration of employees.

Nancy Travis, executive director of the Child Care Support Center for Save the Children, said, "We find in our surveys that family day care is the preference of parents with infants and toddlers who want their children to remain in a family setting. We appreciate IBM's approach in working on programs which will benefit the total community."

The Atlanta Regional Commission will use a $25,000 grant to develop a corporate volunteer program to recruit more than 100 employees and retirees from IBM and other companies to offer in-home social services to the elderly in the Atlanta area.

"The growth of the older population and its demand on services is starting to outstrip the existing supply," said Harry West, executive director of the Atlanta Regional Commission. "Through innovative programs such as the Corporate Volunteer Project with IBM, we hope to tap into the powerful volunteer resources of the active and retired corporate workforce. Thanks to the participation of IBM and other interested corporations, we will be able to greatly expand and enhance the delivery system for services to the aging in the Atlanta region."

"We're pleased to support projects of such critical importance to IBMers who must obtain quality care for their children and older relatives here," said W. Thomas Smith Jr., vice president and area general manager, IBM US Marketing & Services. "We applaud the creative ways both Child Care Solutions and the Atlanta Regional Commission have proposed to recruit and train more people to help in these home care programs.

"By working together, we hope to ease the burden of balancing personal home concerns with work for our people. The new program joins our leave programs, flexible work schedules and other family-oriented benefits which demonstrate IBM's commitment to help our people better solve the problems of aging, child care, family illness, and other unexpected family crises."

WILMINGTON, DE (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - A federal judge has ordered Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc. (NASDAQ: PHYB) not to develop or distribute any of five special lines of high-oil corn seed it acquired in 1988 without knowledge of University of Illinois administrators.

The seeds were developed by the university and licensed exclusively to Pfister Hybrid Corn Co. and Du Pont (NYSE: DD) as a result of a competitive bid process.

The ruling by Chief U.S. District Court Judge Harold Baker last Friday clears the way for trial of a lawsuit filed against Pioneer in January by the university, Du Pont and Pfister. The suit alleges that Pioneer obtained and is developing unauthorized samples of the seed outside the exclusive licensing agreement and in violation of the Illinois Trade Secrets Act.

The university signed an exclusive agreement with Du Pont and Pfister in April 1989 to develop and commercialize the high-oil corn seeds. Pioneer which initially was a bidder for the license, withdrew its bid after obtaining samples of the seeds.

"Judge Baker's ruling validates our position that the people of Illinois, as well as farmers in general, are best served by the recognition of and respect for the licensing agreement we signed," said Pete Hamilton, director of biotechnology business development for Du Pont's Agricultural Products Department.

Du Pont and Pfister are investing heavily to create new specialty corn products, Hamilton said.

Judge Baker said there is a reasonable likelihood a jury could find that the gene populations are trade secrets, that Pioneer acquired them by improper means, and that it misappropriated the materials.

"The information Pioneer acquired represents a lifetime of research and 100 years of plant breeding experiments at the university," the court stated in the injunction. It orders Pioneer to refrain from developing, distributing, using or disclosing any of the high-oil corn materials and requires Pioneer to preserve all research records relating to the corn project while the case is in court.

High-oil corn can serve as a high-energy, superior feed for poultry, swine and dairy animals. Du Pont and Pfister are marketing high-oil corn from licensed material to farmers on a limited basis and are growing it under contract for interested customers. The two companies recently made their first royalty payments to the university under the terms of the high-oil corn licensing agreement.

COLUMBUS, OH (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - A group formed by a Stamford, Conn.-based investment partnership and the management team of Cardinal Lodging Group has executed a letter of intent with the court-appointed trustee of the Lodging Group's parent company, Cardinal Industries, to acquire the motel management subsidiary and its franchise rights, as well as to negotiate with lenders to acquire three-fifths of its 175 Knights Inn and Arborgate Inn motels.

Cardinal Industries' Operating Trustee Jay Alix will submit the group's letter of intent Friday for approval by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Barbara Sellers. Cardinal Lodging Group is a 100-percent owned subsidiary of Cardinal Industries. Both have been operating under the protection of Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code.

Under the bid, which is subject to higher and better offers, Cardinal Lodging Group would receive $5 million in cash and 5-percent ownership in Propertyco, a wholly owned subsidiary of Newco, a Columbus- based company formed to acquire the motel properties.

If approved by the court, Newco would then have 90 days to complete its due diligence and to secure acceptance by lenders holding mortgages on the motel properties. Court filings state that Propertyco will ask lenders to exchange the secured interests they hold in the properties in exchange for a share of the ownership of Propertyco and an interest in a $136 million bond the new company said it plans to issue.

Propertyco, which is receiving financial backing from Stamford-based Capricorn Investors, L.P., intends to acquire 104 motels in 16 states, operating under the names Knights Inn, Knights Court, Knights Stop and Arborgate Inn. Capricorn said the plan requires borrowing $26 million to renovate the motels, and that current employees of Cardinal Lodging Group would have an opportunity to stay with the newly formed companies.

Alix said several other interested parties have approached him, and other offers could be received over the next several months.

In related Cardinal Industries developments, Alix reported to the court that:

-- Cardinal's business is operating at cash breakeven now and should continue to improve.

-- More favorable terms are being negotiated with Cardinal's secured lenders, with settlements arranged or expected soon on $458 million in mortgages, 23 percent of the company's $2 billion mortgage portfolio.

-- Slightly more than $3.2 million is expected to be generated through the pending sales of 16 apartment properties and a retirement village. Cardinal also intends to sell its manufacturing facilities, vacant land, manufactured housing modules now in storage and its Cardinal Retirement Management Group.

-- Through mid-May, 141 of Cardinal's 855 limited partnerships, 16.5 percent of the partnerships, were operating under Chapter 11, and four additional Cardinal subsidiaries filed for Chapter 11 in April and early May, bringing the total number of subsidiaries in Chapter 11 to 12 of Cardinal's 33 subsidiaries. The subsidiaries filing recently were Cardinal Parts Services Co., Cardinal Lodging, Cardinal Apartment Management Group and Cardinal Industries Development Corp.

PHILADELHPIA (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Sun Refining and Marketing Co. today announced that it has signed a 10-year licensing agreement with Cincinnati Milacron Marketing Company for that company to market Sun's branded line of metalworking oils and fluids. The agreement couples two of the oldest and most respected companies involved in manufacturing and marketing metalworking oils and fluids. Sun was founded in 1886, Cincinnati Milacron in 1884.

The agreement covers Sun's metalworking oils in three categories: heat treating oils; soluble, cutting, grinding and coating oils and certain synthetic fluids; and base oils for metalworking applications.

Familiar Sun branded oils covered by this agreement include: Sun Emulsified Cutting Oil (SECO (R)), Emulsun (R) , Sunicut (R) , Sungrind (R) , Sunkote (R) , Sunicool (R) , Sunquench (R) and Sun CSO (TM). Cincinnati Milacron will market the Sun branded products through SECO Metalworking Fluids a marketing group of the products group of Cincinnati Milacron.

Cincinnati Milacron is a leader in advanced manufacturing technologies for the metalworking and plastics processing industries, and in robotics, metrology, inspection, controls and information technologies for factory automation in general. The company is also a leading producer of precision grinding wheels and synthetic metalworking fluids. The company has been a leader in the machine tool industry for 105 years, and a leader in water-based synthetic metalworking fluids for over 40 years.

"We at Sun see this agreement as an opportunity to renew and revitalize our quality line of metalworking oils and fluids," said David C. Rippy, vice president, Lubes Division, Sun Refining and Marketing Co. "This will enable Cincinnati Milacron, through SECO Metalworking Fluids Group to broaden its quality product line while offering superior technical support research and development and provide a dedicated sales force to our product line. At the same time this agreement will renew and revitalize this product line for Sun's distributors."

Sun will continue to manufacture some products at its Marcus Hook, Pa. and Tulsa, Okla. refineries and oversee the third party manufacturing of certain products elsewhere. Sun will continue to ship these products in bulk or package to distributors and direct accounts.

"We feel that our broad knowledge of the national metalworking marketplace coupled with Sun's quality oils, gives us an advantage over the competition in quality, price, customer service and technical support," said William Gruber, vice president of Cincinnati Milacron Marketing Co. "Sun's products are environmentally sound and meet all government standards."

Sun Refining and Marketing Co. is the second largest manufacturer of lube oils in the United States and is a subsidiary of Sun Company Inc. (NYSE: SUN), which ranks 46th on the Fortune 500 listing.

WILMINGTON, NC (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Reeds Jewelers, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: REED) today announced sales and earnings for the fiscal year and fourth quarter ended February 28, 1990, and an increase in its Bank Revolving Credit Facility from $12 million to $15 million.

Total revenues for fiscal 1990 were $55.1 million, up from $53.2 million in the prior year, an increase of 3.5 percent. Net sales for the fiscal year were $51.0 million, up from $49.5 million in the prior fiscal year, an increase of 3.0 percent. Net earnings were $1.0 million, down from $2.1 million in fiscal 1989. Net earnings in fiscal 1989 included a cumulative effect of $446,000 from applying a new accounting pronouncement relating to income taxes (SFAS 96).

Earnings per share for the fiscal year were $.29 and were $.60 in the prior year, of which $.47 came from operations and $.13 from the change in accounting principle. The reduction in operating earnings was primarily the result of higher occupancy and interest costs.

Total revenues for the fourth quarter ended February 28, 1990 were $20.6 million, up from $19.6 million, an increase of 5.5 percent. Net sales for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 were $19.8 million, up from $18.6 million for the fourth quarter of the prior comparable period, an increase of 6.5 percent. The difference between net sales and total revenues in the fourth quarter and fiscal year is other revenues, principally finance charges.

In the fourth quarter Reeds earned $1.2 million, down from $1.6 million in the prior comparable fourth quarter, a decrease of 26.1 percent. Earnings per share from operations were $.34 a decrease of 24.4 percent from $.45 in the prior year's quarter.

The fourth quarter results and their impact on fiscal 1990 had not been unexpected. The Company had previously disclosed that December sales had been adversely affected by major ice and snow storms. The Company also had previously disclosed the disposal of an unused office building acquired with the Dreifus acquisition in 1987 and the closing of three stores because of continued declining sales in those stores. The disposals resulted in total charges of $245,974 against pre-tax income.

Reeds operated 61 stores in twelve Southeastern and South Central sunbelt states at the end of both 1990 reporting periods and operated 63 stores in thirteen states at the end of the year-earlier periods.

Comparable store sales for fiscal 1990 were up 0.8 percent from the prior fiscal year and were up 9.7 percent for the fourth quarter from the comparable quarter last year. Alan M. Zimmer, president and chief executive officer, said "We are very pleased that the new marketing strategy emphasizing quality, value, and service is finally beginning to produce the positive sales results which we expected when we implemented it."

Reeds now operates 62 stores in twelve states. During March and April of this year, the Company opened stores in Murrells Inlet, South Carolina and Panama City, Florida. It moved its Tupelo, Mississippi location into a new regional mall and sold its remaining location in Birmingham, Alabama.

The Company has successfully negotiated a seasonal increase in its Reveolving Credit Facility from $12 million to $15 million. The increased line is with its existing bank, extends through December 31, 1990, and bears the same rate of interest as the underlying $12 million facility.

Reeds Jewelers is a specialty retailer presently operating its 62-store chain primarily in enclosed regional malls in 12 states principally in the Southeast. The Company specializes in the sale of fine jewelry, emphasizing customer service.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Hughes Aircraft Company is developing a project to deliver innovative educational programming to public elementary schools via satellite.

The project is aimed initially at kindergarten through 5th graders where demographics and recent history show students are most likely to perform poorly and drop out. A pilot phase is scheduled to start in fall 1991, involving 30 schools from diverse and low- income urban and rural areas around the country. Ultimately, Hughes hopes to make the programming available to all elementary schools.

"American industry is aware of the acute need to improve education. Hughes is taking an active role in addressing this problem," said Norman Avrech, vice president in charge of public education systems at Hughes' Space and Communications Group (SCG).

"Children are powerfully conditioned by television and we have an opportunity to use this attraction to television for instructive purposes " Avrech added. "Satellite delivery has great potential to reach many millions of children with high-quality educational programs that engage students' imagination."

Plans call for the pilot phase to use a mix of existing and newly developed educational segments emphasizing English and science. Original programming will be added as the project expands.

Hughes will underwrite the project, Avrech said, and anticipates that additional funding sources will be developed as it proceeds.

A.J. Iorillo, Hughes SCG president, is enthusiastic about his group's new venture. "We at Hughes believe that by unleashing the tremendous power of communications satellites and television in the war on educational mediocrity, we can make a major difference in America's future competitive ability."

D. Kenneth Richardson, Hughes Aircraft Co. president, underscored the company's motivation for beginning the project: "The importance of education cannot be overstated. One of the goals of this project is to inspire students to continue their education, particularly in the engineering and science fields."

Hughes, a unit of GM Hughes Electronics, is the world's largest manufacturer and operator of communications satellites.

DETROIT (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - The following statement is from Thomas H. Hanna, president of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association (MVMA) of the United States, Inc.:

It is regrettable that the House has chosen to mandate in California automotive technology not yet ready for general consumer use.

Last night's vote requiring alternative fuel vehicles in California is an improvement over the Waxman-Lewis amendment. But we remain concerned that mandating the sales of thousands of alternative fuel vehicles before they are ready for the market could cause consumer backlash and set back the acceptance of those vehicles.

We believe vehicles that use alternative fuels are a good idea, but they must meet consumer expectations. They cannot be legislated.

As we look toward the House/Senate conference, we will continue to press for measures which safeguard consumer needs for safe, affordable and reliable transportation while continuing progress in reducing emissions.

The 490,000-square-foot complex is being built on a 39-acre site near I-88 and Orchard Road in Aurora.

"The facility to be built here continues a long and mutually beneficial relationship between Toyota and Illinois," said Wagner, vice president - sales for Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A., Inc., Torrance, Calif. "It's no wonder the Chicago Region needs a new headquarters here. They have to take care of 112 Toyota dealers in five states. That's more dealers than any of our other eight regions and Toyota is targeting the Midwest for even more expansion in the near future."

The 36,000-square-foot office complex will house 66 Toyota sales and service associates who support Toyota dealers in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota and Michigan's Upper Peninsula. The office will be completed in July 1991.

The 454,000-square-foot PDC will employ 35 Toyota associates and is slated for completion in September 1991. The PDC provides parts to Toyota and Lexus dealers in the Midwest.

Toyota dealers in the Chicago Region this year will sell 71,000 cars and trucks. The dealers will purchase some $56 million of parts and accessories from the Chicago PDC this year.

Toyota first began distributing cars in the Midwest in 1966. In addition to their current Regional Headquarters and PDC in Carol Stream, the company's other facilities in Illinois include: Toyota Motor Credit Corporation offices in Oakbrook Terrace and Deerfield; Vehicle Processors, Inc., West Chicago (Toyota's inland port and vehicle- processing facility) and the Lexus Division Regional Headquarters, Naperville.

Toyota and Toyota dealers in Illinois employ more than 2,000 people. Perkins & Will, Chicago and Washington, D.C., are the architects/ engineers for the Toyota project. Turner Construction Company, Chicago, is the contractor/designer.

SEATTLE (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Boeing 747 orders topped the 1,000-airplane mark today when Japan Airlines (JAL), already the world's largest operator of the superjet, announced that it is acquiring 20 more 747-400s, Boeing Commercial Airplane Group said.

JAL has exercised options for 15 more 747-400s in addition to five that had been ordered earlier this year. Total value of the order for 20 advanced-technology superjets is approximately $3.1 billion including spares and training.

Only three other civil airliner types have exceed 1,000 orders in history -- the Boeing 727 and 737, and the McDonnell Douglas MD-80 series.

Today's announcement brings JAL's total orders for the 747D400s to 40, of which five have been delivered. JAL has chosen the General Electric CF6-80C2 engine to power its -400s.

The superjets provide the airline with the ability to carry 375 to 404 passengers in a three-class layout on long-range flights linking Tokyo with European and U.S. destinations.

Since June 1966, JAL has ordered a wide variety of 747s including the -100 -100SR (short range), -200F (freighter), the -300, -300SR and the -400 for a total of 104. Altogether, JAL has ordered 132 Boeing jetliners since its first 727 in 1964. Currently, the Japanese carrier operates 14 Boeing 767s in addition to the 747s.

The Boeing 747-400 -- the world's largest, most modern and longest-range jetliner -- boasts technical advances in aerodynamics, structural materials, avionics and interior design. Capable of ranges up to 8,400 statute miles (13,518 km), the new airliner consumes 11 to 15 percent less fuel than earlier 747-300s.

Boeing has delivered 70 of the 747-400s since the model was delivered from the Everett assembly facility on Jan. 26, 1989. Firm orders for the 747 family now total 1002, of which 279 are for the 747-400 airplane. Boeing has announced orders for 138 jetliners of all types so far in 1990.

Coincidentally, total orders for Boeing jet airliners of all types have reached 7,747.

STAMFORD, CT (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - GTE Corp. (NYSE: GTE) and THORN EMI plc today announced that they are in discussions regarding the global lighting industry, and that these discussions could lead to possible ownership of THORN Lighting by GTE.

The worldwide demand for lamps and fixtures of advanced technology and design, offering high-energy efficiency and operating economies, requires increasingly high levels of investment. Substantial research and development expenditures are needed to provide such features across a wide internationally oriented product range. In parallel, there is growing pressure to achieve cost competitiveness through economies of scale in R&D manufacturing and marketing so as to develop strong positions in the world's key lighting markets, the companies stated.

With further rationalization inevitable in the industry, THORN EMI and GTE said that a joining of lighting businesses with a commitment to global growth in lighting, will be in the best long-term interests of their customers and employees.

THORN EMI is a major international company with a presence in 43 countries. Competing successfully in many markets around the world, its operations in rental and retail, music, lighting and technology generated turnover (sales) in excess of 3,000 million pounds (approximately US$5.1 billion) providing a profit (PBIT) of over 289 million pounds (US$488 million) in the year ended March 31, 1989. The group employs over 60,000 people worldwide.

GTE is a leader in its three core businesses -- telecommunications, lighting and precision materials -- providing products and services worldwide. The company, whose stock is listed on the Stock Exchange, London, as well as on the New York, Tokyo, Amsterdam, Basel, Geneva, Lausanne, Paris and Geneva exchanges, is a multinational corporation with sales of $17.4 billion and net income of $1.4 billion in 1989. The corporation employs 158,000 people worldwide with approximately 1,100 employees based in the United Kingdom.

LAYFAYETTE, LA (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Offshore Logistics Inc. (NASDAQ: OLOG) (the "company") announced today that it has cancelled its plans to file a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission with respect to its previously announced proposal to offer approximately 3 million shares of the company's authorized but unissued common stock.

This action resulted from the company's failure to receive a waiver from Sikorsky Aircraft under a lease agreement between the company and Sikorsky. Sikorsky refused to permit the offering unless a portion of the proceeds were used to prepay the lease. The absence of a waiver of such provisions was considered unacceptable by company management. James B. Clement, president and chief executive officer, stated that internally generated funds and other sources will be sufficient to satisfy the company's capital requirements.

MIAMI (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - In a rare legal action which involves a bank suing a bank, Professional Savings Bank, one of Florida's leading savings and loan institutions, has joined with Overseas Corporation to file suit against the Bank of Credit and Commerce International (BCCI).

Professional Savings Bank is seeking $7 million in compensatory damages and $21 million in punitive damages in a case involving a mortgage foreclosure action filed by BCCI against International Industrial Park, Ltd., an affiliate of Overseas Corporation.

The charges being levied in the Professional Savings case against BCCI include: common law fraud; equitable estoppel and cancellation of mortgage; breach of good faith and fair dealing; interference with contract and unjust enrichment -- the same charges alleged by Overseas Corporation in a suit filed several months ago.

Overseas is also suing BCCI for $15 million in compensatory damages and $200 million in punitive damages.

"As a lender for Overseas' International Industrial Park, Ltd., Professional Savings was entitled to a portion of the profits of the project," said Steven Mishan of Mishan, Sloto, Hoffman & Greenberg, P.A., counsel to Professional Savings. "When the project was improperly interrupted, and then sent into foreclosure, Professional Savings' interest was severely hampered."

Overseas Corporation is a Miami-based real-estate development and management company that has planned and developed innovative and successful resort complex projects in the United States, the Caribbean, South America, Europe and Australia. Overseas was ranked as the 148th largest company in Florida on Florida Trend's 1989 list of the 200 largest Florida Corporations, and the 32nd largest company among the nation's 500 largest Hispanic corporations in 1988.

WILMINGTON, DE (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Beneficial Corporation (NYSE: BNL) announced today that it has amended its existing stockholder rights plan. Each full Right entitles the holder to buy one one-hundredth of a share of Beneficial Series A participating preferred stock at a purchase price of $175. Upon the occurrence of certain events, rights "flip-in" and entitle holders to buy Beneficial Series A participating preferred stock at one-half market value or "flip-over" and entitle holders to buy common stock in an acquiring entity at one-half market value.

The rights plan has been amended to reduce the threshold of beneficial ownership at which the rights separate from the common stock and flip-in, to add an additional flip-in event and to make certain other modifications. Separation of the rights and a flip-in event will now occur if a person acquires voting stock of Beneficial having 15 percent or more of the general voting power. Prior to the amendment, the rights did not separate from the common stock until a person acquired voting stock of Beneficial having 20 percent or more of the general voting power and, absent the occurrence of other flip-in events, a flip-in event did not occur until a person acquired voting stock of Beneficial having 35 percent or more of the general voting power.

Additionally, a flip-in event will now occur if the board of directors (with the concurrence of Beneficial's independent directors) declares any person to be an "Adverse Person," upon a determination that the person has become the beneficial owner of voting stock of Beneficial having at least 10 percent of the general voting power and that such person's ownership of Beneficial voting stock is likely to cause certain specified adverse effects.

These amendments, which incorporate into the rights plan provisions included in the rights plans of a significant number of companies, are intended to enhance the ability of all stockholders to realize the long-term value of their investment in Beneficial and to discourage anyone from pursuing certain coercive takeover tactics or from attempting "greenmail." Beneficial said that the amendments are not in response to any known effort to acquire the company.

Other changes made to the rights plan are described in a letter and related summary of rights that will be mailed to the holders of all of Beneficial's voting stock.

Beneficial Corporation provides consumer financial services through a network of over 1,000 offices located across the United States and in Canada, the United Kingdom and West Germany.

SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Pan Pacific Petroleum Inc. today announced that its subsidiary, Enim Oil Co., has drilled a successful confirmation well approximately a mile away from its first onshore Harimau discovery in the Lematang Block, South Sumatra, Indonesia. The first Harimau discovery well tested 29.3 API gravity oil at the rate of 2,200 barrels a day in January, 1990.

The Harimau No. 2 well tested 53 API gravity at a rate of 888 barrels of oil a day and 14.5 million cubic feet of natural gas per day. There was no water associated with the oil and gas production. An additional confirmatory well, Harimau No. 3, is scheduled to begin exploratory drilling next week, and seismic studies indicate a high probability of further confirmation of the field's productivity.

In April, 1990 the company announced a discovery at Tupai, adjoining the Harimau field, which tested 32 API gravity oil at a rate of 592 barrels a day.

Pan Pacific said that the company is confident that with the addition of one additional successful confirmation discovery it will reach its goal of producing 5,000 barrels of oil a day by October, 1990. Design work is underway for all of the producing facilities and the pipeline connection.

Pan Pacific, through its wholly owned subsidiary, Enim Oil, holds a 50 percent interest in the 280,000 acre Lematang block as a Production Sharing Contract with PERTAMINA, the state enterprise of the Republic of Indonesia.

Pan Pacific common stock is traded on the Vancouver (British Columbia) stock exchange.

SEATTLE (MAY 24) BUSINESS WIRE - Boeing Defense & Space Group Aerospace & Electronics Division has successfully completed three air stabilizer (parachute) tests for the U.S. Navy's Sea Lance anti-submarine missile system, the company said today.

The air stabilizer (parachute) systems under test slow the torpedo payload after separation from the rocket booster so that the torpedo may safely enter the water to begin its search for the target.

All requirements and test objectives were met during this partial test series. Air drops were made at the Navy's Point Mugu over-water missile range in California.

Sea Lance is the only anti-submarine weapon currently in development that is common to submarine and surface ships. It is launched from an attack submarine torpedo tube in a capsule. When the capsule reaches the surface, it opens up allowing a rocket motor to ignite, powering the Mark-50 torpedo payload into supersonic, ballistic trajectory.

At the aimpoint, the rocket booster separates, and the torpedo floats down to the surface under a parachute. There the parachute separates and the torpedo seeks out its target. In a launch from a surface ship, the capsule is not used.

Although a termination order for the program has been issued by the Naval Sea Systems Command, system and subsystem tests are being conducted and test data compiled through the termination date, Sept. 15, 1990.

In February, two test launches were successfully conducted from a ground launch system at White Sands Missile Range, N.M. Other tests are scheduled to be completed prior to the termination date.

In one series, a missile will be air-dropped to test the separation sequence. This includes dropping a Mark 50 exercise torpedo into the water to demonstrate the torpedo's ability to run after it has gone through the flight and separation sequence.

(OTC) of Denver which will grant Crown the right to acquire a 60 percent interest in the mineral rights on approximetaly 145,000 acres. The option covers eight property blocks leased or owned by Centurion. Seven of these are in the Utah Gold Belt, and the eighth is in west-central Utah. Mark E. Jones III, chairman of Crown, stated, "Crown sees this as a strategic exploration opportunity in a very rich mineral trend and we plan to begin drilling in about a month."

The agreement calls for Crown to spend $4 million over a four year period to earn a 60 percent joint venture interest in four of the eight property blocks. Crown will release back to Centurion two property blocks at the end of the first year, and two additional property blocks at the end of the second year. Crown's initial commitment is $340,000 which must be spent before Aug. 31, 1990. In addition, Crown will make a $75,000 private placement into Centurion for 150,000 shares and allow Crown one year to buy 750,000 additional Centurion shares at 60 cents per share. During the period, Crown will pay all leasehold costs, be responsible for all assessment work, and pay Centurion a $10,000 monthly management fee.

The Utah Gold Belt is a major 60 mile long north-south mineralized trend, from Garfield on the north to Tintic on the South. This gold belt has produced over 23 million ounces of gold and 625 million ounces of silver worth over $12 billion at today's prices. Principal operating mines in the Utah Gold Belt include Kennecott's Bingham copper/gold mine, Mel-Co and Barney's Canyon gold mines, American Barrick's Mercur gold mine, and Sunshine's Trixie gold mine.

Barry Katona, president of Centurion, stated, "We are very pleased to have Crown Resources as a potential joint venture partner and believe that with our experienced and competent technical staffs working together, we can rapidly advance these high potential gold properties. Based on Centurion's extensive technical expertise in Utah, Crown has retained Centurion personnel to help manage the exploration phase."

WHITE PLAINS, NY (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Texaco Inc. (NYSE: TX) today issued the following statement in response to the Clean Air Act legislation passed last night by the U.S. House of Representatives:

"Texaco fully supports clean air legislation, and continues its individual and joint research efforts into reformulated gasolines which can improve air quality.

"However, the legislation passed last night by the House -- not based on scientific research -- creates the following major concerns:

-- The fuels required by this legislation have never been made and we do not have any research data that demonstrates that such radical new fuel formulations of gasoline could be made. And, even if such fuels could technically be made, they could not be available to consumers in the time-frame mandated.

-- This legislation will prohibit the sale of any motor vehicle fuels that fail to meet the new and untested fuel standards in the ten non-attainment urban areas.

-- There also exist serious questions and concerns over what impact such radically reformulated gasolines would have on car performance and driveability.

-- There could be offsetting negative environmental impacts from the gasoline formula adopted by the House which cannot be identified or evaluated without further research.

-- In addition, this legislation fails to provide opportunity for any government agency to assess the technical feasibility of meeting these standards -- or to evaluate whether supplies could be available to meet demand for reformulated fuels.

"We will continue our research aimed at developing reformulated gasolines which would provide optimum environmental and consumer benefits. We plan to communicate our concerns to the House/Senate conferees."

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - United Press International Chairman Earl W. Brian today announced appointment of William F. Hackett to the post of senior vice president and general manager for news and information products, with responsibilities for joint ventures with key business allies, including Financial News Network Inc. (FNN).

"UPI plans joint ventures with several partners, including FNN, in many lines of business," said Brian. "These joint ventures will afford UPI additional news and information flows, added expertise and new market opportunities. The result will be a UPI that is increasingly innovative and reliable."

Brian said Hackett will have immediate responsibilities for anticipated joint ventures in sports, news photo-graphics and business and finance services.

Brian said, "One model for these ventures is the relationship established in 1989 between UPI Radio Networks and FNN Business Radio," said Brian. UPI Radio Networks and FNN Business Radio have been jointly managed and will augment their operations with additional upcoming joint-venture initiatives.

"The radio broadcasting joint venture has strengthened the audio operations that UPI pioneered in the United States," said the UPI chairman. "UPI Radio was the first proof of benefits of UPI and FNN cooperation. Our goal now is to strengthen the presence of each operating unit by addressing opportunities in marketing, production and delivery."

Stressing UPI's growing interest in joint venturing, Brian noted that UPI Television also produces "The Insiders with Jack Anderson," which airs in FNN's prime-time schedule each weeknight.

UPI also is testing a joint venture with Washington, D.C.-based States News Service and Financial World magazine. In April, the group began publishing an "hourly newspaper," The Latest News, which is distributed to passengers on The Pan Am Shuttle route between National Airport in Washington, D.C., and LaGuardia Airport at New York City.

Hackett, 39, joined UPI in December after 11 years with The Dun & Bradstreet Corp., where his management, strategic planning and finance posts included that of vice president for Dun's Marketing Services.

While with Dun & Bradstreet, Hackett also served as director of strategic planning and budgets for A.C. Nielsen, the marketing information and television audience measurement subsidiary of Dun & Bradstreet. He further served as director of planning and business development for 25 controlled-circulation publications owned by the company and oversaw a corporate acquisition.

Hackett served in the U.S. Navy aboard three destroyers, 1972-1977, achieving the rank of lieutenant. He earned his M.B.A. in finance and accounting at Columbia University in 1979, having earned a B.A. in sociology at College of the Holy Cross, Worcester, Mass., in 1972.

UPI has 200 bureaus and is represented in 97 nations. UPI is owned by Infotechnology, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: ITCH), the New York City-based information and communications company that also owns 47 percent of Financial News Network Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: FNN). FNN is a cable television network currently providing three services to more than 33 million subscribers.

PAMPA, TX (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Service Fracturing Co. (NASDAQ: SERF) well servicing revenue in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1990 declined 10 percent to $11,322,381 from $12,611,499 in the 1989 fiscal year.

In addition, Jerry H. Guinn, president, said Serfco had revenue from oil and gas producing operations of $1,146,266, compared with $25,982 the previous year. The sharp increase came from a group of wells acquired in April 1989, Guinn noted.

Well servicing cost of operations for the 1990 year was down 12 percent to $10,416,641 from $11,794,651 in the year ended March 31, 1989, as a result of decreased revenues. Oil and gas cost of operations soared to $1,526,259 from $13,786 the year before as a result of the greater number of wells operating and remedial work done on a number of the newly acquired wells.

As a result of lower revenues and increased losses from operations, Serfco had a net loss of $1,076,388, or 32 cents a share, in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1990, compared with a loss of $515,508, or 18 cents a share, in the previous year.

Guinn said that at March 31, 1990, Serfco had a current ratio of 4.39 to 1 compared to 3.26 to 1 a year earlier. Current assets of $7,273,853 included $4,409,069 of cash and equivalents at March 31, 1990.

Serfco has opened a new operating district in Tuscaloosa, Ala., to provide well stimulation services to customers in the Black Warrior Basin, Guinn announced. The company also has reopened its Odessa, Texas, district in the Permian Basin.

WILMINGTON, DE (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Eleven Du Pont (NYSE: DD) scientists and engineers whose innovative research has made lasting contributions to human knowledge over the last three quarters of a century were honored by the company today.

Each of the honorees, five of whom are living, received a gold Lavoisier Medal for Technical Achievement from Chairman Edgar S. Woolard Jr.

"The discoveries and innovations of these 11 scientists and engineers resulted in fundamental products or new technologies that, in their subsequent variety and forms, continue to account for billions of dollars in annual sales," Woolard said.

"Their legacy is first and foremost an enduring addition to our scientific and technological understanding," he said. "But it also is a living legacy of tens of thousands of good jobs, of international business enterprises, of basic human needs met, and of improved living standards for millions of people around the world."

The Lavoisier Medal was named in honor of the 18th century French chemist, Antoine Laurent Lavoisier, who served as teacher and mentor to Eleuthere Irenee du Pont, the company's founder. Lavoisier is often called the father of modern chemistry.

To qualify for the medal, a scientist or engineer must have demonstrated a career of creative technical contributions that resulted in a measurable business impact or significant technical achievement.

Recipients of the Lavoisier Medal are inducted into a newly established Lavoisier Academy. Bronze plaques honoring them are on permanent display at Du Pont's Experimental Station near Wilmington. The program will be an annual event.

The 1990 honorees are: Max Frederick Bechtold, leader of fundamental research in colloid and polymer chemistry and inventor of colloidal silica and scratch- resistant plastics.

Elmer Keiser Bolton, visionary industrial research leader who transformed scientific discoveries into commercial products such as nylon, neoprene and polytetrafluoroethylene.

Wallace Hume Carothers, founder of the science of man-made polymers and inventor of nylon and neoprene.

William Hale Charch, director of fundamental fibers research and inventor of moisture-proof cellophane.

Thomas Hamilton Chilton, pioneering leader of fundamental chemical engineering research who established principles of unit operations.

Abraham Bernard Cohen, research leader who established photopolymers as commercial imaging systems in electronics and printing.

Lawrence "Buck" Curtis, engineering leader who established many oilfield technologies, including computerized production and tension-leg platforms.

Ralph Kingsley Iler, researcher and recognized authority in colloidal silica chemistry.

Louis Plambeck Jr., innovator who established the principles of photopolymerization for imaging applications.

Charles Wyvil Todd, discoverer of the principles of modern crop protection chemicals and inventor of urea herbicides.

Nathaniel Convers Wyeth, inventor of diverse manufacturing processes such as those for plastic shotgun shells, nonwoven fabrics and polyester bottles.

Bechtold, Cohen, Curtis, Plambeck and Wyeth received their medals in person.

DETROIT (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Mazda Motor Corporation today announced financial results for its fiscal year which ended March 31, 1990.

Net sales totaled 2.04 trillion yen (U.S. $12.94 billion)(a), up 8.6 percent(b) over fiscal 1989 (Nov. 1, 1988, through March 31, 1989). The increase in net sales was 6.9 percent when compared with the previous corresponding period (April 1, 1988, through March 31, 1989).

Ordinary income -- income before taxes and extraordinary items -- was 48.17 billion yen (U.S. $304.9 million), up 15.6 percent(b). Net after-tax income totaled 26.58 billion yen (U.S. $168.2 million), a 57.7-percent(b) increase. Net income per share was 24.80 yen ($0.16).

The domestic automotive market in Japan was generally active due to new model introductions and vigorous marketing efforts by many manufacturers. The introduction of the new consumption tax system, which replaced the commodity tax, helped boost passenger car sales. As for the business environment overseas, vehicle exports from Japan continued to decline due to expanded local production.

In this environment, Mazda increased its efforts by enriching its model lineup, and reinforcing marketing operations with particular emphasis on the Japanese market. Two new sales channels were established -- Eunos and Autozam. Measures were also taken to reduce cost and improve operational efficiency. These changes helped to achieve positive financial performance for fiscal 1990.

Mazda's total factory sales(c) during fiscal 1990 were 1,357,195 units, an increase of 11.3 percent from the previous period (April 1, 1988, through March 31, 1989). Of this number, 1,040,886 were passenger cars, (up 17.9 percent)(d) while 316,309 were commercial vehicles (down 6.2 percent)(d).

NOTE: (a) -- Dollar equivalent computed at 158.00 yen to the dollar (exchange rate prevailing on March 30, 1990).
(b) -- Percentage changes are based on a comparison of this 12-month result with the five-month irregular term, fiscal 1989 (from Nov. 1, 1988, through March 31, 1989) results theoretically projected into a 12-month term 1/8five-month results times 12/5 3/8).
(c) -- Factory sales includes imports.
(d) -- Percentage changes are based on a comparison of this 12-month term result for fiscal 1990 with the previous corresponding period April 1, 1988, through March 31, 1989.

PALO ALTO, CA (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Syntex Corp. (NYSE: SYN) today reported that earnings per share increased 21 percent to $.81 in the third quarter of fiscal 1990, compared with $.67 in the year-earlier period. Net income increased 21 percent and sales were 12 percent higher than in the third quarter of fiscal 1989.

Quarters Ended April 30 ($ in millions except per share data)

	3Q FY90	3Q FY89	Percent Change
Net Sales	$390.3	$347.5	+12
Net Income	$ 90.7	$ 74.8	+21
Earnings per share	$.81	$.67	+21

The increase in earnings was primarily due to sales of new products introduced since January 1989, and higher sales of naproxen and naproxen sodium.

Fiscal 1990 third quarter human pharmaceutical sales increased 14 percent over the prior year quarter.

"We are pleased with the contribution of new product sales to our overall growth," said Mr. Paul E. Freiman, president and chief executive officer of Syntex Corporation. "Combined sales of Cardene(R), Cytovene(R), Synarel(R) and Toradol(R) IM in the United States were responsible for nearly two-thirds of our human pharmaceutical sales growth in the United States in the third quarter of fiscal 1990 versus the third quarter of fiscal 1989."

Synarel (nafarelin acetate) was introduced in the United States in March 1990 for the management of endometriosis.

"Although it is too early to provide a meaningful analysis of Synarel sales, anecdotal reports indicate that our marketing program has been effective in reaching both physicians and potential patients," Mr. Freiman said.

Toradol IM, a non-narcotic analgesic used to treat post-operative pain, was formally introduced on May 21 with co-promoter Hoffman-LaRoche Inc. Initial sales to wholesalers and hospital pharmacies, however, occurred prior to the end of the 1990 third quarter.

Worldwide sales of naproxen and naproxen sodium were up seven percent to $202.7 million in the third fiscal quarter. Naproxen and naproxen sodium are the company's leading pharmacuetical products and are prescribed to treat inflammation, arthritis and pain.

"Recent independent audit data show that we have made substantial progress in improving the market share for Naprosyn(R) in the United States, which has been a key priority for the company," Freiman said.

For the month of April 1990, Naprosyn's share of new prescriptions for anti-arthritic drugs rose to 18.0 percent from 16.3 percent in April 1989, according to independent audit data. The data indicate that the market, measured by the total number of new prescriptions, has declined approximately four percent in the quarter ended April 1990 from the quarter ended April 1989.

Syva, Syntex's diagnostics subsidiary, reported a 16 percent increase in sales to $45.8 million, reflecting continued growth in sales of tests for drugs of abuse.

MCCONNELLSBURG, PA (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - JLG Industries Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: JLGI) today reported third quarter sales and earnings which surpassed the results of any quarter in the company's history.

Sales for the fiscal quarter ended April 30, 10?, were $40.8 million, an increase of 30 percent over last year's third quarter sales of $31.4 million. Net income for the fiscal 1990 third quarter was $2.5 million, 23 percent higher than the net income of $2.0 million reported in the third quarter of 1989. Earnings per share for the quarter were $.71 vs. $.57 for the year earlier period.

Sales for the first nine months of fiscal 1990 also set a record, rising 24 percent from $85.8 million in the first nine months of fiscal 1989 to $106.1 million. Net income for the period was $5.8 million, or $1.65 per share, compared to $5.5 million, or $1.57 per share, for the previous year period.

"Sales and earnings for the third quarter exceeded by 15 percent and 21 percent, respectively our previous records set in the fourth fiscal quarter of 1989," reported John L. Grove, JLG's chairman of the board and chief executive officer. "Improvement in both our domestic and foreign operations contributed to the record results, including a successful launch for our new U.S. Truck Cranes business which we acquired at the beginning of the quarter.

"Our aerial work platform products experienced strong demand during the quarter," said Grove, "but in particular, we are pleased with the sales of our expanded line of articulating boom-type machines which was a major contributor to our growth.

"Although our profit margin for the quarter was below that of last year's third quarter, it improved compared to the intervening quarters, an indication that the steps we have been taking to improve profitability are beginning to show results. The U.S. Truck Cranes acquisition is helping to alleviate some of the capacity problems and related higher manufacturing costs that we reported earlier. In addition, the production work force that we greatly increased over the past year has gained experience, and therefore, labor efficiencies are improving.

"The final quarter of the current fiscal year is shaping up to be another strong one for JLG," concluded Grove. "Accordingly, we anticipate another excellent year with both record sales and earnings."

JLG Industries Inc. is an international manufacturer of specialized machinery, including mobile aerial work platforms and cranes. Sales are made principally to independent distributors which sell and rent the company's products to a broad customer base, including users in the industrial and construction markets.

The company is headquarted in McConnellsburg, Pa., with additional manufacturing facilities in Fort Littleton, Bedford and York, Pa.; Cumbernauld, Scotland; and Port Macquarie, Australia.

WARREN, N.J. (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - At the annual meeting of The American Association for Cancer Research in Washington, D.C., researchers from Immunomedics, Inc. (NASDAQ: IMMU) reported the results of pilot clinical studies of a new radioiodinated monoclonal antibody (IMMU-9) which reacts with colon specific antigen-P (CSAp) for imaging and treating colon cancers.

In mice lacking an immune system, human colon cancers have been targeted and have regressed following administration of fragments of this antibody labelled with radioisotopes.

In Phase I/II clinical studies, radioiodinated IMMU-9 has been shown to be safe and has targeted to the tumors. In addition, the antibody does not bind to the circulating antigen, allowing more of the antibody to reach the tumor. Once at the tumor site the antibody has a longer residence time than some other antibodies. "Taken together," stated Dr. Carl Pinsky, vice president, medical affairs, "these factors indicate that this should be a superior radioimmunoconjugate for therapy. Phase I/II therapy trials have already been initiated."

The collaborative studies have been conducted by investigators at Immunomedics, the Center for Molecular Medicine and Immunology in Newark, N.J., and the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey. The team included Drs. H.J. Hansen, R.M. Sharkey, A. Jones, E.S. Newman, G. Griffiths, R. Grebenau, R.E. Lee, J.A. Horowitz, C.M. Pinsky, and D.M. Goldenberg.

Immunomedics is a biopharmaceutical company applying innovative technology to the development of new methods and products using antibody-based radioisotopes and drugs for diagnosis and therapy of cancer, infection and other diseases. The company maintains corporate headquarters in Warren, and research facilities on the campus of the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey in Newark.

MADISON HEIGHTS, MI (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Rand Mueller, president and CEO of Code-Alarm, Inc. (NASDAQ: CODL), said today that new marketing and manufacturing activities required the company to redefine relationships among Code-Alarm's key executives. The new responsibilities were defined at a meeting of the Code-Alarm board of directors, which followed the annual shareholders' meeting on May 15, 1990.

David Skinner, president of Code-Alarm's subsidiary, Tessco Group, was named a director of Code-Alarm, Inc. Tessco's growing capabilities in high tech electronic manufacturing have resulted in new product contracts with General Motors, IBM and Texas Instruments. Tessco Group, located in Georgetown, Texas, has annual sales in excess of $16 million.

Geoffrey Dixon, a Code-Alarm director and vice president, has been named executive vice president of a newly organized Code-Alarm Division of the company. This follows his operating post as director of marketing for the Tessco Group. Dixon now assumes the overall responsibility for Code-Alarm's leading brands, and will head the company's new "INTERCEPT" stolen car recovery program.

Alan Foster, who has served as a Code-Alarm director for the past two years, was re-elected, as was Mueller, to serve until 1993. Foster will act as corporate secretary-treasurer replacing Larry Vingelman, who has resigned to pursue new and unrelated activities. Foster will also head a search team to review candidates for the office of Chief Financial Officer of the company.

David Etienne, who recently joined Code-Alarm from a senior position at the accounting firm of Laventhol and Horwath, has been named controller of Code-Alarm, Inc. With accounting and manufacturing experience in the automotive field, Etienne will be setting up new statistical benchmarks for a greatly broadened intercorporate forecasting and accounting program.

WEST GREENWICH, RI (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Gtech Corporation, the leading supplier worldwide of on-line computerized lottery networks, dedicated its world headquarters in West Greenwich today.

In making the announcement, Gtech Chairman Guy B. Snowden said, "Dedicating Gtech's new world headquarters is the realization of a dream which began in a small office in downtown Providence in 1981. With a staff of one hundred, Gtech was capitalized with the principal assets of energy, ideas and hope. Today, less than 10 years later, and with a staff of over 1800, we are dedicating a major new corporate facility."

The three-story, 91,000 square-foot brick facility will house more than 300 employees from Gtech's executive, legal, financial, operations, software, MIS, marketing and sales departments.

A special historical exhibit was created for the dedication that traced the history of lotteries back to colonial times. A lottery ticket, personally signed by George Washington, and an original Gilbert Stuart portrait of Washington were included in the display entitled "George at GTECH."

Gtech Corporation designs, produces and implements computerized on- line networks, principally for government-sponsored or licensed lottery jurisdictions. Typically, Gtech operates, supplies and/or otherwise services these networks after installation. Currently, Gtech has been selected to serve 41 on-line lottery and wagering customers worldwide on five continents.

CHICAGO (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - William Farley, chairman and chief executive officer of Fruit of the Loom, Inc.(AMEX: FTL), reported today at the annual stockholders meeting record sales and operating earnings for 1989 and the first quarter of 1990.

Farley said, "Fruit of the Loom enjoyed another record year in 1989 with increased sales in underwear and activewear. The first quarter of 1990 benefited from our consumer marketing, advertising and promotional programs. These programs, combined with our expanded manufacturing capacity, will help us continue this momentum and establish another record setting year at Fruit of the Loom."

Farley added, "Wall Street estimates that our 1990 revenues will approach $1.6 billion and earnings will be approximately $1.50 per share compared to our 1989 revenues and earnings of $1.32 billion and $1.11 per share. As a company we are well-positioned in terms of products, distribution, marketing and manufacturing, and look forward to establishing another

TORONTO (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Varity Corporation (NYSE: VAT) raised first-quarter net income to U.S. $20.6 million, 28 percent ahead of the year-earlier period, on the highest three-month sales in 11 years. Earnings per common share were 7 cents, against 6 cents in the comparable period a year ago, despite an increase of 20 percent in shares outstanding issued for a major acquisition in late 1989.

The company said its results were favorably influenced by the strong performance of the newly acquired Kelsey-Hayes automotive components business in its first full quarter as a Varity unit. Pre-tax income in the latest quarter was $26.3 million, up 24 percent over the same period in 1989.

Quarterly sales of $826 million were 58 percent higher than a year ago, reflecting the acquisition in November 1989 of Kelsey-Hayes, a major supplier of anti-lock brake systems, aluminum and steel wheels and other automotive products. The Kelsey-Hayes Group, which also includes Dayton Walther, accounted for $377 million or 46 percent of total net sales for the period.

Victor Rice, chairman and chief executive officer, noted that the Kelsey-Hayes Group's sales and earnings exceeded projections despite the slowdown in the North American automotive industry. Early actions by Kelsey-Hayes' new management to reduce costs and elevate productivity were already generating returns, he said.

Massey-Ferguson Group's sales at $282 million were 4 percent short of last year's opening period, primarily as a result of the sale in 1989 of the Italian-based Landini tractor operations. Massey-Ferguson's operating income met projections. Sales in some European markets were affected by high interest rates, easy spring planting conditions, and depressed levels of commercial and industrial construction. The company expects global industry retail sales of farm machinery to remain flat in 1990 for the fifth year in a row.

Perkins Group was the company's net profit leader in the first quarter. Sales improved 11 percent to $156 million in spite of softer demand in the transportation and construction equipment markets. The sales gain was achieved with new customers and a broader range of applications for the unit's high-performance diesel engines.

The company's long-term debt of $766 million reflects the Kelsey- Hayes transaction, and Rice said debt reduction of $25 million in the latest three months resulted from a methodical program to restore Varity's debt-equity ratio to pre-acquisition levels by the end of fiscal 1991. Shareholders' equity at $687 million was up $22 million in the latest period and $178 million in the past 12 months.

ATLANTA (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Southern Bell today proposed a plan to the Georgia Public Service Commission (PSC) that would provide incentives for businesses locating or expanding in rural Georgia.

The plan is in response to concerns expressed by the State Legislature, PSC, Georgia Municipal Association and the Association County Commissioners, for the need to develop ways to stimulate rural Georgia's economy.

The State Legislature passed a bill during the 1989 session which created a Job Tax Credit Program that offers incentives for industry to locate or expand in Georgia's 40 most economically disadvantaged counties.

"In our effort to support economic development, we feel it is appropriate for Southern Bell to offer some major incentives to stimulate growth," said Carl Swearingen, Southern Bell's vice president for Georgia. "The incentives we are proposing would offer considerable discounts on a variety of telecommunications services to new and expanding industries who choose to locate or expand in any of those disadvantaged counties."

Southern Bell's proposed incentives include: -- 100 percent waiver of all normal deposits; -- 100 percent waiver of service connection/installation charges; and -- 50 percent discount on monthly recurring charges for 12 months on all tariffed items, excluding Message Toll Service and WATS.

To be eligible for these incentives, businesses must locate or expand in any of the counties served by Southern Bell that are on the list of 40 most economically disadvantaged counties identified by the Georgia Department of Community Affairs in relation to the Job Tax Credit Act.

"Southern Bell is committed to bringing new business to Georgia," said Swearingen. "The telecommunications package we have developed will help encourage businesses to select rural Georgia for their new locations."

Other BellSouth subsidiaries plan to offer a similar package of incentives for non-regulated products and services to qualifying industries locating within any of Georgia's 159 counties. This package includes significant discounts on yellow pages advertising, a free mobile phone and usage and discounts on premises-based equipment and training. It also offers discounts on BellSouth's enhanced network services. Southern Bell's Economic Development Organization will individually design and offer this package to qualified businesses.

"These packages call upon the depth of resources available throughout our BellSouth companies to provide a total solution to each business' communications needs," added Swearingen. "We believe that these signficiant economic incentives will encourage the creation of new jobs and will stimulate the economies of a number of Georgia's most disadvantaged counties.

If approved by the commission, the incentive plan will become effective on July 6.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - L.A. Gear Inc. (NYSE: LA), the Los Angeles-based fashion footwear and apparel company, has signed superstar Paula Abdul to collaborate on a line of women's athletic footwear and apparel that will be marketed worldwide starting next year.

According to L.A. Gear, this agreement is one of the largest celebrity endorsement contracts in the history of their industry.

As part of L.A. Gear's 1991 "Unstoppable" campaign, Abdul will star next spring in television commercials and print advertisements for magazines and other media.

Abdul, a 27-year-old native of Los Angeles, has recently ridden one of the fastest rockets ever into stardom. Last year Abdul dominated the MTV Awards by taking four trophies. She won an Emmy for her choreography of the "Tracey Ullman Show," two American Music Awards, received a Grammy nomination and the People's Choice Award for "Favorite Female Musical Performer." Her album "Forever Your Girl" maintained the No. 1 Album Chart position for 10 consecutive weeks.

According to L.A. Gear Executive Vice President Sandy Saemann, "Paula's an extraordinarily talented singer, dancer and choreographer -- an all around entertainer. Her star quality reminds us of the screen legends from the '40s. I'm looking forward to directing Paula in a campaign that will showcase her uniqueness."

Abdul added, "The association with L.A. Gear will allow me the opportunity to see my own design ideas produced with care and quality. L.A. Gear has put a wonderful team together and I'm glad to be joining them."

Abdul will work with the L.A. Gear creative team to produce a new line of footwear and apparel next spring.

With sales expected to be approximately $1 billion this year, L.A. Gear is the third largest athletic footwear company in the nation. In addition to footwear, they market and design activewear, jeans and accessories. Other L.A. Gear Unstoppables include Michael Jackson, Joe Montana, Akeem Olajuwon, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Priscilla Presley and Karl Malone.

WILMINGTON, DE (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Airgas Inc. (NYSE: ARG) reported today that for its fourth quarter ended March 31, 1990, Net Sales increased 22 percent to $79,063,000 from $64,657,000 for the quarter ended March 31, 1989.

Operating Cash Flow (Pre-Tax Earnings From Continuing Operations plus depreciation and amortization expense) increased 33 percent to $7,170,000 from the same quarter last year. Earnings From Continuing Operations increased 27 percent to $1,083,000 or $.18 per share in the fourth quarter from $850,000 or $.14 per share in the same period last year. After-Tax Cash Flow (Earnings From Continuing Operations plus depreciation, amortization and deferred taxes) increased 35 percent to $7,532,000 or $1.07 per share from $5,599,000 or $.85 per share in the fourth quarter of 1989. Net Earnings for the three months ended March 31, 1990, increased to $1,963,000 from $1,931,000 in the fourth quarter of 1989 and net earnings per share were $.30 per share in both quarters.

Peter McCausland, chairman and chief executive officer, stated, "Much of the expense associated with the acquisition and consolidation of 53 companies during the last two years is behind us and our distribution operations are showing significant improvement."

The increase in the company's Net Sales over the prior year was due to the acquisition of 31 industrial gas distribution companies since Jan. 1, 1989 and internal growth in the company's Midwestern and Western Regions. Manufacturing sales were lower by 12 percent in the quarter compared to the same period last year as a result of lower demand for carbon products.

The increase in Operating Cash Flow exceeded the increase in Operating Income as a result of an increase in acquisition-related, non-cash depreciation and amortization expenses.

The 35 percent increase in After-Tax Cash Flow was the result of higher Operating Cash Flow, higher deferred taxes and lower interest expense.

The increase in Earnings From Continuing Operations is due to investment income and lower interest costs related to proceeds received upon the sale of the company's Jackson Products operations, partially offset by a decline in the pre-tax income of the company's industrial gas distribution operations and a higher effective tax rate. Lower pre-tax income of the company's industrial gas operations was due to significantly higher non-cash depreciation and amortization expenses, and higher operating expenses related to national marketing programs and insurance claims, as well as computer conversions, safety upgrades, higher personnel costs and interest costs related to acquisitions. The higher effective tax rate resulted from an increase in non-deductible goodwill amortization and depreciation relative to pre-tax earnings.

Interest expense decreased $595,000 to $3,806,000 in the fourth quarter of 1990 from $4,401,000 in 1989. The decrease resulted from interest savings from the proceeds realized upon the sale of Jackson Products Inc. on Oct. 2, 1989, offset by an increase in indebtedness due to acquisitions.

Additionally, Net Earnings were impacted by a reduction of estimated contingency reserves of $880,000 ($.12 per share) in connection with the company's sale of its Jackson Products subsidiary during the third quarter offset by lower distribution pre-tax income, higher income taxes and the effect on earnings from the sale of the company's Jackson Products operations.

Year Ended March 31, 1990 Net Sales for the year ended March 31, 1990, increased 58 percent to $296,197,000 from $188,011,000 for the year ended March 31, 1989. Operating Cash Flow (Pre-Tax Earnings From Continuing Operations plus depreciation and amortization expense) increased 53 percent to $25,945,000 from $17,003,000 last year. Earnings From Continuing Operations increased 59 percent to $4,032,000 or $.64 per share from $2,530,000 or $.44 per share last year. After-Tax Cash Flow (Earnings From Continuing Operations plus depreciation, amortization and deferred taxes) increased 59 percent to $27,645,000 or $3.96 per share from $17,407,000 or $2.66 per share last year. Net Earnings for the year ended March 31, 1990, increased to $37,959,000 from $10,423,000 in 1989, and net earnings per share increased to $5.51 per share from $1.65 per share last year.

The increase in the company's Net Sales over the prior year was primarily due to acquisitions.

The increase in Operating Cash Flow exceeded the increase in Operating Income as a result of an increase in acquisition related, non-cash depreciation and amortization expenses.

The 59 percent increase in After-Tax Cash Flow was the result of higher Operating Cash Flow, higher deferred taxes and lower interest expense.

Earnings From Continuing Operations were positively impacted by investment income and lower interest costs related to proceeds received upon the sale of the company's Jackson Products operations in October 1989, and its US Cylinders subsidiary in November 1988, partially offset by a decline in the pre-tax income of the company's industrial gas distribution operations and calcium carbide joint venture.

Interest expense increased $4,546,000 to $17,760,000 in 1990, from $13,214,000 in 1989, due to acquisitions.

Earnings related to the company's interest in a joint venture for the production of calcium carbide were $1,638,000 for 1990, a decrease from $2,048,000 in 1989 due to lower sales and production volume at the joint venture's Ashtabula, Ohio, manufacturing facility.

Net earnings for the year ended March 31, 1990, increased to $37,959,000 or $5.51 per share from $10,423,000 or $1.65 per share during 1989. Net earnings for 1990 include a gain of more than $32 million from the sale of the company's Jackson Products subsidiary.

This was partially offset by a small loss from the sale of the company's US Cryogenics subsidiary and a reduction in the estimated gain from the sale of the company's cylinder manufacturing operations reported in 1989.

EAST HARTFORD, CT (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - United Technologies' Pratt & Whitney has won top honors from the U.S. Air Force for productivity improvements in 1989.

The USAF's Contract Management Division (AFCMD) selected P&W to receive its Manufacturing Productivity Award, given annually to a USAF aerospace contractor that demonstrates the greatest productivity improvements in manufacturing operations over the year.

Col. Kenneth G. Miller, commander of the AFCMD at Kirtland AFB, New Mexico presented the award jointly to P&W's Operations and Government Engine Business (GEB) units saying, "Your team's successful implementation of inventory reductions and continuous process improvements deserve to be recognized. You have established a foundation of excellence that should successfully carry you into the next century."

In accepting the award for P&W's Operations unit, Dave Bean, president-manufacturing, said, "We are dedicated to continuous productivity and quality improvements in all our operations at Pratt & Whitney.

Bean said the company's efforts to win this award specifically focused on improvements in business strategies, quality manufacturing systems, inventory-scheduling, capital investment, recycling programs and quality-oriented 'people' programs.

"This recognition from one of our most valued customers demonstrates our commitment to increased productivity, cost effectiveness and customer satisfaction," William C. Missimer, group vice president and GEB president said. "It's something all our people can be proud of."

Pratt & Whitney also was a two-time (1987 and 1988) winner of the USAF's Big "Q" Award, which is presented for outstanding performance in assuring quality throughout an entire organization.

OCALA, FL (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Mid-State Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ-NMS: MSSB) announced today that its shareholders have approved the proposed acquisition of Mid-State Federal by First Florida Banks, Inc. (NASDAQ: FFBK). The proposed combination with First Florida was approved by the holders of 75.9 percent of the outstanding Mid-State Federal stock at a special meeting of shareholders held in Ocala, Fla. earlier today.

First Florida has agreed to pay $54.2 million, or approximately $25.07 per share, in cash for the outstanding shares and stock options of Mid-State Federal in the acquisition. Additionally, Mid-State Federal shareholders can receive additional amounts not to exceed $5.5 million, or approximately $2.34 per share (the "Contingent Payments"), depending upon the disposition of certain assets within a specified period of time, bringing the total purchase price in the proposed acquisition to $59.7 million, or approximately $27.41 per share.

At the shareholders meeting, Charles E. Harris, chairman of the board of Mid-State Federal, said that the bank estimates that approximately $2.49 million of the $5.5 million maximum is now available for Contingent Payments under the acquisition agreement with First Florida, based upon asset sales that have actually closed to date. Harris also said that the bank estimates that a total of $5.23 million of Contingent Payments could be available if the bank is successful in closing all proposed asset sales that are now covered by executed contracts or options to purchase. However, Harris cautioned that the pending contracts and options to purchase are subject to various conditions and contingencies and there is no assurance that any Contingent Payments will result from the transactions now under contract.

Referring to specific assets that have been sold to date, Harris said Mid-State Federal has received net sales proceeds of approximately $2,150,000 from the sale of Phase I of the Ocala Jockey Club, $370,000 from the sale of various lots in Ocala Downs, $320,000 from the sale of Countryside Estates, and $250,000 from the sale of Oak Creek Caverns. Harris also said that the Bank has entered into contracts to sell additional property at Ocala Downs which could yield net sales proceeds of approximately $830,000 if closed in accordance with their terms. Harris said that the options to purchase Phases II and III of the Ocala Jockey Club at an aggregate gross sales price of $2,500,000 have not yet been exercisedand remain outstanding.

Harris also reported that the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency has recently completed the on-site portion of its examination of Mid-State Federal as part of that agency's consideration of the regulatory application to merge Mid-State Federal into First Florida's national bank subsidiary, First Florida Bank, N.A. Harris said that Mid-State Federal has not yet received the results of the examination.

Harris said that Mid-State Federal is still hopeful that the proposed acquisition can be completed by Sept. 30, 1990, but that delays in receiving necessary regulatory approvals could preclude the transaction from being consummated by that date.

The proposed acquisition with First Florida is subject to a number of conditions. There is no assurance that the acquisition will be consummated by any specific date, if at all, or that any specific amount of Contingent Payments will be paid if the acquisition is consummated as proposed.

Mid-State Federal is a publicly held, federally insured and federally chartered stock savings bank with its common stock traded over-the-counter and quoted on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol "MSSB". With its home office in Ocala, Fla., the thrift has assets of $1 billion and operates 26 branch offices within a five county area in west central Florida.

PITTSBURGH (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - The Mellon Bank Index of Manufacturing

Output for Southwestern Pennsylvania rose a modest 0.7 percent in the first quarter after holding steady in the fourth quarter of 1989, the bank said today.

Compared to a year ago, the index for the Pittsburgh-Beaver metro area was up 1.6 percent. The first quarter rise reflected national strength in capital goods production and a rising trend of exports.

The index for late 1988 and 1989 has been revised downward by almost 2 percent because of the recently announced revisions in the region's manufacturing employment. Manufacturing payrolls are now estimated to be 2,000 jobs below the previously released reading for 1989.

The Mellon Index of Manufacturing Production was developed by the Mellon Bank economics department with the assistance and cooperation of the Duquesne Light Co. and the West Penn Power Co. The estimating technique uses a procedure developed by the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta. In simplest terms, calculation of the index employs manufacturing hours worked data and electricity consumption information to approximate labor and capital inputs in the production process. The final Index is adjusted seasonally.

In the first quarter of 1990, the Mellon Bank Index of Manufacturing Output stood at 94.4, up from 93.7 in the fourth quarter of last year.

ROCKY MOUNT, NC (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Theo H. Pitt, Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of Pioneer Bancorp, Inc. (NASDAQ: PSBN), headquartered in Rocky Mount, North Carolina, announced today that its subsidiary, Pioneer Savings Bank, Inc., has been asked by the Office of the Thrift Supervision (OTS) to enter into a supervisory agreement with OTS.

The proposed draft agreement received from the OTS includes provisions which, among other things, limit growth, require the establishment or amendment of certain internal operating policies, review and documentation to support the adequacy of the Bank's reserves for losses, restricts the Bank's investment in acquisition, development and construction loans and requires an updated business plan. The board of directors of Pioneer has previously suspended the payment of cash dividends to stockholders. The execution of this proposed agreement would require the prior written approval of the OTS District Director before payment of future dividends while the agreement is in effect.

The Bank has also been asked by the Administrator of the North Carolina Savings Institution Division to enter into a similar agreement. This proposed agreement would, in addition to those matters enumerated above, restrict the Bank's issuance or redemption of its common stock, limit its ability to incur additional long-term debt and restrict changes in compensation for certain individuals.

The Bank intends to discuss the proposed agreements with OTS and the Administrator, including whether certain provisions thereof can be eliminated or modified. In the opinion of management, compliance with the proposed terms and conditions of the agreements would have no material adverse effect upon the earnings of Pioneer Bancorp, Inc. Mr. Pitt further stated the Bank continues to be in compliance with all current regulatory capital requirements.

TULSA, OK (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Kinark Corporation (AMEX: KIN) announced today that its board of directors has no interest in discussions with Steel Partners, L.P. at this time.

Steel Partners had previously sent Kinark an unsolicited proposal indicating its interest in a negotiated merger transaction at a price of $7 per share, which proposal was subject to a number of conditions. Robert G. Walker, chairman and chief executive officer of the company, and Paul R. Chastain, executive vice president and deputy chief executive officer of the company, stated "The board of directors believes that the best interests of the company and all of its stockholders lie in continuing the company's present business plan, including the sale of its Camelot Hotels."

Walker and Chastain also stated, "The board believes that the Steel Partners letter contains a number of conditions which, in the board's judgment, raise uncertainties as to the likelihood of consummation of the suggested transaction." Walker and Chastain concluded, "Following the expected consummation of the sale of the Camelot Hotels, the Kinark board of directors, consistent with its fiduciary duties, will consider any new proposal which Steel Partners may make and which minimizes the uncertainties contained in its letter of April 30, 1990."

Kinark also announced that it expected to announce results from the election of three directors held at yesterday's annual meeting on or after June 1.

Kinark Corporation, with corporate headquarters in Tulsa, operates chemical facilities in Chicago and Montgomery, Ala., and supports industrial1/4commercial construction and metals corrosion protection with galvanizing plants in Denver; Louisville, Ky.; Nashville, Tenn.; St. Louis; Houston and Hurst, Texas.

MINNEAPOLIS (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Grand Metropolitan PLC today announced its intention to retain ALPO Petfoods as part of its $8 billion worldwide food business. The announcement was made by Ian Martin, chairman of Grand Metropolitan Food Sector.

"After announcing our intention to explore the possible sale of ALPO, we received bids from several interested parties," said Martin. "However, we were not able to reach agreement as to the value of ALPO's recently launched cat food business and have therefore decided to keep the business in our portfolio."

ALPO cat food has gained impressive market share in its first months of operation. As reported by SAMI (Sales Area Marketing Inc.) for the twelve weeks ended April 20th, ALPO canned cat food achieved more than 9 percent of the market for premium canned cat food; for the same period ALPO dry cat food achieved over 5 percent of the dry market. In addition, both numbers of households buying the product and number of repeat purchasers significantly exceeded company forecasts. For the half year ended March 31, 1990, ALPO sales increased more than 38 percent from $188 million to $260 million.

Based in Allentown, Pa., and acquired by Grand Met in 1980, ALPO manufactures and markets canned and dry dog food, canned and dry cat food and dog snacks under the ALPO label. It is the market leader in premium canned dog food. The company also markets dry dog food under the Jim Dandy label in the southeastern U.S. and canned and dry dog and cat food under the Blue Mountain label in the northwestern U.S.

ALPO reported sales in excess of $400 million for the year ended Sept. 30, 1989.

Grand Metropolitan PLC, one of the largest international companies in the United Kingdom with sales of more than $15 billion, is a world leader in the food, drink, and retailing businesses. In addition to ALPO, its U.S. subsidiaries include Burger King, Carillon Importers, Haagen-Dazs, Heublein, The Paddington Corporation, Pearle Inc. and Pillsbury.

NEW YORK (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Richard H. Jenrette, chairman, president and chief executive officer of The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, announced today that Glenn H. Gettier, executive vice president and chief financial officer, has resigned to pursue other business interests.

Jenrette also announced that effective May 31, Thomas M. Kirwan, who previously served as executive vice president of the Equitable Insurance Companies, will assume the chief financial officer responsibility for the entire company as part of a program that will consolidate what had been three separate financial oversight groups into one unit. Raymond L. Colotti, chief financial officer for the Equitable Investment Corporation, which oversees the Equitable's five investment subsidiaries, will transfer to Kirwan's group as part of the consolidation.

Jenrette said that Equitable regrets the loss of Gettier's service. "He has made a tremendous contribution to the growth and success of the Equitable during his tenure as chief financial officer," Jenrette said.

"Tom Kirwan's experience in both our insurance and investment affiliates will serve the Equitable well in this consolidation of what heretofore had been three separate financial functions," Jenrette said. "The merging of the financial reporting functions will streamline operations, reduce costs and will provide improved financial controls and information."

Kirwan joined the Equitable in 1985 as an executive vice president and chief financial officer of Equitable Investment Corporation. In 1987, he was named senior vice president and chief financial officer of Equitable Insurance Companies. Prior to joining the Equitable, he was with CBS,

Inc. for 11 years, during which he held several senior level management and finance positions, including chief financial officer of CBS.

Gettier joined the Equitable in 1984 as an executive vice president and was named CEO the following year. Previously, he was a partner in the accounting firm of Peat, Marwick & Main.

Colotti joined the Equitable in 1985 and has served in several financial management and executive positions with Equitable Investment Corporation, a holding company for the Equitable's investment subsidiaries. Prior to joining the company, he held positions with Sperry Corporation, Schering-Plough Corporation and Exxon Corporation.

The Equitable, the nation's third largest life insurance company and a leading pension and mutual fund manager, is a major provider of financial services to consumers and businesses. The Equitable and its subsidiaries have over $131 billion in assets under management.

NEW YORK, (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Rothschild Realty Inc. purchased from WestPoint Pepperell, Inc. (NYSE: WPM) the Mill Store Plazas in New Braunfels, Texas, and in Valdosta, Ga. The announcement was made by C. Cammack Morton, senior vice president of Rothschild Realty, and Gerald Andrews, president of WestPoint Pepperell Mill Stores Inc., West Point, Ga.

The Mill Store Plaza in New Braunfels is located on Interstate 35 between San Antonio and Austin. The shopping center has 50 stores, including Bugle Boy, Carter's Childrenswear and Maidenform. In 1984, the WestPoint Pepperell Mill store opened and by 1988, the entire shopping center was completed, offering 245,879 square feet of leasable space.

The Mill Store Plaza in Georgia is located on Interstate 75, near Valdosta. The shopping arcade features 48 stores, including Evan- Picone, Totes, Bass Shoe and Warnaco. The WestPoint Pepperell store first opened in 1984 and completed the final phase of the shopping center in 1986, providing 232,000 square feet of leasable space.

Both facilities are 100 percent occupied. Other tenants of both shopping centers are Pfatzgraff, L'eggs/Hanes/Bali, American Tourister Inc., Corning, Russell, Lenox and Harve Bernard.

According to Morton, "The shopping centers are geographically desirable." The New Braunfels location is about 35 miles from San Antonio, which attracts more tourists than any other city in Texas. The Valdosta shopping center is situated on a major southeast corridor for tourists traveling to Florida.

DEERFIELD, IL (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Sikes Corp. (AMEX: SK.A) and Premark International, Inc. (NYSE: PMI) jointly announced today an agreement to settle the two purported class action suits that have been filed against Sikes and its directors with respect to the acquisition of Sikes by Premark. The settlement is subject to consummation of the pending tender offer by a Premark subsidiary for all Class A shares of Sikes and court approval of a stipulation of settlement, which is not expected to occur before the expiration of the tender offer.

As previously announced, Sikes has agreed to be acquired by Premark for a total cash acquisition price of $201 million. Pursuant to the acquisition agreement, a subsidiary of Premark has commenced a tender offer for all Class A shares of Sikes at a price of $16.40 net cash per share and has agreed to purchase all Class B shares of Sikes upon the consummation of the tender offer at a price of $26.78 net cash per share, and thereafter to merge into Sikes with any remaining shares of Sikes being converted into a right to receive the tender offer price.

Pursuant to the proposed settlement, the expiration date of the Premark tender offer will be extended from midnight on May 24, 1990, to midnight on June 7, 1990, certain provisions of the acquisition agreement have been amended, and Sikes will establish upon the consummation of the tender offer a settlement fund of $.04 per Class A share (the equivalent of simple interest of the rate of 6-1/2 percent per annum on the tender offer price of $16.40 per Class A share for the 14-day period beginning on May 25, 1990 and ending on June 7, 1990) that, subject to court approval of the settlement, will be available to all holders of Class A shares of Sikes that are purchased pursuant to the tender offer or converted in the merger.

The amendments to the acquisition agreement made pursuant to the settlement include reducing from $5 million to $3 million the break-up fee payable by Sikes to Premark upon termination of the acquisition agreement under certain circumstances, waiving through June 7, 1990, the prohibition against Sikes soliciting, discussing, or negotiating acquisition offers from other parties, and permitting Sikes with respect to any acquisition offer that is made before June 8, 1990, to waive, amend, terminate, or not enforce the ''standstill covenants'' that it obtained from the interested parties who participated in the competitive review procedure that led to the pending acquisition by Premark. Premark is distributing to Sikes' shareholders supplemental tender offer materials describing other aspects of the settlement and changes to the acquisition agreement.

Premark International, Inc. is a multinational company that is based in Deerfield, Ill., and markets premium products under leading brand names such as Tupperware, West Bend, Wilsonart, Hobart, Vulcan, Hartco and Precor. Sikes Corp. is headquartered in Lakeland, Fla., and is the third largest domestic manufacturer of ceramic tile.

HOUSTON (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Commonwealth Mortgage of America, L.P. (NYSE: CMA) (the "partnership") announced today that it has signed a broker agreement with Cohane Rafferty Securities Inc. (the "broker") to sell approximately $7.6 billion of the partnership's residential mortgage servicing portfolio and its servicing center operations. The broker is in the process of preparing an offering circular on this portfolio that will be distributed to potential bidders. It is anticipated that there will be significant interest in the acquisition of this operation and the remaining portfolio by potential bidders.

This segment of the partnership's portfolio is composed of Government National Mortgage Association, Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., and various private investor's mortgage servicing contracts.

The partnership is a publicly-traded limited partnership engaged in the origination, sale, and servicing of residential mortgage loans. In April, the partnership completed the sale and transfer of its Federal National Mortgage Association servicing portfolio to United Savings Association of Texas FSB ("United"). Currently, the partnership has entered into an agreement to sell to United its origination business, including its warehouse and pipeline of mortgage loans. That sale is still subject to certain conditions being fulfilled, including the receipt of regulatory approvals.

UNIVERSAL CITY, CA (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Principal photography has begun in New York on Universal's "The Hard Way," a John Badham movie starring Michael J. Fox and James Woods. This is the second production of the Badham/Cohen Group, whose "Bird on a Wire," also released by Universal, opened last weekend as the No. 1 film in the nation with a box office gross of $15,338,160.

"The Hard Way" is an action comedy produced by Rob Cohen and William Sackheim, with Peter McIntosh and Keith Rubenstein co- producing. Contributing writers on the original screenplay are Daniel Pyne, Jeff Reno

Ron Osborne, William Sackheim and Lem Dobbs.

Fox plays Nick Lang, a top-dollar Hollywood film star itching to change his image. To win a role as a New York homicide detective, he teams up with real-life New York homicide detective John Moss (Woods) for some first-hand research. Moss is disgusted with his new assignment to babysit a Hollywood actor. He's got more important things to do -- like nailing a killer who is picking off New Yorkers at random.

Filming will take place over a 13-week schedule entirely on New York City locations. Universal has scheduled "The Hard Way" for release this Christmas.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - At 6 p.m. EDT today, Dean S. Marriott, senior deputy comptroller for bank supervision, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC), declared Memorial Bank, National Association, Houston, insolvent.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) was appointed as receiver.

The bank received a national charter on Dec. 1, 1983. It operated no branch offices and did not exercise trust powers. As of April 30, 1990, the bank had total assets of $74 million.

The bank became a concern to the OCC in 1987. Problems were the result of poor supervision by the board and management, liberal lending practices and poorly documented loans. The bank was highly dependent upon brokers deposits and large certificates of deposit which were used for speculative real estate lending. Deterioration in the local real estate market compounded the problems and worked against recovery efforts. Eventually, losses mounted and the bank's capital funds were exhausted, resulting in insolvency.

The FDIC is expected to release additional information later today.

NEW YORK (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Continental Express today announced its expanded summer schedule for customers traveling from Boston, La Guardia and Newark. The initial schedule change for Hyannis and the islands of Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard is effective on May 25 and will increase throughout the season with the largest expansion occurring on June 28.

With the schedule change, Continental Express is introducing its newest aircraft to the Northeast region, the Embraer 120 Brasilia. This 30-passenger, state-of-the-art aircraft includes reclining seats, fold-down work tables, overhead storage, and inflight service. The airline's 46 passenger Aerospatile/Aeritalia ATR-42, equipped with the same jet-like amenities, will continue operating with the Brasilia on service from Newark and La Guardia. The average age of these aircraft is under two years.

Effective on June 28, La Guardia will have exclusive Embraer and ATR-42 service with five non-stop flights to Nantucket, and four non- stop to Martha's Vineyard. The La Guardia schedule also includes six flights to Hyannis. Newark will have three daily non-stop flights and one direct flight to Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard with all large aircraft. The Newark schedule will also include seven daily flights to Hyannis. WASHINGTON (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - A federal court judge in San Diego has denied a request by Imperial Savings Association, San Diego, for an injunction barring federal regulators from placing the institution in receivership.

Imperial already is under government conservatorship. The injunction request was contained in a lawsuit filed by Imperial in March contending that former Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) Director M. Danny Wall was appointed to the post without proper Senate confirmation, and that OTS had no grounds for placing the institution under conservatorship. Imperial was placed under conservatorship March 23, 1990.

In denying the injunction May 23, U.S. District Court Judge Judith Keep ruled that Imperial had not shown that its arguments were likely to succeed, and that the potential harm to Imperial was outweighed by the harm to the public that could result from the inefficient regulation of the thrift industry.

The courts have issued seven rulings thus far in lawsuits challenging OTS' regulatory authority on the grounds that the agency's former directors were unconstitutionally appointed. Five of those of rulings having favored OTS.

WHITE'S CITY, N.M. (MAY 24) UPI - The swallows returned to Cottonwood Cave in the Lincoln National Forest and the 10-day-old fire that has charred 33,135 acres was declared contained, although the blaze continued to burn, Forest Service spokesmen said Wednesday.

The birds, under the stress of smoke and fire, left the cave last week but were back Wednesday, National Forest Service spokesman Bob Valen said. Bats that fled the caves in the 47,000-acre Carlsbad Caverns National Park near the Texas line had not returned, Valen said.

Valen said about 485 firefighters braced against westerly winds to keep the fire from spreading.

The fire was declared 100 percent contained at 6 p.m., meaning it was no longer spreading, Valen said. Officials predicted it would be controlled by June 8.

The fire line Wednesday withstood 15- to 18-mph winds, 90-degree temperatures and extremely low, 12 percent humidity.

''We are anticipating moderate gusting winds from the west and southwest tomorrow (Thursday), and frankly what that's going to do is test our fire line,'' Valen said.

If the line holds Thursday, the Forest Service planned to send home all but 100 of the firefighters, leaving one management team and four crews to mop up hot spots and supervise the control efforts.

The fire started May 13 and is believed to have been ''man-caused,'' Valen said. Investigators continue searching for suspects.

The blaze has charred 17,000 acres in the Lincoln National Forest, 11,000 acres in Carlsbad Caverns National Park, 3,400 acres of Bureau of Land Management land, 1,230 acres of private land and 300 acres of state land.

There has been no damage to buildings, Valen said. Firefighters have suffered only minor injuries such as sprains, scratches and fatigue.

No endangered species have been affected by the fire, Valen said.

''We're not worried about the bats,'' Valen said. ''They'll be back.''

National Park Service personnel said there is no need for tourists to stay away from the famous Carlsbad Caverns because the fire did not get close enough to do any damage.

''New Cave, on the southern boundary of the park, was burned over but no damage was done,'' he said.

MADISON, WI (MAY 24) UPI - Migratory turtles in the Badger State may be getting a little help on their journeys this year.

Motorists have been asked not only to avoid running them over, but also to go so far as to get out of their cars and help the slow-moving creatures get across the road.

Robert Hay, president of the Wisconsin Herpetological Society and the Department of Natural Resources, made the request Wednesday. He even gave some guidelines for would-be turtle samaritans.

''It is important to move the turtle in the direction it is headed; if the turtle is put back onto the side from which it was coming, it will just start to cross the road again,'' he advised.

The turtles should also be dragged across the highway by their tails since many bite, other officials added. But they cautioned against picking them up by the tail since it could cause internal injuries.

Why all the fuss? Hay said many turtles were endangered or threatened species.The ornate box turtle, Wisconsin's only land-dwelling turtle, for example, is endangered and the wood turtle is a threatened species.

Female turtles are crossing highways this time of year to get from the wetlands where they live to the dry habitat where they prefer to lay eggs. Many are flattened along the way.

''Senseless killing is wasteful and destructive,'' he said. '' We should respect all wildlife.''

LOS ANGELES (MAY 24) UPI - A brother-in-law of a former Mexican president attended a baptism at which he agreed to a plan by narcotics traffickers to kidnap U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena, a former Mexican police officer testified Wednesday.

The testimony about Ruben Zuno Arce, whose sister was married to former Mexican President Luis Echeverria, was the first to link him to Camarena's abduction, torture and slaying in February 1985. Zuno, charged with Camarena's kidnapping, is on trial along with three other men indicted in the case.

Hector Cervantez Santos, a former Mexican police official who later worked as a bodyguard for a drug cartel member who owned the Guadalajara house where the baptism occurred, said Zuno attended a meeting there during which Camarena's kidnapping was plotted in September 1984.

Cervantez, 30, testified that during Zuno's meeting with Mexican drug traffickers they discussed how to deal with a U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent who was ''causing trouble'' for the cartel.

''They only said that he was causing trouble and that they wanted to know who the person was who was causing trouble,'' Cervantez said.

Cervantez said Zuno wanted the agent ''picked up.''

Prosecutors have alleged the agent discussed at the baptism was Camarena, who was the focus of several other meetings at the house owned by Javier Barba Hernandez.

Barba, a Mexican lawyer who authorities said was the ''chief lieutentant'' of drug baron Ernesto Fonseca Carrillo, was shot to death in Guadalajara in November 1986 by Mexican Federal Judicial Police who said the shooting was accidental.

In other testimony Wednesday, the wife of one of two Americans mistaken for DEA agents and killed a week before Camarena's murder said she learned about her husband's slaying from a Mexican newspaper.

Mary Walker, 44, testified that she went to Guadalajara in search of her husband, John, after he disappeared in the middle of February 1985.

Walker had gone to Mexico a year earlier with his family to finish writing a mystery novel. At the time he disappeared, his wife and their two daughters were in the United States, where the children had returned to attend school.

Mary Walker tearfully testified that she was in a hotel in Mexico when she saw a headline in a newspaper that said ''two Americans who had been in Mexico - their bodies had been found the day before in Guadalajara.''

Walker testifed that she was taken to the Guadalajara morgue where she identified the remains of her husband. She said she recognized her husband's body ''as soon as I looked at him.''

''It was only a skeleton, but not just a skeleton. ... It was John, it was unmistakably John,'' she said, sobbing.

Felipe Radelat, the father of Alberto Radelat, the other tourist killed, also testified that he traveled to Guadalajara to identify his son's body.

Zuno's co-defendant, Javier Vasquez Velasco, is charged with the Radelat and Walker murders, which occurred at a Guadalajara restaurant. The men's bodies were found about a month after their deaths in a shallow grave in a remote area outside the city.

The other defendants on trial are convicted drug kingpin Juan Matta Ballesteros and Juan Bernabe Ramirez, an alleged bodyguard for drug cartel members. Both face charges relating to the murder of Camarena and his Mexican pilot, Alfredo Avelar.

Meanwhile, the Mexican government said Wednesday it has requested the extradition of a physician who it said was abducted and taken to the United States, where he faces trial in the Camarena case.

The Foreign Ministry issued a statement through its embassy in Washington requesting ''... that the U.S. government return Dr. Humberto Alvarez Machain so he can be submitted to an investigation by the relevant Mexican authorities.''

The DEA reportedly paid bounty hunters to abduct Alvarez Machain from his home in Guadalajara and spirit him to El Paso, Texas, where he was arrested April 3 by U.S. agents.

Alvarez Machain is accused of administering drugs to Camarena to revive him and allow his captors to continue their interrogation.

The Foreign Ministry said the request for extradition is based on the fact that Alvarez Machain was abducted and taken out of Mexico in violation of Mexican law.

The statement said Mexican authorities have ''begun criminal proceedings against the intellectual and material authors of the kidnapping and illegal transfer of Alvarez Machain, and will shortly request the extradition (from the United States) of the people involved in those crimes.''

(MAY 24) UPI - The House Wednesday night approved landmark clean-air legislation that would cut in half acid rain emissions... impose new limits on toxic discharges from factories... and reduce smog-causing pollution from cars and industry. The vote was 401-21. But a provision to provide special unemployment assistance to workers who lose their jobs due to increased emission controls could prompt a presidential veto. Congressional negotiators now will have to work out the differences between the House bill and the Senate version, which passed last month.

West Germany's opposition Social Democratic Party is calling for an immediate investigation of all nuclear weapons deployed in the country. The call is sparked by Wednesday's report that the U-S government secretly repaired ''defective'' nuclear artillery shells that could've exploded accidentally while stored in Europe. In Belgium, Defense Secretary Cheney concedes some shells were below safety standards. But he says the shells posed NO danger and the problem has been corrected.

A Panamanian human rights group estimates at least 532 Panamanians and 24 Americans died during the U-S invasion that ousted military ruler Manuel Noriega. The figures are slightly higher than those given by the U-S Southern Command, which put the death toll at 516 Panamanians and 26 Americans. The number of invasion victims is a source of controversy in Panama. Estimates have ranged from as many as 700 upwards to 10-thousand Panamanian dead.

Forest Service officials in southeastern New Mexico say the 10-day-old fire that has charred more than 33-thousand acres of land was declared contained Wednesday evening- meaning it NO longer is spreading. They estimate full control by June 8th. Authorities suspect the blaze was ''man-caused.'' NO buildings have been destroyed by the flames, and firefighter injuries have been minor.

(MAY 24) UPI - Dennis ''Oil Can'' Boyd appears rejuvenated in a Montreal uniform.

''I feel great now,'' said Boyd after pitching a five-hitter Wednesday to lead the Expos to a 4-0 victory over the San Diego Padres. ''It shows that you can't keep a good man down. I have good control. I eat, sleep and drink baseball. I am ready to go nine each game.''

Boyd, 3-2, pitched eight seasons with Boston before signing with Montreal as a free agent during the offseason. He recorded his second shutout of the season Wednesday and matched his 1989 victory total.

Boyd was 3-2 in 10 starts with the Red Sox last year, spending 120 days on the disabled list because of blood clots in his right shoulder.

Boyd also singled off former Boston teammate Bruce Hurst, 3-5, igniting a two-run fifth inning. It was his first major league hit.

Montreal scored two runs in the fifth to increase its lead to 3-0. Boyd collected the first of four consecutive singles by the Expos that produced two runs.

'''Oil Can' started a rally, but what could I do,'' Hurst said. ''I got behind him 2 and 0. I didn't want to walk him, so I pitched him down the middle and anybody swinging a bat against a pitch like that would get a hit. He gets his first in the majors and that inning did me in.''

Hurst left the game after the fifth inning. He gave up three runs and seven hits.

Both of Boyd's shutouts have come against San Diego.

''Boyd only has two shutouts since 1985 and both are against us,'' Padres Manager Jack McKeon said. ''He should mail our guys plane tickets. We just are not getting anybody on base. Each time I look at the scoreboard, it seems we are down 4-0. I hope it doesn't keep up until July 15.''

Elsewhere in the NL, Los Angeles defeated Chicago 4-3, San Francisco beat St. Louis 6-1 and Houston outlasted Pittsburgh 7-3.

In the American League, it was Kansas City 4, Boston 1; Chicago 6, Baltimore 3; Detroit 5, Texas 1; New York 12, Minnesota 0; California 5, Toronto 4; Seattle 4, Cleveland 1 and Oakland 12, Milwaukee 5.

-- AROUND THE NL --

Dodgers 4, Cubs 3

At Chicago, Kal Daniels hit a three-run homer with two out in the eighth inning to lift the Dodgers. Tim Belcher, 4-3, gave up seven hits over seven innings for the victory. Don Aase pitched out of a two-on, none-out jam in the ninth for his third save. Reliever Paul Assenmacher, 1-1, yielded Daniels' eighth home run. Chicago starter Mike Harkey made three putouts in the fourth inning to tie a major league record.

Giants 6, Cardinals 1

At St. Louis, winning pitcher Bob Knepper, 3-2, doubled home a run and scored in a three-run sixth inning, helping the Giants snap a four-game losing streak. Knepper matched his longest stint of the year by pitching 6 2-3 innings. Greg Mathews, 0-4, allowed four runs and nine hits in 5 2-3 innings.

Astros 7, Pirates 3

At Houston, Alex Trevino slugged a two-run pinch homer to snap an eighth-inning tie and lift the Astros. With the score tied 3-3, Jeff Baldwin drew a walk from Scott Ruskin, 0-1. Trevino, hitting for pitcher Juan Agosto, 3-1, slugged an 0-2 pitch over the left-field fence to make it 5-3. Ruskin surrendered four runs and three hits over 1 1-3 innings.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - Congress took another big step toward cleaner air with House passage of legislation that would halve acid rain emissions limit toxic releases from factories and cut smog-causing pollution from cars and industry.

The far-reaching clean air bill, approved by a 401-21 vote Wednesday night would impose at least $21 billion per year in additional pollution reduction costs on a wide array of industries, ranging from giant chemical and steel plants to the corner dry cleaner or gasoline station.

While praising the bill as a sound prescription for improved air quality, House leaders said it would inflict economic pain and major lifestyle changes on Americans.

''I think everyone is going to find clean air is not free,'' said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., prime sponsor of the bill, who warned the legislation likely would cost thousands of jobs and drive up prices of many consumer items.

He also said people living in smoggy cities now face ''very, very stern inconveniences, including such things as getting to work and taking your car for a Saturday night drive.''

However, Dingell added, ''the public wanted it and I think the House responded.''

Jubilant environmentalists said the House bill would go far to better protect the health of Americans.

''We're having a small celebration here,'' said Melanie Griffin, spokeswoman at the Sierra Club's Washington headquarters. ''I think Americans can breathe easier for this.''

With the Senate having passed its clean air bill last month, the spotlight now shifts to a House-Senate conference committee, where legislative leaders will try to work out differences between the two chambers.

Although the conference is expected to be difficult, the House and Senate bills are similar in many important respects and legislative leaders hope to send Bush a clean air bill before the fall.

Both bills would:

-Cut sulfur dioxide emissions from 107 Midwest and Southern coal-burning power plants by 10 million tons, roughly a 50 percent reduction from 1980 levels. Sulfur dioxide is one of the key pollutants linked to acid rain, which has damaged forests, lakes and streams in the Northeast and Canada.

-Impose new emission limits on industry for 191 toxic and cancer-causing chemicals, many of which are now unregulated.

-Reduce smog-forming pollution from factories and cars. The biggest reductions would come from automakers, who would be required to reduce tailpipe exhaust by roughly 50 percent by 1996, with an additional round of cuts possible after the year 2000. The oil industry would be required to sell cleaner-burning ''reformulated'' gasoline in the nation's nine smoggiest cities.

-Phase out the production of ozone-depleting chlorofluorocarbons by the year 2000. Bush also has balked at that provision, saying the United States should wait for other nations to agree to that deadline in upcoming negotiations on an international treaty to protect Earth's protective ozone layer.

Before passing its bill, the House attached two amendments likely to cause controversy in the House-Senate conference.

House members approved a precedent-setting amendment to establish a pilot program in Southern California under which consumers could buy alternative fuel cars that could run on cleaner-burning fuels such as natural gas or alcohol fuels.

The amendment requires automakers to sell 150,000 ''clean fuel'' cars in the Los Angeles area by 1994 and 300,000 by 1997. Those cars could run on cleaner-burning reformulated gasoline, but the program would require non-gasoline cars after the year 2000.

Nationwide, the amendment would require in 31 seriously smoggy cities that operators of commercial vehicle fleets of 10 or more cars switch over to alternative fuels. Urban mass transit buses also would be included in that program.

The amendment represents the first national effort to promote the development of ''clean-fuel'' cars as a way to reduce urban smog and wean the nation from its dependence on foreign oil.

Also attached to the clean air bill was a controversial plan to provide special unemployment assistance to workers who lose their jobs due to increased emission controls.

The five-year, $250 million worker-aid plan was approved despite warnings from administration officials that it was too expensive and could prompt President Bush to veto the entire clean air package.

PORTLAND, OR (MAY 24) UPI - In a miserable first half for the Trail Blazers, the Portland team photographer was banished from the baseline by referee Jess Kersey for yelling at the officials.

Too bad for him he was not around to take pictures of one of the greatest comebacks in NBA playoff history.

Terry Porter poured in 23 of his 28 points in the second half - including the go-ahead basket with 12.7 seconds left - as the Blazers erased a 22-point deficit Wednesday night for a 108-107 victory over the Phoenix Suns. The Blazers head to Phoenix with a 2-0 lead in the Western Conference finals.

''This was a great win for us,'' Porter said. ''I can't say enough about the 12 guys in this locker room. It shows that no matter what kind of lead they have we can come back.''

Portland trailed 57-35 with 96 seconds left in the second quarter and 59-41 at halftime, but rallied behind Porter and Jerome Kersey, who scored 10 of his career playoff-high 29 points in the final period.

The Suns were held to 16 points on 6 of 18 shooting in the last quarter. The Blazers scored 26 in the fourth period.

''This is difficult to take,'' Suns guard Kevin Johnson said. ''We had a chance but they did a good job not quitting.''

The Blazers' comeback stands beside some of the best in NBA playoff history. In 1948, Baltimore recovered from a 21-point halftime deficit to beat Philadelphia. Portland now joins four other clubs who trailed by 18 at halftime and went on to win.

Portland extended Phoenix's five-year losing streak at Memorial Coliseum to 19 games. The Suns have lost four times on the Blazers' court this season by a total of six points.

The best-of-seven series shifts to Phoenix for games Friday night and Sunday, but the Suns are in trouble. Only seven teams have overcome a 2-0 deficit in NBA playoffs history.

''This is not the end of the world,'' Phoenix Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said. The Suns have not lost three in a row this year and we're not going to let it happen Friday.''

The Blazers scored just 40 points in the first half, coming within one point of the franchise record for fewest points before halftime.

Portland, which has won 14 of the last 18 meetings between the teams, is 8-0 at home in the playoffs and 1-3 on the road.

Tom Chambers, who led the Suns with 28 points, hit two foul shots to give Phoenix a 106-103 lead with 50.1 seconds left, but Porter's fourth 3-pointer of the game tied it with 28.4 seconds remaining.

Johnson was fouled by Kersey on an inbounds play with 27.2 seconds remaining, but he made just one free throw for a 107-106 Phoenix lead.

After a timeout, Porter nailed his winning 10-foot jumper over Johnson to give the Blazers their first lead since the game's opening seconds. Eddie Johnson of the Suns missed from the baseline with two seconds left and time expired.

Clyde Drexler had 16 of his 20 points in the second half for the Blazers. Kevin Johnson and Dan Majerle each had 22 for the Suns. Majerle scored 18 in the first half, when the Suns raced to a 59-41 lead.

Four Blazers spoke during an emotional halftime, including Drexler.

''We just spoke our piece,'' he said. ''Then Coach (Rick) Adelman got us fired up.''

Porter poured in 15 in the third quarter and the Blazers outscored Phoenix 41-32 to pull within 91-82 entering the final period.

The Suns opened the final quarter by missing nine of their first 10 shots. The Blazers, meanwhile, ran off eight straight points to pull within 93-90 on Drexler's layup. And when Porter's 3-pointer rolled around the rim and fell, Portland was within 97-95 with 5:38 left.

The Blazers stumbled badly in the first half, making only 35 percent of their shots while committing 15 turnovers. To epitomize their ineptitude, they received a technical late in the half for having only four players on the court.

The sellout crowd of 12,884 vented its frustration on officials Kresey, Jack Madden, and Paul Mihalak. It got so bad that Kersey ejected photographer Art Gee sitting along the baseline with 88 seconds left in the half.

''The photographer was a part of the entire working team of the playoffs '' Kersey told a pool reporter. ''If he wants to make derogatory statements to the officials, then he has to make them from the stands. And that's why he was removed from the game.''

Lost amid the chaos was a brilliant effort by Majerle, who sank 8 of 10 shots in the first half, including a pair of 3-pointers.

Portland, despite missing 14 of its first 17 shots, led 13-12 with three minutes left in the first quarter, but the Suns closed the period with a 16-4 run. Jeff Hornacek had a 3-point play in the burst that gave Phoenix a 28-17 lead. The Blazers shot 6 of 23 from the floor in their lowest scoring quarter of the season.

When Majerle nailed a 3-pointer and scored off a drive, the Phoenix lead was a whopping 57-35 with 96 seconds left in the half.

(MAY 24) UPI - The Yankees had to travel to the Metrodome before acting like Bronx Bombers.

New York slugged six home runs and Tim Leary pitched a four-hitter Wednesday night, leading the Yankees to a 12-0 rout of the Minnesota Twins.

It was their most home runs in a game since the 1977 World Champion Yankees also hit six, July 5, 1977, and two short of the team record set in 1939.

Steve Balboni contributed two homers to the barrage, his first two of the season in his 11th career two-home run game. Balboni is especially fond of the Metrodome, accomplishing his last two-homer game there on Aug. 11, 1989.

Twins starter Tim Drummond, 0-1, allowed two home runs and reliever John Candelaria surrendered four more in 2 1-3 innings. Balboni hit his homers off Candelaria, a former Yankee.

''I've faced him before, when he was with California,'' Balboni said. ''For me, I know I'm going to hit home runs. If I don't, I'm in trouble. But when I hit a ball good, it should go out. We've been struggling lately as far as scoring runs. When you look at our line-up there's a lot of career homers in there.'' other home runs to support Leary, 2-4, who struck out 11 for his first shutout since 1988.

Deion Sanders, Roberto Kelly, Mel Hall and Jesse Barfield hit the Yankees'

Leary shut down Kirby Puckett, who went 0-for-4 ending a five-game hitting streak.

''He did an exceptional job,'' Puckett said, ''but it's easier to pitch when you have a 12-run lead. I think I could pitch if we were ahead 12-0 and maybe do a good job.''

The performance was especially gratifying to Leary, who lost a shutout May 12 at Seattle when Ken Griffey, Jr. whacked a ninth-inning homer.

''It's nice to get a shutout, especially after what happened in Seattle,'' Leary said. ''My goal is to throw as hard as I can as long as I can. I had some quick innings in the seventh and eighth and that allowed me to stay strong enough to finish the game.''

In other AL games, Kansas City beat Boston 4-1, Chicago defeated Baltimore 6-3, Detroit pounded Texas 5-1, Oakland pummeled Milwaukee 12-5, Seattle edged Cleveland 4-1, and California shaded Toronto 5-4.

In the National League it was, Los Angeles 4, Chicago 3; Montreal 4, San Diego 0; San Francisco 6, St. Louis 1; and Houston 7, Pittsburgh 3.

Royals 4, Red Sox 1

At Boston, Steve Jeltz singled home the tie-breaking run and Willie Wilson added a two-run single in a three-run seventh inning to propel the Royals. Bret Saberhagen, 3-3, last season's Cy Young Award winner, allowed seven hits and walked none while striking out five for his second straight victory and third complete game. Boston's Greg Harris fell to 4-3.

White Sox 6, Orioles 3

At Baltimore, Dan Pasqua drove in four runs with two homers and Eric King and two relievers combined on a two-hitter to lift the White Sox. King, 3-0, walked four and struck out three with two-hit pitching over six innings. Bobby Thigpen pitched the ninth for his 12th save. Dave Johnson, 3-3, gave up nine hits and five runs in 6 2-3 innings for the loss.

Tigers 5, Rangers 1

At Detroit, Cecil Fielder increased his major league leading home run total to 17 with a two-run shot in the third to power the Tigers to their eighth victory in nine games. Left-hander Brian DuBois, 2-2, pitched six innings of three-hit shutout ball for the victory. Left-hander Mike Jeffcoat, 0-1, replacing disabled Nolan Ryan, took the loss.

Athletics 12, Brewers 5

At Oakland, Dave Henderson hit two homers and a double for four RBI and Rickey Henderson slammed a three-run homer to power the Athletics. Mike Moore, 4-3, gave up five runs on seven hits over seven innings for the victory. Brewers starter Bill Wegman, 2-1, was bombed for eight runs on seven hits and two walks in 2 2-3 innings.

Mariners 4, Indians 1

At Seattle, Erik Hanson and Mike Schooler combined on a five-hitter and Ken Griffey Jr. slugged a two-run double to help the Mariners extend Cleveland's losing streak to four games. Hanson, 4-3, scattered five hits, struck out nine and walked none in eight innings. Schooler pitched the ninth inning to record his 12th save. Bud Black, 4-2, took the loss.

Angels 5, Blue Jays 4

At Anaheim, Lance Parrish singled home Johnny Ray from second with two outs in the ninth, capping a four-run inning to lift the Angels. Toronto reliever Duane Ward, 1-2, failed to hold a 4-1 lead entering the ninth inning. Scott Bailes, 1-0, came on to strikeout Fred McGriff with runners on first and third and two outs in the ninth to pick up the win.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (MAY 24) UPI - The harbor pilot guiding the American Trader oil tanker and the firm operating the mooring where the ship ran over its own anchor were to blame for a 397,000 gallon oil spill off Huntington Beach, the Coast Guard said.

A Coast Guard report Wednesday said the Feb. 7 oil spill occurred because Golden West Refining Co., failed to conduct regular surveys of the ocean depths surrounding its mooring 1.3 miles southwest of Huntington Beach.

The report also charged that the mooring master, Capt. John Keon, 41, of San Jacinto, Calif., was not ''fully cognizant of the accurate sea berth water depth information.''

Mooring masters are local captains hired to pilot large ships to offshore moorings.

The Coast Guard, however, said neither Golden West nor Keon were guilty of violating any federal laws ''for which the Coast Guard has any enforcement responsibility.''

Keon was not immediately available for comment and officials of the Sante Fe Springs-based Golden West declined comment until they received the report.

The Coast Guard report said the ship's owner, American Trading and Transport Co., and its captain and crew were not at fault for the accident although the company may have violated the federal Water Pollution Control Act by dumping crude oil into the ocean.

The Coast Guard said the Huntington Beach spill has prompted the formation of a task force to review port safety issues and the licensing and training of mooring masters.

The accident occurred Feb. 7 when the American Trader, leased to British Petroleum Oil Shipping Co. USA, approached a mooring to unload its cargo of 300,000 barrels of crude oil into an underwater pipeline to a Golden West terminal in Huntington Beach.

Coast Guard investigators said the ship dropped two anchors and then ran over its left-side anchor, rupturing the single-hulled ship.

Keon told the Coast Guard that he believed the depth surrounding the mooring was 56 feet, but a 1981 survey showed the shallowest water near the mooring was 45.9 feet. A similar survey conducted after the tanker accident found the shallowest part of the mooring area was 47 feet.

The Coast Guard said that instead of 13 feet of clearance that Keon believed was available, the bottom could actually have been only 4 feet or less under the American Trader.

Under the circumstances, the Coast Guard said, it was not surprising the ship ran over its anchor.

''The mooring master has a responsibility to his employer for being fully cognizant of accurate sea berth water depth information and appropriate terminal operating parameters,'' said the report.

''The terminal operator has a responsibility to periodically conduct water depth surveys in the immediate area of the terminal; to fully evaluate this information and designate appropriate terminal operating parameters; and to ensure that both ... are made readily available to terminal users '' the report said.

On April 26, the Coast Guard established restrictions on tanker traffic at the Golden West mooring, mandating at least 6 feet of clearance between the ship's bottom and any obstructions on the ocean floor.

In addition, the Coast Guard ordered monthly depth readings near the mooring and depth soundings before the arrival of each ship.

A state report released Tuesday said the amount of oil actually recovered after the spill was significantly overstated. The report said only about 21 percent of the spill was collected. British Petroleum said it recovered up to 47 percent.

If the state figures are correct, American Trading could wind up paying as much as $9 million in fines, which are based on the amount of oil spilled.

NEW YORK (MAY 24) UPI - Gina Feliciano, who was at the center of the Bensonhurst racial slaying case, was arrested for drug possession in a Brooklyn subway station where she and a companion tried to beat a fare, police said Thursday.

The 18-year-old Feliciano and a man were spotted going through an exit gate into the station without paying their fares at 10:52 p.m. Wednesday, a spokesman for Transit Police said.

Two plainclothes officers on duty at the time went over toward the pair to question them.

''The man she was with ran away, but when the officers approached her, they saw her throw a brown paper bag to the floor and try to kick it away '' the spokesman said.

''The officers picked it up, looked inside and saw 15 vials of crack and a crack pipe.''

Feliciano was charged with possession of crack, a felony, and taken to Brooklyn central booking. She was to be arraigned Thursday, the spokesman said.

Feliciano was the young woman whose Hispanic and black friends allegedly angered Bensonhurst youths, who last Aug. 23, turned on Yusuf Hawkins, 16, and three friends in the mistaken belief they had come looking for a fight.

Hawkins was shot and killed by Joseph Fama during that mob attack. A co-defendant in the case, Keith Mondella - an ex-boyfriend of Feliciano's - was acquitted last week of murder but convicted on lesser charges.

Feliciano, who after the Hawkins slaying, entered and then left a drug treatment program, was one of the prosecution witnesses in the case.

(MAY 24) UPI - A decision on whether the Bush administration will renew most-favored-nation trade status for China is expected Thursday. At a White House briefing Wednesday, Secretary of State Baker listed the reasons why the preferential treatment should be extended... despite worries about Beijing's lack of progress toward improved human rights. Officials say the announcement was postponed from Wednesday to notify key congressional members in advance.

At the same briefing, Baker defended claims by critics who say the United States made too many strategic arms concessions to the Soviet Union during negotiations for next week's superpower summit. Baker says the agreement to limit cruise missiles- quote- ''is very much in the national security interest of the United States.''

The House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee voted Wednesday to ban the sale in the United States of tuna caught in nets along with dolphins. The restriction is an amendment to a bill that would require labels on tuna products harvested by methods that kill dolphins. Sponsors of the original bill call the amendment a diversionary tactic. But Republican Representative Don Young says it will keep foreigners from selling tuna caught with dolphins.

South Korean President Roh Tae-woo arrived in Japan Thursday under the tightest security the country has seen since last year's funeral of Emperor Hirohito. The purpose of the three days of talks is to move the Far Eastern neighbors into an era of political and economic co-operation. But Japanese officials say the first day of Roh's trip will focus on Japan's colonization of Korea from 1910 to 1945... during which Japan forced Koreans to work in slave-like conditions. They say Emperor Akihito plans to apologize to the Korean people at a state dinner, and Prime Minister Kaifu is prepared to offer a more detailed apology in his meeting with Roh.

TOKYO (MAY 24) UPI - North Korea's nominal Parliament Thursday re-elected President Kim Il Sung, who brushed off the democratization of Eastern Europe, saying ''socalism ... is the only road to take,'' the official North Korean news agency reported.

The 78-year-old Kim, Asia's most durable leader and one of its most secretive, has ruled the northern half of the divided Korean peninsula since 1945.

The Korean Central News Agency said the lawmakers also chose Kim to head the National Defense Commission. Kim's son and designated heir, Kim Jong Il, assumed the post of first vice chairman of the 11-member panel.

The elder Kim, in his policy speech, reaffirmed that North Korea will continue to pursue socialism despite the democratization movement sweeping Eastern Europe, the agency said.

''Advancing along the road of socialism is the main trend of historical progress, and this is the only road for mankind to take,'' Kim was quoted as saying.

The agency said Kim's reelection as president during the opening session of the Supreme People's Assembly, the country's rubber-stamp legislature, was unanimous. The session is the assembly's first since national elections April 22.

''His re-election ... is an expression of the unshakable will of our party and people to carry the cause of socialism to accomplishment and accomplish the historical cause of national reunification at an early date '' the agency said.

Kim renewed his call for conclusion of a nonaggression pact between North and South Korea to guarantee that both sides refrain from invading each other, the agency said.

MOSCOW (MAY 24) UPI - Radical Russian republic lawmakers believe Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev made a political blunder when he lashed out at Boris Yeltsin, accusing the maverick communist of trying to unravel the Soviet Union.

Gorbachev, his voice rising with emotion in a 45-minute speech Wednesday to the Russian republic's new Congress of People's Deputies, called his radical critics ''political rogues'' and accused them of ''unscrupulous and dirty methods.''

Gorbachev said that while he favors strengthening the sovereignty of the Russian republic, Yeltsin was using the guise of greater independence for Russia to promote the breakup of the Soviet Union.

''If (Yeltsin's speech) is subjected to very serious analysis, you see he is proposing under the banner of restoring the sovereignty of Russia a call for the dissolution of the union,'' Gorbachev said.

Yeltsin, a former Moscow Communist Party boss who now leads the radical Democratic Russia bloc in the congress, proposed Tuesday wide-ranging freedoms for the Soviet Union's largest republic including the right to charge world prices for the raw materials it sends other republics.

Yeltsin refused to answer reporters' questions on the accusations, but told deputies after Wednesday's session that Gorbachev ''went into questions that I didn't even talk about in my speech.''

Radical deputies said they felt Gorbachev had made a tactical error in personalizing the conflict with Yeltsin.

Gorbachev ''helped us by showing that he is seriously afraid of Yeltsin as a serious representative of serious democratic forces,'' said Sergei Nosovets, a Democratic Russia organizer from Omsk.

Yeltsin, formerly a candidate member of the Communist Party's ruling Politburo, fell out of favor and lost his top posts in 1987 for criticizing the pace of Gorbachev's reforms as being too slow.

But groundbreaking multi-candidate polls last year paved the way for Yeltsin's political comeback when more than 6 million Muscovites voted for the renegade communist and elected him to the U.S.S.R. Congress of People's Deputies.

The Russian legislature plans this week to choose a candidate who will chair it and the Supreme Soviet, a standing Parliament elected from congress deputies.

Yeltsin is a main contender for the effective presidency of the Russian republic, which would give him a powerful base from which to challenge Gorbachev.

The Soviet president charged that Yeltsin's Tuesday speech ''contains an attempt to separate Russia from socialism'' and criticized him for proposing that Russia drop the words ''soviet'' and ''socialist'' from its official title.

Gorbachev, at times pounding the podium for emphasis, said he was especially concerned because Russia was the core of the Soviet Union's 15 republics.

''How could we go on without Russia if it goes in another direction?'' he said. ''If some other republic exercises its right to secede from the union, it would infringe upon the interests of other republics, but we would survive. But the U.S.S.R. is unthinkable without Russia.''

JERUSALEM (MAY 24) UPI - Israel, the target of international criticism for its handling of violent protests sparked by the mass slaying of seven Arabs, took exception to Washington's willingness to consider supporting a U.N. force patrolling the occupied territories.

The territories were calmer Wednesday than in previous days, but observers said the international ramifications of the crisis appeared to be escalating.

In neighboring Jordan Wednesday evening, protests in Palestinian refugee camps persisted for a third day following the slaying of the Arab workers Sunday. One Palestinian was killed and five people were wounded in clashes between demonstrators and security forces, a Jordanian government spokesman said.

Since Sunday, the official death toll from Palestinian unrest stood at three and the number wounded about 30. However, camp residents have put the fatality count at 10. Also, camp residents and hospital sources said there have been more than 400 people wounded in protest-related violence.

In Washington, Secretary of State James Baker said the United States for the first time was willing to discuss the possibility of sending an international observer force in the territories, the site of violent protests since the seven Arab workers were killed Sunday in Israel by a deranged Israeli with an assault rifle.

Baker's comments were expected to create further friction in the U.S.-Israeli relationship, which has been under strain since the peace process that Baker is trying to mediate stalled this year.

Hospital and Palestinian sources say 12 Palestinians have been killed and hundreds wounded in protests over the brutal massacre, marking the bloodiest week in the 29-month-old Palestinian uprising, known as the intifada.

Baker said in Washington the United States would be ''prepared to discuss the question of a U.N. observer team if that indeed comes up at the U.N. Security Council session'' in Geneva Friday. The announcement was seen as a victory for the PLO, which had called for such a force to monitor the crisis.

Officials said that the United States would be prepared to support a U.N. force, but said it was unlikely Israel would allow it in the occupied territories.

Avi Pazner, spokesman for Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, said Israel was firmly against international intervention.

''Israel in the past has always opposed such an idea, because it constitutes an infringement on our sovereignty and interference in our internal affairs,'' he said. ''We will discuss it with the United States and explain why we think they have to oppose such an idea.''

Saeb Erekat, a Palestinian professor of political science at Nablus University in the West Bank, who went on a hunger strike after Sunday's killings, called the announcement ''excellent news.''

''If Mr. Baker is sincere and serious, we have taken a major step forward '' he said.

Israeli officials vehemently denounced the killings, but observers said the incident appears to have reignited the stagnating intifada and fueled frustration over Israel's refusal to allow the inclusion of the Palestine Liberation Organization in a stalled Mideast peace plan.

Foreign Minister Moshe Arens said Wednesday it was wrong to link the attack to Israeli policies or the Mideast peace process, and warned the criticism could give Israel's enemies a reason to attack the Jewish state.

Israeli forces maintained curfews in much of the occupied West Bank and the Gaza Strip Wednesday and security in Jerusalem was tripled as thousands of flag-waving Israelis celebrated ''Jerusalem Day.'' The festivities marked the 1967 capture by Israel of the Old City and Arab East Jerusalem from Jordan.

In the West Bank, broken glass slightly wounded 10 British children when a tour bus was stoned near the village of Beit Sir, Army Radio reported.

Palestinian sources said at least 10 Palestinians were wounded during clashes with Israeli soldiers, but the violence was considerably less than in previous days.

President Bush telephoned Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak Wednesday to express his ''profound displeasure'' over the latest wave of bloodshed in the territories, the Middle East News Agency reported. On Tuesday, he sent condolences to the families of the slain workers, who were killed as they waited to be picked for day labor jobs in Rishon Le Zion near Tel Aviv.

NEW YORK (MAY 24) UPI - Friends and fans mourned the death of Rocky Graziano, the former dead-end kid who fought his way out of the New York City slums to become king of the middleweights.

''He's gone to join that somebody that liked him,'' said his old friend Bert Sugar, editor of Boxing Illustrated.

Graziano, 71, died Tuesday night at New York Hospital of heart and lung failure after a lengthy illness. He was survived by his wife, Norma, and his daughters, Audrey and Roxee.

The affable fighter held the middleweight title in 1947 and 1948, and at one time could draw a crowd in almost any New York neighborhood by just stopping on a streetcorner.

On Thursday, the public he captivated for decades was to view his body at a Manhattan funeral home. A funeral mass was scheduled for Friday morning at St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Jake LaMotta, another former middleweight champ whose friendship with Graziano goes back to their boyhood days in reform school, visited Rocky up to the end.

''I knew he was in bad shape, but I'm still in a state of shock,'' LaMotta said. ''He was one of my dear, dear friends. I knew him all of my life, even as kids, and we never had one argument. We always respected one another.''

Graziano and LaMotta never met in the ring, and for years an imagined battle between the two former street fighters who showed little respect for the Marquis of Queensbury has been a great game with fight fans.

''We almost fought, and I wanted to more than he did, but he always had a softer heart than me,'' LaMotta recalled. ''He said, 'Jake, you're my friend, how could we fight?' Then I said, 'We'd be mad at each other for one day, then we'd go out and get drunk and we'd make a lot of money.'''

Graziano is best remembered for three savage middleweight title fights with Tony Zale in 1946, 1947 and 1948.

Graziano was knocked out in the sixth round of his first attempt to take the 160-pound title from Zale at Yankee Stadium, won the crown from Zale on a sixth-round KO at Chicago Stadium, and lost it back on a thirund knockout in Newark, N.J.

''It was that fight where he beat Zale,'' Sugar said Wednesday. ''He grabbed the mike, and with one eye closed, said, 'Hey, ma, your bad boy won it. I told you somebody up there likes me.'''

Graziano made ''Somebody Up There Likes Me'' the title of his autobiography which later was made into a hit movie starring Paul Newman.

Born Rocco Barbella, he was a poverty-stricken ghetto kid on New York's Lower East Side in the 1920s and '30s who spent a major part of his teenage years ''up the river.''

He dropped out of school in the sixth grade when he was 12 years old. Put on probation for breaking into a subway gum machine, he was nabbed for stealing a bicycle and that began three trips to reform school.

After his fight career, Graziano went on to a second career as a TV personality, ''with the map of New York all over his face,'' and as a crusader against juvenile deliquency.

In his later years, he loved to make fun of his days as a young thug.

''I quit school in the sixth grade because of pneumonia,'' he said. ''Not because I had it, but because I couldn't spell it.

''We stole everything that began with an 'a' - a piece of fruit, a bicycle a watch - anything that was not nailed down.''

''Boxing was something that straightened his life out,'' Sugar recalled. ''He once told me that if it wasn't for boxing he would have fried in the electric chair.''

MANILA, Philippines (MAY 24) UPI - About 5,000 Filipinos called for the renewal of U.S. basing rights at a rally at the Senate Thursday, saying tens of thousands of jobs could be lost if the military facilities are dismantled.

Sen. John Osmena, in a speech to the crowd, said he favored a plebiscite to decide the future of the giant Clark Air Base, Subic Bay Naval Complex and four smaller installations whose lease expires in 1991.

Osmena said independent surveys revealed 70 percent of Filipinos support the bases and are confident that if the issue is submitted to a vote, a majority of would support extending the lease.

Several blocks away at a square in front of the central post office, Sen. Joseph Estrada and Rep. Nikki Coseteng led about 150 anti-bases demonstrators.

Philippine and U.S. panels held initial talks last week on the future of the facilities manned by 40,000 troops and their dependents and Defense Department employees.

Under the constitution, any renewal of basing rights requires approval of two-thirds of the 23-member Senate, where last year a majority endorsed a resolution calling for the dismantling of the bases in 1991.

''My colleagues in the Senate should follow what the people say,'' said Osmena. ''This is not a dictatorship of the Senate. Let us find out the will of the people.''

The pro-bases demonstrators were mostly local employees at Clark and Subic which employ some 68,000 Filipinos.

They carried placards that read: ''A big yes for the U.S. bases,'' ''We love the U.S.'' and ''Put a stop to unjustified killing of Americans,'' referring the slaying of 11 U.S. nationals over the past three years by communist rebels.

BOSTON (MAY 24) UPI - The former neighbors of a Christian Scientist couple charged with manslaughter in the death of their toddler testified they heard the boy's screams of pain in his last living days.

Robert and Judy Delaney, who lived next door to David and Ginger Twitchell in Boston's Hyde Park in April 1986, said Wednesday in Suffolk Superior Court that the cries of 2 1/2-year-old Robyn Twitchell became ''unbearable'' in the days preceding his death from a bowel obstruction on Apr. 8, 1986.

Under questioning from special prosecutor John Kiernan, Robert Delaney said that for ''three or four days'' before the child died, ''the crying, groaning and moaning'' coming from the Twitchell home was ''unbearable.''

The Delaneys also testified that the Twitchells kept Robyn and his 4-year-old brother Jeremy inside the house even on hot summer days and that the boys ''cried all the time.''

Kiernan has been trying to portray the couple as neglectful parents for not obtaining medical care when their son became ill.

But their defense lawyers argue that Christian Science healing is a legitimate form of treatment for illness and that the parents believed they were acting in the best interest of their child when they called in a Church practitioner to pray over their son.

Defense attorney Rikki Klieman questioned the accuracy of Robert Delaney's recollections.

Answering one of Klieman's questions, Delaney said he was positive David Twitchell did not wear a beard in 1986, but the jury in the case earlier saw a photograph, taken days before Robyn's death, of Twitchell sporting a beard.

The Delaneys said they never told authorities about the screaming at the Twitchell house in 1986 until opening statements in the trial began earlier this month.

As Kiernan prepares to rest his case within the next several days, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, as the church is formally called, took out a full-page advertisement in The Boston Globe Thursday, explaining the religion.

''A distinctive part of Christian Science is its healing of physical disease as well as sin by spiritual means alone, as Jesus himself taught and practiced,'' the advertisement reads.

The world headquarters of the church is only a few neighborhoods away from the Suffolk Superior Courthouse.

(MAY 24) UPI - Heavy storms drenched the Midwest early Thursday, adding Illinois and Iowa to the ranks of flood-plagued central states, while Texas and Arkansas coped with the persistent flooding that has bloated rivers and submerged roadways.

The National Weather Service reported thunderstorms, many with heavy rain and small hail, from Ohio to Nebraska early Thursday. Flooding eased in Indiana but became a renewed concern in Illinois and Iowa, officials said.

In southern Illinois, White County emergency services officials said Wednesday they were seeking a disaster declaration from Gov. James Thompson because of flooding that has inundated farmland.

''We're in the process of getting the request together,'' said David Hammell, county emergency services coordinator. ''The sooner we get it in the better.''

About 80,000 acres of farmland was flooded in the county, preventing spring planting. Only 5 percent of the county's corn crop has been planted compared to the yearly average of 85 percent at this point in the spring.

The Little Wasbash River was at 36.4 feet and thought to be near its crest. The flooding was reported to be the third worst this century. About 40 homes have been evacuated, officials said.

More than 2 inches of rain fell Wednesday over portions of western Iowa, with Sioux City getting hit hardest. Perry Creek crested at 2.5 feet over flood stage and flooding was reported early Thursday along the Little Sioux River.

About 70 residents had earlier been evacuated from a nursing home in Sioux City and continued rain delayed clean-up efforts from earlier flooding.

Flood waters in Indiana receded along the east fork of the White River in the southern corner of the state. Rivers in the area were 6 to 7 feet above flood stage, and some local road flooding was reported.

In Arkansas, rising waters from the Ouachita River forced officials to close a 2-mile stretch of State Highway 7 near Camden, but no evacuations had been ordered, Police Lt. David Hammett said Thursday.

The Trinity River in southeast Texas crested 6 feet above flood stage, and the Southern Pacific Railway was forced to reroute its trains around the Texas flood-ravaged area.

Southern Pacific Railway workers took precautions to save the Liberty trestle across the Trinity, said spokesman Jim Johnson. In addition to carrying a dozen freight trains a day, the line is also Amtrak's main route between New Orleans and Los Angeles.

''We've been maintaining a 24-hour vigil, dumping carloads of ballast to bolster the pilings and access,'' Johnson said.

Southern began detouring its freight trains to other lines last weekend, and Amtrak began busing passengers between Houston and New Orleans to avoid the flood.

Elsewhere in the South, a high-pressure system brought back relatively fair weather, although some cloudiness persisted in parts of Georgia. Temperatures were somewhat chilly. Knoxville, Tenn., was 53 early Thursday and Atlanta and Charleston, S.C. both had readings of 62.

Skies were partly to mostly cloudy overnight in the mid-Atlantic states, with temperatures ranging from near 40 in western Maryland to the low 50s in New Jersey.

New England, which endured 17 days of rain and cold, had mostly clear skies and unseasonable cold early Thursday. Mist covered Cape Cod in Massachusetts.

Temperatures in the region early Thursday ranged from a low of 32 in northern Maine to a high of 48 in central Connecticut.

Light rain and some thundershowers dampened the West from the Canadian border into northern California Wednesday, and in Idaho the weather system spawned a funnel cloud at Idaho Falls.

The precipitation did little to lessen northern California's water shortage but it did leave snow in the Sierra Nevada mountains.

The storm brought high winds. Near Tulare in central California, a huge gust blew enough dust to reduce visibility on Highway 99 to zero Wednesday and caused pileups of 20 vehicles. One person was killed.

Arizona had some overcast skies but still enough sunshine for a temperature of 103 in Tucson.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - A scientist reported Thursday he found the first direct proof that ancient humans rode horses before the wheel was invented - stallion teeth with bridle marks dating nearly 6,000 years.

A microscopic study of horse teeth buried about 4000 B.C. and discovered in what is now the Ukraine in the Soviet Union, revealed scratches from a mouth bit, indicating the horse had been ridden, said David Anthony of Hartwick College in Oneonta, N.Y.

''There has been previous speculation that horseback riding occurred this early. This is the first direct proof,'' said Anthony, an assistant professor of anthropology who presented his findings at the International Conference on Archaeozoology.

The traditional view is horseback riding developed between 2000 and 1500 B.C. in the Ukraine. While there had been some archaelogical evidence that riding may have occurred earlier, there was no direct evidence, Anthony said.

Anthony traveled to Dereivka in the Ukraine last April to make plaster casts of the teeth rooted in the skeleton of a stallion. The skeleton was found buried with two domesticated dogs, he said.

Anthony used a powerful microscope - a scanning electron miscroscope - to compare the casts to teeth from modern horses that had been ridden and wild American horses that had never been ridden.

''I was looking for a technique so you could say this horse was ridden, this horse was just dinner,'' he joked.

Anthony said he found markings on the ancient horse teeth that were identical to scratches and damage he had found on the teeth of modern horses from metal bits attached to reins used to ride them.

''I saw exactly what I had seen on my modern domestic control horses that I had studied earlier - a kind of wear that never appears on wild horses.

''The chewing surface of the tooth is all abraided and cracked and broken. On a wild horse it is quite smooth,'' he said. ''I can be quite sure it wasn't caused by chewing a rock.''

If the horse had been ridden, it would have been 500 to 700 years before the invention of the wheel, which was believed to have occurred between 3000 and 3500 B.C..

''The invention of the wheel has traditionally been seen as the first innovation in land transport. What we have is evidence that horseback riding preceded the wheel,'' he said.

Anthony was uncertain why the people who lived in the Ukraine then, known as the Sredni Stog culture, would have begun riding horses, which were commonly eaten during that period.

''If you ever see what kids do to animals - they'll ride a dog - I suspect it originated as a form of play,'' he said.

But the findings could help explain how the Sredni Stog people were able to survive in the harsh environment.

''Horses provided one of the key elements neccesary to live productively in the grasslands,'' he said.

''It enabled them to find good grazing for their herds and trade farther distances. It enabled them to make alliances with more varied groups. It enabled them to make war in ways that were impossible before.

''You put together all these things and it revolutionized the history of the grasslands of Eurasia.''

Anthony added that it might also help explain the spread of language.

''A major research question has been who spoke the original mother language. If the Indoeuropeans began in the Ukraine, as many people think, the domestication of the horse and the beginnings of riding could help explain the spread out from this area and the spread of the language with the people.''

JERUSALEM (MAY 24) UPI - Israel, the target of international criticism for its handling of violent protests sparked by the slayings of seven Arabs, objected to Washington's willingness to consider a U.N. force in the occupied territories.

The army reported Thursday that two Palestinians, an 8-year-old boy and a teeenager, had been killed by gunfire. An army spokesman said Mustafa al Fajem was shot in the head Wednesday by a gunman passing in a car through the Gaza Strip village of Bani Suheila. The army was investigating the shooting.

Hamed Al Halhal, 15, was killed during clashes with soldiers in the West Bank village of Qibia, Palestinian sources said.

Scattered disturbances were reported Thursday in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip but the army lifted its curfew in several towns.

A 5-month-old infant from a Jewish settlement was in stable condition Thursday after being injured by a rock that crashed through the window of his parents' car in the West Bank, the army said.

In Washington Wednesday, Secretary of State James Baker said the United States for the first time was willing to discuss the possibility of sending an international observer force to the territories, the site of violent protests since seven Arab workers were killed Sunday by an Israeli posing a soldier.

Baker's comments were expected to create further friction in the U.S.-Israeli relationship, which has been under strain since the peace process came to a halt two months ago. Hospital and Palestinian sources said 14 Arabs have been killed and hundreds wounded since the slaying of the Palestinian workers.

In Geneva, a U.N. spokesman said Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat would address a special meeting of the Security Council Friday on Israel's occupied territories. The meeting was switched to Geneva because the State Department indicated it would not grant Arafat a visa to speak at the U.N. headquarters in New York.

Baker said in Washington the United States would be ''prepared to discuss the question of a U.N. observer team if that indeed comes up at the U.N. Security Council session'' in Geneva Friday. The announcement was seen as a victory for the PLO, which had called for such a force to monitor the crisis.

Officials said that the United States would be prepared to support a U.N. force, but said it was unlikely Israel would allow it in the occupied territories.

Avi Pazner, spokesman for Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, said Israel was firmly against international intervention.

''Israel in the past has always opposed such an idea, because it constitutes an infringement on our sovereignty and interference in our internal affairs,'' he said. ''We will discuss it with the United States and explain why we think they have to oppose such an idea.''

Saeb Erekat, a Palestinian professor of political science at Nablus University in the West Bank, who went on a hunger strike after Sunday's killings, called the announcement ''excellent news.''

''If Mr. Baker is sincere and serious, we have taken a major step forward '' he said.

Israeli officials vehemently denounced the killings, but observers said the incident appears to have reignited the stagnating intifada and fueled frustration over Israel's refusal to allow the inclusion of the Palestine Liberation Organization in a stalled Mideast peace plan.

Foreign Minister Moshe Arens said Wednesday it was wrong to link the attack to Israeli policies or the Mideast peace process, and warned the criticism could give Israel's enemies a reason to attack the Jewish state.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - The nation's economy grew at a sluggish annual rate of 1.3 percent, or $13.9 billion, during the first quarter and inflation topped a 9-year high at 6.7 percent, the Commerce Department reported Thursday.

The department's report is preliminary and reflects a downward revision of 0.8 percent from last month's estimates of gross national product growth and an 0.2 percent increase in the price index. The final report is due next month.

During the fourth quarter, GNP grew at an annual rate of 1.1 percent, or $11.2 billion.

The GNP fixed-weight price index, a measure of inflation, reached 6.7 percent during the first quarter, the highest reading since 7.7 percent in the fourth quarter of 1981.

During the fourth quarter, the price index gained 3.6 percent. About half of the first-quarter increase was attributed to higher food and energy prices in January after December's unusually cold weather.

The department also reported a preliminary $1.9 billion increase in first-quarter corporate profits to an annual rate of $287.8 billion. This is an improvement from the fourth quarter's decrease of $9.3 billion.

Profits for non-financial corporations slipped $700 million in the quarter an improvement from a decline of $14.6 billion in the fourth quarter.

Industries involved in trade and the manufacturing of non-durable goods also saw slimmer profits during the quarter.

Financial companies posted a profit gain of $7.5 billion in the quarter after profits slipped $4.3 billion in the previous quarter. Profits also increased in the durable manufacturing, transportation, public utilities and non-manufacturing industries.

Real personal consumption spending increased $15.9 billion during the quarter, compared with a gain of $3.6 billion in the previous quarter. Purchases of durable goods, those big-ticket items intended to last three or more years, increased $15.3 billion after slipping $16.1 billion in the first quarter.

About two-thirds of the first-quarter gain came from increased motor vehicle sales, the department said.

Purchases of non-durable goods decreased $7.1 billion after increasing a slight $300 million in the previous quarter.

Services expenditures increased $7.8 billion in the first quarter compared with a gain of $19.3 billion in the fourth quarter. Home heating expenses slipped $13.1 billion after gaining $8 billion in the fourth quarter.

In other components of the GNP, real non-residential fixed investments increased by $8 billion in the first quarter after falling $7.1 billion in the fourth quarter. Investments in non-residential buildings gained $1.4 billion after slipping by $100 million in the previous quarter.

Residential fixed investments increased $4.8 billion after declining $500 million.

Purchases by the federal government of goods and services increased $1.9 billion after falling $2.8 billion. National defense purchases slipped $600 million compared with a decrease of $4.4 billion in the previous quarter. Non-defense-related purchases increased by $2.3 billion from an increase of $1.7 billion.

Sales during the quarter increased 4.1 percent, or $42 billion, after gaining 1.1 percent, or $10.9 billion, in the fourth quarter. Business inventories took away $28.1 billion from the first-quarter change in GNP after adding $300 million in the fourth quarter.

During the quarter, businesses reduced inventories by $5.9 billion after increasing their stockpiles by $22.2 billion worth of goods in the fourth quarter.

Gross domestic purchases, the nation's purchases of goods and services, gained 0.7 percent, or $7 billion, in the first quarter after increasing 0.1 percent, or $1.4 billion in the fourth quarter.

On the trade front, the nation imported $40.4 billion more than it exported during the first quarter, an improvement from the fourth quarter's imbalance of $47.2 billion.

TOKYO (MAY 24) UPI - The organizers of the Goddess of Democracy, the floating radio station that had planned to broadcast pro-democracy messages to China, abandoned their mission Thursday and blamed the failure on Asian democracies who they said gave in to Chinese pressure, a spokesman said.

The Goddess of Democracy was to send radio messages to Chinese dissidents on the June 3-4 anniversary of the bloody crackdown on demonstrators in Tiananmen Square. But the plan was scuttled when China pressured Asian democracies to deny the ship access to ports and equipment, Pascal Dupont, a spokesman and one of the organizers of the mission, said in an interview with United Press International.

The ship was scheduled to leave Taiwan for Japan Thursday morning but organizers decided not to make the trip because Japanese officials said the ship would be unwelcome.

''From Hong Kong to Taiwan to Japan, they all had the same line so we dropped the project,'' said Dupont, a member of the French-based group A Boat to China.

Hong Kong refused to allow the ship to enter its port while Taiwan allowed it to dock but did not let organizers bring aboard radio equipment needed to broadcast.

The crushing blow came when Japan announced Wednesday that the ship would not be welcomed if its intention was to broadcast from international waters, which Japanese officials said violates international law.

Dupont said pressure from China led to the ship's cold reception in Asia.

''(Chinese Prime Minister) Li Peng just has to bark once and the others obey the orders,'' said Dupont, a French journalist.

In Beijing, Chinese Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Li Jinhua refused to discuss the failure of the project, telling reporters at a weekly briefing that China's position on the ship is widely known.

Chinese officials made it clear in April they were opposed to the ship's mission as well as any ''provision of support or facilities given to it by any state.''

Some supporters feared the Chinese navy might attack the ship and at one point a Chinese freighter set a collision course for the ship, forcing the Goddess to take evasive action.

Dupont said he was dissappointed that the Asian democracies would comply with China's will despite China being the notable exception to the world trend toward democracy.

''We did not think we were going to find it so difficult,'' he said. ''We are not such a big organization. We are not able to fight.''

The ship reportedly got some of its $1.5 million in funding from sources in Taiwan.

Dupont said the ship will remain in Taiwan and the crew will fly back to Paris.

''What stopped us was first the attitude of the Taiwanese (government),'' Dupont said. ''Second, we think the Japanese changed their minds.''

When Taiwan refused to let the ship load on a radio transmitter, the orgainizers turned to Japan.

Japan's chief Cabinet secretary, Misoji Sakamoto, who earlier hinted Japan might accept the ship, said Wednesday his country would not condone what it saw as an illegal act.

''Pirate broadcasting from a ship in international waters is an act prohibited under the international telecommunications treaty,'' Sakamoto said.

Lawyers for the Goddess of Democracy argued the broadcast would be legal since they are not commercial and the treaty has not been ratified by a quorum of international signatories.

Dupont said the decision to abandon the mission was made in a telephone call Thursday morning between himself, Chistophe Nick, the main organizer who was with the ship, and a supporter in Paris.

''Christophe was willing to go on, but he saw it was more like Don Quixote trying to fight the windmills,'' said Dupont.

Gross domestic purchases, the nation's purchases of goods and services, gained 0.7 percent, or $7 billion, in the first quarter after increasing 0.1 percent, or $1.4 billion in the fourth quarter.

On the trade front, the nation imported $40.4 billion more than it exported during the first quarter, an improvement from the fourth quarter's imbalance of $47.2 billion.

(MAY 24) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange closed higher Thursday on arbitrage buying, lifting the key Nikkei indicator for the fourth straight session.

The blue-chip Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which gained 238.21 points Wednesday, added another 135.24 points to 32,311.75.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Index of all listed major shares rose 0.95 points to 2,395.90.

An estimated 600 million shares changed hands, compared with 640 million shares Wednesday.

Declines edged out advances, however, 506 to 426, while 189 issues were unchanged.

Elsewhere in Asia, stock prices continued their surge upward on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange as investors overcame some late, limited profit taking.

The blue-chip Hang Seng Index, which surged 1.93 percent or 57.44 points on Wednesday, added another 19.70 points to 3,048.01.

In its four straight winning sessions, the key index has jumped 122.12 points.

Among the narrower-indexes, utilities rose 47.22 points, financials gained 12.15, industrials climbed 17.24 and properties added 4.94 points.

An estimated 1.58 billion shares changed hands, compared with 1.91 billion shares Wednesday.

In Australia, stock prices closed lower in moderate trading on the Sydney Sharemarket.

The All Ordinaries Index, which gained 8.3 points Wednesday, eased 2.0 points to 1,471.0.

TOKYO (MAY 24) UPI - An executive of Koito Manufacturing Co., an Japanese autoparts maker closely tied to Toyota Motor Co., said Thursday his company will reject Texas millionaire T. Boone Pickens' demand for four seats on the board despite his position as the largest shareholder. Koito will reject all seven demands Pickens has made, Kenichi Matsuura, Koito's managing director, told a news conference.

Pickens owns more than 20 percent of Koito stock, making him the largest shareholder, but Koito management has said it suspects he bought the shares in an attempt to force the company to buy them back at inflated prices, a practice known as greenmailing.

Pickens insists he is not interested in a quick profit and wants to improve the company. Matsuura said Koito's battle with Pickens has cost Koito $1.5 million.

Matsuura said Koito will continue to resist Pickens demand for four seats on the board of directors and demands that the company's articles of incorporation be changed.

LONDON (MAY 24) UPI - Stock prices were slightly lower in moderate trading at midday Thursday on the London International stock exchange.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 23.9 points Wednesday, was off 2.8 points to 2,284.6. The narrower top 30 industrial average was off 7.9 points to 1,802.1.

Volume amounted to around 230 million shares, compared with 336 million shares traded during the same period Wednesday.

Analysts said with most European financial centers closed for the Ascension Day holiday, many overseas investors were absent from the market leaving trading volume lower than in recent days.

On the economic front, shortly after the market opened, the Central Statistical Office reported Britain's industrial production rose 1.8 percent in March from February and was up 1.7 percent from March 1989.

Output in the energy sector, which can vary greatly with swings in the oil market, rose 2.1 percent in March from February and was up 0.1 percent from a year earlier, the government report showed.

Market analysts said the report was almost totally ignored by large investors.

Among the day's most widely traded stocks, British Telecom gained 16 cents to $4.61 after reporting its latest earnings dipped 5.5 percent, in line with analysts expectations.

MEPC, the property company, fell 29 cents to $7.86 after issuing a warning that investment values were likely to be in decline through the year. The company made the announcement when it reported its latest pretax profits climbed 20 percent.

Among the international issues, Imperial Chemical Industries gained 11 cents to $18.97, Barclays Bank PLC added 6 cents to $8.76 and British Petroleum eased 6 cents to $5.11.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock exchanges, banks and most businesses were closed in West Germany and several other countries for the Ascension Day holiday.

Trading will resume Friday.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (MAY 24) UPI - The Burmese military government arrested nine more opposition politicians, including a candidate in upcoming elections, for allegedly organizing an underground revolutionary youth movement, official Rangoon radio said.

Earlier an underground student leader charged the military was arresting hundreds of opposition supporters and pressuring villagers to back the pro-military National Unity Party in the elections set for Sunday. He said monks and students were ready to protest any election cheating.

The announcement of the arrests late Wednesday, which reportedly were made over the past two months, appeared to be a warning against possible efforts to disrupt the elections, which will be the first multi-party voting in more than 30 years in Burma.

The radio said most of those arrested were members of an opposition political party, the League for Democracy and Peace, founded by former Prime Minister U Nu, who, like other top opposition leaders, is under house arrest for defying the military government.

The report said the suspects had been organizing the National Revolutionary Front, which paid young people to undergo secret training in Burma or to slip over the border to training camps in India. It said more than 3,500 young people joined the front.

Among those arrested were Tin Ohn, an election candidate and secretary of the Pegu township branch of the League for Democracy and peace, senior League activist Thakin Khin Aung, lawyer Soe Soe, magazine editor Si Hein and astrologer Myat Aung.

''The objective of forming the NRF in Rangoon was to obtain assistance from foreign embassies in Rangoon,'' the broadcast said. The radio said contact was made with four embassies, but it did not indicate whether they provided any assistance to the group.

Htun Aung Gyaw, former chairman of the All Burma Students Democratic Front said military authorities in Palaw, 330 miles southeast of Rangoon, were recruiting porters for fighting along the border from among the supporters of opposition parties.

''They tell people they can escape porter duty if they back the NUP,'' the student leader said. ''Others have to pay 1,000 kyats (about $25) to avoid being taken.''

Porter duty with the army involves walking long distances in the jungle with heavy loads and very little food. Porters are often killed by landmines or disease.

Htun Aung Gyaw, quoting reports from underground informants inside Burma, said the military has been deliberately misinforming illiterate peasants about the symbols for various parties, mixing up the NUP symbol and the symbol for the popular National League for Democracy NLD, the most outspoken opposition party.

''They are also rounding up NLD supporters in many areas - at least 600 have been arrested this month in four townships of Tenasserim Division,'' he said.

Most, he said, are charged with breaking the military ban on public assembly by more than five people at a time.

He said two brothers of an ABSDF activist in Palaw were shot and killed by security forces even though they did not have anything to do with the outlawed student group.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - The way was cleared for a final House vote on $720 million in emergency aid for Panama and Nicaragua as Democrats agreed not to hold up the money in a dispute over cutting military aid to El Salvador.

President Bush has demanded that Congress complete work on the $4.3 billion supplemental spending bill containing nearly all of his aid request for Panama and Nicaragua before its Memorial Day recess scheduled to start Friday.

After an expected five to six hours of debate, the House was expected to vote Thursday on the legislation crafted by House and Senate negotiators. Senate action was to follow.

In giving up the El Salvador battle for the time being, the Democrats said Wednesday they had won an agreement from Secretary of State James Baker to continue talks on possible cuts in U.S. aid to El Salvador.

Moreover, the Democrats said a 250-163 House vote Tuesday for an amendment cutting U.S. military aid to El Salvador in half - contained in a bill that was later defeated - showed they had the strength to attach the proposal to another bill and win.

''The days of providing the Salvadoran military a blank check are over,'' said Rep. Joseph Moakley, D-Mass., co-sponsor of the amendment.

He added that the vote shows ''justice must be done'' in the murders of six Jesuit priests, their cook and her daughter last year in El Salvador. Government troops have been charged in the killings.

The House Rules Committee chaired by Moakley considered and then decided against using parliamentary procedures to hold up the spending bill in a bid to force a compromise on El Salvador.

House and Senate negotiators agreed Tuesday on the supplemental bill, which also provides money for a range of domestic purposes ranging from food stamps to flood relief to an automated FBI fingerprint laboratory.

However, for Bush to send the $420 million to Panama and $300 million to Nicaragua, Congress either had to pass a separate authorization bill or waive the need for one.

The supplemental spending bill crafted by the conferees contains such a waiver, but the Rules Committee had the option of removing it.

Moakley said he ''really agonized'' over whether to grant the waiver, but added that he did not want to hold up the aid to the new U.S.-backed governments in Panama and Nicaragua.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., chairman of the foreign operations subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, said, ''I feel we have no choice.''

The decision was applauded by Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., ranking Republican on the Appropriations Committee, who called it ''very statesmanlike.''

Bush received a letter last week from Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro describing her government as bankrupt. U.S. officials also stressed the need to send seeds quickly to Nicaragua so farmers could plant before the rainy season, which usually starts in mid-May, but has been late this year.

(MAY 24) UPI - Israel does NOT want U-N forces in occupied territories... Congress zeroes in on aid for Panama and Nicaragua... the government raises the cost of the thrift bailout... Soviet economic planners consider ''New Deal''-style reforms. U-P-I has the details of those stories and more.

Israel is rejecting a suggestion by Secretary of State Baker to consider supporting a U-N force patrolling the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Baker says the United States is willing to discuss sending an international observer force to the occupied territories. The region have suffered violent protests since seven Arab workers were gunned down last Sunday by an Israeli.

Baker's announcement is seen by some as a victory for the Palestine Liberation Organization, which had called for such a force to monitor the crisis. A Palestinian official on the West Bank called the announcement ''excellent news.''

A spokesman for Prime Minister Shamir says Israel opposes what he called ''an infringement on our sovereignty and interference in our internal affairs.''

Officials say the territories were calmer yesterday than in previous days.

But in Jordan last night, protests in Palestinian refugees camps persisted. Jordan says one Palestinian was killed and five people were wounded in clashes between demonstrators and security forces.

Since Sunday, the official death toll from Palestinian unrest stood at three and the number wounded about 30. However, refugee camp residents have put the fatality count at 10.

The House is expected to vote today on an appropriations bill that includes 720-Million dollars in emergency aid to Nicaragua and Panama. The bill has been stalled by a Democrat-sponsored amendment to slash U-S military aid to El Salvador.

But Democrats agreed yesterday NOT to let the military aid dispute interfere with the spending bill. They say they've won a promise from Secretary of State Baker to continue talks on possible military cuts in aid to El Salvador.

President Bush has been frustrated by the delay in getting the spending bill passed. Last week, Nicaraguan President Chamorro sent a letter to Bush describing her country as bankrupt.

The president has since demanded Congress complete its work on the four-point-three-BILLION-dollar spending bill before the Memorial Day recess, which begins tomorrow.

House action begins this morning with five to six hours of debate expected before the vote is taken. Senate action will follow.

(MAY 24) UPI - Nursing homes are expected to provide a safe, clean, and medically supportive environment for those elderly that choose to spend their senior years at such facilities.

But a new report released in Washington yesterday finds many nursing homes fall far short of those expectations.

1988Medicaid report on 15-thousand nursing homes shows nearly 25 percent administered drugs improperly. And about the same number did NOT provide adequate personal hygiene for residents.

Government inspectors also found 20 percent of these facilities did NOT follow proper steps to avoid the spread of infection. And more than 30 percent of nursing homes did NOT follow proper sanitation rules when preparing food.

The administrator of the Health Care Financing Administration, Gail Wilensky, urges consumers to talk to doctors, long-term care ombudsmen and nursing home representatives when choosing a facility.

The National Council of Senior Citizens says the report illustrates the necessity for tougher federal regulations.

University of Houston scientists have announced a major step towards putting the new technology of superconductors to practical use.

Team leader Paul Chu says the group has succeeded making high-temperature superconductors into bars that can carry large electric currents.

Chu says the team has developed the potential to make desired sizes of superconductors in practical forms... such as plates, rods, wires, ribbons and thick films.

Superconductors are materials that allow electricity to flow with NO energy lost to resistance and wasted as heat. Discovered in 1911, superconductivity was at first only thought possible at the incredibly low temperature of just above zero degrees Kelvin, or minus 459 Fahrenheit.

Recent years have seen giant leaps in the creation of superconductors that work at higher temperatures and can be cooled by liquid nitrogen, rather than more costly liquid helium.

Successful use of superconductivity can lead to a world of resistance-free electrical movement... meaning that commuters could ride to work on so-called ''flying'' trains and computers could make calculations at the speed of light.

PHILADELPHIA (MAY 24) UPI - An associate of imprisoned crime boss Nicodemo Scarfo was shot to death early Thursday while parking his car near his home, police said.

Authorities believe there was more than one gunman involved but there were no suspects in custody. Police searched rooftops in the area of the shooting in search of evidence.

Louis ''Irish Louie'' DeLuca, 51, was shot three to five times at 12:47 a.m. while he was parking his car near his house, police Capt. Richard DeLise said. He died at 1:38 a.m. at Methodist Hospital.

The windows of his brown Cadillac were blown out by the bullets.

Capt. Joseph O'Connor, head of the Police Department's Organized Crime Intelligence Unit, said DeLuca was known to authorities as a gambler and was suspected of being involved in drug trafficking.

O'Connor called him a ''fringe player'' who worked for Francis ''Snuffy'' Iannarella, a capo in the Scarfo crime family of Philadelphia and southern New Jersey.

Iannarella is serving a life sentence in Graterford Prison for his part in the 1985 slaying of reputed fellow mob member Frank ''Frankie Flowers'' D'Alfonso.

O'Connor said DeLuca was the titular boss of the East End Republican Club in South Philadelphia. O'Connor said it was believed the bar actually belonged to Iannarella and was a front for mob activities.

DeLuca had been arrested twice. His first arrest was made by the state police liquor control enforcement unit on Dec. 13, 1987, when he was charged with selling liquor at his bar after hours.

He also was arrested on May 12 after police raided his club at 4 a.m. and found seven minors drinking alcohol.

DeLuca, who got his nickname because his mother is Irish and his father Italian, was never formally inducted into the Scarfo crime family, but since he worked for a ranking member, Iannarella, he was considered an associate of Scarfo, O'Connor said.

Authorities do not know of a motive in the killing. Although they don't believe DeLuca's death necessarily signals an oncoming bloodbath of organized crime killings, Thursday's shooting did raise some eyebrows.

''It was a surprise to me. I did not expect it,'' O'Connor said. ''But then you have to look at the times we live in. There's not too much respect for anything. ... But as close as he was to Scarfo you'd think that would guarantee some sort of safety.''

O'Connor said there appeared to be a struggle for leadership within the Scarfo family since most of the former heads of the mob are now in prison.

''I think ... without the guiding hand of the heavy hitters, without the traditional people, I think there's a little bit of a power struggle between factions who claim to be the heirs,'' O'Connor said. ''I don't predict a blood bath.''

The last alleged mob shooting occurred on Oct. 29 when Nicodemo Scarfo Jr. son of the jailed head of the family, was shot nine times while sitting in a South Philadelphia restaurant. Scarfo recovered but refused to cooperate with authorities. There were no arrests in the shooting.

Nicodemo Scarfo is serving a life term for the D'Alfonso murder, plus more prison time for racketeering and other convictions.

O'Connor said authorities believe Nicodemo Scarfo's first cousin, Tony Piccolo, is the acting boss of the crime family.

CHARLOTTE, NC (MAY 24) UPI - Protesters carried out their demonstration against Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., even though the conservative lawmaker cancelled his appearance at a black-tie dinner.

About 200 supporters of the environment, legal abortion, homosexual rights and the arts staged a noisy demonstration Wednesday night outside a building where Helms had been invited to attend the centennial celebration of the J.A. Jones Construction Co.

The protesters had served notice of their demonstration. Helms, saying he had pressing business in Washington, decided not to attend the dinner.

Helms, who has found himself at the center of controversy for some of his political stands, is up for re-election this year.

The senator's absence did not dampen the enthusiasm of the demonstrators, who played conga drums, chanted slogans and held up signs urging Helms' defeat in 1990.

''This has been the best demonstration I've ever seen in Charlotte,'' said Don King, a homosexual rights activist and one of the protest's organizers. ''It shows what can happen when a coalition of people get together.''

The protesters chanted, ''Hey, hey, ho, ho, Jesse Helms has got to go.'' They also carried signs that read ''Jesse Helms' mind is in the toilet'' and ''Freedom of expression is a constitutional right.''

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - Import prices fell for the second consecutive month in April, partly because of sharply lower oil prices and the dollar's appreciation on world markets, the Labor Department said Thursday. The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said export prices rose for the second straight month.

The 1.1 percent drop in the Import Price Index in April followed a 0.2 percent fall in March and was led by a continuing reduction in oil prices, the government said. The Export Price Index moved up 0.4 percent in April after a 0.3 percent rise in March.

Higher prices for exports makes U.S. goods less competitive on global markets, including the American marketplace, while lower prices for imports make them more competitive with domestically produced goods. Economists warn that higher U.S. export prices and lower import prices can worsen the nation's trade deficit.

Besides the price decline for imported oil, down a sharp 8.9 percent following a six percent plunge in March, the index for non-oil imports, down 0.2 percent in April, fell for the first time since August, the bureau said.

Average import prices decreased in April for capital goods, down 0.4 percent, and automotive vehicles, down 0.8 percent. The index for imported foods, feeds and beverages, down 0.4 percent in April, moved south for the second month in a row. The bureau noted that the lower import prices were caused in part by the recent appreciation of the dollar on world markets.

The modest increase in export prices was caused by a 1.6 percent increase in the index for agricultural products, partly a result of higher prices for corn and wheat. In contrast, the index for non-agricultural exports was unchanged in April, following a 0.2 percent increase in March, the bureau said.

U.S. import prices fell 0.4 percent between April 1989 and April 1990. Prices for non-oil imports rose 0.3 percent, and plunged 7.5 percent for oil imports.

Over the past 12 months, import prices fell for industrial supplies and materials 4.5 percent and lost 1.3 percent for food, feeds, and beverages. Meanwhile, prices for imported capital goods rose 1.2 percent. Import prices for motor vehicles was up 0.2 percent, and consumer goods rose 3.4 percent.

From April 1989 to April 1990, export prices increased a modest 0.1 percent. Agricultural export prices fell 3.1 percent, while non-agricultural export prices increased 0.4 percent.

Over the past 12 months, export prices for foods, feeds and beverages dropped 6.6 percent and fell 2.4 percent for industrial supplies and materials. Meanwhile, export prices for rose three percent for capital goods, 3.1 percent for motor vehicles and 3.2 percent for consumer goods.

PROVIDENCE, RI (MAY 24) UPI - Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., underwent elective surgery Thursday to remove a cyst on his kidney.

Chafee, 67, went into surgery at 8 a.m. EDT. The procedure was expected to last a few hours, said Rick Piester, a spokesman at Rhode Island Hospital. The results of the operation were not immediately available.

Doctors found the cyst during a recent medical examination, Chafee's office said. The senator is expected to be hospitalized four to five days before resuming his schedule.

Chafee, the ranking Republican on the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, was elected to the Senate in 1976. He served as governor of Rhode Island from 1963 until 1969 and was Navy secretary in the Nixon administration.

LONDON (MAY 24) UPI - Poorer nations can substantially improve the lives of their citizens even when their people earn relatively modest incomes, the United Nations Development Program said Thursday.

The international agency issued a new human development index that combines life expectancy, adult literacy and purchasing power into a single measure, and emphasizes how economic growth translates into human well-being.

At the bottom of the list is Niger, with a life expectancy of 45, an adult literacy rate of 14 percent, and a 1987 gross domestic product of $452 per capita.

At the top is Japan, with a life expectancy of 78, an adult literacy rate of 99 percent, and a per-capita GDP of $13,135. The United States ranked No. 112, with longevity of 76, literacy of 96 percent, and income of $17,615.

William Draper II, UNDP administrator, said the report was timely. ''We live in stirring times,'' he said. ''An irresistible wave of human freedom is sweeping across many lands. Not only political systems but economic structures are beginning to change in countries where democratic forces had long been suppressed.''

Mahbub ul Haq, special adviser to Draper, said the UNDP was hopeful that the new index will help state planners to look at the needs of their people as well as production figures. Also, donors will be better able to target their aid to benefit people.

In the future, the UNDP plans to assemble a more complete picture by adding additional measures, including health, political freedom, human rights, drugs, divorce rates and teenage pregnancies, he said.

The UNDP is the largest multi-lateral grant assistance agency in the world and the primary coordinator of the U.N.'s development activities.

The report said Sri Lanka shows that human development can be reached on fairly low income, since its gross national product is only 38th among 130 countries but its human development index ranking is 83.

The report concludes that there is not an automatic link between economic growth and human development.

Some countries have translated their economic growth into human progress, including Sri Lanka, Costa Rica, Botswana, Malaysia, Chile, Colombia, Jamaica, Kenya and Zimbabwe. In other countries, the quality of life has not kept pace with rapid economic growth, including Brazil, Pakistan and Nigeria.

The report recorded significant progress in developing countries over the past three decades. Life expectancy has increased from 46 years to 62 years, adult literacy has jumped from 43 percent to more than 60 percent, child mortality rates have been cut in half, and nutritional levels improved by 20 percent.

''In these fields, developing countries have accomplished in about three decades what it took industrial nations nearly a century to achieve,'' the report said.

The report warned against complacency.

It said 1 billion people live in poverty, 900 million are without education, more than 1 billion are without safe drinking water, 100 million are homeless, and 800 million go hungry every day.

Also, progress is unequal among regions. Sub-Saharan Africa, for example, has the lowest life expectancy and literacy rates, and the highest infant mortality rates.

The report was critical of the rising military expenditures in developing countries, which have increased three times as fast as in the industrial nations over the past 30 years, from 7 percent of global military expenditures in 1960 to more than 20 percent now.

The report concludes that women in the Third World get less of everything - except suffering.

Female children in the developing world get less food, less health care and less education, and in some countries more girls than boys die before their fifth birth. Adult women get less education, less professional training and less pay even when they work longer hours than men.

''Many countries are obviously ignoring the high social dividends of investing in women'' said ul Haq. He said higher female literacy results in lower infant mortality, better family nutrition, reduced fertility and lower populationgrowth.

The report cites Bangladesh, where children of illiterate mothers face five times higher child mortality than those of mothers with at least seven years of schooling.

MALDEN, MA (MAY 24) UPI - Freed hostage Frank Reed plans to return home Sunday to be reunited with his 91-year-old mother for the first time since he was taken hostage more than three years ago.

His daughter, Marilyn Langston, said she talked to Reed by telephone Thursday morning from his hospital room at Bolling Air Force Base outside Washington, D.C., and he told her he would be coming home for a few days.

Among those meeting him Sunday at Boston's Logan International Airport will be his mother, Leota Sprague, his wife, Fehimeh, and son, Tarek, 9. He will stay with his daughter and her husband, Robert Langston.

The 57-year-old school director was released Apr. 30 after 44 months of captivity in Lebanon.

Robert Langston said the family plans a private lobster bash for Reed, who had told reporters in Germany the first thing he wanted on his return was ''a big Maine lobster, about 3 pounds.''

He has had some lobster since his release but this will be a special lobster bash with his family, Langston said.

Yellow ribbons abound around the Boston suburb of Malden, sending a message of welcome to Reed, who Langston said will probably ride in the city's Memorial Day parade Monday.

''He is feeling well and has gained about a pound a day and has been out playing golf,'' Langston said.

He said his father-in-law will stay three or four days before returning to the Malcolm Grow Medical Center where he has been recuperating since his return to the United States.

Langston said Reed still wants to meet with President Bush but nothing has been scheduled because the president is preparing for next week's summit with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Reed moved to Lebanon in 1977 and converted to Islam. He was an educational adviser to the Lebanese International School when he was kidnapped Sept. 9, 1986, while driving a van in Moslem west Beirut.

Reed and Robert Polhill, 55, were the first American hostages freed since three others were released in the fall of 1986. Polhill had been a captive for 39 months until his release about a week earlier.

Polhill recently underwent surgery for throat cancer.

TOKYO (MAY 24) UPI - Japan's Emperor Akihito apologized to South Korean President Roh Tae Woo Thursday in the hopes of putting aside lingering pain from Japan's 35-year colonization of Korea and moving the Far East neighbors into an era of political and economic cooperation.

Akihito told Roh on the first day of a three-day visit that the sufferings of the Koreans during the colonization from 1910 to 1945 were ''brought about by my country and I cannot but feel the deepest regret.''

Akihito's father, Emperor Hirohito, never admitted Japan was at fault for the harsh treatment of Koreans and his reluctance to apologize fully remained a barrier to warm relations between the two nations.

During the colonization, the Japanese killed thousands of Korean resisters forced Koreans to work in slave-like conditions, speak only Japanese and adopt Japanese names.

In the two weeks prior to Roh's trip, the question of how far Akihito would go in his apology, which had to be approved by the Cabinet, was the focus of a diplomatic battle between Seoul and Tokyo.

Akihito's statement goes farther than previous statements but may not completely satisfy the Koreans.

In response to Akihito's apology, Roh said South Koreans should put past problems behind them and build friendly relations.

Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu also apologized to Roh for the past.

''Japanese actions inflicted unbearable suffering and sorrow on the people of the Korean Peninsula,'' Kaifu said.

To further heal the old wounds, Kaifu announced Japan was considering giving $26 million to aid Korean victims of the 1945 atomic bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, who returned to Korea after the war.

Kaifu also announced Japan will help Koreans living on the island of Sakhalin, now part of the Soviet Union, return to Korea. The Koreans in Sakhalin are laborers or their descendants who were taken to the island to work for the Japanese during World War II.

Hirohito, who died of cancer in 1989, said during the visit of South Korean President Chun Doo Hwan in 1984, ''It is indeed regrettable that there has been an unfortunate past between us for a period in this century and I believe that it should not be repeated.''

Akihito repeated his fathers words and then added, ''When I think of the sufferings your people underwent during this unfortunate period, which was brought about by my country, I cannot but feel the deepest regret.''

Roh said, ''As we enter the last decade of the 20th century, both countries must work to usher in an era of genuine friendship and cooperation founded on mutual respect and understanding.''

''Friendly and cooperative relations between (South) Korea and Japan are essential not only to the development and prosperity of both nations but also a better tomorrow for Northeast Asia at large.''

The second half of Roh's visit is to be devoted to talks on promoting economic, scientific and technological cooperation.

''In the midst of global upheavals, including the rapid move toward a unified Germany and further toward a united Europe, (South) Korea and Japan must continuously cooperate to promote the peace and prosperity of Northeast Asia,'' Roh said. ''Through my visit to Japan, I will do my level best to forge future-oriented bilateral ties.''

Roh arrived under the tightest security in Japan since Hirohito's funeral. More than 20,000 police blanketed central Tokyo, where private traffic was banned to let Roh's huge motorcade pass smoothly between appointments.

MIAMI (MAY 24) UPI - General Development Corp. won a bankruptcy judge's approval to turn over homesite deeds to a trustee, an attempt to win back scores of homesite buyers who have stopped making their monthly payments.

The plan, approved Wednesday by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge A. Jay Cristol, would apply to more than 54,000 homsites that customers are buying under installment contracts.

"We hope that with these assurances, we will continue to receive funds from homesite purchasers, which is critical to this company," said GDC attorney William Perlstein.

GDC planned to put in escrow 15 percent of all homesite payments it receives. The money would be earmarked for helping cover GDC's unmet development obligations.

Douglas Lyons, an attorney for homesite buyers, attacked the plan as nothing more than "a marketing tool" that would provide false assurance. The judge countered, "It's a real assurance that the deeds are out of the hands of the people who brought you here."

GDC, Florida's oldest and largest land development company, filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection April 6, two weeks after the company pleaded guilty to defrauding thousands of customers by inflating land values.

Cristol approved the deed-trust plan in concept Wednesday. Final approval will come after attorneys agree on the wording of a letter that would explain the trust to homesite buyers.

Also Wednesday, a bankruptcy examiner's report identified Maryland developer Thomas Hutchison as a possible chief executive for the company. Hutchison, 48, has been at GDC less than four months. He is executive assistant to Charles Simons, the GDC director who has been acting chief executive since the board fired the company's chairman and president in March.

The report by Examiner Kathleen Durdin also said that a series of layoffs at GDC had left the company understaffed, but concluded that one of the company's biggest problems is an intangible one. "GDC has an urgent need to develop a whole new vision of where it is and where it is going," she wrote.

HAMILTON, OH (MAY 24) UPI - The son of a Ku Klux Klan leader pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to a charge of aggravated murder in the shooting death of a black teenager.

Butler County Prosecutor John Holcomb said Thursday it may be several months before a ruling on whether Tarvie Collins, 29, is competent to stand trial. He's accused in the May 9 slaying of Roy Printup Jr., 15.

Mayor Adolf Olivas, acknowledging the shooting was racially motivated, formed a Mayor's Task Force on Human Relations to promote better race relations in the community.

Holcomb said Printup was shot once in the back with a .38-caliber pistol that police recovered from the defendant. He declined to discuss a motive in the slaying.

Collins will undergo examination at the Butler County Forensic Center to determine if he is mentally competent to stand trial, Holcomb said.

Collins pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity in his arraignment Wednesday.

The defendant is the son of Pete Collins, a major figure in Ohio Klan activity, according to the Center for Democratic Renewal, which tracks Klan activity. The father's Klan associations include a cross-burning in Jackson County in June 1987, and declaring himself the grand wizard of the Ohio KKK the same month.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - President Bush said Thursday he does not yet know how much the savings and loan bailout will end up costing taxpayers but said he did not think it would be the $300 billion to $500 billion some have projected.

"We don't know the impact on the taxpayer yet," Bush said at a White House news conference. "We do know that we are going to protect the depositors. It isn't protecting any savings and loan people. It's protecting depositors." "We don't know a specific figure." Asked if he thought costs might reach $300 billion to $500 billion, as some have projected, Bush said, "We don't think so."

Bush's comments followed congressional testimony Wednesday from Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady that taxpayers may have to pay $57 billion more than previously estimated to make good on deposits at failed S&Ls. Brady projected a total cost of up to $130 billion. And the top thrift regulator told a news conference that almost 300 thrifts are likely to collapse during the next two years.

Brady presented the new bailout cost figures to the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, whose chairman, Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., said, "We're looking at losses that are substantially higher than were indicated before."

Brady serves as chairman of the oversight board of the Resolution Trust Corporation, created last year with the task of closing failed thrifts and selling their assets. The sale of assets helps the government to repay the cost of covering insured deposits in up to 1,000 thrifts that have failed or are expected to falter.

The most troubled thrifts still operating represent 12 percent of all savings and loan institutions and "are expected to be transferred to the Resolution Trust Corporation," Timothy Ryan, director of the Office of Thrift Supervision, told a news conference.

They are concentrated in California, Texas, Florida, Louisiana, Illinois, Ohio, and New Jersey, and have a total of $193 billion in assets. Those assets account for 18 percent of industry assets.

"There are too many unknowns to provide a single estimate of the ultimate cost (of bailing out thrifts)," Brady told the committee. "Taking into account all of the uncertainty and all of the variables, it appears that the cost of resolving institutions which are likely to come under the control of the RTC will be in the approximate range of $90 billion to $130 billion," Brady said.

Last year, the administration projected a $73 billion bailout cost. Brady's new estimates - he said they are certain to change - represent an increase in the range of $17 billion to $57 billion over earlier estimates. "It is now clear that the amounts projected and authorized for the RTC ... will fall short of what is required," Brady said.

If bailout costs rise by $57 billion, it would be an increase of about 80 percent over the administration's earlier estimate of a $73 billion cost.

A $17 billion increase would represent a nearly 24 percent increase over the $73 billion previously approved.

Brady's latest estimates were stated in "present value," or what it would cost to close a failed thrift right now and pay off depositors. That calculation, which some thrift experts consider to be too low, does not include interest costs that could double or triple the actual expense to taxpayers over the next 30 or more years. The General Accounting Office recently estimated that bailout costs over 40 years, including interest, could be between $325 billion and $500 billion.

Brady cautioned that his newest estimates are temporary because the future of the nation's real estate market is uncertain. The real estate market is crucial to selling the assets of failed thrifts.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - President Bush denied Thursday that a rift existed between him and Secretary of State James Baker over Baker's strategic nuclear weapons negotiations in the Soviet Union.

''There is no light between us at all,'' Bush told reporters.

Bush said he is ''very satisfied on where we stand'' on Baker's talks with top Soviet officials, which resulted in limits on cruise missiles and other changes while leaving some issues unresolved.

''There isn't any daylight between the White house and the State Department (on arms talks),'' Bush said.

''All I want is to make sure that we can move forward to get these deals finalized,'' Bush said while acknowledging he may not have a strategic arms reduction treaty ready by the time of his May 30-June 3 summit with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Citing agreement from the State Department and the Pentagon, Bush said it ''is very encouraging that the administration is united.''

Republican conservatives have criticized the negotiations, arguing that Baker was rushing headlong toward an agreement.

''We're going to have some criticism,'' Bush said. ''But I'm confident that we're on the right track.''

Bush said he is troubled that the superpowers are not closer to agreement on reducing conventional forces in Europe. The goal has been to sign a treaty by the end of the year.

Bush had proposed that each side reduce conventional forces in Europe to 195,000 each, but negotiators have hit a snag on aircraft.

Bush said he is encouraged that during arms talks in Geneva Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze pledged to push for speedy agreement on cuts in conventional arms in Europe and hopes for German reunification this year.

Shevardnadze made the remarks after meeting with West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher.

Bush also expressed confidence that the superpowers could move forward on various arms negotiations at the Washington summit.

''The reality is that this treaty is shaping up largely on original United States concepts and original United States proposals in terms of what we've given and what we've taken,'' said Baker, who was in Moscow last week for talks with Shevardnadze and Gorbachev. ''We've done very well indeed.''

But Frank Gaffney Jr., director of the Center for Security Policy, said in a report by the conservative ''think tank'' that the draft treaty is ''dubious'' and ''remarkable in its shortsightedness.''

Baker noted he received support from the U.S. military leadership and said it ''would appear to me'' the critics are those who oppose the concept of arms control agreements with the Soviets.

''I don't think you should look just at one negotiating session,'' he said noting that ''there is very strong support for this agreement among the military leadership of the United States ... as a good agreement that is very much in the national security interest of the United States.''

Baker said, ''The president will work toward finalizing a Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty this year which would reduce the superpower arsenals, not just cap the levels of weapons.''

A strategic arms reduction treaty has been an elusive goal for U.S.-Soviet summits since 1987, when President Ronald Reagan and Gorbahcev embraced the idea of a 50 percent reduction in nuclear arms as a step toward total elimination.

Despite the dramatic warming of relations since then, technical details and long-held suspicions have blocked agreement on an accord. Bush and Gorbachev are expected to resolve some pending details and approve a broad outline for nuts-and-bolts negotiators to complete.

Baker told reporters that Bush, during his Oval Office meetings with Gorbachev, will ''raise our concerns over developments in Europe,'' where the ''military situation is lagging behind'' the changes in the political landscape.

''In our view, it is important that an agreement on conventional military forces be signed this year, locking in military changes consistent with the political realities and in effect changing the map of Europe,'' he said.

(MAY 24) UPI - The Senate plans to vote today on anti-crime legislation despite a partisan battle that could lead to a Republican filibuster or a veto by President Bush. Key votes yesterday exposed the partisan splits. The Senate narrowly approved a partial ban on assault weapons and rejected a plan to set limits on the number of times a death row inmate can seek court reprieves. The Senate plans to vote this morning on an effort to reverse the death-row provision.

Israel is rejecting any suggestions that a U-N force patrol the occupied territories as interference in its internal affairs. Secretary of State Baker yesterday lent U-S support to a Palesntinian request for a U-N observer force in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Violent protests in both regions began Sunday after seven Arab workers were killed by a deranged Israeli.

About five-thousand Filipinos demonstrated today in favor of renewed U-S basing rights in the Philippines. The rally took place at the Senate in Manila. Demonstrators fear tens of thousands of job could be lost if the military facilities are dismantled. The leases for giant Clark Air Base, Subic Bay Naval Complex and four smaller installations expire in 1991.

Police in New York say two explosives were placed at the New York Hilton... but only one detonated. WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - President Bush reiterated his opposition Thursday to making the District of Columbia the 51st state, saying he would refuse to sign a statehood bill if it passes Congress.

''I haven't even seen the legislation,'' Bush said at a news conference. ''I don't know if the Senate and House have agreed on a bill. But I think my position is very clear. And I'm not going to sign a statehood bill.

''So I don't want to be under any false colors on this. I've said that over the years and I have not changed my position.''

Bush said in March he opposed statehood in large part because the city's funds come ''almost exclusively from the federal government.''

An angry Mayor Marion Barry then sent a letter to Bush, noting that from 1980 to 1985, the federal payment to the city averaged only 20.3 percent of its operating budget.

The federal payment is in lieu of taxes the city would otherwise charge for the federal government's use of local property and services.

''(Spokesman) Marlin (Fitzwater) had to clean up what I said,'' Bush said Thursday.

Bush said he opposes statehood ''because it's a federal city. That's it.''

Last week, Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Paul Simon, D-Ill., introduced legislation to make the District of Columbia a state. The bill would create a state out of non-federally owned parts of Washington, and a federal enclave out of the remaining land, which would include the White House, the national Mall area and the Capitol.

The city's population of more than 600,000 has no voting representation in Congress. The district has a single non-voting seat in the House.

BOSTON (MAY 24) UPI - Two bus drivers have been sentenced to jail for incidents in Boston related to the nearly 12-week-old nationwide Greyhound bus strike.

They were the first jail terms imposed in the walkout by some 6,300 bus drivers.

Boston Municipal Court Judge Jonn Pino sentenced Michael Holden, 36, of Boston to 30 days in jail Wednesday.

Holden, who is vice president of the Amalgamated Transit Workers Local 1205, was convicted of disorderly conduct stemming from an Apr. 8 incident in which police said he interrupted traffic by trying to prevent a bus from entering the Greyhound terminal in Boston.

The bus was being driven by a replacement driver.

A striking driver, Richard Cunningham, of Sandwich, was sentenced to six months in jail for causing about $360 in damage by cracking a bus windshield on Apr. 27.

Both were freed on personal recognizance pending appeals.

ATLANTA (MAY 24) UPI - Georgia-Pacific Corp. said Thursday it will close its Reading, Pa., paper mill July 24 because of poor equipment, market conditions and lack of profits, resulting in the loss of 100 jobs.

"Employees understood that the mill wasn't profitable and worked to improve productivity and operating conditions," said James G. Crump Jr., senior vice president-communication paper division. "Because of current market conditions and lower operating returns, however, previously implemented controls and changes were not sufficient to turn around this operation."

Georgia-Pacific will continue to produce text, cover and writing papers from its Taylorsville, Ill., mill and from other facilities. The Reading mill was closed for two weeks earlier this year for a management review. But the cost reductions and the introduction of a new line of recycled papers that followed the review were not sufficient to turn the mill around, the company said.

In February, Georgia-Pacific succeeded in a four-month-long, $3.7 billion hostile takeover of Great Northern Nekoosa Corp. of Norwalk, Conn. The takeover created a forest products company with annual sales of about $14 billion and 64,000 employees, including more than 7,500 in Georgia.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (MAY 24) UPI - Cambodian resistance leader Son Sann called for a cease-fire before upcoming peace talks in Tokyo, but radio reports said fighting continued and more than 190 people were killed in one battle.

''I would like to ask that Cambodians stop killing fellow Cambodians,'' Son Sann said in a broadcast Wednesday on resistance radio.

The nominal leader of the U.S.-backed Khmer People's National Liberation Front said he was optimistic about the meeting set for June 4-6, but that a halt to the fighting was needed ''so that the meeting can bear fruit.''

Son Sann also called for the release of all prisoners of war, an end to military recruitment and corruption by all sides ''in order to create a good atmosphere conducive to reconciliation.''

''Let bygones be bygones. Forget old grudges. In the days to come we will be reconciled,'' he said.

He said he would begin by releasing prisoners held by his group, but did not provide any numbers or further details.

Son Sann, is not believed to have direct authority over his troops in the field because of factional splits within his organization.

Senior generals in the Front announced Wednesday they were establishing their own separate political party to seek election following a political settlement.

Earlier this week, Prince Norodom Sihanouk said he was ready to sign a cease-fire agreement in Tokyo. The Vietnamese-backed government in Phnom Penh has also spoken in favor of the cease-fire being worked out by Thai Deputy Prime Minister Gen. Chavalit Yongchaiyudh.

However, the Khmer Rouge, the most powerful of the three resistance factions, has not yet commented on the proposed cease-fire, which is seen as a step toward a comprehensive settlement of the 11-year-old Cambodian conflict.

Khmer Rouge radio Thursday reported an offensive by its troops along Route 10 in western Cambodia.

It said Khmer Rouge guerrillas killed 196 government troops and wounded 218 others in fighting from May 10-16 on the road that leads from Khmer Rouge-held areas near the Thai border to the country's second-largest city of Battambang.

SEATTLE (MAY 24) UPI - When the window of a commuter jet blew out at 14,000 feet, passenger Gale Sears didn't know what to think when his head and shoulders were sticking out through the window frame. He found it difficult to think anything.

''My first thought was, my God, what is happening? What next? Is this a plane crash? I know I'm still alive. Will I be alive until I hit the ground?''

Those were the first reflections of Sears, 38, hours after the window of a fully loaded Horizon Air jet with 18 people aboard blew out Wednesday shortly before 9 a.m., dragging him into the opening as other passengers clung to him.

Following a quick emergency landing, Sears was treated for minor cuts and bruises and shock and released from Highline Community Hospital near Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, said Horizon Air spokesman Nancy Hamilton.

Although he was buckled in his seat in the second row on the right side of the Fairchild Metro 3 commuter plane he shared with the crew and 17 other passengers, the sudden depressurization dragged him toward the window.

''I had a terrible sensation of being wet,'' Sears said, recalling how rain pelted his face. ''A sensation of blood. I wondered if I had a face.''

Sears said the rush of cabin air to the outside threw him partially through the window opening. He held on with his hands and arms as one shoulder and his head jammed through the opening.

''You wonder, is this all there is? Am I going to hit the ground,'' said

Sears, an Oregon National Guard major from Portland, Ore., who said he was headed to Harrisburg, Pa., after a brief stopover in Seattle.

''I just remember wondering, 'What in the world is going on? Is the plane going to explode? Am I going to go 'splat'? Are we going to hit the ground?' Everything was all black,'' Sears said.

National Guard Sgt. Bill Boyd, sitting across the aisle from Sears, and a Horizon Air official who also was a passenger grabbed Sears and pulled him back into place.

The pilot quickly descended to 10,000 feet and the cabin pressure stabilized as passengers began breathing through emergency oxygen masks.

Boyd and another National Guardsman continued on to Harrisburg, but Sears decided to return to Portland.

Hamilton said the window blew out as the plane passed over Olympia en route from Portland to Seattle. The window popped out completely and cleanly.

''There was no indication that the window had been struck,'' Hamilton said. ''We consider this to be an isolated incident.''

Nevertheless, Horizon Air directed that inspections on all of the 33 Fairchild planes in its fleet as they made their next landings at airports with maintenance centers, Hamilton said.

BUDAPEST, HUNGARY (MAY 24) UPI - Prime Minister Jozsef Antall appointed a Cabinet-level task force Thursday to tackle the country's economic problems, saying ''we must clear the ruins ourselves'' after a bloodless ''Third World War'' against communism.

Antall, speaking at a news conference a day after his election as Hungary's first non-communist prime minister in 43 years, said the special economic Cabinet would oversee the transition from a socialist to a market economy.

The task force will be headed by Minister of Finance Ferenc Rabar and is to include the ministers of agriculture, trade and industry, international economic relations, transport and communication, labor and environmental protection.

Antall warned an inaugural meeting of the new ministers they face a long and difficult struggle in overhauling the old central-command economy and told them not to expect miracle solutions from the West.

''Hungary has fought the Third World War for the Western powers because the socialist system had to collapse. But we have to clear the ruins ourselves,'' Undersecretary of Finance Katalin Botos quoted Antall as saying.

With a foreign debt of $22 billion, spiraling inflation and falling production, Hungary faces one of the worst crises of its modern history.

Antall has pledged to move quickly to privatize key industries, close down factories they fail to make a profit and encourage investment from abroad.

One of the first companies to be privatized is Hungary's state-run travel and tourism agency called IBUSZ, the government announced Thursday. Public shares will be up for sale for foreign and Hungarian investors from June 11 to 15.

But Industry and Commerce Minister Peter Bod said the government also was committed to maintaining a ''strong welfare network'' while the restructuring takes place.

''We have to be sensitive and have solidarity for those who will have difficulties in the coming period,'' Bod said.

Antall, leader of the center-right Democratic Forum, was elected and sworn in Wednesday as Hungary's first non-communist prime minister since 1947.

The Cabinet does not include a single socialist.

In unveiling his government program Tuesday, he promised sweeping economic reform and called for a complete break with the Warsaw Pact. The prime minister also said he would hold Moscow to its commitment to withdraw all Soviet troops from Hungary by June 30, 1991.

In another development Thursday, the Parliament voted to extend the mandate of local government councils until Sept. 23. The tenure of the communist-dominated councils was set to expire June 8.

The extension gives the government time to enact laws that would allow future councils to be chosen through multi-party elections.

MOSCOW (MAY 24) UPI - Radical legislators Thursday nominated populist Boris Yeltsin to challenge the Russian republic's prime minister for the equivalent of the presidency of the republic.

The nominations set the stage for a struggle between conservative and radical communists for control of the largest of the 15 Soviet republics, a fight that could threaten Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's grip on the core of the country.

The Russian republic's new Congress of People's Deputies nominated 13 people for chairman of the standing Parliament who will serve in effect as president of the republic.

The best known of the nominees were Yeltsin, Russian Prime Minister Alexander Vlasov and Politburo member Vitaly Vorotnikov, who immediately withdrew his name. The other 10 nominees were less known.

The immensely popular Yeltsin is the candidate of the radical Democratic Russia bloc and Vlasov is a conservative backed by the Communist Party leadership.

Yeltsin's election to head the Russian republic would give him a powerful base from which to challenge Gorbachev.

Gorbachev lashed out at Yeltsin on Wednesday in a speech to the Congress of People's Deputies, accusing the former Moscow Communist Party boss of abandoning socialism and trying to break up the Soviet Union.

His voice rising with emotion in a 45-minute speech, Gorbachev called his radical critics ''political rogues'' and accused them of ''unscrupulous and dirty methods.''

On Tuesday Yeltsin proposed wide-ranging autonomy for Russia, including priority of the republic's laws over those of the Soviet Union in cases of conflict.

''If (Yeltsin's proposal) is subjected to very serious analysis, you see he is proposing under the banner of restoring the sovereignty of Russia a call for the dissolution of the union,'' Gorbachev said.

The Soviet president charged that Yeltsin's speech ''contains an attempt to separate Russia from socialism'' and criticized him for proposing that Russia drop the words ''soviet'' and ''socialist'' from its official title.

Yeltsin refused to answer reporters' questions on the accusations but told deputies after Wednesday's session that Gorbachev ''went into questions that I didn't even talk about in my speech.''

Radical deputies felt that Gorbachev made a tactical error in personalizing the conflict with Yeltsin.

Gorbachev ''helped us by showing that he is seriously afraid of Yeltsin as a serious representative of serious democratic forces,'' said Sergei Nosovets, a Democratic Russia organizer from Omsk.

Yeltsin, who was formerly a candidate member of the Communist Party's ruling Politburo, fell out of favor and lost his top posts in the fall of 1987 for criticizing the pace of Gorbachev's reforms as being too slow.

But groundbreaking multi-candidate elections last year paved the road for Yeltsin's political comeback when more than 6 million Muscovites voted for the renegade communist and elected him to the U.S.S.R. Congress of People's Deputies.

PORTLAND, OR (MAY 24) UPI - Perhaps the biggest comeback celebrated by the Portland Trail Blazers Wednesday was not the 22-point rally against the Phoenix Suns.

Ramon Ramos, the rookie who was in a coma for two months after a Dec. 16 car crash, was back in a hospital room by the time his teammates pulled out the 108-107 Game 2 victory in the Western Conference championship series.

In another joyous development for the Trail Blazers, however, Ramos earlier in the day had left the hospital for the first time since the crash on Interstate 5.

Ramos, 22, suffered debilitating head injuries when his car slid on a patch of ice and overturned. His first trip since then was a brief one - a car ride around the block - but meant as much to friends, teammates and family members from Puerto Rico as any game-winning clutch shot.

''When he got into the car, he smiled, waved to his mother and said goodbye,'' said Ramon Ramos Sr., the father of the rookie forward who signed as a free agent after helping Seton Hall reach the NCAA championship game last year.

Ramos took his son on the short drive before returning to his room at Good Samaritan Hospital and Medical Center.

After Ramos began to show progress, he was moved from Oregon Health Sciences University to the Rehabilitation Institute of Oregon at Good Samaritan, where he has undergone daily physical and speech therapy.

Young Ramos is now able to do some personal tasks such as brush his teeth briefly or comb his hair, said hospital spokesman Chuck Williams. Recently he also has been able to say a few words and a few names, even writing some words and short sentences.

''He is now eating enough food that we have been able to take out the feeding tube,'' said Dr. Franklin Wong, who is in charge of Ramos' care and rehabilitation.

''He has made some nice gains but there still is a long way to go,'' Wong said. ''But I am happy with his progress. Our goals remain the same - to get him to where he can live in as independent a situation as possible.''

''Ramon is getting better every day,'' the elder Ramos said. ''I think maybe he can leave the hospital and go to the apartment in a couple of weeks. I want for that step. Ramon is very strong and he is very young. Maybe he can play basketball again. I hope for that.''

(MAY 24) UPI - Secretary of State Baker says the United States is prepared to discuss sending a United Nations observer force to the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. A U-N Security Council Session will address the issue in Geneva tomorrow.

Israel says such action would infringe on its internal affairs and Baker's comments are expected to cause a wider rift in U-S-Israeli relations. The developments follow Israel's handling of violent riots sparked by the killing of seven Arabs.

The House is expected to vote today on legislation that includes 720-Million dollars in emergency aid for Panama and Nicaragua. The bill had been stalled by the inclusion of a Democrat-sponsored amendment cutting U-S military aid to El Salvador.

Cleaner air may be closer with yesterday's House passage of a clean air bill. The legislation would cut in half acid rain emissions... limit toxic releases... and curb auto and industry pollution.

Health and Human Services Secretary Sullivan will address the Senate Finance Committee today. He's expected to present a proposal that would allow states to ban cigarette vending machines to make it more difficult for children to obtain tobacco products.

Lithuania's Parliament yesterday offered to suspend laws implementing independence in favor of ''interstate'' negotiations on secession. Soviet President Gorbachev is calling for the revocation of the independence declaration.

LONDON (MAY 24) UPI - The Soviet navy is scrapping its vintage vessels but replacing its surface fleet in tonnage at the highest rate in more than 20 years to strengthen its offensive capability, Jane's Information Group said Thursday.

The authoritative defense analysis organization said on the release of its 1990-91 edition of Jane's Fighting Ships that Soviet submarines were also being replaced at the highest rate in the past decade.

''As the West debates beating its tanks into ploughshares and how to spend the peace dividend, Soviet nuclear submarines roll remorselessly off the production lines,'' said Captain Richard Sharpe, the editor of the 850-page tome that is regarded as the bible of the world's seaborne forces.

''The emphasis on fixed-wing aircraft carriers and nuclear attack submarines does not accord with the Soviets' stated doctrine of defensive sufficiency,'' he said.

Sharpe said Soviet admirals had defended their slice of the defense budget by successfully arguing that dialogue with the West on naval reductions had made no progress, and that the Soviet Union must still be wary of the West's overall dominance on the seas.

''In terms of tonnage, more submarines were commissioned in 1989 than in any year since 1980, and major warship construction was at its highest for 20 years,'' said Sharpe, who during his 34-year career with the Royal Navy commanded submarines and a destroyer.

Sharpe said the ongoing production was in part due to bureaucratic momentum, but Western nations would soon be looking for proof that Moscow planned to cut attack submarines, the most potentially lethal arm of the Soviet navy.

Besides ongoing production of existing vessel classes, the Soviet navy is now developing a new front line frigate, the first of four large aircraft carriers and an air-independent propulsion system to power planned Beluga class submarines.

The book said the Soviet navy had scrapped 28 major surface ships in 1988-89, and had slated another 17 for destruction during 1990, but it explained that all the vessels were at the end of their operational lives and did not represent ''a serious attempt to reduce capabilities.''

More than 80 diesel-powered boats, 17 nuclear submarines, three cruisers and 25 frigates would have to be junked before the Soviets' 1950s-era vessels were scrapped, it said.

Sharpe said Washington realizes that ''the Soviets have no intention of surrendering their position as a superpower and that the U.S. Navy has many commitments and tasks unrelated to the old superpower confrontation.''

However, budgetary pressure had now compelled the United States to abandon its plans of building a 600-ship navy. He said there was a reduction of operational availability of U.S. ships, and that there may have to be cutbacks on overseas commitments.

Sharpe said that the Soviet Union's drift towards ''a state of suppressed anarchy'' could leave Moscow frightened and bankrupt but with the power projection of a superpower. Greater Western naval unity was now important, he said.

''A series of cooperative agreements between like-minded groups of nations would seem to have a better chance of acheiving mutual security than grandiose schemes involving the weak internal dynamics of pan-European politics,'' he said.

Sharpe ended his foreword with an adage by a 19th century British diplomat - ''The Russians are never as strong as they look, the Russians are never as weak as they look.''

(MAY 24) UPI - GLOSSARY OF SOCCER TERMS

Back pass - Pass directed away from opponent's goal.

Bicycle kick - Overhead kick made with scissors movement of legs.

Box - Also known as penalty area; located in front of each goal.

Charge - Running into an opponent.

Chip - Soft kick placed over a player's head.

Clearance - When goalie or defender directs ball away from penalty or goal area.

Corner kick - Direct free kick taken from corner area. Awarded to offensive team if defending team plays ball over its goal line. Opposing team must be 10 yards off ball when kick taken.

Cross - Pass toward center of field from either flank.

Dribble - Act of moving the ball with one's feet.

Drop ball - Equivalent of a faceoff in hockey; used after stoppage in play when referee cannot determine possession.

Forward - Position on field near front line of attack. Team usually fields two or three forwards.

Fullback - Defender, anywhere from two to four, aligned at rear of formation. Rarely deeply involved in attack.

Free kick - Awarded for such infractions as kicking, tripping, charging, handball, holding and pushing. A goal can be scored off a direct free kick but an indirect free kick requires another player to touch ball before a goal can be scored.

Goal aggregate - Total number of goals scored by a team in multi-game series.

Goal area - The small rectangular area in front of each goal, measuring 20 yards by six yards. Goal kicks are taken from within this area. Opposing players cannot challenge goalkeeper while standing in the box.

Goal differential - Subtraction of goals allowed from goals scored. A common tie-breaker used in tournament or league competition.

Goal kick - Possession changes hands when offensive team kicks ball out of bounds over goal line. Goalkeeper usually makes the goal kick.

Goalkeeper - Primary function is to prevent goals. Only player allowed to handle ball.

Half volley - Kick taken on the short hop.

Handball - When a player other than a goalkeeper intentionally touches the ball with his hands or arms. A direct free kick is awarded.

Header - To pass or shoot the ball with one's head.

Holding - Clutching an opponent or his uniform. Direct free kick awarded.

Injury time - Time added to end of either half to compensate for time lost because of injury or other stoppage.

Juggle - Act of controlling the ball while in the air, using head, knees or feet.

Libero - Overlapping defender who often starts the attack. Sometimes plays between defenders and midfielders.

Linesmen - Officials who assist referee and work opposite sidelines. Main functions are to determine when ball is out of play and assist in determining which team is entitled to corner kick, goal kick or throw-in.

Midfielder - Positioned between fullbacks and forwards. Also known as halfback. Team usually deploys four midfielders and they are the primary playmakers.

Obstruction - Infraction when player impedes opponent by intentionally placing himself between ball and other player. Indirect free kick awarded.

Offside - Infraction often difficult to call. An attacker is offside when there are fewer than two opponents, including the goalie, between himself and the ball. Can only be called in opponent's half of field. Indirect free kick awarded from site of infraction.

Offside trap - Defensive tactic in which defenders rush forward as opponent begins to pass, hopefully catching an opposing forward lagging behind.

One-touch - Receiving a pass and redirecting the ball in one movement.

Own goal - When player scores a goal into his own net.

Penalty area - The large rectangular area in front of each goal, measuring 44 yards by 18 yards. Goalkeepers may handle the ball only within the area. Deliberate infractions committed in the box result in a penalty kick.

Penalty kick - One-on-one shot against the goalkeeper taken after an intentional infraction is committed in the penalty area. Goalkeeper cannot move feet until ball is kicked.

Penalty spot - Mark from which penalty kicks are taken, located 12 yards in front of the center of the goal line.

Red card - Ejection of a player by referee after flagrant offense. Team cannot replace ejected player.

Steps - Infraction called against goalkeeper for taking more than four steps while holding ball. Goalie must bounce ball to take additional steps.

Striker - Forward most responsible for scoring goals. Usually positions himself in front of goal to receive centering passes.

Sweeper - Defensive player who often plays behind line of defenders. Primary job is to defend against deep penetration by an offensive player.

Tackle - When defender attempts to steal ball from opposing player. Sometimes done by sliding at opponent's feet.

Throw-in - Act of putting ball into play after it has gone over sideline. Player must keep both feet on the ground and deliver ball overhead with both hands.

Trap - Receiving a pass by cushioning ball with the chest, thigh or foot, causing ball to drop at player's feet.

Two-touch - Trapping the ball in one motion, then passing or shooting.

Volley - Kick taken on the fly.

Wall - A group of defenders lined up on a free kick in an attempt to block a direct shot on goal. The wall must be positioned at least 10 yards from ball.

Yellow card - Warning given player by referee after serious offense; two yellow cards result in automatic ejection

ST. PAUL, MN (MAY 24) UPI - Gov. Rudy Perpich said Thursday he has asked Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to take part in a church service during his visit to Minnesota and Mrs. Gorbachev will likely visit a Minneapolis home.

The Soviet advance team visited several sites Wednesday for the forthcoming visit of Gorbachev and his wife, Raisa, and indicated to Minnesota officials Gorbachev wanted an extensive tour of the Twin Cities.

Perpich, who will have lunch with the Gorbachevs on their arrival Sunday, June 3, after the summit in Washington, said the Soviet president would speak to a group of business leaders from Minnesota and the Midwest.

During the meeting with the business leaders, Raisa Gorbachev will visit the home of a middle class family in Minneapolis, Perpich said.

''Mrs. Gorbachev really wants to visit a middle class family,'' Perpich told WCCO Radio. He said the Soviet advance team had looked at the home of Steven and Karen Watson in south Minneapolis.

The Watson's daughter, Lisa, 13, acted in the Children's Theatre Company that visited Moscow last year.

''The family is really a great family,'' Perpich said. ''We're really happy about that visit by Mrs. Gorbachev.''

The home, white stucco with green awnings, has several half-completed home improvement projects. The grass needs mowing, and the dandelions are blooming.

The Watsons - Steven, a teacher, and Karen, a nurse, have three other children, Stephanie, 11; Thomas, 7; and William, 6, and a dog.

The governor said he asked the Soviet advance team to invite Gorbachev to the St. Paul Cathedral to take part in ''an ecumenical service to pray for peace.''

''A luncheon at the governor's mansion and the business meeting seem as certain as anything,'' said Roger Parkinson, publisher of the Star Tribune who is chairman of the operations committee playing host for the visit.

On Wednesday, the Soviet advance team, headed by First Secretary Alexander Tarasov of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, visited the St. Paul Cathedral, the Meadowbrook School in Golden Valley where elementary children sang a welcome in Russian on television and the Watson home.

On Tuesday, the Soviet group toured the Minneapolis Sculpture Garden, the Walker Art Center, the Capitol and Control Data Corp., which has had extensive business deals with the Soviet Union.

GAINESVILLE, FL (MAY 24) UPI - The family of Kelly Hardyman, who was caught playing Nintendo in a house he was allegedly robbing, doesn't like all the jokes that have been made about him.

''I think that what he has done is so minor compared to some of the stuff that goes on that he shouldn't be ridiculed in this way,'' said Kimble Hardyman, the suspect's brother. ''My biggest argument is that they're not looking at his problem.''

Kelly Hardyman, 20, who has numerous burglary convictions, was arrested in January after he couldn't resist taking a few minutes to play a Nintendo game inside a house that he was allegedly burglarizing. His blunder has made him the butt of jokes on Arsenio Hall's television show and in national supermarket tabloids.

Hardyman could face a maximum sentence of 70 years in prison if he is convicted on the burglary charge when he goes on trial Friday.

''I'm not saying he shouldn't be punished for his crimes but he needs to be helped,'' Kimble Hardyman said.

His brother has committed crimes to get money to support a crack-cocaine habit, Kimble said.

''I know my brother and his mentality. Some people are stronger than others and he just got mixed up in something he needs help with,'' he said.

Assistant State Attorney Frederick Replogle said Hardyman faces a stiff sentence because he has numerous convictions on burglary-related charges that make him eligible for sentencing as an habitual offender.

Kelly Hardyman was released from prison about six weeks before his arrest in January after serving five months on a previous burglary conviction. He was serving a house-arrest sentence at the time of his arrest, and he told police he violated the sentence in part because he was bored.

The latest arrest came Jan. 17 when Susan Kirkland found Hardyman in her home playing Nintendo when she came home for lunch.

Kirkland yelled at the man, who bolted from the house. She and several neighbors chased him several blocks before police arrived and apprehended Kirkland.

Hardyman also is accused of breaking into another home in the neighborhood earlier that same day. Police said they believe he also played a home video game at that location.

Prosecutors offered Kelly Hardyman a plea bargain that would have given him a 10-year prison sentence, but he turned it down, according to his brother, because he believed he could get a lighter sentence if he took his chances in a trial.

LIBREVILLE, GABON (MAY 24) UPI - Here are basic facts about Gabon, the central African country where riots Thursday threatened the government of President Omar Bongo.

Population: 988,000 (est. 1985) Area: 103,346 square miles Capital: Libreville President Omar Bongo (Dec. 2, 1967-)

History - Portuguese merchants arrived and named Gabon in 1471. The advent of French traders in the 19th century led to French control of Gabon as part of French Equatorial Africa. Independence was declared Aug. 17, 1960.

Geography - The size of Colorado with 103,346 square miles, heavily forested Gabon straddles the equator on the West African coast. It is bordered by Cameroon and tiny Equatorial Guinea to the north, Congo to the east and south, and a 550-mile Atlantic coast to the west. The capital, Libreville, is the principal city and port. The Ogooue River is the main waterway.

People - With apparently fewer than 1 million people, Gabon is one of Africa's least populated countries. The Gabonese are mainly of Bantu origin, and practice Christian and native religions. French is the official language. Literacy is 65 percent. The population is difficult to estimate, with the government claiming a population of about 1.5 million while the United Nations says only 530,000 residents live in the country.

Government - The Gabonese Republic, as it is known officially, adopted a presidential form of government in 1961 following independence. Leon M'Ba, the first president, was toppled in a bloodless coup in 1964 but was returned to office by French military intervention the following day. He was re-elected in 1967 and, on his death in November, he was succeeded by Vice President Omar Bongo, who declared a one-party state in 1968. Bongo was re-elected to a seven-year term in December 1979 and has ruled ever since.

Economy - Gabon is a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, with output estimated at 12 million tons a year. Agriculture and fishing employ 85 percent of the working population, with sugar cane, cocoa, coffee and bananas among the major products. It also is among the world leaders in the export of manganese, supplies France with uranium, and it has the world's largest unexploited reserves of iron ore. Per capita income is estimated at $3,500.

U.S. Relations - President Reagan received Bongo at the White House July 31, 1987, praised his nation for taking ''positive steps toward economic reform,'' and announced the United States would sign a debt rescheduling agreement with Gabon.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - President Bush said Thursday the absence of a ''decision-making'' Israeli government makes it difficult to resume serious Middle East peace talks and stem a new rise in violence.

''I will do everything I can ... to get the talks for peace going,'' Bush told a White House news conference, adding that the political uncertainty in Israel complicates matters.

Yitzhak Shamir is serving as caretaker prime minister of Israel while he tries to form a new government and seeks to restore order in the Israeli-occupied terroritories of the West Bank and Gaza strip.

More than a dozen Palestinians have been killed in the territories during the past few days while protesting the slaying Sunday of seven Arab workers by an Israeli gunman described as deranged.

Bush noted that he has called on ''both sides for restraint'' and said ''I am troubled by the loss of human life.'' He declared, ''the answer is to get these (stalled Middle East) peace talks going.'' observers in the territories. The statement angered Israel but fell short of Palestinian demands that U.N. forces replace Israeli troops.

The administration said Thursday it is prepared to consider posting U.N.

Bush, asked if there is anything the United States can do to push the Israelis to be more willing to participate in peace talks, said: ''The problem we face right now is this, almost an interregnum'' in the Israeli goverment.

''I mean, there's no firm decision-making government in place,'' he said. ''So, we're in a bit of a hiatus because of that.''

A senior administration official, speaking on the condition he not be identified by name, said there is concern that the Soviets may act to increase tension in the Middle East.

''Whenever our own diplomacy is in hiatus as it is now as we wait for the Israeli political process, the Soviets are sometimes tempted to strike off initiatives of their own and possibly unhelpful things,'' the official said.

Bush, who opens a summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Washington next week, telephoned Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak Wednesday to discuss the situation.

On Tuesday, the president expressed condolences to the families of all those killed in the occupied territories, urged restraint and called for movement on peace talks.

ASHRAFIYEH, LEBANON (MAY 24) UPI - Under a shell-pocked 11-story building in the east Beirut neighborhood of Ashrafiyeh, 30 children aged 4 to 13 struggle to read by dim candlight in a cavernous basement.

''They have forgotten many things, such as counting or identifying drawn animals,'' said Hoda Azzam, 24, the teacher of a dozen of the children, who clustered around her in a scene reminiscent of the Middle Ages.

Christians have established a number of such makeshift schools in embattled Beirut, but many children, exposed daily to the atrocities of a bitter war, have lost the capacity to learn and turned violent, educators say.

Since the end of January, east Beirut has been a battleground in a power struggle between Christian strongman Michel Aoun and his Christian rival Samir Geagea. More than 1,000 people have died in the fighting and thousands more have lost their homes and livelihoods to the almost constant pounding of heavy artillery and screaming shells.

''It's a difficult task,'' said Azzam of her students. ''They keep quarrelling among each other. They have largely lost their capability to concentrate and learn, apparently because of the deafening shellfire blasts.''

The smell of food overwhelmed her makeshift class as several families who live in the basement cooked in a corner. The coarse voices of four men playing cards echoed through the chamber, drowning out the instructions of the young teacher.

Alfred Madi, a member of the Christian Phalange Party Politburo who is attempting to create a network of underground classroooms, said his group has managed to organize three schools serving about 700 children.

''We realize that it's not a perfect deed, but we want to collect our children from the streets where they imitate the adults and fight mock street battles with wood-made rifles and dummy pistols,'' said Madi.

''We definitely don't want them to follow our example, we wish them a peaceful future.''

Officials said the ongoing warfare between Aoun and Geagea has destroyed or damaged more than 100 schools in the 310-square-mile Christian enclave that encompasses east Beirut and nearby towns. They estimate over 100,000 children have been affected by the battle.

Madi said Christian officials are racing to set up more underground classrooms now that the inter-Christian violence has subsided somewhat due to Iraqi mediation efforts. They fear the violence will eventually flare again.

For many Christian students, it is the second year without regular schooling. In March 1989, Aoun launched a wide-scale effort to oust the 35,000 Syrian troops in Lebanon, a move that led many schools to close.

Aoun's war against the Syrians ended in September 1989 as a result of mediation efforts by the Tunis-based Arab League. But almost as soon as students returned to their schools, the current battle between Aoun and Geagea erupted in January.

''The failure to send children to school for two years in a row is a prime reason for the massive immigration from the Christian region,'' said Elie Mikhail, the head of the Phalange Student Association.

As many as 200,000 Christians have fled the enclave, with many seeking refuge and a stable future for their children in the Moslem-controlled west. Officials said an equal number of people, most of them Christians, were attempting to flee the country altogether.

Mikhail, also involved in the underground school project, said it was not enought to protect children physically from the violence that surrounds them.

''We'll have to provide them with education and not only secure food and drinking water,'' he said. ''If this war drags on for a long time, we fear that the children may lose their ability to learn.''

In the basement of another building in east Beirut, a group of young teachers struggled with yet another classroom of unruly children.

''They fight each other with fists as I try to teach them some things that require concentration,'' said Roula Abi Khattar, 25. ''They show a spirit of arrogance that surprises me.

''I make some success when I start telling a story,'' she said. ''But usually they keep talking about the war, about shells, cannons and tanks.''

CHICAGO (MAY 24) UPI - Hollie and Toni Newman have always raised an eyebrow or two just because they are twins.

But next month those attending Kelly High School's commencement will get an unusual dose of togetherness when the 17-year-old sisters share the podium as valedictorians.

''They rank No. 1 in the class with identical grade-point averages of 4.7273 for all four years,'' counselor Ron Fasano said. ''What's unusual is their grades are identical down to the fourth decimal point.''

John Burke, the assistant principle organizing the graduation for the school of 1,342, said he was very surprised to learn the two had tied for top of the class.

''This is the first time we've ever had two valedictorians, and I've never heard of it in any other schools,'' Burke said. ''But they both earned the same grade points.

''They are all-around kids. It's not as though they've just got their noses stuck in a book. They're involved in lots of activities around school.''

The twins agree they are alike in many ways but different.

Hollie says she ''hates competition'' but Toni says she ''doesn't like to lose.''

Both are members of the swim team, with Toni being captain. Hollie is president of the 160-member senior class.

The twins made the National Honor Society and became National Merit Recognition Scholars and Illinois State Scholars. Both participated in Junior Red Cross for four years and both worked on the yearbook, Fasano said.

Both girls say they want careers. Hollie says she is leaning toward hotel management, while Toni says she is looking foward to a career in accounting.

Hollie and Toni say they haven't decided what they will say at graduation, but won't worry about that right now.

First on both their agendas is Friday's senior prom.

JERUSALEM (MAY 24) UPI - The defense attorney for convicted war criminal John Demjanjuk argued Thursday that his client could not have been ''Ivan the Terrible'' of Treblinka because he was a prisoner of war when thousands of Jews were killed at the death camp.

Attorney Yoram Sheftel told the five-judge Supreme Court panel hearing the appeal that Demjanjuk was held with other Ukrainians in a Nazi prison at Chelm, Poland, and was not at the Treblinka death camp despite testimony by Holocaust survivors.

''The appellant's alibi rests on Chelm alone - there is no other,'' Sheftel said in the eighth day of the appeal of Demjanjuk's 1988 conviction of war crimes.

Demjanjuk, usually passive during the proceedings, nodded his head in agreement as Sheftel argued the appeal.

In reaching its verdict two years ago, the lower court relied heavily upon witness identifications and an identification document said to belong to Ivan the Terrible. The court sentenced Demjanjuk to death.

Sheftel has discounted the testimony of death camp survivors, who he said were simply mistaken or coaxed by interrogators into identifying Demjanjuk from photo spreads.

The lawyer continued Thursday to hammer away at the so-called Trawniki document. The prosecution claims it proves that the former U.S. autoworker from a suburb of Cleveland, is Ivan the Terrible. The defense argues it is a document forged by the KGB because Demjanjuk served in an anti-Soviet militia toward the end of World War II.

As he has done before, Sheftel told the justices that even assuming the document were authentic, it could not belong to Ivan the Terrible of Treblinka because the document places the bearer in other Nazi death camps when Treblinka survivors say he was there. The Nazis issued about 4,000 such identification cards to Ukrainian prisoners recruited to work at death camps.

''I am not arguing that the document is authentic,'' Sheftel said. ''But even if it were, this document should have had three Treblinka postings, and it doesn't even have one. If it is authentic, then it doesn't back up the witness testimony or anything else.''

Demjanjuk was stripped of his U.S. citizenship in 1981 and extradited to Israel five years later. In April 1988, he was convicted of four counts of war crimes under Israel's 1950 Nazi and Nazi collaborators law. Adolf Eichmann, the mastermind of the Nazi's ''Final Solution,'' is the only person convicted and executed under the law.

The appeal is expected to last another two weeks. Sheftel said he will conclude his arguments Monday, when he also will introduce new evidence based largely on the statements of a Polish woman who is said to have known Ivan the Terrible.

CHICAGO (MAY 24) UPI - Jurors in the racketeering and fraud trial of three Chicago Mercantile Exhcange traders heard tapes Thursday the government said show two of the defendants backing down on a deal worth more than $10,000.

FBI undercover agent Randall Jannett testified Robert Mosky had agreed to an non-competitive trade to sell Danny Scheck 173 contracts at a price of 7250 when the market was trading was trading at 7255. If carried out, Sheck would have had a potential profit of $10,812.50.

But, Jannett testified, the two busted the trade as a result of a complaint by another trader.

Jurors heard a tape in which trader Gary Wagner protested the 173-contract sale, and Mosky and Scheck agreed to write it off.

But in another trade less than 15 minutes later, Jannett testified, Mosky sold Scheck 100 contracts at 7251 when the market was trading 7253 - handing Scheck a potential profit of $2,500.

Jurors heard two more tapes during the morning session Thursday. The government has indicated it will introduce as many as 130 audio tapes secretly recorded by Jannett in the Merc's Swiss franc pit.

Mosky, Scheck and David Zatz are on trial before U.S. District Judge Ann Williams. The trial is expected to take up to eight weeks.

Jannett, who spent nearly a year posing as a trader in the Swiss franc pit testified Wednesday he observed Mosky and Mark Fuhrman engaging in a non-competitive trade on March 8, 1988, and secretly recorded the transaction.

Fuhrman has pleaded guilty in the case and will appear as a government witness later in the trial.

The tape, like others introduced earlier, was of poor quality, with voices barely discernable amid the uproar of trading. But the government transcript - admitted exclusively as a listening aid for jurors - indicates the tape shows Mosky buying five June Swiss franc contracts from Fuhrman at a price of 7320 to fill customer orders.

Mosky then told Fuhrman, according to the transcript, ''I'll sell you five back.''

The sale was made at a price of 7321, with Mosky making the purchase for his personal account.

But Jannett testified that the market was trading at 7308 to 7310 at the time the transactions were made.

Clearing house records introduced into evidence showed Mosky offset the contracts he bought back from Fuhrman by purchasing four contracts at 7311 and one at 7312.

The net result, Jannett testified, was a profit of $612.50 for Mosky and a loss of $687.50 for Mosky's customers.

In another tape, recorded on March 17, 1988, the government contended Mosky sold Scheck six contracts at a price of 7250 at a time when the market price was 7270 to 7280 - in effect handing Scheck a profit of up to $1,875.

The defense, however, offered alternative - and more detailed - transcripts of that tape and several others.

The defense transcrpits of tapes dealing with the the six-contract transaction involving Mosky and Zatz notes bids and offers in the pits at the time - including several trades at 7250.

Trading at the time - shortly after the release of international trade figures - was hectic, with prices moving up and down by 50 to 100 points or more in seconds.

The defense has contended Jannett was inadequately trained in commodities trading before being sent into the pits and could not properly distinguish trading prices - especially in the volatile market that follows the monthly release of trade figures.

Scheck's attorney, Harvey Silets, has said Jannett frequently mistook verbal order confirmations - required under exchange rules - for pre-arranged trades.

Prosecutors are expected to play more than 100 tapes for jurors.

The government contends Mosky was the mastermind of a scheme that allowed brokers - who trade for public customers of such brokerages houses as Shearson, Lehman Hutton - to escape personal liability for mistakes they make when trading for customers, and to line their pockets at customers' expense.

Prosecutors say Mosky and other brokers recruited locals - traders who trade almost exclusively for their personal accounts - to absorb losses from brokers' trading mistakes.

In exchange for their cooperation, the government alleges, the brokers gave cooperating locals sweetheart deals.

Mosky, 33, of Chicago, is charged with racketeering conspiracy, fraud, and violation of federal commodities trading rules. If convicted, he could be sentenced to up to 415 years in prison.

Scheck, 28, of Skokie, Ill., and Zatz, 43, of Chicago, are charged with fraud and violations of commodities law. If convicted, Scheck would face up to 90 years in prison and Zatz up to 70 years.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - The House Agriculture Committee defeated an attempt Thursday to change farm policy by guaranteeing subsidy payments to farmers instead of using the money only to offset low crop prices.

Supporters said the proposal would give farmers ''a little extra income'' by raising crop target prices whenever market prices improved. Foes warned it was a fundamental change in farm policy and an approach that thumbed its nose at efforts to reduce the federal deficit.

Despite complaints from some members that the committee was ignoring needs of farmers, the committee stuck to an agreement struck last week. It calls for freezing target prices, raising loan rates slightly and creating a soybean marketing loan at a low enough rate that it would cost the government nothing.

The agreement is intended to bring the cost of the bill - once bloated to $25 billion above current law - to a level close to the amount Congress is likely to allot for farm spending.

Even so, Deputy Agriculture Undersecretary John Campbell said ''we are very concerned about the loan rates'' that would be set under the agreement. He said the higher rates would mean little additional money for farmers but ''you run the risk'' of overshooting the market price and discouraging farmers from selling their grain.

Committee leaders wanted to complete work Thursday on the crop support portion of the new five-year farm bill. It appeared unlikely they would meet their goal of finishing the bill this week.

Rep. Jim Jontz, D-Ind., complained the crop support provisions fell ''short of the real situation producers are facing today'' of rising production costs.

Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, pointed to projections that this will be the fifth year in a row for net cash farm income to top $50 billion and said, ''We have to be part of the (deficit) solution somehow.''

Volkmer, who called federal bookkeeping methods unfair to agriculture, said his plan would be counted as budget-neutral but would send the largest possible payments to farmers. Rep. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., said crop subsidies now are supposed to compensate farmers for low market prices but Volkmer would make them into ''a guaranteed entitlement.''

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., said Volkmer's approach ''sets us up for real trouble on the House floor.''

Members rejected Volkmer on a 19-8 vote and defeated, 28-17, an attempt by Rep. David Nagle, D-Iowa, to raise wheat and corn loan rates to a high level. He said that would save money - by reducing the size of subsidy payments - and steer more money to farmers.

''This is not a question on loan rates we are going to be able to ignore '' Nagle said. ''You can move the loan rate up, get your savings now and avoid (budget) sequestration.''

But Glickman said Nagle's loan rates would be higher than expected market prices, which would hamper export sales, stimulate surpluses and, in the end, reduce farm income.

An administration official said it would order large land setasides, which ''could go as high as 20 percent for wheat and feed grains,'' if production got out of hand.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (MAY 24) UPI - Digital Equipment Corp., the computer giant suddenly suffering unaccustomed strains, is seeking this week to come to grips with an uncertain future and explain its plans to anxious observers.

The nation's No. 2 computer maker set aside Thursday and Friday to bring together about 200 securities industry analysts, computer consultants and its own executives at a hotel to talk about where the company is headed.

While some of the analysts were upbeat, others expressed deep unease about the company's prospects.

The last time Digital held such a meeting, more than two years ago, it was still hot. Today the company, based in Maynard, is decidedly cooler.

The computer industry overall is slumping. And Digital is rolling out a program of voluntary job cuts that skirts perilously close to the company's unspeakable word: layoffs.

Although some analysts have urged Digital to forcibly slash its work force many now are satisfied the company is taking sufficient steps.

''I don't think we'll ever see a headline that says Digital is laying off workers,'' said Jay P. Stevens, who follows the company for Dean Witter Reynolds in New York. ''But they'll get people to leave other ways.''

So far the method of choice has been a generous but costly voluntary severance plan that Digital is offering selected employees.

P. Martin Ressinger, an analysts at Duff & Phelps in Chicago, agreed that the voluntary program is ''getting to be a semantic thing. They're getting a little more forceful in getting people to take these things. They are more like a voluntary program than a layoff, but somewhere along the line the difference becomes vague.''

Meanwhile, earnings are weak. Rumors swept Wall Street last month that Digital might report the first loss in its history for the latest quarter. Although Digital earned $24.9 million, or 20 cents a share in its third fiscal quarter ended March 31, it was less than one-tenth of the $256.4 million, or or $2.05 a share, recorded a year earlier. Total revenues climbed 4.3 percent.

As its new line of main frame computers just now reaches market, Digital for the first time enters direct combat in that important segment against the industry titan, International Business Machines Corp.

The question uppermost in many analysts' minds was: how will Digital's new VAX 9000 main frames fare in taking on Big Blue?

Nobody expects a reliable answer sooner than nine months or a year from now.

''I have a fair amount of confidence that they're going to sell a lot of these machines into high-end users'' who already own Digital computers, said Duff & Phelps' Ressinger. ''But once you satisfy this pent-up demand, then we're back to where we were without it.''

Ressinger said the company has to ''start selling these machines as replacements for IBM systems. Digital's got to go after different markets than just being satisifed with feeding the old customer base.''

David Wu, an analyst at S.G. Warburg in New York, warned that Digital President Kenneth H. Olsen ''is charging up the hill against IBM .... And that hill has many bodies on it. He is yet to prove he can take IBM on a frontal attack.''

In Olsen's defense, Digital long has successfully gone head-to-head with IBM in minicomputers.

Some analysts worried the VAX 9000 may not be on schedule. ''The big concern about the meeting is whether they're going to give us some bad news about the 9000,'' Ressinger said.

Even analysts bullish on Digital like Jean W. Orr of Labe, Simpson & Co., who called herself a ''true believer'' in the company, recognize problems. She said the biggest one is a lack of a competitive high-end minicomputer.

But Wu's worries extend beyond just holes in the product lines.

''There are enough concerns. Mr. Olsen is the company fundamentally,'' Wu said of the Digital founder who will be 65 in February. ''There is always concern about what happens if Mr. Olsen gets into an accident. Jack Smith steps in,'' he said, referring to John F. Smith, the senior vice president for operations. ''But I don't know if Jack Smith has had operating responsibility that long.''

In any case, Wu is critical of Olsen's performance in the past decade.

''He made three mistakes in the 1980s. Can he get away without paying heavily?''

Wu blames Olsen for missing the explosion in personal computers, which now constitute a bigger market than main frames. The second mistake was the company's late entry with an industry-standard Unix operating system, Wu said. ''And finally, he was very late in workstations.''

Workstations now are the fastest growing segment of the computer industry.

NEW YORK (MAY 24) UPI - Texaco Inc., the nation's third largest oil company, said Thursday it had agreed to cooperate on research of oilfields in the Soviet Union and elsewhere as a possible first step toward joint business ventures.

''To my knowledge, this is the first such agreement of a U.S. company with the Soviet Union,'' said Harold Zimmerman, general manager of exploration and production for Texaco Europe Research, Inc.

''Texaco sees many possible business opportunities in the Soviet Union. This joint agreement will help ... evaluate the development of long-term cooperation in oil and gas areas,'' said Texaco president Paul Hicks, Jr.

''It's a first step. At this point, it's very open-ended,'' said spokesman Michael Reiter.

The Soviets have been actively offering joint business ventures to western oil companies in exchange for their technology and capital.

The Texaco statement came on the heels of Wednesday's announcement in Paris that the Soviet Union had signed its first exploration and production agreement with a western company, state-owned Elf Aquitaine of France.

Texaco is seeking U.S. Commerce Department approval to supply about $1 million worth of sophisticated computer equipment to the Soviet Union's Ministry of Geology's research institute for use in the cooperative effort Reiter said.

''The computer facilities will process geophysical and geological data for the assessment of oil and gas potential in Soviet and other basins,'' the Texaco statement said.

Reiter declined to identity the type of computers.

The United States has only recently begun to loosen its ban on the export of almost all computers to Moscow as U.S.-Soviet relations eased under Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's policy of glasnost.

In a telephone interview, Zimmerman said the ''other basins'' included eastern and western Europe, Canada and the Middle East.

He said seismic research of Soviet oilfields would include the Caspian, Timan Chora areas and a region west of the Ural Mountains.

Texaco has bought more than one of the six seismic-data packages the Soviet ministry has exclusively licensed Jebco Seismic Ltd of London to sell worldwide for about $1 million each, Zimmerman said.

''I'd rather not say how many we've purchased.''

Reiter said four or five Texaco researchers would be assigned next month to the Soviet ministry in Moscow and a similar number of Soviet scientists would participate in joint studies at Texaco's exploration technology facilities in Houston.

Other U.S. oil companies have also been talking with the Soviets. In March Amoco president Laurance Fuller said his company had been holding discussions with Moscow for the past two years on possible oil exploration in the Soviet Union.

Fuller said the talks had focused on oilfields the Soviets had had problems developing because of technological difficulties and hard-currency capitalization problems.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - Burma's military regime has created ''one of the grimmest human rights situations in Asia and the world,'' the editor of a newly released report by Asia Watch said Thursday.

The report comes amid condemnation of Burma by a U.S. State Department official, who said elections set for Sunday in the country are unlikely to be ''free and fair.''

And in Burma, state-run radio reported Wednesday that nine more opposition politicians were jailed for allegedly organizing an underground movement. Most belonged to the League for Democracy and Peace, founded by former Prime Minister U Nu, who is under house arrest along with other opposition leaders.

''In repression of fundamental rights of expression and political participation, in abuses on the border, forced portering, disappearances and forced relocation of people from the cities, Burma falls into every single category of human rights abuse that we monitor,'' said Patricia Gossman of Asia Watch.

The report released by the human rights group in Washington this week was prepared by James Goldston, an attorney who entered Burma on a tourist visa in April.

Most Western journalists, human rights observers and Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., have been denied entry to Burma in recent days as the May 27 election draws near.

The report said that Burmese ''may be seized at random in train stations, markets and their homes'' and forced to become porters - carrying munitions and supplies into the jungles for the army.

Asia Watch said the porters, who are not paid, are made to walk in front of soldiers under fire and walk through suspected mine fields. Burmese officials denied the charges and said porters are paid for their work.

Among several accounts of brutal treatment cited by the report was the case of a 27-year-old porter who said he saw soldiers beat another man to death when he was too tired to continue carrying his load. He saw three others shot to death after they tried to escape. Other witnesses told Asia Watch that sick and injured porters were left to die.

The report says from 2,000 to 20,000 political prisoners are in jail in Burma, recently renamed Myanmar.

''One source in Rangoon reported that 62 civilian judges had been relieved of their duties in the past year ... for refusing to exceed the legal maximum sentence in cases involving political prisoners,'' the report said.

The human rights group also confirmed U.S. diplomatic reports that as many as 500,000 people were forced to move from their homes since 1988, when the military crushed a pro-democracy movement and shot many protesters.

The Burma government says 500 died but other estimates suggest as many as 10,000 died from March to September 1988.

Asia Watch has called on the United States and other nations to cut off all trade and aid to Burma ''in support of fundamental human rights,'' Gossman said.

Burma grew prosperous following its independence from Britain in 1947, exporting 2 million tons of rice per year as well as crude oil, jade, rubies and saphires.

But since 1962, when General Ne Win seized power from the elected government, the country has deteriorated. In 1987 it was granted least-developed-nation status by the United Nations.

In order to improve its image, Burma called Sunday's elections and allowed political parties to organize. But any criticism of the army and its ruling State Law and Order Restoration Committee has been banned.

TEHRAN, Iran (MAY 24) UPI - A senior Iranian official called for the unconditional release of all Western hostages in Lebanon on humanitarian grounds, regardless of their nationalities, an English-language newspaper reported Thursday.

But Hossein Musavian, a senior foreign ministry official, was also quoted as saying in the interview with the Tehran Times that it is up to the Lebanese groups holding the hostages to decide their fate.

''Regarding goodwill ... I should say the United States has not so far shown any notable goodwill,'' Musavian said.

Musavian, who is director general for European Affairs in the foreign ministry, cautioned that, ''here, it is the Lebanese groups who decide.''

''Of course, regarding our own hostages, we have specifically asked the West, and we reiterate this appeal, to use its influence'' with Lebanese Christian forces to have them freed.

He was referring to four Iranians believed taken prisoner by Lebanese Christian Phalangist militiamen in 1982. Iran insists they are still alive and wants them freed.

Musavian, who headed an Iranian delegation at talks with European Community representatives in Dublin last week, called on Washington to make a goodwill gesture to Iran following the release of two American hostages in Lebanon last month.

He said Iran would consider it a goodwill gesture if the United States began releasing its financial assets, worth billions and blocked in U.S. banks since the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran during the 1979 revolution.

Iranian and U.S. officials returned to The Hague on Monday for discussions on Tehran's claims related to $11 billion worth of military contracts signed during the shah's regime but abrogated after the 1979 revolution.

Both sides have said the talks at The Hague were not linked to the fate of the Western hostages but since two American hostages were released by their Lebanese captors last month, Iran has repeatedly called for a goodwill response from Washington.

The United States insists on the release of all American hostages before there are changes in policy.

Robert Polhill and Frank Reed were released by their Lebanese captors after Iran and Syria intervened, but 16 other Westerners, including six Americans, are still held by pro-Iranian Shi'ite groups in Lebanon.

Besides focusing on the billions in Iranian assets held in the United States, and the four Iranians in Lebanon, Tehran has also called for the release of Palestinians and Lebanese held in Israeli jails.

In particular, Iran wants Israel to free Shi'ite cleric Sheikh Abdel Karim Obeid, abducted by Israeli commandos in south Lebanon last July.

LONDON (MAY 24) UPI - Stock prices closed lower Thursday in erratic trading on London International stock exchange.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 23.9 points Wednesday, lost another 10.3 points to 2,277.1. The narrower top 30 industrial average slipped 4.8 points to 1,805.2.

Volume amounted to around 420 million shares, compared with 542 million shares changing hands on Wednesday.

With most European financial centers closed for the Ascension Day holiday, analysts said many overseas investors were absent from the market, leaving trading volume lower than in recent days.

Analysts said prices eased after the U.S. Commerce Department reported the nation's gross national product expanded at a revised annual rate of 1.3 percent on a seasonally adjusted basis in the first quarter. The revision was well below the 1.8 percent rate expected by the market, they said.

Elsewhere on the economic front, the Central Statistical Office reported Britain's industrial production rose 1.8 percent in March from February and was up 1.7 percent from March 1989.

Output in the energy sector, which can vary greatly with swings in the oil market, rose 2.1 percent in March from February and was up 0.1 percent from a year earlier, the government report showed.

Market analysts said the report was almost totally ignored by large investors.

Among the day's most widely traded stocks, MEPC, the property company, fell 28 cents to $7.87 after issuing a warning that investment values were likely to be in decline through the year. The company made the announcement in reporting its latest pretax profits climbed 20 percent.

Thorn EMI climbed 50 cents to $11.72 on news of talks with GTE about a possible sale of Thorn Lighting and following satisfactory fourth-quarter figures and reorganization plans.

British Telecom gained 14 cents to $4.59 after reporting its latest earnings dipped 5.5 percent, in line with analysts' expectations.

B.A.T Industries gained 24 cents to $11.18 after reporting favorable results.

Oil and related issues were overshadowed by reports of U.S. crude stocks rising to their highest level in eight years. Burmah Oil was off 17 cents to $9.84.

In West Germany and several other countries, stock exchanges, banks and most businesses were closed for the Ascension Day holiday.

Trading will resume Friday.

OLDSMAR, FL (MAY 24) UPI - Law officials investigating the disappearance of Republican gubernatorial candidate Anthony Martin's 6-year-old son sought Thursday to find the boy's mother, suspecting that she might have taken the child.

The Pinellas County sheriff's office issued a national bulletin Wednesday on Martin's disappearance, calling it a ''possible parental abduction.''

Sheriff's Sgt. Greg Tita said the mother, Helga Gehrke, returned a rental car Thursday that officials believe she used to pick up the child on Wednesday.

''She was last seen getting into a van. They have recovered the rental car she was seen picking the child up in,'' he said.

Tita said officials were virtually certain the woman was Gehrke.

''Our understanding is that she may still be in Florida but she may be on her way out of the state,'' he said.

Tita said authorities were alerted to watch airports.

Meanwhile, Martin called a news conference for Thursday afternoon to discuss the case.

The boy was reported missing Wednesday after he failed to meet his aunt after school, sheriff's deputies said.

Sheriffs Sgt. Wallace Colcord, said Anthony Martin IV was seen getting into a late-model silver or gold car driven by an unidentified woman at the Oldsmar Christian Elementary School about 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

''He is possibly in the company of his mother, Helga Gehrke, who also goes by Steward and the possible destination is Shokan, N.Y.,'' Colcord said.

The child, who has blond hair and hazel eyes, is a kindergarten student at the private school. He has lived with his father for the past three years and is the subject of a custody dispute between his parents.

''She has made no attempt to contact him (the boy) for a year, since this thing started,'' said Martin. ''He would certainly want to talk to her. I have not called her. I don't have her number. If it is her I'm frightened for the safety of the child. It would be stupid to take him because it would not look good in court.''

Martin, who was campaigning in Orlando when he received word that his son was missing, returned to Oldsmar late Wednesday.

At Martin's request, FBI agents in Tampa entered the investigation about two hours after the initial report was filed.

Federal law gives the agency the authority to investigate anything that interferes with a candidate for public office, said Paula Brownlee, a spokeswoman for the FBI office in Tampa.

The child is 4 feet tall and weighs 70 pounds.

(MAY 24) UPI - Who scored the first goal? Who played for two World cup teams? Who scored the most World Cup goals?

Ask no more. Here is everything you wanted to know about World Cup soccer.

A First for Everything

Teams at first World Cup - Argentina, Brazil, Uruguay, Paraguay, United States, France, Mexico, Chile, Yugoslavia, Bolivia, Romania, Peru and Belgium.

First game - Mexico vs. France in Montevideo, Uruguay on July 13, 1930. France won 4-1.

First goal - Louis Laurent of France in the first half against Mexico.

First multiple-goal game - Maschinot of France, who scored twice in the opener against Mexico.

First hat trick - Guillermo Stabile of Argentina in 6-3 victory over Mexico (1930).

First penalty kick - In Argentina's 6-3 victory over Mexico in 1930. There were five called by Bolivian referee Ulysses Saucedo.

First tie - Italy 1, Spain 1 (1934).

First replay - Italy edged Spain 1-0 after the first tie in 1934.

First shutout - United States 3, Belgium 0 (1930).

First scoreless tie - Brazil 0, England 0 (1958).

First own goal - Ernst Loertscher for Switzerland vs. Germany (1938).

First ejection - Cierro of Argentina in 1930.

First substitute - 1970 in Mexico.

First injury - To French goalkeeper Alex Thepot, who was kicked in the jaw by a Mexican player 10 minutes into his country's 4-1 victory in 1930.

First title game - Uruguay vs. Argentina (1930 in Uruguay). Uruguay won 4-2.

First televised game - 1954 in Switzerland.

First goal scored in less than a minute - Veinante of France, 40 seconds into his country's 3-1 victory over Belgium (1938).

First penalty-kick tiebreaker - West Germany's semifinal victory over France in 1982. The teams were tied 3-3 after regulation, but West Germany prevailed 5-4 in the tiebreaker.

First World Cup mascot - World Cup Willie (lion-like boy), 1966 in England.

Countries participating for first time inosta Rica and Ireland.

First participant from outside Europe or the Americas - Egypt in 1934.

The Only Time ...

A country played in every World Cup - Brazil, 14 this year.

Four teams from British Isles qualified - 1958 (England, Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales advanced to final 16).

A host team had to qualify - Italy in 1934.

A player scored in consecutive World Cup title games - Vava of Brazil (1958, 1962).

A player recorded a hat trick in a title game - England's Geoff Hurst against West Germany (1966).

Countries lost consecutive title games - Holland (1974, 1978) and West Germany (1982, 1986).

A team won the title outside its hemisphere - Brazil in Sweden (1958).

A player scored in every game - Just Fontaine of France (1958), scoring a record 13 goals in six games, and Jairinho of Brazil (1970), scoring seven goals in six games.

Someone played for two World Cup teams - Luisito Monti, for Argentina (1930) and Italy (1934).

A father-son combination played - Domingus Da Guia of Brazil (1938) and his son, Ademir Da Guia (1974).

Pele File

The Brazilian great never led a World Cup in scoring, nor is he the all-time scoring leader. He is third, with 12 goals, behind West Germany's Gerd Mueller (14 in two World Cups) and France's Just Fontaine (13 in one World Cup).

Pele played in four World Cups and is the only player to have been on three championship teams (1958, 1962, 1970).

LONDON (MAY 24) UPI - England World Cup Coach Bobby Robson confirmed Thursday that he will resign after next month's tournament in Italy to become coach of Dutch club PSV Eindhoven.

Robson, who has a year left on his contract, revealed his plans at a hastily arranged news conference at England's Football Association headquarters, but denied newspaper reports that he already had resigned.

''I have never offered my resignation to the Football Association,'' Robson told reporters. ''It's appalling rubbish and there's no truth in it.''

Several newspapers had reported that Robson resigned Wednesday because of allegations about his private life, particularly the soon-to-be-published book concerning his relationship with an alleged former lover.

''It's garbage and I was stunned when I heard about this last night,'' Robson said. ''The facts are that I received an offer from abroad and openly and honestly and directly went to see our (FA) chairman, Bert Millichip.

''He said to me that he did not think my contract would be extended and he did not know what would happen in the World Cup and I accepted that. I didn't think there was a job for me and he gave me full permission to speak to PSV.

''But resign - why should I do that on the eve of going out with the players to try to win the World Cup? I have worked hard for four years to get us from one World Cup to another and on the eve of us leaving for the championships, this happens.''

Robson said he had told reporters the previous evening that there was no truth to allegations that he offered to resign after learning Janet Rush is writing a book revealing details of their five-year affair.

''It is confusing the whole issue with something shady coming from a situation revealed 18 months ago coming out of something 13 years ago,'' he said.

In an increasingly rowdy atmosphere as photographers swarmed around him, Robson fought to retain his dignity.

''It was a very untimely moment - morale was good with me in charge and thinking of nothing else (but the World Cup),'' he said. ''But that has been ruined and will have affected the preparations for the sake of a flimsy story.''

FA chief executive Graham Kelly said the organization has agreed to release Robson from his contract as England's coach after the World Cup to allow him to join PSV Eindhoven.

''The fact is that Mr. Robson would leave the FA after the World Cup with our best wishes for his future, and thanks for the work he has done for England, the game and the FA,'' he said.

Robson said that after informing Millichip of his impending decision and meeting with Kelly, it was decided that the announcement would be made after England's first World Cup training session at Sardinia, Italy.

''But the press has ruined that and I must now go and speak to 22 important players to tell them what is going on,'' Robson said.

The fiery coach added that his planned departure was not unique, noting Cesar Menotti coached Argentina to the World Cup title in 1978 after stating that he would leave after the tournament to join Spanish club Barcelona.

''I will be very sorry to leave England, but I am not going to let it affect my efforts and our efforts over the next few weeks,'' Robson said.

NEW YORK (MAY 24) UPI - NBC eked out a narrow win in the May ratings sweeps, finishing only two-tenths of a ratings point ahead of second-place CBS, according to figures released Thursday.

''We are not conceding defeat in the Nielsens yet,'' David Poltrack, CBS senior vice president of planning and research, told a news conference and then got a laugh by adding, ''although we are projecting it.''

''I think this is the closest sweeps since May 1983,'' said Bob Niles, NBC vice president, research, an his network's news conference. ''Before that you have to go back to the 1960s.''

He added later: ''A win is a win.''

The closeness of the NBC win and CBS's belief that the Nielsen People Meter method of measuring audiences shows a bias against CBS, led Poltrack to say that while the CBS Television Network may have come in second, it is possible that when all the numbers are counted - in about three weeks - the CBS affiliates may come out ahead of the NBC stations.

This is the sixth consecutive May sweeps win for NBC, the ninth consecutive sweeps win and the 20th win out of the last 21 sweeps dating back to May 1985.

The sweeps numbers, which may change slightly but not significantly when Wednesday night, May 23, is added in, saw NBC with a 12.0 rating and a 21 share. CBS had an 11.8 rating and a 21 share, while ABC had an 11.4 rating and a 20 share.

There are four sweeps periods during the year - November, February, May and July - when the ratings companys go into 200 local markets to check viewing. Local advertising rates are based largely on sweeps, which also influence network rates.

NBC was the leader on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, CBS took Mondays and Sundays, the two most-watched nights of the week, and ABC was No. 1 on Tuesdays and Fridays.

Also significant for NBC, it was in the cellar on four nights - Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Sunday. CBS placed last on Wednesday and Saturday and ABC on Thursday.

ABC's ''America's Funniest Home Videos'' was the No. 1 regular series during sweeps, followed by ''Cheers'' (NBC) and ''Roseanne'' (ABC).

Fox Broadcasting was represented in the top 20 for the first time with ''Married...With Children'' in 17th and ''The Simpsons'' in 18th.

Among the made-for-television movies, ''Caroline'' (CBS) was No. 1, followed by ''Fall From Grace'' (ABC). ''Shattered Dreams'' (CBS) was third.

Only two miniseries aired during the May sweeps, ABC's ''Voices Within: The Lives of Truddi Chase,'' which had a respectable 15.1 rating and a 25 share, and NBC's ''People Like Us,'' which barely escaped a single digit rating with a 10.0, and a 17 share.

''I Love Lucy: The Very First Show'' (CBS) was the top rated special, followed by three ABC programs that had ''Home Videos'' for a lead-in - ''America's Funniest...Part II,'' ''Tim Conway's Funny America'' and ''Anything For Laughs.''

Network audience erosion continued, as the three-network share of homes using television dropped from 64.8 percent in May 1989 to 61.4 percent in May 1990.

Among the alternatives to network viewing, independent stations were up three tenths of a rating point, attributable to Fox Broadcasting, PBS was up one-tenth of a rating point and cable-originated programming was up 1.9 ratings points. Superstations, and pay services were down.

In news, ABC's ''World News Tonight'' with Peter Jennings was No. 1 with a 9.5 rating, ''CBS Evening News'' with Dan Rather was second with an 8.5 rating and ''NBC Nightly News'' with Tom Brokaw was third with an 8.1 rating.

Each ratings point represents about 921,000 households and a share is the percentage of TV sets tuned to a particular show.

The top regular series for the May sweeps, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. America's Funniest Home Videos (ABC)

2. Cheers (NBC)

3. Roseanne (ABC)

4. The Cosby Show (NBC)

5. A Different World (NBC)

6. 60 Minutes (CBS)

7. Empty Nest (NBC)

8. L.A. Law (NBC)

9. (three-way tie) Unsolved Mysteries (NBC)

CBS Sunday Movie

Designing Women (CBS)

NEW YORK (MAY 25) UPI - A ''pronounced slowdown'' in U.S. bank lending has been caused by reduced commercial borrowing demand rather than a credit squeeze feared by some business people, the Conference Board said in a report for release Friday.

Gail Fosler, chief economist of the international business organization, said that from her analysis, ''There is no evidence of a credit crisis, managed or otherwise, brewing in the financial system.''

She added, ''Nor is there reason to expect one.''

Fosler said that the U.S. financial system is ''risky'' now and real estate in many areas is ''vulnerable.''

''But the slowdown in lending is not due to credit nervousness by banks as much as lack of demand by business,'' she said.

The expansion of business debt ''continues to be high'' in relation to the ''rather sluggish growth in the economy,'' she added.

The economist noted that one reason banks are lending less to business is that their share of business funding has been on a declining path. Commercial banks now supply less than 15 percent of new business credit.

For some time now companies have been raising capital at lower costs through issuance of commercial paper or other non-bank sources, she said.

The same pattern has emerged in real estate, where commercial banks and savings and loan institutions account for less than 40 percent of all mortgage-related lending.

Fosler did warn, though, that even if slower credit growth is not hurting the U.S. economy it is sending a ''troubling message'' to the Federal Reserve, the U.S. central bank which determines credit availability.

''With the growth in lending sources outside of the banking system, the Fed doesn't have the same control it once had because it must depend on the efficiency of credit markets to translate interest rate changes to the real economy,'' Fosler told Conference Board associates.

''This means the Fed must stand firm against pressure in Washington to lower interest rates. If the Fed lets inflation move out of the 4-4.5 percent rate to which the economy has grown accustomed in recent years, interest rates could rise sharply - as we have seen in Japan.''

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - The Pentagon acknowledged Thursday that a specific safety study is under way on the nuclear short-range missile carried on U.S. ''alert'' bombers, but insisted the weapon is safe despite concerns raised by experts.

The directors of three U.S. nuclear weapons laboratories told Congress a day earlier that the Short-Range Attack Missile-A, or SRAM-A, carried aboard Air Force B-1, B-52 and FB-111 bombers poses unacceptable safety risks and should be considered for removal from service and placed into storage.

''I think that's the direction we're going,'' Energy Undersecretary John Tuck told the Senate Armed Services subcommittee on strategic forces, disclosing that a SRAM-A safety study is under way and should be completed next month.

No details on the exact safety concern were given in the open congressional hearing.

The Washington Post reported that U.S. officials who requested anonymity said the laboratory directors have been concerned for more than a year about what they consider substantial risks that accidental fires aboard bombers could cause the missiles to explode and disperse radioactive material.

''The SRAM-A currently meets all of the safety standards for that weapon

'' Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams insisted Thursday. ''There is nothing unsafe about the SRAM-A. There is a study going on about (safety) procedures. ...

''The study was initiated by the Department of Defense, as a result of the joint Department of Defense-Department of Energy Nuclear Weapons Council recommendation.''

However, Williams said he did not know when the study was initiated and was not certain what prompted it.

Asked about the U.S. scientists' suggestion that consideration be given to taking the weapons out of circulation, Williams said, ''There is a specific study of that question going on now. I think it would be unwise and premature to predict the outcome of that study.''

He also said those suggestions by the scientists to the Senate panel ''were part scientific and part political,'' based on the lessened Soviet threat in Eastern Europe. ''I think the two were mixed in.''

Testifying before Congress Wednesday were Albert Narath, president of Sandia National Laboratories in Albuquerque, N.M.; John Nuckolls, director of the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory in California; and Sigfried Hecker, director of the Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico.

''From a safety standpoint, I do not feel comfortable (with keeping the SRAM-A on the alert bombers),'' Hecker told the Senate panel, expressing views similar to the other two directors who recommended the weapon be put in storage.

Williams said, ''The general subject of the safety of the SRAM-A is the subject of this study and I don't think it's proper to make a decision about grounding it or not using it in exercises until we see the results of the study.''

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (MAY 24) UPI - Dissidents staged protests in Seoul and provincial cities Thursday denouncing the alleged U.S. role in the 1980 Kwangju pro-democracy uprising 10 years ago.

The group also opposed President Roh Tae-woo's current three-day visit to Japan.

The National Democratic Alliance of Korea, a hard-core dissident group, said it delivered a letter to the American Embassy in Seoul seeking U.S. apologies in connection with the Kwangju, in which nearly 200 people.

''We firmly believe that the United States cannot be free from responsibility for the Kwangju massacre because the United States has had close relations with (South) Korea and holds operational control over (South) Korean forces,'' the letter said.

In Kwangju, 170 miles south of Seoul, and five other cities about 5,000 students held rallies on a dozen campuses and clashed with police in continuing actions commemorating the nine-day democracy revolt which erupted on May 18, 1980, the domestic Yonhap News Agency said.

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA (MAY 24) UPI - Anti-government activists bounced back from their devastating election defeat Thursday with a massive rally marking what one protester called ''the last day before communism takes over.''

About 12,000 people - the largest crowd yet - filled a central Bucharest square where opponents of the National Salvation Front have been demonstrating non-stop for 33 days.

Several thousand others were expected to stage a protest march from a Bucharest cemetery in renewed unrest on the eve of President-elect Ion Iliescu's inauguration.

''This is the last day before communism takes over,'' said one demonstrator, a 27-year-old economist who identified herself only as Marilena.

''We don't want to be communist again,'' she said. ''Communism makes us like slaves. It tells us what to think.''

Her comments summed up opposition fears that the Front will eliminate its opponents and install a communist-like regime following its landslide victory in Sunday's elections.

Iliescu, who like many of the Front's leaders was once a top communist party official, garnered more than 85 percent of the vote in Romania's first contested elections in half a century.

He told a news conference Wednesday there was ''no danger of sliding back to communism'' under his new government.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Ioan Ilie said the ''neo-communist'' label the opposition has tried to pin on Iliescu was ''nonsensical.''

''Iliescu belonged to the nomenclatura (communist bureaucracy) 20 years ago, and was the first to oppose the nomenclatura and fight against (former dictator Nicolae) Ceausescu, despite knowing he would lose his privileges,'' Ilie said.

A former secretary of the communist party Central Committee, Iliescu was kicked out of the leadership in 1984 and banished to an obscure position after opposing Ceausescu's policies.

But some of the speakers at Thursday's anti-government demonstration said they believe Iliescu is still a communist at heart.

''We are only frightened of one thing,'' said a 72-year-old protester who identified himself as Stefan. ''We're frightened of the way Iliescu was educated: to lie ... and give credence to the lie.''

The size of Thursday's anti-government demonstration came as a surprise to some observers, who predicted the protests would quickly subside after the Front's convincing election win. But Ilie said the new government would not try to halt the protests, no matter how annoying they may be.

''The government is loath to forbid the demonstration,'' Ilie said. ''They let them stay there and shout and so on. Probably they could stay there all their lives if they wanted to.''

But a high-ranking Front member, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said, ''If I had my way I'd personally go and beat up the lot of them.''

''I have friends who live near the square and they're sick to death of hearing the chants and songs and shouting through the megaphone day and night,'' he said. ''I know most of my fellow Bucharestians agree with me.''

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - President Bush vetoed Thursday legislation to increase federal money for Amtrak, saying ''an unprecedented new regulatory requirement represents a step backward for the entire railroad industry.''

In a letter to Congress, Bush said the proposed provision that would tighten the regulation of takeovers of freight railroads by non-railroad entities represents an ''unwarranted roadblock to financial restructuring.''

''There is already adequate authority to protect the public interest in acquisition situations,'' said Bush. He noted that takeovers are scrutinized by the government to protect competition.

The House, which passed the bill 322-93, is expected to be able to muster the necessary two-thirds vote for a veto override. But it is uncertain if the Senate will be able to do so.

Bush had until midnight Saturday to veto the authorization bill or to allow it to become law. The Office of Management and Budget and Transportation Department opposed the measure due largely to the takeover provision.

Amtrak is a privately owned passenger service, but is partially subsidized by the federal government.

The legislation would have given Amtrak greater stability by authorizing it $630 million retroactive to fiscal 1989, $656 million in fiscal 1990 and $684 million in fiscal 1991.

In addition, the measure would pump $17 million a year for two years into Amtrak's treasury by changing the formula by which it contributes to the railroad unemployment insurance fund.

Amtrak had said the money would have allowed it to obtain equipment needed to handle increased ridership.

The measure has been a hot political issue.

Virginia's congressional delegation recently sent Bush a letter urging him to sign the bill because it would remove the final obstactle to commuter rail service from Washington to Fredericksburg, Va., and Manassas, Va.

Rep. Thomas Tauke, R-Iowa, had also pressed for Bush's signature as chief sponsor of the freight-regulation provision. It grew out of a hostile takeover bid for the Chicago & North Western Railroad, which serves Iowa.

Bush, in announcing his veto to Congress, said the bill ''contains an unprecedented new regulatory review requirement and represents a step backward for the entire rail industry.''

''This new regulatory review burden would interfere with the ability of the nation's largest freight railroads to obtain needed capital or to change existing capital structure,'' Bush said.

''The rejuvenation of the rail industry since 1980 is due in large part to Congress's decision to lift outdated and counterproductive government oversights.''

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan put forth a plan to have states ban cigarette vending machines and take other anti-smoking measures, but it was criticized Thursday as "half-hearted" and inconsistent with other administration policy.

Sullivan told the Senate Finance Committee that every state should pass legislation to ban the vending machines to help keep cigarettes out of the hands of children.

He also called for states to license cigarette sales, requiring that stores only sell to adults, and to rely on civil, not criminal, penalties to avoid court delays in imposing penalties for violators. "The fact is, tobacco merchants profit handsomely from the seduction of our young people " Sullivan said.

The secretary called "abysmal" the enforcement of laws in 44 states and in Washington, D.C., prohibiting cigarette sales to minors. But the states, not Congress, should pass his new anti-smoking initiatives, he said.

"Rather than come in and try to develop another federal bureaucracy operated out of Washington, we really think it is appropriate to have this at the state and local level," Sullivan said.

Sen. John Breaux, D-La., charged the administration wants to make a case about the evils of tobacco yet allows U.S. cigarettes to be exported and provides prices supports for tobacco products.

"It seems to me, you're trying to have it both ways on behalf of the administration," Breaux said. "It seems you ought to get a consistent policy."

Sullivan, calling Breaux's characterization incorrect, said the issue involves trade equity. "The fact is, tobacco is a legal product even though it causes all of the problems I have alluded to," Sullivan said. "We open our borders to importation of cars, stereos and computer chips and other products from other nations because we have a market here."

Charles Whitley of the Tobacco Institute opposed Sullivan's plan, saying the current alcohol licensing system has failed to reduce drinking by underage teenagers, so it cannot be expected to work for tobacco. The institute also opposes a ban on vending machines.

Sullivan's program for the states builds on other widely publicized anti-smoking efforts. He has denounced as "blood money" tobacco company sponsorship of athletic events and attacked R.J. Reynolds' plans to do test-marketing of Uptown cigarettes on blacks and to target Dakota cigarettes to young working-class women.

Sen. Thomas Daschle, D-S.D., also laced into the Dakota promotion for its use of his state's name, which is identified with native American Indians.

"If it's Dakota today, is it Texas tomorrow?" Daschle asked. "It's outrageous. It's the most flagrant violation of the name that we've seen in 100 years and it has to be stopped one way or another."

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - President Bush, saying economic moves against Beijing would hurt American business and the Chinese people, announced Thursday that he would renew most-favored-nation trading status for China despite its anti-democracy crackdown.

The announcement, which had been predicted by administration officials for several days, came less than two weeks before the first anniversary of the June 4 massacre in Tiananmen Square, where hundreds and perhaps thousands of pro-democracy demonstrators were killed by tank-led troops.

"This was a difficult decision, weighing our impulse to lash out in outrage that we all feel against a sober assessment of our nation's longterm interests," Bush told a news conference. "I concluded that it is in our best interest, and in the interest of the Chinese people, to continue China's trade status. "Not to do so would hurt the United States," he said.

Democrats in Congress, angered by Bush's insistence on maintaining high-level contact with the Chinese government and his refusal to take strong steps against it, vowed to overturn his decision and revoke China's status as a preferred trading partner.

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine called the president's decision "profoundly wrong," and promised, "We're going to do everything we can to prevent it from taking effect."

Congress can pass legislation overturning Bush's decision, but would have to muster a two-thirds vote in the House and Senate to override the president's veto.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., indicated that there was widespread support for revoking China's trade status. "Across the board, from the most liberal members to the most conservative members of both parties there is a great deal of concern," Foley said.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, promised hearings on the decision and said Bush's "policy of accommodation toward China has not worked to this point."

Bush, who served as the first U.S. envoy to China after diplomatic ties were re-established in 1974, angrily dismissed suggestions that he was soft on human rights abuses there.

"What irks me is when some of the people up on the Hill accuse me of being less interested than they are in human rights. I think we're on the right track here," he said.

"Most important of all, as we mark the anniversary of Tiananmen, we must realize that by maintaining our involvement with China, we will continue to promote the reforms for which the victims of Tiananmen gave their lives." "Taking MFN away," he said, "would hurt the Chinese people themselves. I do not want to do that."

Most-favored-nation status is reserved for the best trading partners of the United States and offers the freest access to U.S. markets. In most products, MFN means the difference between five percent to ten percent duty rates, compared to 40 percent to 50 percent for products not covered by the preferential status.

U.S.-China trade in 1989 added up to $18 billion, with China exporting $12 billion to the United States and the United States exporting $5.8 billion worth of goods.

After the massacre, Bush suspended military sale and high-level contact with the Beijing government as well as some trade and investment promotion programs. Months later, he was criticized for dispatching two top aides on secret missions to Beijing.

Citing the $6 billion in U.S. exports to China, a resulting loss of American jobs and a billion-dollar impact on Hong Kong, Bush said his decision was also based on his desire to avoid further deterioration in relations with China and not on recent moves by the leadership, which he conceded "are far from adequate."

"I don't think this is a reward to Beijing. I think it is very important we keep these commercial contacts," he said. "This decision is the proper decision, and it has nothing to do with saying we're condoning human rights excesses."

The U.S.-China Business Council was pleased. "We agree that China will eventually return to the policies of reform and openness to new ideas and that continued private commercial contacts will bring that day closer."

NEW YORK (MAY 24) UPI - Admitted inside trader Ivan Boesky deducted half of the $100 million he paid in a government plea bargain from his personal income taxes, his attorney said Thursday.

Boesky, who also turned government informant and served prison time as part of his plea agreement, wrote the $50 million off as a capital expenditure on his 1986 tax return, attorney Charles Davidow said.

The revelation came at the securities fraud trial of John Mulheren, where Boesky is appearing as the government's star witness. Mulheren, accused of helping Boesky evade taxes and securities laws in exchange for valuable investment tips, was implicated when Boesky agreed to cooperate with the government's investigation into corruption on Wall Street.

U.S. District Judge Miriam Goldman Cedarbaum granted a request by Mulheren's attorney that the jury be allowed to hear about Boesky's tax deduction. "It only goes to show that the $100 million was not really as painful or expensive as it appears," the judge said.

Of the money Boesky paid the government, $50 million represented his ill-gotten gains and was taken as the tax deduction, his attorney said. That money was placed in a fund to repay victims of his crimes. The other $50 million was a fine, and not taken as a tax deduction, the attorney said.

Thomas Puccio continued his grueling cross-examination of Boesky Thurdsday, hammering away at Boesky's financial dealings. Boesky testified he was worth "more than $100 million, but less than $1 billion" when he became a government informant in 1986. When Boesky was sentenced 15 months later, his attorneys said his fortune was nearly wiped out.

The deal with the government "has been very onerous," Boesky said. When Mulheren's attorney, Thomas Puccio, referred to the fine as "only" $50 million, Boesky interrupted him to say, "Don't minimize that amount, sir." "It is not only $50 million," Boesky added, breaking into a rare smile. "I think it was a record."

Puccio asked Boesky what became of the rest of his fortune, but Boesky responded by saying he did not recall his financial activities 1986. He said he did not remember disposing of any assets before he cooperated with the government.

Boesky said he faces lawsuits totalling more than $1 billion, but admitted he hasn't paid out any settlements.

Dressed in a dark suit and often fidgeting with his halfglasses, Boesky grew terse under the relentless questioning. He said he did not recall once making a speech that said "greed is healthy," nor did he remember a litany of inside trading deals in which Puccio claimed the profits totaled almost $200 million.

He also carefully skirted a question as to whether he revealed all his crimes to government investigators as part of his plea bargain. "I have told the government 100 percent of what they wanted to know," he said. Mulheren, who faces 41 counts of fraud and conspiracy, watched Boesky intently, occasionally breaking into a slight smile.

Mulheren, 50, once allegedly threatened to shoot Boesky for informing on him and is on probation on gun charges stemming from the 1988 incident. His family blamed the incident on Mulheren's failure to take the medicine he uses to control manic-depression.

Boesky, 53, pleaded guilty to securities law violations and also agreed to pay the $100 million to settle civil charges of trading on non-public information. He was sentenced to three years in prison and was released last month from a Brooklyn halfway house.

NEW YORK (MAY 24) UPI - AIDS Thursday claimed the life of Andy Lippincott, the gay Doonesbury character whose illness last year triggered protests from readers of the comic strip.

Lippincott, the only gay character in a nationally syndicated daily comic, was diagnosed with AIDS in March last year in a sequence of strips by Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist Garry Trudeau. Several of the 900 newspapers that carry the strip refused to print the AIDS sequences, which received a mixed reaction from the gay community.

In Thursday's strip, Lippincott, an affable man who had attempted to cope with the devastating disease with a continual patter of gallows humor, dies quietly in his bed, the window open to a sunny day and a coveted C.D. of the Beach Boy's "Wouldn't It be Nice'' playing.

Last year's strips had drawn fire from the gay community for being insensitive. In one of them, Lippincott's doctor tries to keep his spirits up with an exchange of black humor, commenting, "You know your jammies clash with your lesions, don't you?"

The next day, his old friend Joanie Caucus fainted at seeing how emaciated he had become, and the doctor observes, "You still make'em swoon, kid!" "Well, women, sure," Lippincott replied. "A lot of good that does me."

"Last year, he had some tasteless jokes in it about the Kaposi's sarcoma lesions," said Carrisa Cunningham, a spokeswoman for the Gay Men's Health Crisis. "I think what he's been doing this year has been much more sensitive and true to life and actually pretty moving.

"I think it's been pretty well done. A lot of people who read the strip feel like they knew someone with AIDS and knew someone who died. I read it this morning and I felt pretty sad," Cunningham said.

Some newspapers also refused to carry sequences of the strip in 1976, when Lippincott was introduced to readers and, after dating Caucus for a time in law school at the University of California at Berkeley, revealed that he was gay. "Well, what's wrong with that? I'm usually cheerful too," Caucus said before getting the point.

After law school, Lippincott, worked as an aide for Congresswoman Lacey Davenport, as did Caucus, appearing in the strip as it meandered through life, commenting on current affairs.

As in last year's controversy, some newspapers rejected the gay series as possibly offensive to readers, but publication was eventually resumed and the storyline accepted without problems, said Lee Salem, Trudeau's editor at Universal Press Syndicate in Kansas City, Mo. Trudeau, who won a Pulitzer in 1975 for the strip, was a finalist this year for work that included the AIDS story, Salem said.

NEWARK, NJ (MAY 24) UPI - The former heads of two New Jersey housing authorities were sentenced to prison Thursday for taking thousands of dollars in bribes from an electrical contractor.

John Sudia, 67, who resigned as executive director in Carteret in 1986, received a four-year term. He admitted getting $55,000 from Alfred Bressaw a Woodbridge contractor who received contracts worth 10 times the size of the bribe.

U.S. District Judge Harold Ackerman imposed a 27-month term on Gene Tomasso, 63, former executive director of the Woodbridge authority, who pleaded guilty to taking $14,000 in bribes. Because Tomasso's sentence was under new federal guidelines that allow no parole, the two men will serve about the same amount of time behind bars.

''This was a financial deed,'' the judge said as he sentenced Sudia. ''Mr. Bressaw made a profit on it, and Mr. Sudia made money. This was a way of doing business.''

Sudia and Tomasso, who also admitted tax evasion when they pleaded guilty in February, were also ordered to pay fines of $40,000. Ackerman suggested that both were well able to pay by refinancing their own homes and vacation houses.

The investigation began more than two years ago when auditors for the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development noticed that Bressaw's company, Alfred Bressaw Inc. of Woodbridge, was getting large contracts from several authorities, all of them paid for as ''emergency appropriations.'' Bressaw admitted his guilt and agreed to wear a secret tape recording device.

Ackerman gave Bressaw a nine-month term Wednesday, saying he only cooperated when confronted with overwhelming evidence of his guilt. The contractor was also ordered to pay a $75,000 fine.

Tomasso's lawyer, Steven Altman, argued for a reduced sentence or probation, suggesting that Tomasso was under severe strain because of an alcoholic son, who died in January. But Assistant U.S. Attorney Paul Brickfield said that although Tomasso's personal problems were great, he was able to function effectively on his job while he was taking Bressaw's money.

CHICAGO (MAY 24) UPI - Corn and soybean futures continued to be sensitive to the weather and closed higher Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Short-covering and the lack of selling interest boosted corn and soybeans as forecasters predicted scattered rain the rest of the week. That raised the possibility of further delays in corn and soybean planting which already is behind normal. Commercials and commission houses were featured buyers.

Soybean oil and meal also ended the day higher, partly on indications that recent losses were overdone.

Wheat rallied after President Bush announced he will renew China's most-favored-nation status for one year. At the same time, the President said he won't grant the same benefits to the Soviet Union until the Soviets liberalize their emigration policies.

The lack of export business limited the gains across the floor.

Country movement was light.

MOSCOW (MAY 24) UPI - Scientists are baffled by the deaths of 4 million starfish that have washed up on the northern Soviet coast recently, the official news agency Tass reported Thursday.

The dead starfish are piling up in a 6-8 inch layer along a 18.6-mile stretch of the Arctic Ocean coastline, and scientists have been unable to find a logical cause for the deaths, Tass said.

Vasily Sysoyev, chairman of the regional committee for nature conservation in Arkhangelsk, 500 miles north of Moscow, said water samples and marine organisms from the area have been sent to laboratories for tests.

The tests found no high levels of radiation in the affected area between the Solza and Syuzma rivers, but the samples were still being analyzed, Sysoyev said.

''The causes of the mass death have not yet been determined,'' he said. ''A research vessel is operating in the area, taking samples of ground and sea fauna.''

BY TOM HARVEY - UPI

BOGOTA, COLOMBIA (MAY 24) UPI - In the eyes of many Colombians, President Bush will be a co-defendant with Marion Barry when the Washington, D.C., mayor goes on trial next month on cocaine charges.

Bush's Colombian ''jury'' - the war-weary public in this northern South American nation - will use the high-profile case against Barry to test the White House's sincerity and effectiveness about trying to reduce cocaine consumption, a key to curbing production of the drug in war-torn Colombia.

Barry, 54, was arrested Jan. 18 at a hotel within walking distance of the White House after allegedly smoking crack cocaine while being filmed by the FBI in a sting operation. He has since been indicted on three counts of felony perjury, 10 counts of cocaine possession, and one count of conspiring to use cocaine since 1984.

The mayor is scheduled to appear for trial June 4.

A drug war is raging in Colombia.

In August, Colombian President Virgilio Barco declared a state-of-siege against the nation's cocaine traffickers, who responded shortly afterward. ''The Extraditables,'' a hit squad authorities say is financed and trained by the drug cartels, declared ''total war'' on the government and launched a wave of bombings and attacks by gunmen.

In the view of Colombians, a failure to convict Barry would raise more doubts about the sincerity of the U.S. anti-drug effort. Many Colombians already believe they are fighting a bloody war over cocaine only because the United States cannot kick its cocaine habit.

The expected winner of a Sunday presidential election, Liberal Party candidate Cesar Gaviria, said many Colombians think Barry has been treated lightly.

The case ''creates a bad feeling in Colombia. Colombia wants to look to the United States to fight against drug trafficking,'' Gaviria told reporters. ''Not one case of a (drug) kingpin being tried is known.''

''It is difficult to understand what is happening with the mayor of Washington,'' he said.

The U.S. and Colombian legal systems differ. Consequently, Colombians largely are unaware that a Washington, D.C. jury could find Barry innocent of the charges despite the government's best efforts to prosecute the mayor.

The Colombian news media follows the Barry case with intense interest. Even taxi drivers mention it in conversation about the U.S. role in the drug battle.

Presidential candidate Alvaro Gomez articulates the feelings of many Colombians when he says Colombia is fighting a war that is not its own.

''This (legalization of cocaine in consuming countries) would be good for Colombia because consumption is not our major problem,'' Gomez said. ''Our big problem is the profit from the business of narcotics trafficking. We are accepting the burden of a war that canot be won.''

A win by Gaviria Sunday would probably mean the Colombian government will take a harder line toward U.S. drug policies and lead to more demands for both money to fight the drug war and better trade treatment, U.S. and Colombian officials said.

''I think he will even be strong (toward the United States) in saying you aren't doing enough,'' a U.S. Embassy official said.

JERUSALEM (MAY 24) UPI - Israel strongly rejected stationing U.N. observers in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip Thursday, charging to do so would raise the level of violence.

''Israel would not accept U.N. observers on territory under Israeli control,'' Foreign Minister Moshe Arens told a news conference.

On Wednesday, Secretary of State James Baker for the first time expressed Washington's willingness to discuss sending observers to the territories, an arrangement the Palestine Liberation Organization has advocated and Israel has steadfastly opposed.

''They would not contribute to tranquility in the area and those who incite violence would unjustifiably feel encouragement,'' Arens said. ''There is no justification for U.N. observers in areas that came under Israeli control legitimately because of Arab aggression'' in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

That the United States is willing to discuss the possiblity at Friday's U.N. Security Council meeting in Geneva was seen as a victory for the PLO.

The meeting was called at the request of Bahrain to discuss the surge in violence in the territories this week that was touched off Sunday when a deranged Israeli in army fatigues opened fire on a group of Palestinian workers, killing seven.

At least 14 Palestinians have been killed and hundreds injured in the protests that have swept the West Bank and Gaza Strip since Sunday. The army's handling of the unrest, especially the high number of casualties, has drawn international criticism.

Since Sunday, the level of disturbances has dropped steadily, a decrease the military attributes to widespread curfews and a heavy army presence.

Arens said Israeli officials would attempt to convince the United States to oppose any resolution presented to the council condemning Israel or calling for the stationing of observers.

''We are hoping and counting on the United States to veto the resolution '' Arens said. The foreign minister admitted there were policy differences with the United States, but denied relations between the two countries had deteriorated in recent weeks.

On Tuesday, President Bush in a rare move called on Israeli soldiers to show ''maximum restraint'' while curbing protests and sent condolences to the families of slain Palestinians.

The Israeli ambassador to the United Nations, Yohanan Bein, told Israel Radio the United States does not intend to allow a debate in the council on permanent observers.

''What was made clear to me is that they have no intention of even debating the issue of posting a permanent force of observers,'' he said.

Former Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin also severely condemned the possiblity of U.N. observers being sent to the territories.

''I cannot ignore the seriousness in the very raising of the idea of sending U.N. observers to the territories,'' he said. ''I believe and am convinced that Israel must oppose the very idea.''

French Minister of Humanitarian Affairs Bernard Kouchner, who visited the Jabalia and Beach refugee camps and a hospital in Gaza City Thursday, said he was appalled by the conditions.

''I was shocked by what I saw,'' he said during the tour. ''I am worried about the situation here. The main aim is to achieve peace and to improve the human rights situation in the territories.''

In Jerusalem, he visited Palestinian hunger-strikers who are protesting the Sunday killings and calling for international protection.

The army relaxed security measures in the West Bank Thursday, lifting curfews from several towns. But curfews remained in force most of the day on the entire Gaza Strip and major West Bank towns and refugee camps.

In several areas of Gaza, the curfew was lifted for two hours to allow residents to buy supplies. Youths immediately set up barricades and burned tires, and several clashes were reported.

At least 20 Palestinians were wounded Thursday in disturbances, Palestinian sources said.

The army confirmed Thursday that an 8-year-old Gaza Strip boy and a West Bank teenager had died of gunshot wounds.

A 5-month-old infant from the West Bank Jewish settlement of Ofra was in moderate condition Thursday in a Jerusalem hospital after he was injured by a rock that crashed through the window of his parent's car, the army said.

LIBREVILLE, GABON (MAY 24) UPI - Army troops fired into the air and occupied strategic points in the capital Thursday to disperse anti-government militants incensed by the mysterious death of an opposition leader, witnesses said.

Gabonese commandos backed by French troops parachuted into the oil city of Port-Gentil after rioters seized 10 French and British hostages there, official sources said.

The hostages - including the French Consul general, eight French petroleum workers and one British oil worker - were released after authorities promised not to punish the kidnappers, the sources said.

While the center of Libreville remained calm, bands of rioters roamed several of the capital's popular neighborhoods and opposition leaders called for a general strike to protest Wedneday's apparent drug-induced killing of Joseph Redjambe, leader of the Gabonese Progress Party. They demanded the resignation of President Omar Bongo, who some blamed for Redjamba's death.

Elite Presidential Guardsmen dug in around Bongo's palace and troops fired volleys of submachine gun fire over the heads of demonstrators to disperse the protesters, who had blocked roads with barricades of burning tyres, witnesses said.

Schools and other establishments remained closed for a second day in what political experts said was the worst political crisis in Gabon since a coup d'etat was staged in the Central African nation and former French colony in 1964.

About 300 Gabonese parachutists were sent into Port-Gentil, 80 miles south of the capital, where the nation's vital oil industry is located, because the airport runways at the city were blocked by trucks and cars.

The Gabonese commandos later cleared the runways and about 100 French troops were able to land in a Transall transport airplane, the sources said.

Paris dispatched 200 Foreign Legionaires to Gabon to reinforce about 500 French soldiers already based there.

Angry militants from the opposition United Opposition Front ransacked the headquarters of Bongo's Gabonese Democratic Party in Libreville Thursday afternoon, security sources said.

Redjambe's death came a day after the National Assembly approved a new constitution providing for a multi-party system and elections in September, ending 28 years of one-party rule by Bongo and his Gabonese Democratic Party.

Joseph Amiar-Nganga, Gabonese minister for territorial administration, said preliminary inquiries showed Redjambe was lured to a meeting Wednesday at Libreville's Hotel Dowe with an Ivory Coast woman identified as Jeanne Canonne.

Redjambe's driver found his body in a hotel room several hours later. There were syringe marks on his abdomen and the woman was gone, Amiar-Nganga said.

Bongo renounced the leadership of his party Wednesday and a former minister, Jean Adiahenot, was appointed its secretary general.

Tanks took up positions Thursday outside strategic buildings, including the radio and television stations. Elite French-trained presidential guardsmen set up machine gun nests and ammunition dumps around the presidential palace.

The government forces patrolled the capital in tanks and other military vehicles, shooting into the air to disperse the crowds, the witnesses said.

In Paris, Gabonese opposition leaders called on France to help resolve the crisis. ''What the people want is total change,'' Nan Nguema, president of the Gabonese United Opposition Front, told a television audience.

In Corsica, 100 men from the French Foreign Legion Parachute Regiment were ordered to leave for Gabon ''for eventual protection of French citizens in case of threat,'' the French Defense Ministry said.

Another 100 men from the 2nd Foreign Legion Infantry Regiment based at the southern town of Nimes was also leaving for Gabon, said the ministry.

The foreign ministry said French forces already in Gabon obtained the release of Jean Duffau, consul general at Port-Gentil, and two or three French oil industry workers seized by opposition militants Wednesday to dramatize their demand for Bongo's resignation.

Diplomatic sources in Libreville said the kidnappers were warned that French troops would intervene unless the diplomat was let go. The abductors released Duffau at his residence around 3 a.m. after negotiations with Agondjo Okawe, the president of Redjambe's Gabonese Progress Party.

Several hundred French troops are normally based in Gabon under defense agreements with the government and French influence remains strong in the former colony. France has several bases in the region.

(MAY 24) UPI - As administration sources had indicated, President Bush announced this morning that he is extending most-favored-nation trade status to China for another year. Bush told a White House news conference this morning that he decided on the extension despite little progress on human rights in China. He said the trade status is ''NOT a special favor'' or a concession to the Chinese. But said that ending the most-favored-nation status would hurt the Chinese people and American business and would cost Americans jobs.

Chinese officials bristled at plans by students overseas to mark the first anniversary of bloody crackdown at Tiananmen Square. A Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman says the army crushed what was a ''counter-revolutionary rebellion'' when it fired on peaceful demonstrators, killing hundreds, or even, thousands of people. Dissident Chinese students plan to hold massive rallies and marches across the United States on June 4th.

Organizers of the Goddess of Democracy... a floating radio station set to broadcast pro-democracy messages to China... abandoned the mission, blaming Asian democracies for bowing to Chinese pressure. Organizers planned to send radio messages to Chinesse dissidents on the June 3rd-4th anniversary of the massacre at Beijing's main square. A spokesman says the plan was scuttled when China pressured Asian democracies to deny the ship access to ports.

The latest G-N-P figures show the economy grew one-point-three percent at an annual rate, or 13-point-nine-BILLION dollars, during the first quarter. The gross national product fixed-weight index, a measure of inflation, topped six-point-seven percent... its highest reading since the fourth quarter of 1981. The Commerce Department's preliminary first-quarter report reflects a downward revision of eight-tenths of one percent from last month's estimates of G-N-P growth.

BRASILIA, BRAZIL (MAY 24) UPI - Ambassador Jorio Dauster, Brazil's chief debt negotiator, said Thursday the Third World's largest debtor nation will delay making payments on its $112.4 billion debt until an agreement is reached with creditor banks.

In comments to reporters, Dauster said that Brazil will begin preliminary meetings with the banks in June and that the Brazilian Congress would decide the conditions of any eventual agreement.

"The Brazilian government is first going to hear proposals from the creditors, through preliminary conversations that do not characterize a negotiation, starting in June," Dauster said. "Later we will make our proposal, based on a more solid vision."

Brazil last paid interest on its external debt in July 1989 and has since then accumulated about $6.5 billion in back payments to multilateral credit organizations and private banks.

Dauster returned Wednesday from a visit to the United States, where he and Brazilian Economy Minister Zelia Cardoso de Mello took part in a series of meetings with six of the major U.S. banks lending to Brazil.

Brazilian authorities were not surprised that creditor banks were insistent the country make a debt payment, he said. "If they (bank representatives) don't pressure us they would lose their jobs and, if we accept, we would be the ones thrown in the street," Dauster said.

The official said the banks discussed the possibility of participating in the nation's program to privatize 188 state-owned Brazilian companies as a way of converting arrearages into equity.

At least four creditors - the Bank of Tokyo, Chase Manhattan and Britain's Midland and Lloyds banks - have expressed interest in participating in the privatization plan.

Among those state-owned companies going on the auction block are banks, supermarkets, metalworks, petrochemical companies and mineral exploration companies, amounting to a combined worth of $62.2 billion and a group debt of $79 billion.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, MA (MAY 24) UPI - A transvestite accused of strangling his wife and leaving her body in a mall parking lot was arrested in a New York suburb Thursday, hours after police launched a manhunt.

Authorities issued a warrant for the arrest of Robert Kosilek one day after he tearfully proclaimed his innocence and told reporters police considered him the prime suspect in the slaying of his wife Cheryl, whom he called ''my best friend.''

Hours after the warrant was issued, Kosilek was arrested in the Westchester County town of New Rochelle, N.Y., police said.

''Yes, he is in custody in New Rochelle,'' said Sgt. Michael Hurley of the New Rochelle police. ''It just occurred and we don't have all the details yet.''

Authorities had warned that the 41-year-old Kosilek, a psychotherapist with a penchant for dressing in women's clothes, might try to elude authorities by posing as a female. It was not known whether he was dressed as a woman when he was arrested in New York.

At a news conference Thursday morning in North Attleboro, Bristol County District Attorney Ronald Pina said police were seeking to arrest Kosilek for his wife's slaying. The body of the 36-year-old mother of two was found Sunday night in the back seat of her car, which was parked at the Emerald Square Mall.

''(Kosilek) has been sighted in the past by police officers dressed as a woman. His description would change, his clothing would change, his hair would change. We have evidence he would dress as a man or as a woman,'' Pina said.

While authorities focused on Kosilek early in the investigation, there was insufficient evidence Wednesday morning to take him into custody, Pina and North Attleboro Police Chief John Coyle said.

Pina said police later talked to ''at least one witness'' who contradicted Kosilek's statements and then found evidence that the suspect had been at the Emerald Square Mall hours before his wife's body was found. Pina said investigators had a motive in the slaying but refused to elaborate.

''They said I'm a prime suspect, the only suspect,'' a tearful Kosilek said Wednesday as he emerged from his home on Concetta Drive in Mansfield. ''My best friend has been killed and they're telling me they think I did it. How the hell would you feel?''

Kosilek maintained his innocence and said he had ''no idea'' who would want to kill his wife. Investigators believe the woman was killed elsewhere and then driven to the mall parking lot. An autopsy Tuesday showed she had been dead for ''some hours'' before mall security officers found the body beneath a blanket in an unlocked Hyundai.

Kosilek's wife worked as a substance abuse counselor at Fuller Memorial Hospital in Attleboro, located about 2 miles from the mall. She lived with her husband and two sons from a previous marriage, ages 13 and 15.

Prosecutor spokesman James Martin said Kosilek's husband told investigators he last saw his wife when she left their home early Sunday.

Cheryl Kosilek is the third woman to be discovered slain at a Massachusetts mall in the past six months.

DETROIT (MAY 24) UPI - The National Highway Traffic Safety Adminstration said Thursday its latest crash tests show the Honda Prelude coupe and Ford Ranger pickup truck to have a "likely" potential for driver head injury during a 35 mph crash.

NHTSA's latest tests also found that the Ford Ranger has a high potential for upper leg injury, and that the Mercedes-Benz 190E sedan has a "possible" potential for both driver and front passenger head injury even though that $32,500 luxury car has a driver's side air bag. NHTSA also tested the Ford Mustang convertible, which has a driver's side air bag and scored well in the assessments.

While all cars must pass a 30 mph frontal crash test, NHTSA's New Car Assessment Program crashes cars into a fixed barrier at 35 mph to provide additional comparative information for consumers, agency spokesman Tim Hurd said. All test dummies are secured by shoulder belts during NHTSA's tests.

The Prelude scored a Head Injury Criteria (HIC) of 1279. Scores of between 750 and 1250 show head injury is possible, while injury is likely above 1250, NHTSA said.

"We were really surprised," said Honda North America Inc. spokeswoman Toni Harrington from the carmaker's Washington, D.C., office. "Our tests didn't have the same results. We are in the process of looking at the data." The Prelude, which ranges from about $14,000 to $19,000, has a three-point automatic belt system.

The Ranger, equipped with manual shoulder belts because 1990-model trucks are exempt from passive safety restraints like automatic belts or air bags posted a HIC of 1270.

But NHTSA said the right femur, or upper leg bone, of the test dummy driver in the Ranger sustained a force of 3,200 pounds. The standard for femur force at the slower, 30 mph crash is 2,250 pounds. Ford Motor Co. had no immediate comment on the test results.

Mercedes-Benz spokesman Jerry Giaquinta said that despite NHTSA's findings, the company "is pleased with the performance and the restraint system" of the 190E. It also disagreed with NHTSA's conclusions because "in a similar actual crash, there was no head contact with the vehicle structure. "We design our cars to meet all types of crashes, including side and rear and front offset ones," Giaquinta said.

NHTSA has tested 16 1990-models to date. So far the only other vehicle to have a high HIC rating under NHTSA's test procedures was the Toyota 4Runner sport utility vehicle, which posted a score of 1306.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - David A. Kelso, an investment banker, has been appointed associate director for the Resolution Trust Corp. at the Office of Thrift Supervision, the OTS said Thursday. Kelso will assist Timothy Ryan, OTS director, in Ryan's role as a member of the board of the RTC, the agency charged with resolving failed thrifts.

Kelso joined OTS after 13 years at the New York office of Goldman Sachs & Co., where he was a vice president with responsibilities for the special investments area. He was a member of the Goldman Sachs team that raised $260 million to capitalize Team Bank, Ft. Worth, Texas.

The OTS also said that Mark P. Hurley, an associate with Goldman, Sachs, and Kimberly Anne Wyche, an attorney with Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay, have been appointed special assistants to Ryan.

Hurley has been with the Dallas office of Goldman, Sachs since 1987. She was part of a team that worked with troubled thrifts and restructured several savings and loans that were recapitalized under a plan adopted by OTS' predecessor, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Wyche joined Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay in 1987, practicing in the firm's Washington, D.C. office.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - Sulfuric acid levels in the upper atmosphere have risen about 5 percent annually during the past decade over the United States, but it is not known if industrial pollution is to blame, a study showed Thursday.

The study, conducted by balloon soundings over Laramie, Wyo., looked at ''background'' levels of sulfuric acid in the upper atmosphere, or stratosphere, about 12 miles to 15 miles above Earth's surface.

Researchers excluded from their study the dominant source of sulfuric acid in the stratosphere - emissions from volcanic eruptions - to see whether pollution, global warming or other factors are affecting the chemical composition of the stratosphere.

Most past scientific research has centered on concentrations of sulfur compounds acid lower in the atmosphere, where such compounds can combine with precipitation and return to Earth in the form of harmful acid rain.

Problems believed to be associated with an increasing sulfuric acid layer in the upper atmosphere include greater destruction of Earth's protective ozone shield and reduced levels of water vapor, said D.J. Hoffman of the University of Wyoming in a study published in the journal Science.

Hoffman's work found that level of non-volcanic sulfuric acid in the stratosphere over the northern, middle latitudes appears to have grown about 5 percent per year during the past 10 years.

''Whether this increase is natural or anthropogenic (man-made) could not be determined at this time because of inadequate information on sulfur sources,'' the researcher added.

A major question is how much of the sulfuric acid in the upper atmosphere is a result of the breakdown of a sulfur compound called carbonyl sulfide. It has been estimated up to 25 percent of the carbonyl sulfide compounds in the overall atmosphere come from automobile exhausts, petroleum refining, coal-burning power plants, forest burning and other human activities.

Another possibility is that emissions from the increasing number of jet airplanes flying in the atmospheric layer just below the stratosphere may be contributing to the sulfuric acid rise, Hoffman said.

''Anticipated future use of the startosphere for air travel present sulfur sources that could be more important than previously assumed,'' he added.

In addition to possible increases in man-made pollution, Hoffman said the reported rise in global temperatures of about 0.5 degrees Fahrenheit over the past 30 years may have boosted sulfuric acid levels by spurring the growth of bacteria that release sulfur compounds.

''If true, this change represents another perturbation to global atmosphere associated with increases in greenhouse gases,'' he wrote.

ABIDJAN, IVORY COAST (MAY 24) UPI - Liberian rebels seeking to overthrow President Samuel Doe are pushing west toward the country's international airport not far from the capital of Monrovia, radio reports said Thursday.

The reports said rebels of the National Patriotic Front of Liberia clashed with the army 5 miles outside of the city of Buchanan along the road to the airport at Robertsfield.

Government troops were seen leaving Monrovia Thursday headed toward Buchanan, a port city about 80 miles east of Monrovia captured by the rebels on Tuesday. The airport lies about halfway between Buchanan and the capital.

The army is believed to have up to 500 soldiers in the area around Buchanan while the rebels are estimated to have a 1,000-strong force moving south from Nimba county, where the 5-month-old war had been centered until the rebels started pushing toward Monrovia three weeks ago.

Doe, who seized power in the west African nation in a bloody coup 10 years ago, last week pleaded for all Liberians to take up arms against the rebels. Doe has survived several assassination and coup attempts, most recently in March 1988.

Shortly after his appeal, the decapitated corpses of three men believed to have belonged to the Gio tribe - which makes up the largest percentage of the rebel forces - were found in Monrovia. At least seven other people have died in suspected tribal violence.

Radio reports monitored in Abidjan said members of the Gio tribe have been threatened and killed in the capital. The Liberian government condemned the killings Wednesday, describing them as ''barbaric.''

Liberia, with a population of 2.3 million, was colonized by former American slaves.

Doe promoted himself to commander-in-chief of the armed forces in 1981, the year following a military coup, and to president in 1984. He was elected by a 51 percent majority in 1985 elections that opponents said were rigged.

The rebel movement, led by a flamboyant Liberian named Charles Taylor, has attracted many youths disallusioned with Doe's regime.

(MAY 24) UPI - A soccer game consists of two 45-minute running halves with a 15-minute intermission. Each team fields 11 players and can make a maximum of two substitutions. Once a player leaves the game, he cannot return.

The game is similar to hockey in that the object is to score goals into a net.

Working from the back to the front, a soccer team often aligns itself with a goalkeeper, four defenders, four midfielders and two forwards or strikers.

Players are allowed to use any part of their bodies except their hands and arms to advance the ball. The goalkeeper is the only one allowed to touch the ball with his hands.

The referee controls the game and the clock. Stoppages in time usually occur only for serious injuries. The referee is assisted by two linesmen, who work opposite sidelines and indicate throw-ins, goal kicks, corner kicks and offside infractions.

Under international rules, a regulation grass field measures 70 x 110 yards to 80 x 120 yards. Marked on the field in front of each goal is the penalty area, a box measuring 44 x 18 yards.

The referee is the sole arbiter for determining misconduct. Fouls can be called for charging, holding, pushing, tripping, obstruction or handling the ball. Most fouls result in a free kick, either direct (player may shoot on goal) or indirect (ball must touch another player before entering goal).

Deliberate fouls inside the penalty area result in a penalty kick, a one-on-one shot against the goalkeeper.

Dangerous play or unsportsmanlike conduct results in a yellow card, or caution. Two yellow cards against a player results in ejection. The referee also can make an immediate ejection, or red card, for flagrant infractions. Ejected players cannot be replaced on the field.

Out of bounds is determined by the position of the ball - the entire ball must cross the entire line. Players may cross out of bounds without penalty to play a ball that has not completely crossed the line.

Balls crossing the sideline result in a throw-in for the opposing team, in which a player delivers the ball directly over his head with both feet on the ground. Balls crossing an end line result in a corner kick if a defender last touched it, a goal kick if it was last touched by an offensive player.

Offensive players must remain in front of the last line of defense when in the opposing team's half of the field. An attacker is called offside when there are fewer than two opponents, including the goalkeeper, between himself and the ball. An indirect free kick is awarded from the site of infraction.

In the World Cup, if the score is tied after regulation the game enters overtime. Unlike football and hockey, the first goal does not decide the game. An entire 15-minute overtime must be played. If the score is still tied there is another overtime.

If the score remains tied after two overtimes, the game is decided on penalty kicks. Each team designates five players to take kicks, alternating between teams. The team that converts the most kicks wins.

If a tie persists, additional players take kicks until one team scores and the other does not. Only players on the field (including the goalkeeper) at the end of overtime are eligible to take penalty shots.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - The White House apparently ''caved into big business'' by ordering the attorney general to suddenly withdraw longstanding Justice Department support for white-collar criminal sentencing guidelines, Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., charged Thursday.

Conyers and Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., asked aggressive questions during a hearing on the recent move by Attorney General Dick Thornburgh after a telephone call from the White House.

''It appears the Justice Department caved into big business,'' said Conyers. ''Business interests may have pressured the White House and the Justice Department to go soft on this issue.''

The controversy over tough mandatory sentences for corporations convicted of white-collar crimes was one factor in the recent resignation of Donald Ayer, the Justice Department's No. 2 official.

In a letter, Ayer had expressed the Justice Department's support for strong guidelines. But after a call to the attorney general's office by C. Boyden Gray, the White House counsel, Thornburgh swiftly ordered Ayer to retract his position and write a second letter.

The call from the White House followed an intense lobbying campaign by corporations and other business interests who said some of the proposed penalties were too harsh.

The proposed guidelines would require federal judges to impose stringent mandatory fines on companies convicted of serious federal crimes, such as pollution of waterways, dumping toxic wastes or overcharging the government.

The White House was hit by strong protests from defense contractors, oil companies and some Fortune 500 companies.

Because Ayer has resigned - he returns to private law practice next week - the Justice Department sent a deputy assistant attorney general, Paul Maloney, to a hearing by a House Judiciary subcommittee.

Maloney was questioned sharply when he asserted that the Justice Department reversed course because an alternative sentencing recommendation had been proposed.

Maloney tried to portray the sentencing alternative - not the White House phone call - as an important reason for Thornburgh insisting on reviewing the issue personally.

''I don't believe that and, frankly, I don't think very many people believe that,'' Schumer responded.

The issue ''touches on white collar crime in America,'' said Conyers, citing criminal investigations or charges against major defense contractors, savings and loans executives and many Fortune 500 companies.

The proposed sentencing guidelines were tabled when a member of the U.S. Sentencing Commission, George MacKinnon, announced April 10 he would not vote until three vacancies were filled. Three people have since been nominated for the vacant positions on the seven-member panel.

MacKinnon said he feared that corporations, who ''vigorously if not viciously'' opposed the proposals, would sue on the ''irrelevant point'' that the commission did not have enough members.

MacKinnon said he was never contacted by the White House or Justice Department and told to withhold his vote in order to bottle up the proposed guidelines.

The chairman of the sentencing commission, William Wilkins, said the delay will last for about eight months. He assured the congressmen that the panel would eventually write solid corporate sentencing guidelines.

Wilkins said he had not been in contact with the White House on the issue, but did meet with Ayer in February for ''a general discussion.''

''We'd like to see strong sentencing guidelines this year,'' said Rep. John Bryant, D-Texas.

MOSCOW (MAY 24) UPI - Princess Anne, a distant relative of the last czar, met Mikhail Gorbachev Thursday on the first leg of an extensive two-week visit that could pave the way for a trip to the Soviet Union by Queen Elizabeth.

''There are grounds to speak about great progress in Soviet-British relations,'' the Soviet president told the British princess, adding that her visit ''corresponded well with the fruitful contacts between the two countries.''

The official Soviet news agency Tass said Gorbachev asked Princess Anne to convey greetings to her mother Queen Elizabeth and other members of the royal family.

''The arrival in the U.S.S.R. of a member of the royal family is also regarded here as the manifestation of respect for the Soviet Union and its president,'' Tass said.

The princess will stay in Moscow three days and then travel to Siberia, Turkmenia and Kiev, the capital of the Ukraine, where she will open a series of British exhibits and trade shows.

She also is scheduled to visit the heavily polluted Lake Baikal, the world's deepest inland sea.

''She is a very serious lady. She is not just interested in tourism for tourism's sake,'' an official at the British Embassy said of Anne's extensive two-week schedule. ''She wants to see the country.''

It is the princess's first official visit to the Soviet Union, although she was in the country in 1973 for the European Equestrian championships as a member of the British team.

Anne's father, Prince Philip, duke of Edinburgh and the royal consort, is president of the International Equestrian Federation and accompanied her on the 1973 visit.

Prince Edward, the youngest son of Queen Elizabeth, also traveled to the Soviet Union last year in an unofficial capacity to see performances by the National Youth Theater of Britain.

But Anne's is the most extensive royal visit to the country since the reign of the last czar, Nicholas II, who abdicated in 1917 and was murdered by the Bolsheviks in 1918 with his wife, four daughters and hemophiliac son. Anne is a third cousin to Nicholas II.

Anne's visit also coincides with a resurgence of Soviet interest in the monarchy. Several parties have formed in recent months in an effort to return royalty to Russia.

Princess Anne's May 24-June 6 trip could be a rehearsal for a visit by her mother, Queen Elizabeth, who has been invited to the Soviet Union by Gorbachev.

''Her majesty accepted in principle,'' the British Embassy official said. ''The question is still under consideration.''

He stressed that the queen's trips are planned far in advance.

''Moscow believes that the development of contacts between the British royal court and the U.S.S.R. will give important human and public impetus to the development of understanding between the two nations,'' Tass said.

Anne, only daughter of Queen Elizabeth, will go to Irkutsk in Siberia Sunday to visit Lake Baikal, which Soviet ecologists are attempting to save from pollution generated by nearby paper mills.

On Wednesday she will visit Askhabad, capital of the central Asian republic of Turkmenia. She will also visit Volgograd, formerly known as Stalingrad and site of an epic battle of World War II.

Anne is scheduled to be in Kiev on June 4 to open a series of exhibits called British Days in the Soviet Union. She leaves for home on June 6.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - The Republican Party has raised and spent about four times as much as the Democrats in the first 15 months of the current election cycle, a report by the Federal Elections Committee disclosed Thursday.

The report said Republicans raised almost $113 million and spent about $100 million, compared to the Democrats who raised and spent just over $24 million.

In addition, the report said the Republicans had about $19 million on hand and the Democrats almost $6 million. Both parties had debts of less than $2 million.

The figures are for the Democratic and Republican National Committees, the Senatorial Campaign Committees and the Congressional Campaign Committees.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - President Bush is pleased the House passed a clean air bill but may veto it unless congressional leaders remove ''objectionable'' worker aid provisions, a White House spokesman said Thursday.

White House officials were still analyzing other controversial sections of the wide-ranging bill approved by the House Wednesday night, but they said the five-year, $250 million worker assistance program was clearly unacceptable to the president because of its cost.

As a result, they said the program would be at the top of administration's hit list when House and Senate leaders meet this summer to iron out differences between the House-passed bill and the clean air package approved by the Senate last month.

''We will work hard to get that (worker aid plan) removed,'' said Stephen Hart, deputy White House press secretary. ''We feel this is bad public policy that's clearly something that he (Bush) is very strongly against.

''If that amendment remains in the bill, (Bush's) senior advisors would recommend a veto,'' he added.

With House leaders apparently supporting the worker aid plan, White House officials say the fate of the program may depend on Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine.

One White House official, who asked not to be identified, said the administration was hoping Mitchell would be willing to scrap the worker aid plan in order to assure enactment of a new clean air bill.

''The interesting calculation in this is Mitchell,'' the official said. ''I think it's in Mitchell's interest to get a bill signed.''

On the other hand, if Mitchell decides to call Bush's veto threat, the official acknowledged, ''it could be a sticky situation.''

A spokesman for Mitchell was not immediately available for comment.

Congressional leaders hope to send Bush a consensus bill by this fall, but in addition to Bush's concerns, the House-Senate conference will face strong pressure from several politically powerful industries unhappy with various provisions. In particular:

-Auto industry officials are upset with a precedent-setting proposal in the House bill to set up an experimental program for ''clean-fuel'' cars in California. Starting with model-year 1994, automakers would have to sell hundreds of thousands of cars in the Los Angeles area that could run on cleaner-burning fuels such as natural gas or grain-based ethanol.

-The oil industry is unhappy about provisions requiring it to sell reformulated gasoline in the nation's nine smoggiest cities: Los Angeles, New York, Chicago, Houston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, San Diego, Milwaukee and the Hartford-New Haven area in Connecticut.

-Coal producers are complaining that acid rain provisions are too restrictive and won't allow use of more cost-effective ''clean coal'' technology now under development.

While those industries will be vocal, the most ticklish political situation clearly revolves around the House bill's worker assistance provision, sponsored by Rep. Robert Wise, D-W.Va.

The plan would provide an additional six months of unemployment compensation for workers who lose their jobs because of the bill's increased pollution controls.

The program would cover any worker who could prove to the Labor Department that the new clean air law was an ''important contributing factor'' in their becoming unemployed.

The administration says that eligibility requirement is much too loose, leaving the program wide open to abuse. It maintains the $250 million cap on expenditures is illusory and that the program could become a multibillion-dollar budget-buster.

The amendment is a response to predictions that thousands of coal miners, steel, chemical, refinery and auto workers may lose their jobs if the bill becomes law. Industry officials charge many plants will be forced to close because compliance costs will be too high.

DETROIT (MAY 24) UPI - The National Highway Safety Administration proposed Thursday that all light trucks, vans and sport utility vehicles be equipped with a center, high-mounted stop lamp by the 1993-model year.

NHTSA Administrator Jerry Ralph Curry said that cars have been required to have a center brake light since the 1986-model year and that the program has been successful in reducing rear-end accidents and injuries.

"When all light trucks and vans are equipped with the lamp, we estimate between 77,000 and 109,000 rear-end collisions will be prevented each year " Curry said. "That will save $175 million in vehicle damage and prevent 25,000 to 35,000 injuries."

NHTSA research during the late 1970s indicated the addition of a single stop lamp in the rear window of passenger cars would substantially reduce the rate and severity of rear-end collisions.

The most recent data suggests that cars with the third brake light are 17 percent less likely to be struck in the rear while braking than cars without the lamp, the agency said.

NHTSA said a two-year lead time is sufficient for automakers to equip light trucks, vans, minivans and sport utility vehicles - which now make up more than a third of all U.S. vehicle sales - with the new brake lights. The proposal will be open for comment for 60 days.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - An 11-year-old aspiring physicist from Altoona, Pa., took top honors Thursday in the second annual National Geography Bee by correctly answering that Antarctica was the continent where the volcanic Mt. Erebus is located.

Susannah Batko-Yovino, the only female contender to reach the top 10 finals in the contest's two-year history, was unruffled throughout the two-day competition, and remained calm when she received the first place scholarship check for $25,000.

''There is still a stereotype that men are smarter than women and I think that should be gone,'' said the round-faced sixth-grader from Washington Jefferson School in Altoona.

Timothy Forest, a 13-year old from C.J. Hooker Middle School in Goshen, N.Y., took second place, winning a scholarship of $15,000.

The third place winner of a $10,000 scholarship was 14-year old Martin Hohner, an eighth-grader from Luther Burback School in Chicago. Hohner said he uses geography in selecting settings for stories he writes.

The semifinalists from junior high schools nationwide competed at the National Geographic Society headquarters.

In the second tie-breaking round between Forest and Batko-Yovino, bee questioner Alex Trebek, host for the popular trivia television game show ''Jeopardy,'' posed the question: ''Erebus is a volcano on which continent?''

Forest erroneously replied ''Africa,'' and then Batko-Yovino answered correctly ''Antartica'' to win the contest.

''I feel very relieved,'' she said. ''I wasn't as nervous as I thought I would be. I just forgot about everything else and concentrated.''

Standing beside her parents and teacher Dennis Bruno, Batko-Yovino said she hopes to save the money for Princeton University, where she aims to study physics.

Forest said he was happy he got as far as he did in the contest. He added that he studies geography daily between one and two hours and as the contest drew nearer, put in 15 hours a week.

''I used geography games, books, charts and my classes helped me,'' he said.

National Georgaphic Society President Gilbert Grovesnor said he hopes the event will inspire U.S. students, who have been found in a series of international polls to be lacking in their knowledge of geography.

''In an age where tide of democracy is washing across Europe and other parts of the world ... when our country's economic security rises and falls with the mark and the Japanese Yen ... we must understand the world about us,'' he said. ''It has become more important than ever before in our history.''

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (MAY 24) UPI - The government of President Violeta Chamorro rejected a request for autonomous land inside Nicaragua by Contra rebels preparing for a return to civilian life, officials said Thursday.

A delegation of Contra leaders met in Managua with representatives of Chamorro to discuss points that are holding up the rebels' stalled disarmament, which they have agreed to complete by June 10.

Agrarian Reform Minister Gustavo Tablada said one sticking point in the talks was expected to be the Contras' request that they be allotted their own plot of land autonomous from the rest of Nicaragua.

The government has refused the request.

Tablada said 11 points have been selected throughout the country as possible sites for giving land to the U.S.-backed rebels. He said only one of those sites would be selected, and that it is likely to be in the southern central part of the country.

He said the land would be subject to the same rules and regulations as the rest of the country.

A Contra spokesman said security, health, education and jobs were other priorities the Contras wanted to discuss for their return to civilian life.

''We have been complying, but the government is not complying with the points of the agreement,'' said Oscar Sovalbarro, known as Commander Ruben who headed the Contra delegation to Thursday's talks.

The talks also included members of the United Nations and Organization of American States support and verification commission, called CIAV, that is providing food and other supplies to the Contras during their demobilization in security zones.

Labor Minister Francisco Rosales, representing Chamorro's government, said negotiators would also discuss job opportunities for the rebels as they return to civilian life.

Asked about the rebels' employment prospects, he said half-jokingly, ''better than the rest of us Nicaraguans.''

''We have lined up support for them, we have lined up finance, and we are setting up job opportunities,'' Rosales said.

Contra leaders announced a suspension of the disarmament Friday, but have vowed to restart it May 30 and complete it on schedule.

International observers say it is unlikely the rebels will be completely disbanded by June 10, and many of the rebels say they have no plans to lay down their weapons until the Sandinistas in the Nicaraguan army do the same.

The army officer corps made up largely of soldiers loyal to the Sandinista Front, which ruled the country for the past decade.

U.N. officials monitoring the disarmament estimate there are 15,000 Contras in the country, an estimate which has grown from 10,000 since the government began promising the rebels land and provisions.

(MAY 24) UPI - As expected, President Bush announced this morning that the United States will renew most-favored-nation trading status for China. Bush said the renewal- in his words- ''is NOT a concession ... it is the basis of everyday trade.'' Bush also said that the sanctions he imposed against China last year remain in place.

Queen Elizabeth's daughter arrived in Moscow today on a two-week visit that could lead to a trip to the Soviet Union by the queen. Princess Anne will stay in Moscow three days, then travel to Siberia, Turkmenia and Kiev... where she will open a series of British exhibits and trade shows.

The House worked into the night to approve a clean-air bill that House leaders say will inflict major lifestyle changes on Americans. Michigan Democratic Congressman John Dingell, a sponsor of the bill, says the nation will discover that ''clean air is NOT free.'' The bill imposes at least 21-BILLION dollars a year in additional pollution reduction costs.

The House turns its attention today to 720-Million dollars in emergency aid for fledgling governments in Panama and Nicaragua. President Bush is demanding that Congress finish work on a four-BILLION-dollar supplemental spending bill before holiday recess tomorrow. After five to six hours of debate today, the House is expected to vote on the bill crafted by House-Senate negotiators.

MOSCOW (MAY 24) UPI - Radical lawmakers demanded Thursday that the Supreme Soviet take a vote of no confidence in the government, saying the present leadership cannot end the economic crisis.

Deputies did not immediately take up the challenge, with the unprecedented vote put off at least until Friday.

Several of the liberal legislators acknowledged privately that they lacked the votes in the 542-seat Supreme Soviet to topple the government. The mere proposal was an unprecedented action in a country run by secret order with virtually no public accountability before Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's political reforms.

Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov's plan to move the country to a modified market economy over the next six years drew a storm of protest when he presented it to the Parliament.

''The market does not tolerate half-cocked measures,'' snapped Alexander Orlov, a liberal deputy from the Ural Mountain city of Chelyabinsk.

Gorbachev, who chaired the legislature until assuming his strengthened executive post in March, attended the session but did not participate in the heated debate.

Gorbachev sat behind Ryzhkov at the front of the hall, taking careful notes as the prime minister presented the economic recovery plan in a two-hour address.

''The point is to consistently reduce the degree of direct state influence on the economy step by step and to expand the sphere of market relations '' Ryzhkov told the legislators.

''Only by those means will it be possible to hold inflation under control, see to it that there is not a major recession and prevent living standards from declining,'' he said.

But members of the Inter-Regional Deputies' Group, a bloc of about 50 radical lawmakers in the Supreme Soviet, said the government plan falls far short of the drastic steps needed to stimulate the country's declining economy.

Liberal legislator Gennadi Filshin, an economist chosen by the radicals to present their objections, called for the legislators to vote on whether they support the government headed by Ryzhkov.

''The government has lost control over the economic situation and is unable to pull the nation out of the worsening crisis,'' Filshin said.

Liberal deputies lambasted Ryzhkov's economic plan, which would begin price reforms by tripling the cost of bread July 1 but postpones additional price hikes or further measures until next year.

''A market is a common universal asset, not an ideological notion,'' said Ivan Misun, a lawmaker from the Siberian city of Krasnoyarsk. ''There is no market without private property.''

Lawmakers accepted a suggestion by Anatoli Lukyanov, who succeeded Gorbachev as parliament chairman, to conclude all debate on the program before acting on the radical bloc's demand for a vote of no confidence.

With a long list of speakers still demanding the floor at the session's close, the discussion was suspended until Friday.

The radicals huddled in a conference room during a break in the session and voted unanimously by show of hands to bring the challenge to the Parliament floor.

''We need a concrete program,'' Arnold Nazarenko told his colleagues. ''As long as there is just a concept without a program, there will be only words without actions. That is why we cannot drag things out further and must take a decision on our confidence in the government immediately.''

The three-stage plan presented by Ryzhkov begins price reform and establishes ''basic legal principles of a market economy'' this year, accelerates the price changes, creates new tax and credit systems and sets up a social security system in 1991 and 1992.

An intensive development of the market is envisioned between 1993 and 1995 by breaking up the giant state-run monopolies, slashing state subsidies of industrial enterprises, leasing or selling off failing firms to individuals or worker collectives.

Ryzhkov acknowledged the severity of the present situation, saying the Soviets had not managed to improve or stabilize the country's economy.

''Even worse, many negative processes have intensified,'' he said.

But he insisted the country must undertake a phased transition toward a more market-oriented economy.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - The government established a five-member team of contractors Thursday to conduct research and development of the futuristic National Aerospace Plane, intended to fly at 25 times the speed of sound.

The Defense Department and NASA, which have joint control of the program, announced the team includes Rockwell International, McDonnell Douglas, Pratt & Whitney, General Dynamics, and Rocketdyne.

''The objective of the team will be to develop and demonstrate hypersonic technologies with the ultimate goal of single stage-to-orbit (flight),'' a Pentagon statement said.

''The National Contractor Team will conduct the technology development and demonstration activities necessary to proceed with the research aircraft and develop a competitive base for future systems.

''Instead of just one contract organization coming forward with concepts in materials, propulsion and structures, this new approach will allow the government and contractors alike to capitalize on five different bases of technological development,'' it said.

The plane was originally billed as ''the Orient Express'' for the possible two-hour New York-to-Tokyo flight suggested by President Reagan when he proposed it in 1986. It is intended to take off and land horizontally from conventional airports, but streak through the near-space upper atmosphere at Mach 25, or 25 times the speed of sound.

By comparison, the supersonic Concorde flies at Mach 1.5.

PITTSFIELD, ME (MAY 24) UPI - An expert Thursday questioned the authenticity of a baseball card unearthed by school boys and thought to be a rare 1909 Honus Wagner card.

Robert Thing, a baseball card collector and expert, looked over the card Wednesday. He said the colors, the printing and the shiny gloss finish of the card indicated it was a copy of the original Honus Wagner card, which could be worth as much as $200,000 if in mint condition.

''There was no question as soon as I looked at it. I could tell by looking at the thing,'' Thing said. ''I'm going to say it was printed around 1977. There are some books which are available in stores, and they contain cards that came in perforated sheets, and you just tear them out.''

''It is very glossy while the originals are much coarser and there is no gloss to them,'' he said. ''You can tell by holding it and feeling it.''

The card was reportedly found in an old Dr. Lyons Tooth Powder can on Monday by three boys who were said to be digging for worms. One of the boys, Arlo Quint, 12, said the can containing the cards was found when he and his friends dug next to the foundatiion of his family's barn.

Quint said the can also contained cards of other players.

''One is Eddie Plank, and another says Evers, and the fourth one says Bresnahan,'' the boy said. ''Bresnahan played for St. Louis, Evers played for the Cubs, and Plank was with the Athletics, I think.''

Thing said the cards had been trimmed along the bottom. He said the material that had been trimmed away would have contained the printing date if the cards were indeed the reproductions printed in 1977.

''There were four cards and all of them were trimmed along the bottom,'' Thing said.

The discovery came just a couple of weeks after a 12-year-old boy in the town of Stockton Springs reported finding a 1909 Honus Wagner baseball card.

The 1909 cards were printed by the Piedmont cigarette company. The Honus Wagner cards are said to be so valuable because Wagner, who neither smoked nor drank, objected to having his face on a card that advertised cigarettes. Only 20 of the Wagner cards are said to exist.

MOSCOW (MAY 24) UPI - Half of the AIDS victims in the Soviet Union are children, many infected by injections with contaminated needles at hospitals not following proper procedures, official reports said Thursday.

Mikhail Narkevich, chief of the epidemiological department at the Soviet Health Ministry, told the official news agency Tass there were currently 482 known AIDS victims in the country.

He said half of the victims were children, and the official Communist Youth League newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda said there were insufficient safeguards against AIDS in many areas.

Forty-nine children infected with the HIV virus that causes AIDS were found in the Volgograd region about 500 miles south of Moscow, the newspaper said. Four of the children have already died.

Komsomolskaya Pravda blamed the outbreak on medical facilities that use the same syringe for several injections without sterilization. There is a severe shortage of disposable syringes in the Soviet Union.

NEW YORK (MAY 24) UPI - Assets of the nation's 503 money market mutual funds increased $94.7 million to $381.41 billion in the week ended Wednesday, the Investment Company Institute reported Thursday.

The Washington-based institute said broker-dealer fund assets increased $703.4 million to $159.13 billion, assets of general purpose funds decreased $750.1 million to $129.48 billion and institutional fund assets increased $141.4 million to $92.80 billion.

"After a string of weekly declines caused by a variety of transitory factors, assets of money market funds rose slightly in the last reporting week," said Jacob Dreyer, vice president and chief economist at the institute.

The "modest" rebound in assets "occurred despite rising stock and bond prices, which are usually associated with money being switched out of short-term and into long-term funds," he continued.

The Investment Company Institute, a national association of the American investment company industry, reports the assets of money market funds to the Federal Reserve Board each week.

The Donoghue Organization, of Holliston, Mass., said average seven-day simple yields were at 7.68 percent, down from 7.70 peercent in the previous week, while 30-day simple yields were unchanged at 7.68 percent. The average maturity of fund portfolios was unchanged at 44 days.

The Bank Rate Monitor, of North Palm Beach, Fla., gave average rates as follows: money market deposit accounts, 6.04 percent, down from 6.05; Super-Now accounts, 4.99 percent, unchanged; six-month certificates of deposit, 7.75 percent, down from 7.78; one-year CDs, 7.91 percent, unchanged; 2 1/2-year CDs, 7.92 percent, down from 7.93; and five-year CDs 7.94 percent, down from 7.96.

The average rate for a one-year, adjustable-rate mortgage was 8.57 percent down from 8.60.

The average rate on a 15-year, fixed-rate mortgage declined in the latest week to 10.01 percent from 10.03, while the average rate for a 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage was unchanged at 10.22 percent.

The average rate for a four-year automobile loan was unchanged at 12.29 percent.

LONDON (MAY 24) UPI - Amnesty International condemned Thursday the killings this month of scores of students in Zaire by security forces at a southern university campus.

Amnesty called on the government to immediately set up an independent inquiry into the killings of the students May 11, and bring those responsible to justice.

Reports of the number of students killed in Lubumbashi range from 50 to 150, and more are thought to have been wounded, the international human rights group said.

Belgian news reports said elite soldiers were dispatched to the university after the students killed three people they suspected of being police informers and demonstrated against the government's reluctance to follow through on promised political reforms.

Soldiers allegedly told police to cut the power supply to the campus, then killed about 50 students with bayonets and machetes, and burned their bodies in mass graves, La Libre Belgique said.

''Amnesty is concerned that the killings of unarmed students under the cover of darkness by the security forces appears to have been premediated and extensive and is calling on the government to immediately set up an independent inquiry into the reported killings.''

Unconfirmed reports said soldiers of the elite presidential guard known as the DSP carried out the killings.

The government has said it may investigate but has dismsised the reports as unfounded. It said the soldiers were not involved in any violence and they only intervened to quell violence between students.

Students in a number of towns demonstrated in April and May for political reforms.

NEW YORK (MAY 24) UPI - The Dow industrials just missed Thursday setting their fourth record high this week, dipping less than a point as profit taking kept stocks in check.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 4.03 Wednesday to a record high of 2856.26, eased 0.71 to close at 2855.55. The Dow industrials last closed lower on Friday.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index lost 0.38 to 195.47 and the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index eased 0.88 to close at 358.41. The price of an average share fell seven cents.

Declines led advances 803-715 among the 2,022 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Big Board volume totaled 155,140,000 shares, compared with 172,330,000 shares traded Wednesday.

The stock market spent a do-nothing day, drifting aimlessly as it consolidated gains made in the current rally, now in its fourth week. Prices opened lower, depressed by profit taking and early weakness in the bond market after news that the nation's economy grew at a sluggish annual rate of 1.3 percent during the first quarter. Such news would normally be bullish for bonds since economic weakness normally means lower interest rates.

But analysts pointed out that an examination of the data revealed the weakness was due to a downward revision in inventories, which, as one analyst put it, "has future positive connotations for gross national product since it implies that production will have to be increased down the line."

Bonds declined slightly after the news, drifted through the rest of the session and were down about 1/8 point in late trading. Stocks tried to stage a midday recovery, but the attempt fizzled and prices drifted for the rest of the day with the Dow ending just shy of Wednesday's record high.

"It was just a meandering type of day," said Dennis Jarrett, chief market strategist at Kidder, Peabody & Co. "The market just didn't do much. It was like a sleepy summer day."

Jarrett said he expected the market to wind down even more Friday as the Memorial Day weekend approaches and "people try to get a 3 1/2- or 4-day weekend."

He noted that a few Dow stocks saved the average from a larger decline, as a sharp dividend-related gain in Eastman Kodak and strength in McDonald's, Boeing and General Electric offset weakness in Philip Morris and Alcoa.

On the trading floor, Philip Morris was the most active issue, down one to 44 1/8, as tobacco issues fell after Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan said he would like states to ban cigarette vending machines as a way of keeping tobacco products out of the hands of children.

Sullivan presented his idea Thursday to the Senate Finance Committee, which held a hearing on children's access to cigarettes. Other tobacco issues losing ground were American Brands, down 1 3/8 to 67 5/8, and UST, down one to 29.

Texas Utilities had the second-highest volume, finishing up 3/8 to 36 7/8. Citizens and Southern was third, up 1/8 to 25 5/8.

Westinghouse was next, up 7/8 to 35 5/8 after recent weakness. An analyst for Shearson Lehman Hutton reportedly downgraded the stock Wednesday and cut his 1990 and 1991 earnings estimates for the company. McDonald's was also active, up one to 35 1/8.

Among other blue chips, AT&T lost 3/8 to 42 3/4, IBM was unchanged at 118 3/4 and Alcoa fell 1 3/8 to 65 1/8, while Boeing rose 1 1/2 to 82 5/8, Kodak rose one to 41 1/2 and GE gained 7/8 to 69 3/8.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 190,323,270 shares, compared with 205,578,010 shares traded Wednesday.

Prices closed higher in very heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex Market Value index rose 1.11 to close at 360.76. The price of an average share gained four cents. Advances led declines 290-283 among the 840 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 25,568,800 shares, up from 19,748,800 traded Wednesday. B.A.T. Industries led the Amex issues, up 1/8 to 12.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 1.41 to close at 458.28.

(MAY 24) UPI - U.S. gasoline rose nearly a penny a gallon Thursday after threats of a possible refinery-workers strike in Brazil. But crude continued to slide with the oil glut apparently pushing storage tanks in some regions to their limit.

Unleaded gasoline for June delivery, which lost 1.92 cents thus far this week, gained back 0.72 cent to end the day on the New York Mercantile Exchange at 63.23 cents a gallon. The July contract, which becomes the Merc's spot-month contract next week, added 1.05 cents to 61.37 cents a gallon.

Prompt delivery unleaded rose 0.25 cents to 63.25 cents a gallon on the New York Harbor cash market and gained 0.75 cent on the U.S. Gulf Coast spot market to 67.25 cents a gallon.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast cash market, prompt delivery West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, was being offered at $16 a barrel, a loss of 45 cents on top of Wednesday's $1.20 drop. The WTI July delivery futures contract ended the day down 31 cents to $17.83 a barrel on the Merc, a new low for the July contract.

"Anyone who has storage space on the Gulf Coast and in the Midwest is 99 percent full," said Joe Miller of Shearson Lehman Hutton's International Energy Desk in New York.

"Storage anywhere in the United States looks to be full ... There's not much interest in buying crude at this point," said Michael McDermott of New York's Paine Webber Inc.

The American Petroleum Institute Tuesday reported U.S. crude oil stocks grew 4.4 million barrels last week to 380.2 million barrels - 39 million barrels higher than a year ago and the highest weekly level since March 1982.

The two traders said the price rise in gasoline was triggered by reports of a Brazilian strike after the state-owned Petrobras oil company said it would lay off 20 percent of its refinery workers.

"The market wouldn't have gone out and bought gasoline on the rumors of a strike if gasoline didn't look good to begin with," McDermott said. McDermott said he still liked gasoline relative to crude but doubted that gasoline prices could hold firm in the face of another 50-cent fall in the price of U.S. crude, which he considered likely.

On the European cash market, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent crude was up 11 cents to $16.25 a barrel. The United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - was quoted at $14.18 a barrel, up eight cents. On the Merc, home heating oil for June delivery declined 0.40 cents to 49.81 cents a gallon.

(MAY 24) UPI - The Senate today reversed a vote it took yesterday and decided to set limits on the number of times a death row inmate can seek court reprieves. The restrictions would limit death row inmates to one challenge in federal court, unless granted permission for a second by the courts of appeal. The plan is part of an anti-crime package being debated in the Senate.

The beginning of the Atlantic hurricane season is still a week away, but the first tropical system of the year may be forming. The National Hurricane Center says ship reports indicate that a low pressure area about 240 miles south of western Cuba is becoming better organized and could become a tropical depression within the next 24 hours.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - Radio Free Europe announced Thrusday the opening of news bureaus in Prague and Warsaw.

The new democratic leaders of Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary encouraged the network to establish bureaus in their countries, said E. Eugene Pell, president of Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty.

The network opened a news bureau in Budapest in September.

The bureaus will also help to train local journalists in Western news procedures.

Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty broadcasts focus heavily on domestic developments in Central and East Europe and the Soviet Union. The network broadcasts to those areas in 23 languages.

The network is a private, non-profit corporation funded by congressional grants through the Board for International Broadcasting.

CINCINNATI (MAY 24) UPI - Attorneys told a judge Thursday he should throw out obscenity indictments against an art gallery that is displaying controversial Robert Mapplethorpe photographs because Ohio law protects museums from obscenity prosecution.

''The charges are faulty, the indictments are no good and the judge ought to throw them out,'' Louis Sirkin, an attorney for the Contemporary Arts Center, argued before Hamilton County Municipal Judge David Albanese.

The judge, who listened to three hours of pretrial motions and arguments, gave no indication when he will rule on the request to dismiss the charges. However, a decision must wait until Albanese receives written briefs from prosecutors sometime next week.

Six weeks ago, a Hamilton County grand jury indicted the art gallery and its director, Dennis Barrie, on charges of obscenity and child pornography for displaying the Mapplethorpe photos, some of which depict erotic homosexual activity. Two of them feature pictures of children with genitals exposed.

Despite the indictments, the controversial photos have remained a part of the show, which has attracted a record crowd of 70,000. The display closes in Cincinnati this weekend and moves on to Boston.

''It doesn't matter whether the photos are obscene,'' Marc Mezibov, another defense attorney, told the judge. ''It's irrelevant because Ohio law requires the indictments to be dismissed.

''Ohio law immunizes museums from (obscenity) prosecution. A museum is a protected institution. And the Cincinnati Arts Center is a bonafide museum that for 50 years has been providing educational and cultural opportunities for people. In this case, for 70,000 people.''

The judge asked Mezibov, ''Do you think the U.S. Supreme Court would buy that?''

''Absolutely,'' responded Mezibov.

''Unless the prosecution can cast a pall over the mission of the Contemporary Arts Center, this court has no option but to dismiss the indictments,'' added Mezibov. ''We need not go further. These charges should be dismissed.''

Countered prosecutor Frank Prouty, ''Mr. Mezibov is trying to put the Contemporary Arts Center above everything else. Above newspapers, television, books, radio. Above all other media.

''The issue is not the status of the museum. The issue is whether the photos are obscene. Just because the Contemporary Arts Center has been around for 50 years, does that mean its allowed to pander obscenity?''

Defense attorneys also argued the art gallery had been ''targeted and singled out'' for selective prosecution.

''Books containing some of these same photos have been available at several book stores and libraries in Cincinnati,'' noted Sirkin. ''Why were no charges brought against the book stores or libraries?

''There have been 70,000 people view the photos at the museum and no charges have been brought against them. Two Cincinnati newspapers published vivid (verbal) descriptions of the photos and they were not charged.

''The prosecutor said he received 600 letters complaining about the photos. Those letters contained descriptions of the photos. The written word is equally subject to prosecution, but the letter-writers have not been prosecuted.''

Added Mezibov, ''The prosecutor just wanted to close down the exhibition. This was a bad faith prosecution from the get-go.''

NAIROBI, KENYA (MAY 24) UPI - Kenya withdrew permission Thursday for the International Bar Association to hold its 23rd biennial conference in Nairobi because of disorder in the ranks of Kenya's own Law Society, an official said.

The African director of the New York-based Lawyers Committee for Human Rights said, however, he feared the decision was a pre-emptive move to stop the airing of human rights issues at the conference.

More than 5,000 lawyers from around the world were scheduled to attend the conference from Sept. 17 to Sept. 22, and former President Jimmy Carter was to deliver the opening address.

''My immediate reaction is that the conference was being framed in such a way that it would begin to address human rights issues in Africa,'' said Macao Mutua, director of LCHR's African Project. ''I would not be surprised if that was the reason for the cancellation,'' he said in a telephone interview from New York.

''One panel was going to be a human rights panel which would address issues close to home,'' he added.

Justice Matthew Muli, Kenya''s attorney general, said the government had decided to cancel the meeting because of internal disagreements within the Law Society of Kenya, the body which oversees the administration of justice in Kenya.

''It is with great regret that the membership of this society is now divided into opponent and warring groups with the result that it is unlikely that genuine business of the society can be conducted,'' he said.

OTTAWA (MAY 24) UPI - Canada's central bank rate climbed Thursday to an eight-year high of 14.05 percent, an increase of 0.25 percent from last week.

Outside Parliament, Finance Minister Michael Wilson attributed the higher rate to uncertainty over the so-called Meech Lake constitutional accord, which has raised fears Quebec will separate from Canada, and over strong inflationary pressures and slower economic growth.

Wilson, declining to estimate the impact of the constitutional squabble on interest rates, said estimates by the Royal Bank of Canada that they are about one percentage point higher because of the Meech Lake accord were about right. In addition, political uncertainty is driving away foreign portfolio and direct investment, according to Wilson.

The pace-setting Bank of Canada rate is at its highest point since the summer of 1982. It was not immediately clear if the country's chartered banks would raise their prime lending rate, which is now 14.75 percent.

The higher interest rate was also fueled by inflationary pressures, brought on particularly by higher wage settlements, Wilson said.

Unit labor costs rose 6.4 percent in 1989, higher than increases in Japan and West Germany. But that trend is unlikely to change as the labor sector strives to protect itself against the inflationary impact of a 7 percent tax on goods and services that takes effect next Jan. 1.

The higher interest rates have also played havoc with the Conservative-ledgovernment's deficit projections.

Wilson's budget for the 1990-91 fiscal year, which predicted a shortfall of $23.7 billion, was based on an 11.1 percent average rate. Unless interest rates fall dramatically - seen as unlikely given the slowdown in the Canadian economy and current political events - economists estimate the deficit could be $1.6 billion to $3.3 billion higher than predicted.

Wilson said Thursday that the government was only 45 days into its new fiscal year and that the Finance Department could not predict what would happen to interest rates.

''We make projections. Interest rates are somewhat higher than we expected '' he said, adding that higher-than-anticipated revenues from personal income taxes would help offset the higher interest charges on the debt.

BEAVERTON, OR (MAY 24) UPI - FPS Computing announced Thursday an agreement with Canon Sales Co. to distribute FPS computer systems in Japan.

Officials at FPS, formerly known as Floating Point Systems, said the technical computing market in Japan is expanding rapidly and that Canon views the partnership as a natural extension of their successful computer workstation and systems business.

Under terms of the partnership agreement, Canon Sales will acquire some assets from FPS Computing and expects to trade using the Beaverton company's name.

FPS officials said Fuji Bank Ltd. of Tokyo was instrumental in arranging the partnership.

WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - Uncle Sam is losing at least $16 million a year to concessionaires who sell food, provide lodging and peddle souvenirs in national parks, the Interior Department's inspector general reported Thursday.

The problem was attributed to the National Park Service's failure to set equitable franchise and rental fees in its contracts with concessionaires, who raked in gross receipts totaling $500 million in 1988.

Most Park Service officials who negotiate the contracts lack financial expertise and are ''outmatched when dealing with sophisticated business executives and their accountants,'' Inspector General James Richards told a House Interior subcommittee.

In some cases, the Park Service agreed to contract clauses requiring both parties to agree to adjust franchise fees during the life of the contract, effectively locking in those rates for decades, Richards said.

His audit, ordered by Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan, also found the agency has given concessionaires excessive discounts in return for their construction of facilities that primarily benefit their businesses, rather than the park.

In addition, the Park Service routinely undercharges for the rental of government-owned buildings and allows concessionaires to deduct some revenues from the gross receipts on which franchise fees are calculated, the report said.

Many of these same problems were identified in an audit of the Park Service's concessions management in 1986, Richards testified.

Altogether, the 500 concessions contracts and permits awarded by the Park Service generated fees of $12.5 million in 1988, the report found.

By comparison, lost fees from just 10 of the largest concessionaires in the parks averaged $16.7 million a year, or about $83.5 million over five years from 1984 through 1988, his report said.

Additional losses of $109 million are projected for the years 1989 through 1993 if the same policies are followed, the study said.

''These findings seem to paint a picture of sweetheart deals - whether intended as such or not - resulting in excess profits at taxpayer expense '' said Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Mich., chairman of the parks and public lands subcommittee.

However, Rep. Ron Marlenee, R-Mont., insisted that overall, the ''concessionaires are providing an excellent service at a reasonable price '' and there is nothing wrong with them making a profit.

Rep. Robert Lagomarsino, R-Calif., said that despite the inspector general's findings, the collection of franchise fees from park concessions has increased by 150 percent during the past 10 years.

Lujan told the subcommittee he is still reviewing the report and a study by a Park Service task force, and is considering a number of changes they have recommended.

MIAMI (MAY 24) UPI - The first tropical depression of the 1990 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season formed Thursday, threatening to dump heavy rain over central Cuba, the National Hurricane Center said.

At 4:45 p.m. EDT, the weak low pressure area was located near latitude 19.5 north, longitude 84 west, or about 275 miles southwest of Havana, said Lixion Avila, a hurricane specialist at the National Hurricane Center.

The depression was moving northward from 5 mph to 10 mph, he said.

''The main concern about the system is the rain that will fall over Cuba '' Avila said. ''We expect 10 to 15 inches of rain over the central portion of Cuba tonight and (Friday).''

The hurricane season does not begin officially until June 1, but Avila said a weak disturbance in the Caribbean is not unusual for this time of year.

''It's normal to have during late May this type of weak depression over the Caribbean,'' he said.

If the depression developed top wind speeds of at least 39 mph, the system would become Tropical Storm Arthur. But little strengthening was expected.

''We think the system is not going to strengthen any more,'' Avila said. ''It will not change. The environment is not a good one for development, since there are strong upper level winds.''

The Hurricane Center planned to track the storm's movement for at least 72 hours.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (MAY 24) UPI - The repaired shuttle Columbia and its seven-member crew were cleared Thursday for a sky-lighting midnight launch next Wednesday, two weeks late, to kick off a 10-day Spacelab astronomy mission.

''It's the 30th. There are no significant problems or issues,'' said NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone. ''Everything's on schedule. We're going to pick up the countdown at 1 a.m. (EDT) Sunday.''

Running two weeks behind schedule because of work to replace a faulty valve in the shuttle's cooling system, Columbia is scheduled for a fiery nighttime take-off at 12:38 a.m. Wednesday on the fourth of nine flights planned for 1990.

William Lenoir, NASA's associate administrator for space flight, and other top agency managers met at the Kennedy Space Center Thursday and reviewed the valve repair work before setting the official launch date and announcing the flight will last 10 days if on-board supplies hold out.

''The work we did on the Freon system was successful,'' Malone said of the job to replace the faulty valve. If all goes well, technicians will begin the coundown early Sunday.

Commander Vance Brand, 59, co-pilot Guy Gardner, 42, John ''Mike'' Lounge, 43, Robert Parker, 53, Jeffrey Hoffman, 45, and civilian astronomers Ronald Parise, 39, and Samuel Durrance, 46, plan to fly to the Kennedy Space Center later that day for final preparations.

Parise and Durrance are the first non-professional astronauts assigned to a shuttle mission since satellite engineer Gregory Jarvis and school teacher Christa McAuliffe took off on Challenger's final voyage.

Columbia's launching will trigger a flurry of activity at the Florida spacepport. Shortly after the shuttle date was announced, NASA and Air Force officials scheduled a West German X-ray satellite called ROSAT for blastoff atop an unmanned Delta 2 rocket at 5:35 p.m. June 1.

The Delta-ROSAT flight will be followed June 3 or 4, sources say, by the predawn launch of a powerful Air Force Titan 4 rocket carrying a classified military satellite. Details about that flight, only the second for a Titan 4, are classified.

The goal of Columbia's mission is the operation of a $150 million suite of telescopes in the ship's payload bay that were built to study X-ray and ultraviolet emissions from deep space targets that are blocked by Earth's atmosphere.

The four telescopes aboard Columbia are far more modest than the giant $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope launched last month from the shuttle Discovery but they will give astronomers their first detailed glimpse of what the universe looks like in the high-energy regions of the spectrum.

Data collected with the Astro-1 space observatory aboard Columbia will enable astronomers back on Earth to gain insights into the nature of quasars, as-yet-unseen black holes, supernovae, interstellar gas and dust, stellar evolution and other critical questions in modern astronomy, extending humanity's sight beyond the blue end of the visible-light spectrum.

Data from the Astro-1 instruments thus will complement the visible light studies of the Hubble Space Telescope in an ongoing NASA effort to explore the universe across the entire electromagnetic spectrum.

The mission originally was scheduled to last nine days, but if supplies aboard the shuttle hold out, the flight will run a full 10 days to gather as much data as possible. Brand and Gardner then will guide Columbia to a landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., on June 8.

(MAY 24) UPI - President Bush today defended his decision to renew most-favored-nation trading status for China. Bush said he did NOT base his decision on recent moves by the Chinese leadership, which he conceded ''are far from adequate.'' He said he made the decision after weighing political, diplomatic and economic factors. Bush said revoking the special status would only ''hurt the Chinese people themselves.''

President Bush told reporters today that he and Secretary of State Baker agree on the approach Baker is taking on strategic nuclear weapons negotiations with the Soviet Union. Republican conservatives have criticized the negotiations, arguing that Baker is rushing head-long toward an agreement. But Bush said he is ''very satisfied on where we stand'' on Baker's talks with top Soviet officials.

The stage is set for a struggle between conservative and radical communists for control of Russia, the largest of the 15 Soviet republics. Radical lawmakers nominated the immensely popular Boris Yeltsin to challenge Russia's prime minister for the equivalent of presidency of the republic. Yeltsin is one of 13 people nominated for chairman of the Russian Parliament. If Yeltsin wins, it would give him a powerful base to challenge Soviet leader Gorbachev.

The mysterious death of an opposition leader in the west African nation of Gabon touched off widespread unrest today. WASHINGTON (MAY 24) UPI - A group of distinguished American diplomats and scientists asked President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev Thursday to use the forthcoming summit as an opportunity to halt the production of nuclear materials used in weapons.

Under the START treaty that is nearly finished but will not be ready for signing at the May 30-June 3 summit, the United States and the Soviet Union would retire about 7,000 nuclear warheads by 1998. It is assumed that the nuclear material in those weapons could be recycled to replace older weapons that deteriorate over time.

In addition, the United States has recently retired about 3,000 tactical nuclear warheads in Europe - older weapons that ave become unstable and irrelevant in light of the dissolution of the Warsaw Pact in Eastern Europe.

The letter to the two presidents was signed by seven Nobel laureates, two former cabinet secretaries, including former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, and two former directors of the CIA, William Colby and Stansfield Turner.

In the letter the 54 signers said, ''The window of opportunity is fast closing'' because the United States, where military production reactors have been shut down after safety problems were discovered, is now preparing to restart the reactors.

The reactors produce plutonium, one of the world's most dangerous elements and tritium, a corrosive and dangerous element that deteriorates relatively quickly.

The letter to the two leaders said, ''Surely this unrelenting race to produce yet more ingredients for nuclear weapons - plutonium and tritium - deserves serious re-examination in light of the progress being made to end the nuclear arms race.''

The letter suggested that the United States only has to defer its decision to restart the military production and the Soviet Union should accelerate its timetable for a shutdown of its reactors.

Both sides, the letter said, could maintain a standby contingency status for its reactors, in case future production were required.

NEW YORK (MAY 24) UPI - The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that the basic U.S. money supply, narrowly defined under the name of M1, fell $3.2

billion in the latest reporting week, and the broader aggregates M2 and M3 also declined.

M2 dropped $5.0 billion and M3 fell $3.9 billion.

M1, which is made up of cash, checking accounts and NOW accounts - money that is available for immediate spending - moved down to a seasonally adjusted average of $802.9 billion in the week ended May 14 from a revised $806.1 billion the week before.

Over the latest 13 weeks, M1 averaged $805.3 billion, a 5.4 percent rate of increase from the previous 13 weeks, the Fed reported.

The broader measure of money, M2, averaged an estimated $3,266.5 billion in the latest week, down from a revised $3,271.5 billion. M2 includes M1, plus passbook savings, small time deposits, including money market deposit accounts, consumer money market mutual funds and certain other short-term assets.

M3, which includes M2 plus large time deposits, repurchase agreements longer than one day at banks and thrifts, and institutional money market funds, averaged $4,064.1 billion in the latest week, down from a revised $4,068.0 billion, the Fed said.

(MAY 24) UPI - Japanese Emperor Akihito has apologized to South Korean President Roh Tae Woo in an effort to put aside lingering hard feelings from Japan's 35-year colonization of Korea. Roh is in Tokyo on a three-day visit. From 1910 until 1945, the Japanese killed thousands of Korean resisters, forced Koreans to work under slave-like conditions and adopt Japanese names. Japan's reluctance to apologize has remained a barrier to friendly ties between the two Far East nations.

PRAGUE, CZECHOSLOVAKIA (MAY 24) UPI - Interior Minister Richard Sacher said Thursday he cannot identify former secret police collaborators because 10,000 confidential files are missing and the only existing copies may be in the hands of the Soviet KGB.

But Sacher, who said he wanted to warn as many as 14,000 former secret police collaborators they could face prosecution, acknowledged that he was in no hurry to uncover former informants and agents because he feared unleashing a wave of reprisals.

''It is very likely that if we published the names of these people we couldn't prevent violence against them and their families,'' Sacher said.

Sacher said 10,000 files had disappeared from the Interior Ministry between the November 1989 revolution that ended a half-century of communist rule and the time he took office in January.

Asked if he would ask Moscow for assistance in returning the files, Sacher said, ''I can and would make the request, but I know what the answer will be and I don't expect any assistance.''

Sympathizers of Civic Forum, the center-left movement that led last November's revolution, have criticized Sacher in the past for his slowness in dismantling the secret police, known by its Czech initials StB.

The Interior Ministry tried Wednesday to halt publication of Thursday's edition of Mlady Svet magazine, which featured a major article on the StB.

The accusations against Sacher are likely to regain prominence after Thursday's revelation, especially in light of parliamentary elections scheduled for June 8-9.

Sacher's Czechoslovak People's Party, a leading member of the center-right Christian Democratic coalition, is running a close second to Civic Forum in pre-election polls and has increased rhetorical attacks against Civic Forum, led by President Vaclav Havel.

Criticism of Sacher abated with the appointment of Jan Ruml, a journalist and former spokesman for the human rights group Charter 77, to oversee the disbanding of the StB.

In his 2 1/2 weeks in the post, Ruml has fired hundreds of StB men and begun to rid the ministry of those suspected of continued loyalty to Czechoslovakia's deposed communist rulers.

There is increasing concern in political circles that Sacher may be stalling the dismantling of the secret police until after the election because it could turn up possibly incriminating evidence against his party.

Under Czechoslovakia's four decades of communist rule, the People's Party was one of the handful of legal parties, and operated under communist control as part of the ruling National Front coalition. The extent to which officials of these legal parties cooperated with the communists and the StB has become a major issue in the election campaign here.

''It is very suspicious that not enough is being done and not fast enough, to dismantle the StB,'' said a senior member of a party running against the People's Party.

The People's Party newspaper Lidova Demokracie published a blistering attack Thursday on the Prague Spring reformers of 1968, many of whom are now leading personalities in Civic Forum.

The paper called the reforms ''a palace revolution within the Communist Party,'' which aimed merely to substitute one faction for another and used ''appealing slogans about Socialism with a human face.''

''Socialism with a Human Face'' was the slogan of Alexander Dubcek, the Communist Party leader who led the Prague Spring reforms and was deposed by th Soviet-led a Warsaw pact invasion to crush the reforms and install a Brezhnevist regime.

Dubcek is now a chairman of Czechoslovakia's Parliament and a leading figure in the Public against Violence, Civic Forum's sister group in the Slovak half of the country.

(MAY 24) UPI - President Bush today brushed aside concerns about a lack of progress on human rights and extended most-favored-nation trading status for China. Bush told a Washington news conference that his decision is NOT a concession but is based on ''everyday trade.'' Revoking the special status, he says, would only ''hurt the Chinese people themselves.''

President Bush today defended his decision NOT to go on television and radio to outline his strategy for solving the deficit crisis. OAKLAND, CA (MAY 24) UPI - A car explosion, possibly caused by a bomb, injured two members of a militant environmental group that is planning a a blockade of logging in northern California this summer, officials said.

One of tha activists, Judi Bari, recently said she had received death threats because of her involvement in Earth First!.

Bari, 40, and Darryl Cherney, 33, also a member of Earth First!, were driving in a station wagon Oakland shortly before noon when the explosion tore through the vehicle, sending it careening into a car and a truck.

The FBI entered the investigation because of the possibility a car bomb was involved.

Bari, of Mendocino, Calif., was reported in serious but stable condition with a fractured pelvis. Cherney, of Garberville in Humboldt County, apparently suffered facial lacerations and an injured left arm.

The explosion occurred near Oakland High School near where a track class was jogging, but no students were injured.

Bari and Cherney were both active in organizing a major protest against logging redwoods this summer during which college students from across the United States were to come to northern California and stay in the homes of local environmental activists.

Earth First! billed the ''Redwood Summer'' protest as a non-violent blockade of civil disobedience against logging in some 30,000 acres of virgin forests in Humboldt and Mendocino counties.

Bari said Tuesday during an interview on the San Francisco radio station KCBS that she has received death threats and was once run off the road by logging trucks while driving with her two children on a remote road near Mendocino.

Mary Ball, of Earth First! and the Mendocino Environmental Center, said Bari had received death threats in the past few months through the mail at her home and in notes attached to the door of the center.

Earth First! once advocated such radical ways of halting logging as the ''spiking'' of trees with steel rods which would cause chainsaws to whip if they were hit, endangering the lives of lumberjacks. Last month, Cherney said such violent measures were not tolerated or practiced by the group.

Ken Rich, 40, of Castro Valley said he saw the explosion that caved in the roof of the station wagon, which was being driven by Beri. The vehicle continued for a block, hitting a second car and Rich's truck before stopping against a curb.

''As I ran up to the car, I saw a man in the passenger side bleeding pretty badly,'' Rich said. ''He was moaning, 'Help me, help me, get me out of here.' I've been in Vietnam and I've seen bombed-out cars before. This one took a heavy hit. I'm amazed the people inside are still alive.''

BOSTON (MAY 25) UPI - The troubled Bank of New England Corp. Thursday said a national advertising campaign has been successful in raising certificate of deposit money to replace funds withdrawn by nervous depositors.

However, the company, whose survival has been jeopardized by enormous real estate losses last year and the first quarter of this year, would not disclose how much money it has attracted.

Meanwhile, a weekly Federal Reserve Bank of Boston report suggested the bank's borrowing of overnight funds still is at a high level. The Fed said its loans to all member banks in the region amounted to $750 million as of Wednesday. The bank previously has acknowleged it accounted for virtually all such ''overnight'' lending by the Fed.

The national advertising campaign has been a reversal of the traditional flow of capital from the Northeast to the fast-growing Sunbelt states.

Bank of New England has sought deposits in Florida, Texas and southern California as well as in the Middle Atlantic states, said Linda Kanner, executive vice president for community banking.

Kanner said the company's two biggest subsidiary banks, Bank of New England based in Boston and Connecticut Bank & Trust, headquartered in Hartford, have run ads in Sunbelt markets, in New York and in some national publications.

However, Kanner said that although the bank has offered ''aggressive'' rates on certificates of deposit nationally, it has had to offer higher rates to its New England customers than it has to those in the South and Southwest. She said competiton for money has been greater in New England.

Kanner said the advertising campaign, running since March, ''is been doing fairly well.... It clearly has been effective in finding a new source of cash'' for the bank.

The company, which had assets of more than $32 billion as recently as last fall, now claims about $25 billion in assets.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - The verbal warfare between the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Commodities Futures Trading Commission erupted Thursday at a House hearing on a plan to give the SEC power to regulate stock index futures.

The change in regulatory jurisdiction has been the focus of a running turf battle between the two agencies. The SEC regulates Wall Street's stock markets and the CFTC oversees commodities trading on Chicago's La Salle Street. Neither agency is eager to lose an inch of regulatory control.

SEC Chairman Richard Breeden called the current regulatory structure ''a self-inflicted wound'' and an ''anchor that only American companies have to drag through the water.''

''The destructive fragmentation that has existed for the last eight years was a mistake, and it should be eliminated before further harm is done to our markets, our own cost of capital, or the confidence of our investors '' he told the House Subcommitee on Telecommunications and Finance.

But Wendy Gramm, chairman of the CFTC, countered that ''jurisdictional gerrymandering'' is unnecessary and would only further disrupt the markets.

''The case has not been made to disturb the existing jurisdictional assignment between the CFTC and the SEC,'' Gramm said. ''Any such change would have severe regulatory costs both for the markets and their customers.''

Ronald Glauber, the Treasury Department's under secretary of finance, told the panel that the Bush administration favors a plan to shift regulatory authority for stock index futures to the SEC and away from the CFTC.

The administration's proposal, which is expected to be submitted to Congress next month, also would give the SEC oversight authority over the ability of the futures exchange to set margins.

''The solution is not complicated,'' Glauber said. ''We do not need more regulation. But we do need more unified regulation as the umbrella under which specific intermarket issues can be much more easily resolved.''

The administration favors the SEC because of it's expertise in dealing with stocks, stock options and stock index futures, Glauber said.

The switch in jurisdiction is being sought to quell future volatility between the stock and futures markets.

The wild price fluctuations between the markets is one of the reasons why individual investors fled the stock market after the October 1987 crash and last October's ''Friday the 13th'' scare when the Dow Jones industrial average dipped 190 points.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, who along with Glauber, Breeden and Gramm, serves on a presidential working group studying the matter, said he narrowly favors the administration's plan.

''I don't find the evidence convincing in either direction,'' he said.

Separately, Breeden, discussing an SEC report released Thursday that examined the performance of the stock market and the futures market on Oct. 13 and 16, 1989, said there exists ''the possibility of very different responses (by the two markets) to the same events.

''This demonstrates the validity of the administration's point of view. It would be most appropriate to have a single government authority with oversight of markets,'' Breeden said.

(MAY 24) UPI - Sky-watchers will be manning their telescopes tomorrow to see Comet Austin, which makes its closest approach to Earth. Astronomers say it's Austin's first and only visit to the inner solar system, which makes it ''uncontaminated'' and more interesting than Halley's comet.

Hungary's Prime Minister Jozsef Antall has appointed a task force to overhaul his country's ailing economy. Antall told reporters that the special economic Cabinet will oversee the transition from a socialist to a market economy. Antall was elected yesterday as his country's first NON-communist leader in 43 years.

President Bush says he will veto a Democrat-sponsored bill that would make Washington, D-C, the nation's 51st state. Bush says he opposes the bill because the city's funds come- in his words- ''almost exclusively from the federal government.'' Washington Mayor Marion Barry says the U-S government picks up only 20 percent of the tab.

Ohio State University officials have clamped down hard on students who harass homosexual students. Officials closed a third-floor wing of a campus dormitory and evicted 32 male students after a series of harassment incidents and threats. The latest incident came yesterday when anti-homosexual slogans were left at room of two gay students.

HOUSTON (MAY 24) UPI - A cult leader accused of burning teenagers during initiation rituals was jailed Thursday on charges of child abuse, authorities said.

Edward Torres, 24, was arrested after teenagers told investigators he forced them to participate in rituals in cemeteries.

Torres allegedly used a cigarette lighter to burn the arms of six of the boys in the cult, investigators said.

''Part of the ritual was he had to burn their forearms without them moving. He would force these children to stand there and burn their forearms,'' said arson investigator H.G. Torres, who is not related to the suspect.

Two girls in the cult were told to pierce their noses instead of being burned on their arms, Torres said.

Eight teenagers, ages 13-16, told investigators the cult leader, who they called ''Animal,'' also beat them and claimed he had dug up bodies.

Investigators said they believed there were more members of the cult, but they were not sure how many.

When arrested Wednesday night, Edward Torres was free on bond on a charge of sexual abuse of a juvenile, which was filed against him in February, investigators said.

The teens told investigators the suspect claimed he wanted to cut people so he could ''suck their blood.''

Harris County Constable Victor Trevino said Torres convinced the youths to remain silent by threatening to kill their families if they told anyone about him.

''They're still scared,'' Trevino said of youths.

WAMSUTTER, WY (MAY 24) UPI - A Greyhound bus ran off an interstate highway Thursdayand hit a drainage culvert, causing minor injuries to eight passengers, authorities said.

The driver of the bus, Bobby L. Williamson, 50, told investigators a tractor-trailer forced him off of Interstate 80 near Wamsutter, about 460 miles west of Cheyenne.

They Wyoming Highway Patroland Greyhound investigators were interviewing the 45 passengers on board to get their version of the accident.

A total of 42 passengers ranging in age from 2 to 83 years were taken to Carbon County Memorial Hospital in Rawlins for examination. All but eight were released, some after receiving treatment for minor cuts and bruises, said Dick Mills, hospital administrator.

The eight admitted to the hospital for observation all were listed in stable condition with injuries ranging from whiplash-type back problems to a broken nose and strained ligaments.

Williamson was hired by the company about two months ago to replace striking drivers and had a good driving record with previous experience driving interstate buses and trucks, said Greyhound spokesman George Gravley.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (MAY 24) UPI - Pop star Paula Abdul announced Thursday

she has signed a deal with fast-growing L.A. Gear Inc. to promote a line of women's footwear and sportswear.

Neither Abdul nor the company, the nation's third-largest ahtletic shoe maker, would disclose the value of the endorsement contract, which Abdul said covers two years. But L.A. Gear executives indicated the contract was similar to a deal the company signed last year with pop star Michael Jackson.

Industry analysts have estimated the value of the Jackson contract at as high as $20 million.

The line of footwear carrying the 27-year-old Abdul's endorsement could hit the market by the end of this year. Her sportswear line won't be available until next year.

''The association with L.A. Gear will allow me the opportunity to see my own design ideas produced with care and quality,'' Abdul said at a news conference. ''Where they (the company) won my heart when they approached me was that I would be able to develop my own line.''

''They presented me with an opportunity to get involved from the get-go,'' she said.

Abdul, who won an Emmy for her choreography on ''The Tracey Ullman Show,'' said she wants to focus on footwear that can be worn for dancing.

Abdul previously endorsed shoes for Reebok, the second-largest athletic shoe maker, but that agreement concluded several months ago, said Gil Schwartzberg, L.A. Gear's executive vice president and chief administrative officer.

Abdul also has a major endorsement contract with Coca-Cola. She got her start in show business as a member of the Los Angeles Lakers cheerleading-dancing squad, the Laker Girls.

Her debut album, ''Forever Your Girl,'' sold more than 7 million copies in the United States and had four No. 1 singles.

During the past two years, L.A. Gear has been focusing heavily on celebrity endorsements, including Michael Jackson, football star Joe Montana and retired basketball star Kareem Abdul Jabbar, in an effort to pass Reebok and industry leader Nike. It earned $55.1 million on sales of $617.1 million, both well over double its 1988 levels, and expects to reach $1 billion in sales this year.

Some analysts are concerned the company will not be able to continue to grow at the same pace and may be spending too much on endorsement contracts. But Sandy Saemann, L.A. Gear's executive vice president, defended the company's focus on celebrities and said the stock has performed well for its shareholders.

L.A. Gear stock was the largest gainer on the New York Stock Exchange during the first nine months of last year, nearly tripling to $46.75 a share. It then declined sharply for several months but has risen again, partly on the strength of strong first-quarter earnings. The stock gained $1.625 a share to $50.125 Thursday on the Big Borad.

Saemann and Schwartzberg said the retail industry has responsed strongly to the new Jackson-endorsed MJ line of shoes, which currently are being shipped to stores. The company unveiled the line in February at the National Sporting Goods Association Supershow in Atlanta and posted $50 million of business during the show, compared with $15 million last year, according to Schwartzberg.

PORTLAND, Ore. (MAY 25) UPI - Union workers at five Weyerhaeuser Co. pulp and paper mills in Oregon and Washington approved a new 5-year contract, averting a possible strike by more than 2,100 workers, officials said Thursday.

The Association of Western Pulp and Paper Workers in Portland counted the ballots cast this week at five mills in the region and reported the pact members previously had turned down was ratified by a 1,295-436 vote.

As with the previous vote, union negotiators gave no recommendation to union workers on whether to accept or reject the contract, said bargainer Chuck Mahlum, an area representative from Everett, Wash.

''We had a series of meetings under the auspices of a federal mediator and we only could change the offer internally,'' Mahlum said. ''We could not improve the offer.''

This time, howver, workers were told a no vote would grant the bargaining board strike authority, Mahlum said. The offer previously was rejected by 57 percent of those voting.

''The positive thing is that it was a clean bargain, there were no conessions,'' he said. ''That's quite an improvement over some of the companies we've been dealing with lately.''

Along with a 12 percent wage hike over the 5-year contract, the new pact includes ''significant improvements in pension benefits,'' Mahlum said. Weyerhaeuser also backed off earlier demands and agreed to continue full payment of health and welfare benefits, he added.

The contract also includes ''variable pay,'' based on profits and productivity, that can mean up to another 8 percent a year for workers in quarterly or annual payouts. The average worker at the pulp, paper and linerboard mills makes about $15 an hour, Mahlum said.

The pact covers workers at Weyerhaeuser plants in Everett, Cosmopolis and Longview, Wash., and Springfield and North Bend, Ore. They had been working without a contract since the previous one expired March 15.

''Everybody's pleased,'' said Weyerhaeuser spokeswoman Kathie Hardy. ''It's a 5-year contract, as opposed to our traditional 3-year, so now we're good through March of 1995.''

Despite China's anti-democracy crackdown, President Bush today announced that he is renewing most-favored-nation trading status for China.

The president's announcement had been predicted by administration officials for several days and comes less than two weeks before the first anniversary of the June 4th massacre in Beijing's Tiananmen Square.

Bush says he resisted the impulse to lash out in outrage against China for its brutal suppression of the pro-democracy movement. But he maintains that economic moves against China would hurt American business and the Chinese people.

The president's decision drew angry responses from Democrats in Congress, who vow to overturn it and revoke China's status as a preferred trading partner.

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine called the president's decision ''profoundly wrong.'' Mitchell says Democratic senators will- in his words- ''do everything we can to prevent it from taking effect.''

And House Speaker Thomas Foley says there's widespread support in the House for revoking China's trade status.

Most-favored-nation status is reserved for America's best trading partners and offers the freest access to U-S markets.

Former West Virginia quarterback Major Harris Thursday signed with the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League.

Harris signed a one-year contract with the Lions, a month after he was selected by the Los Angeles Raiders in the 12th and final round of the NFL draft.

Harris left West Virginia after his junior season. In three years as a starter, he passed for 5,173 yards and rushed for 2,161 to set a school record for 7,334 yards of total offense. The Mountaineers were 25-10-1 with Harris as a starter, and lost to Notre Dame in the Fiesta Bowl for the national championship game when he was a sophomre.

Harris attended the Raiders mini-camp after the draft, but was not expected to challenge Steve Beuerlein and Jay Schroeder for a starting job.

(MAY 24) UPI - The word from Moscow is that Lithuania's conditional offer to suspend its independence declaration is NOT good enough.

The Supreme Soviet says it won't discuss deals until the Baltic republic unconditionally withdraws the decree.

Lithuania's Parliament agreed last night to freeze laws implementing sovereignty if Moscow agreed to negotiate terms for independence.

Lithuanian lawmakers, however, stopped short of withdrawing the independence declaration of March 11th as Soviet President Gorbachev has demanded.

Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov says that until Lithuania does so there is- in his words- ''NO basis for further discussions.''

Gorbachev has repeatedly demanded that Lithuania withdraw its bid to secede. The Soviet leader reiterated the demand on Tuesday in a brief meeting with the presidents of the other two independent-driven Baltic republics, Estonia and Latvia.

The Commerce Department reports that the nation's economy grew at a sluggish annual rate of one-point-three percent, or 13-point-nine BILLION dollars during the first quarter.

The government attributes about half of the first-quarter increase in the Gross National Product to higher food and energy prices in January after December's unusually cold weather, which drove up food and energy costs during the quarter. Recent reports on inflation show the first quarter to be more of a blip than a trend.

The department says inflation topped a nine-year high at six-point-seven percent during the first quarter. That's the highest reading in the G-N-P fixed-weight price index since a seven-point-seven percent rise in the fourth quarter of 1981.

Robert Dederik, chief economist at Northern Trust Company in Chicago, says the figures indicate that inflation ''is coming in a lot lower this quarter.'' He says the first quarter is a textbook example of ''stagflation,'' a period when the economy slows and inflation grows.

(MAY 24) UPI - Critics are blasting a number of anti-smoking initiatives proposed by Health Secretary Sullivan, calling them ''half-hearted'' and ''inconsistent.''

Sullivan today told the Senate Finance Committee that every state should pass legislation to ban cigarette vending machines to help keep cigarettes out of the hands of children.

The secretary calls ''abysmal'' the enforcement of laws in 44 states and Washington, D-C, prohibiting cigarette sales to minors. Yet, he says that states, NOT Congress, should pass his new anti-smoking initiatives.

Democratic Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts led the attack against Sullivan's plan.

In Kennedy's words... ''The White House tactic of paying lip service to important national goals while rejecting federal action is irresponsible.'' He added, ''We canNOT simply dump our major national problems on the states.''

Democratic Senator John Breaux of Louisiana says the goal is inconsistent with the Bush administration's policy of price support for the U-S tobacco industry.

There's increasing hope today that the worst is over for flood victims along the Trinity River in Texas. The river's level has dropped to about 30 feet... the first good news since the river began running wild earlier this month.

Heavy thunderstorms continue to roam the Midwest, however, and farmers are worried about losing crops to flooding.

In Illinois, flooding near the Wabash River is reported to be the third-worst this century.

Downstate, White County officials want a state disaster declaration after spring rains flooded about 80-thousand acres of farmland.

Indiana officials say flood waters are threatening about 16 percent of the state's corn crop.

Last week's heavy rains left more than two and one-half-Million acres of farmland in 50 central and southern Indiana counties so saturated that most of the corn planted before the flooding will have to be re-seeded. But first, the fields must dry.

(MAY 24) UPI - Populist Boris Yeltsin today got another political boost that puts him on a collision course with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev .

Yeltsin was among 13 people nominated by radical legislators to challenge the Russian republic's prime minister for the equivalent of the presidency.

The nominations set the stage for a struggle between conservative and radical communists for control of Russia, the largest of the 15 Soviet republics.

Yeltsin's election to head the Russian republic would give him a powerful base from which to challenge Gorbachev... a fight that could threaten Gorbachev's grip on the core of the Soviet Union.

Just yesterday, Gorbachev lashed out at Yeltsin in a speech to the Congress of People's Deputies... accusing the former Moscow Communist Party boss of abandoning socialism and trying to break up the Soviet Union.

Yeltsin this week proposed wide-ranging autonomy for Russia, including priority of the republic's laws over those of the Soviet Union in cases of conflict.

Radical deputies in the Soviet Parliament have demanded a vote of NO confidence in the government of Prime Minister Nikolai Rzyhkov .

The move follows Rzyhkov's unveiling of a new market policy that has been widely scorned for NOT going nearly far enough to overhaul the ailing Soviet economy.

Soviet economic planners have sought to calm fears about the reform program, which is based on Franklin Roosevelt's ''New Deal.'' They also have promised a national referendum on a shift to a market economy.

Ryzhkov today admitted to lawmakers that the three-stage strategy would take a decade to be implemented fully.

But members of the Inter-Regional Deputies' Group say they want either a new plan or a new government. Parliament will consider their motion for a NO confidence vote tomorrow.

(MAY 24) UPI - The Senate today voted to impose strict rules on death row convicts seeking to avoid or delay execution with challenges in federal courts.

On a voice vote, senators adopted the tough curbs proposed by Republicans. Approval came after the Senate voted 52-46 to reconsider its decision yesterday to reject the G-O-P plan.

The restrictions... part of an anti-crime bill... would limit death row inmates to one challenge in federal court, unless granted permission for a second by the courts of appeal.

The rules also would set a timetable that would lead to execution within a year, except in unusual circumstances.

Death row prisoners currently are allowed to petition the courts countless times and stay alive for years after conviction.

Authorities today arrested a transvestite accused of strangling his wife and leaving her body in the parking lot of a Massachusetts mall. 41-year-old Robert Kosilek was taken into custody in New Rochelle, New York, hours after police launched a manhunt. His arrest came one day after he tearfully proclaimed his innocence and told reporters police considered him the prime suspect in the killing of his wife Cheryl- whom he called his ''best friend.''

(MAY 24) UPI - New Navy tests show the U-S-S Iowa explosion might have been accidental... President Bush makes an unpopular decision about China... and another car bomb explodes in Colombia. Those and other top stories, next, from U-P-I.

The Navy today re-opened the investigation into the gun turret explosion that killed 47 sailors on the battleship U-S-S Iowa last year.

The action comes after follow-up tests related to the Iowa blast today revealed the explosion could have been an accident. A previous Navy investigation ruled out accidental cause and mechanical malfunction in the April 19th, 1989, incident.

Navy spokesman Commander Mark Baker says ''an unexplained ignition'' of 16-inch gun powder bags occurred today during follow-up testing of the bags at the Naval Weapons Station in Dahlgren, Virginia.

As a safety precaution, Navy Secretary Lawrence Garrett ordered all four of the Navy's battleships to stop using their 16-inch guns until further notice... and he ordered the Iowa investigation reopened.

The Navy had concluded that the Iowa blast was ''most probably an intentional act'' by gunner's mate Clayton Hartwig, who died with the other 46 sailors. That conclusion has come under fire from Capitol Hill and the families of the dead sailors.

(MAY 24) UPI - The White House says President Bush might veto a House-passed clean air bill unless congressional leaders remove controversial sections, particularly worker aid provisions.

Administration officials say a five-year, 250-Million-dollar worker assistance provision is clearly unacceptable to the president because of its cost.

They say the program will be at the top of the administration's hit list when congressional leaders meet this summer to iron out differences between the House and Senate versions of clean air legislation.

The president issued a statement congratulating the House on the vote and saying he's ''particularly pleased'' that the legislation is similar to the bill he proposed last summer. But he says he remains opposed to certain provisions, such as the worker aid amendment.

That amendmet would provide extra unemployment compensation for workers who lose their jobs because of the bill's increased pollution controls.

The United States today put another stumbling block in front of Soviet President Gorbachev's bid for a superpower trade deal.

President Bush for the first time linked a possible U-S-Soviet trade agreement to Moscow's handling of independence movements in the Baltic states, particularly Lithuania.

And that could cost Gorbachev the U-S trade benefits he so badly wants to help bolster the Soviet economy.

Bush told a news conference he was NOT ''encouraged about where it stands right now.''

He said the political climate in this country over the Lithuanian crisis would make it ''extraordinarily difficult'' to grant most-favored-nation trading status to the Soviet Union.

But Bush says he remains hopeful ''some progress'' can be made on the Lithuanian question.

Bush and Gorbachev meet next week in Washington for a superpower summit.

Hours of debate covered rules of procedure and alleged ''pork barrel'' projects in the measure.

The Central American aid is the centerpiece of a more than four-BILLION dollar supplemental spending bill. The aid is lumped together with money for domestic purposes ranging from food stamps to flood relief.

The aid has been held up for months. President Bush has called on Congress to work through the Memorial Day recess if necessary.

Administration officials say Nicaragua is bankrupt and that Nicaragua and Panama need help to rebuild economies ravaged in part by U-S actions.

Republican Representative Silvio Conte of Massachusetts says the United States has a ''special responsiblity'' to help rebuild both nations.

Another roadblock looms in the Senate, where the bill could be used to make up shortages in the Pentagon payroll.

Democrats say President Bush threw cold water on budget talks today by putting more pressure on Democrats to reduce the deficit.

Budget negotiators talked for three hours but still COULDN'T agree on how much deficit reduction is needed.

Before negotiators met, Bush told a White House news conference Congress must show more initiative to cut the deficit, and he disputed Democratic charges of lax leadership on the issue.

The president argued that Congress ''bears a greater responsibility'' for the budget. Bush said it is the obligation of Congress to appropriate money and raise revenues.

House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta said he doubts if anybody believes Congress has greater power than the presidency to determine the course of the economy.

(MAY 24) UPI - Authorities in say five people are dead and another 15 injured after a car bomb exploded in an exclusive neighborhood. One official says the occupants of the car triggered an unspecified amount of explosives as police searched the vehicle.

Today's bloodshed follows warnings by Colombian police that drug traffickers would resort to bombings prior to Sunday's presidential election. In another incident, two policemen were killed today in a gun battle with unidentified assailants.

Capitol Hill Democrats taking part in budget talks with the White House criticized President Bush today for making comments that imply the lawmakers are NOT doing enough to reduce the nation's deficit. The fourth session of the budget talks was held today with NO gains reported.

President Bush says Washington is concerned about the lack of progress between Moscow and Lithuania regarding Lithuania's declaration of independence. Bush says the issue could play a role in next week's superpower summit.

The Navy announced today it will re-open the probe of the explosion aboard the U-S-S Iowa last year that left 47 sailors dead. An initial probe implied that one of the victims might have intentionally caused the blast. Tests today indicate the explosion might have been accidental.

President Bush says Washington will NOT impose trade restrictions against China. He says withdrawing Beijing's most-favored-nation trade status would only hurt U-S business interests and the Chinese people.

(MAY 24) UPI - The Senate passed legislation today that would restrict the number of appeals a death row convict could make to federal courts. The upper chamber also neared approval of an expanded federal death penalty that would include 30 offenses.

Lawmakers on Capitol Hill are considering a four-point-three-BILLION-dollar bill which includes 720-Million dollars in emergency aid for Panama and Nicaragua. The White House recommended passage of the Latin American aid section of the bill several months ago.

Aides to President Bush say he is NOT pleased with the House's inclusion of workers' aid provisions in its version of the clean air bill. A White House spokesman says Bush's staff will advise that he veto the legislation if the controversial aid section is NOT removed.

In an unprecedented move, radical lawmakers in the Supreme Soviet have called for a NO-confidence vote against the Soviet Union's present leadership. The radical legislators concede they do NOT have the support to oust President Gorbachev.

(MAY 24) UPI - Authorities in the Colombian drug capital of Medellin say a suicide driver triggered his dynamite-loaded pickup truck today when police found his cargo of explosives. The bloody blast killed at least five people, including two police officers and a child in a nearby car. The blast comes after Colombian and U-S officials warned that drug traffickers might resort to explosives to try to disrupt Sunday's presidential election.

The House tonight approved a long-awaited spending bill that includes emergency money for Panama and Nicaragua. The measure now goes to the Senate. The supplemental spending bill would send 420-Million dollars to Panama and 300-Million to Nicaragua. The aid is part of a four-point-three-BILLION dollar supplemental spending bill that covers everything from food stamps to an F-B-I fingerprint lab. President Bush says the bill is loaded with unnecessary projects.

Senate Majority leader George Mitchell has postponed further debate on a prospective crime package until legislators return from their Memorial Day recess. Today, the upper chamber voted to include in the anti-crime package a measure that would limit the number of times a death row inmate could appeal to federal courts. Legislators say controversial aspects of the amendment-filled package might reduce its chances of passage.

A federal judge in Miami ruled today that federal law mandates that Manuel Noriega's lawyers be paid NO more than 75 dollars an hour if the government foots the bill. Noriega's attorneys had requested fees of between 250 dollars and 350 dollars an hour. Earlier this week, Noriega's defense counsel struck a deal which called for the government to pay Noriega's legal fees. The deal was contingent on the defense dropping its calls for the U-S government to divulge past payments to Noriega.

(MAY 24) UPI - A group of 54 distinguished American diplomats and scientists today asked Presidents Bush and Gorbachev to use next week's summit to put an end to the production of weapon-grade nuclear material. Seven Nobel laureates, two former Cabinet secretaries and two former C-I-A directors signed a letter asking the two leaders to take advantage of the opportunity to shut down nuclear reactors with military uses.

An all-white jury in Milwaukee today cleared a group of white police officers accused of beating a black man. Bobby Felder filed a civil rights lawsuit charging police arrested and beat him when he tried to walk past officers who had responded to a domestic dispute in 1981. Police deny they beat Felder. They say he was drunk and was arrested only after he shoved an officer.

Strikers say more Polish workers have joined a wildcat strike that is already paralyzing northwest Poland. Railway workers in the Baltic Sea port of Gdynia joined the walkout. The action is the first major labor dispute to occur under the new Solidarity government. Besides threatening the government's stability, the strike also raises questions about the Solidarity union which has refused to sanction the walkout.

At the securities fraud trial of John Mulheren in New York, admitted inside trader Ivan Boesky testified that he deducted half of the 100-Million-dollars he paid in a government plea bargain from his personal income taxes. SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - In a move to build profitability and strengthen its position in the Bay Area, Trans Pacific National Bank announced Friday that it has obtained approval to purchase the deposits of Southern California Federal Savings and Loan Association's Alameda branch.

The deposits will be consolidated with those of Trans Pacific's existing Alameda office. ''A primary goal of our business plan in 1990,'' said Eddy S.F. Chan, chairman, president and chief executive officer, Trans Pacific National Bank, ''is to maintain our quality of customer service while we build profitability through more efficient operations.'' Friday's announcement is another in a series of steps to achieve this goal.

''The consolidation effort will increase Trans Pacific's deposit base by approximately $23 million,'' according to Chan. While this strategy helps insure that our branch operates at optimum efficiency and as profitably as possible -- just as important -- it also enables Trans Pacific to provide high-quality personalized service to a larger segment of Alameda.

Accounts from Southern California Savings' Alameda branch, located at 1410 Webster St., will be consolidated with those of the Trans Pacific National Bank's Alameda office located approximately one block away. ''Accounts will be automatically transferred, and new account numbers will be assigned,'' according to Chan, president of Trans Pacific National Bank.

In this transition there will be no disruption in service. For example, checking account holders will automatically receive a complimentary supply of new checks. In addition, credit card and loan applications will be distributed prior to the consolidation in order to offer Trans Pacific's financial services in an expeditious manner.

Upon acquisition, Trans Pacific National Bank, with $83 million in assets, is a nationally chartered financial institution based in San Francisco. Customer service, marketing expertise and effective management have enabled the bank to capture a growing share of one of the nation's most dynamic markets -- the San Francisco and Bay area.

Southern California Federal Savings, with assets in excess of $2.3 billion has 25 branches throughout California.

SEATTLE (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Burlington Resources Inc. (BR) announced today that its gas and oil producing subsidiary, Meridian Oil Inc., has entered into an agreement to acquire all of the producing properties of Unicon Producing Company.

These properties contain proved reserves equivalent to approximately half a trillion cubic feet of natural gas and offer excellent potential for significant future reserve additions. The agreement provides for payment of $399 million to Unicon and is conditioned upon several factors, including Federal Trade Commission approval. The company anticipates closing of this acquisition in mid-June.

This acquisition represents a meaningful increase in Meridian's reserve base, which totaled 4.6 trillion cubic feet equivalent at Dec. 31, 1989. Approximately 94 percent of the newly-acquired reserves are located in the San Juan Basin of northwest New Mexico and include coal seam gas reserves that will enhance Meridian's successful San Juan Basin coal seam program.

Unicon is a Texas general partnership owned equally by subsidiaries of Union Texas Petroleum Holdings Inc. and Kiewit Continental Inc.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T customers will receive special long-distance discounts Friday night, May 25, to kick off the Memorial Day weekend

AT&T said its customers can make direct-dialed out-of-state calls for just 11 cents per minute between 5 p.m. and 11 p.m. Friday.

During that time, a 10-minute direct-dialed call from California to any other state in the country, regardless of distance, will cost only $1.10. The special prices will be an average 28 percent lower than AT&T's already reduced evening prices.

The reduced prices are the first in a series of long-distance specials that are part of AT&T's ''Talk About a Summer Time'' program. The promotion will include other discount calling days as well as sweepstakes and other summer-related activities. The company said it's offering the promotions as a special ''thank you'' to its customers.

Friday kicks off a holiday weekend that will give consumers several opportunities to save on long-distance. AT&T's night/weekend rates will be in effect from 11 p.m. on Friday until 5 p.m. on Sunday, May 27. Direct-dialed, out-of-state calls in the continental United States during this period will cost less than 14 cents per minute.

Calls placed during the evening, from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m., on Sunday will cost less than 16 cents per minute. Night/weekend prices will begin again at 11 p.m. on Sunday.

AT&T's holiday prices will be in effect on Monday, Memorial Day. On holidays, AT&T's evening prices are in effect during normal daytime hours (8 a.m. to 5 p.m.) and stay in effect until 11 p.m.

The 11-cents-per-minute special Friday night does not apply to in-state or international calls.

CULVER CITY, CA (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Showscan Film Corp. (NASDAQ:SHOW) announced Friday that it has signed an agreement in principle for a large 100-seat Dynamic Motion Simulator (DMS) with Indonesia-based P.T. Subentra Nusantara.

According to the announcement by Showscan President and Chief Executive Officer Roy Aaron, the agreement with Nusantara is backed by a non-refundable deposit and includes payments for simulator, projection and sound equipment as well as annual royalty payments to Showscan for technology and film rentals.

The agreement contains Indonesian market-exclusivity provisions that are tied to additional DMS purchases by Nusantara, resulting in a multi-million-dollar agreement value. Other terms were not disclosed. The Nusantara DMS expands the worldwide installed base of Showscan DMSs and brings to 14 the number of DMS orders and installations in Asia.

Nusantara, an affiliate of the 21 Subentra Group, the largest theater exhibitor in Indonesia, will install the DMS in one of four theaters included in the new Studio 21 entertainment multiplex in Jakarta.

Showscan expects the Indonesian DMS to be up and running sometime in early 1991. The simulator will eventually be relocated to a $500 million hotel, shopping and office complex expected to open by mid-1993 on a site adjacent to the Studio 21 complex.

In commenting on the announcement, Aaron said: ''We are pleased to be doing business in Indonesia with a company having the size, presence and resources of Nusantara. The 21 Subentra Group, the parent of Nusantara and P.T. Suptan Films, is well-known for its use of the best technical expertise, the finest projection and sound equipment and premier entertainment technology in their theaters.

''This agreement from Indonesia, along with Showscan attractions either contracted for or installed in Asia, the South Pacific, North America and Europe, further demonstrates the growing acceptance of Showscan entertainment technologies around the world. No other simulator attraction experience provides participants with the realism and excitement of a Showscan DMS.''

Aaron added: ''With an urban population of 8 million people, Jakarta is virtually an untapped market that we believe will be extremely rewarding for Showscan. Indonesia's economy is on the upswing and is estimated to have shown six percent in real growth in 1989.

''The country is encouraging the import of foreign technology and offshore investment and has recently established new policies of patent and trademark protection. These factors are especially timely for Showscan, as our patented film processes and technologies provide the potential for the company to capture a considerable share of the entertainment attractions market in Indonesia.

''This agreement with Nusantara firmly establishes Showscan's presence in Indonesia and further extends our penetration of the Asian markets.''

Showscan DMSs integrate attractions such as roller coasters, high-speed cars and dune buggy thrill rides, photographed and projected using the company's patented 70mm/60-frames-per-second film technology, with computer-controlled simulator seats. Creating an entertainment experience of extreme realism, the audience becomes an active participant in the action depicted on the screen.

The Jakarta DMS is one of 20 simulators that are currently operating, shipped or on order worldwide including such venues as the 4,032-room Excalibur Hotel in Las Vegas, opening in June of this year, and Gardaland in Verona, Italy, scheduled to open in the summer of 1990.

Showscan Film develops and markets worldwide a broad range of leisure-time attractions based on its patented 70-mm/60-frames-per- second Showscan film process and related technologies.

The company's revenues are derived principally from licensing of Showscan patents and technologies for use in the exhibition of mini-feature films and Dynamic Motion Simulator thrill-ride libraries, sales of related projection, sound and simulation equipment and attraction design and development services.

Showscan owns numerous patents and is conducting specialized research and development programs on application of its film process and technologies to programming for high-definition television (HDTV).

SALT LAKE CITY (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Alta Gold Co. (NASDAQ:ALTA), has announced first quarter earnings for the period ended March 31, 1990.

Prior quarter financial information has included consolidated statements from the operations of Pacific Silver Corp. and Silver King Mines Inc., which merged on Nov. 24, 1989, changing the company name to Alta Gold Co.

Revenues, primarily from the sale of precious metals and management fees earned from managing joint venture operations, were $8,336,000 compared to $7,211,000 for the same period in 1989. Net loss was reported at $1,649,000 compared with a loss of $1,001,000 for the corresponding period in 1989.

Net loss per share was 6 cents compared with a net loss of 4 cents per share during the 1989 quarter. The weighted average common shares outstanding were 25,744,000 and 24,819,000 for 1990 and 1989 respectively.

''Operating results for the three months are not necessarily indicative of the results that may be expected for the year,'' said Dan S. Bushnell, chairman and chief executive officer.

''Costs of start-up at the Golden Butte, Easy Junior, Ward and Elder Creek mines, combined with freezing winter conditions, increased operating costs. On a positive note, over $1 million from trading gains earned in the first quarter have been deferred to future quarter for 1990 due to our accounting policies. General and administrative costs have decreased substantially because of the merger of Pacific Silver and Silver King.

''Another factor which we expect will positively contribute to our future bottom line is the anticipated purchase of the Robinson District from Kennecott,'' Bushnell contined. ''Should this option be exercised, it could position Alta Gold as a major U.S. mining company while decreasing royalties on gold production by as much as $40 an ounce.''

The company's 60 percent share of gold production from the Alta Gold-Echo Bay joint venture increased to 22,996 ounces for the quarter compared to 12,389 ounces during the same period a year ago, while the company's average selling price of gold was $413 an ounce compared to $582 an ounce for the comparable three months in 1989.

The average cash production cost per ounce was $315 compared to a target cash cost of $261. Cash production costs in March improved to approximately $270 per ounce as full-budgeted production was achieved.

A total of 70,704 ounces of gold was produced during the 1989 calendar year. The latest projection for production during 1990 is 112,000 ounces. However, because of the depressed price of gold, the company is considering curtailing production at some of its lowest grade deposits at the Robinson Mine.

''For the first time in our history in Nevada, Alta Gold will have base metal (zinc, copper, lead and silver) sales in 1990,'' Bushnell said. The company expects to produce more than 23 million pounds of zinc, 1,350,000 pounds of copper, 1,500,000 pounds of lead and 300,000 ounces of silver as a by-product of base metal operations at the Ward Mine.

Alta Gold is a diversified precious and base metals mining and production company headquartered in Salt Lake City, with mining operations in Nevada and Idaho.

DENVER (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Mountain Medical Equipment Inc. (AMEX:MTN) Friday reported a $420,000, or 13 cents per share loss on revenues of $8,912,000 for the fourth quarter ended March 31, 1990.

This compares to net income of $525,000, or 16 cents per share, on revenues of $10,926,000 for the same period last year. Revenues decreased approximately 18 percent in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 compared to the same period last year.

For the year ended March 31, 1990, the company reported a net loss of $913,000, or 28 cents per share, on revenues of $34,550,000 compared to net income of $1,532,000, or 48 cents per share, on revenues of $35,458,000 for the same period last year.

The decline in net income for fiscal 1990 vs. fiscal 1989 was due primarily to a reduction in sales of oxygen concentrators and parts brought on by the uncertainty in the market place caused by the more stringent patient qualification criteria and the reduction in Medicare reimbursement.

Also affecting net income for the year were increased overhead costs to support anticipated increases in concentrator volumes which never developed and for market support of the company's new products. Sales of oxygen concentrators and related replacement parts, the company's primary product line, decreased approximately 35 percent in comparison to the fourth quarter of the previous year. However, it was a 38 percent increase from the recent third quarter.

Milton G. Adair, president and chief executive officer of Mountain Medical said, ''The market for oxygen concentrators continues to be extremely depressed and volatile.

''The volatility in the marketplace continues to reflect the more stringent qualification criteria for oxygen therapy patients imposed by the Health Care Finance Administration as well a the 2 percent across the board reduction in Medicare reimbursement imposed by the Gramm-Rudman Act'' said Adair.

Sales of the company's new medication nebulizer, Microstat, continue to be strong. Clinical testing and sales of the company's new Avatar Personal Bowel Care System continues to be encouraging. The recently announced contract with the Department of Veterans Affairs opens a new and large market for the Avatar 2000tm.

In the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990, the company continued to experience high levels of new product start-up costs and selling expenses to support market development of the MicroStat and the Avatar Personal Bowel Care System.

In response to the volatile market conditions and the high level of new product support costs, during the fourth quarter the company streamlined its organizational structure through employee reductions and cost-saving programs.

''It is our current belief that even with this depressed and volatile market, we should operate saving programs should be realized in the second through fourth quarters of fiscal 1991,'' Adair said.

Mountain Medical is a leading supplier of oxygen concentrators and other respiratory therapy equipment for the home health care market. Through its wholly owned subsidiary, Aegis Medical Inc., the company markets the Avatartm Personal Bowel Care System, an innovative method of bowel care management for home or institutional use.

BOULDER, CO (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - EXABYTE Corp. (NASDAQ:EXBT) Friday presented its 100,000th EXB-8200 8mm Cartridge Tape Subsystem to EXABYTE's first original equipment manfacturer (OEM) customer, NCR Corp., in celebration of EXABYTE's growth and the proven reliability of the EXABYTE drive.

NCR offers the drive in the 6091 subsystem, a peripheral which attaches to PCs, Towers and other products.

Commenting on the celebration, EXABYTE President Peter Behrendt said, ''NCR was the first major OEM to evaluate, test and integrate the EXABYTE drive as an 8mm solution for customers. Dozens of large OEMs have folowed their lead, including Sun Microsystems and IBM.

''This 100,000th unit symbolizes the wide acceptance of the 8mm drive -- a success that stems directly from its inherent reliability and the excellent business relationships we've established with such companies as NCR.''

''We have had a very close relationship with EXABYTE,'' said General Manager Cliff Dullea, NCR Peripherals Products Division. ''The products that we receive from them are always of the very highest quality. NCR is dedicated to bringing innovative peripheral solutions to our customers. Our partnership with EXABYTE attests to that.''

Exabyte's OEM business grew from 8 percent of revenues in 1988 to 27 percent in 1989. Revenues increase from $31 million in 1988 to $89 million in 1989. Recent analyst forecasts predict revenues of $175 million in 1990.

NCR Corp. develops, manufactures, markets and supports business information processing systems for worldwide markets. NCR's Peripheral Products Division develops and manufactures computer input/output peripherals, including printed circuit boards, printers and disk, tape and optical external data storage units.

Based in Boulder, EXABYTE Corp. designs, manufactures and markets high-capacity 8mm cartridge tape subsystems that address the rapidly growing market for cost-effective data storage solutions. The company, which employs 540 people, markets its products worldwide to OEMs, system integrators, value-added resellers and distributors for use in workstations, minicomputers and file servers.

SANTA CLARA, CA (MAY 24) BUSINESS WIRE - National Semiconductor Corp. Friday announced a cooperative agreement with NEC Corp. under which National Semiconductor will sell high density CMOS SRAMs manufactured by NEC, under the National Semiconductor brand.

Additionally, both companies agreed to explore future cooperative efforts in SRAMs, including marketing, manufacturing and technology.

The initial agreement covers NEC's family of high volume 32Kx8 products.

John Hekking, vice president of National Semiconductor's memory division, said, ''This agreement broadens our memory products portfolio to include SRAM products required by manufacturers of a variety of communication products, supporting our strategy of offering systems solutions to our customers worldwide.''

Hajime Sasaki, vice president of NEC's semiconductor group said, ''This agreement will contribute to expanding our memory products business, but more importantly, it will promote NEC's policy of international cooperation.''

National Semiconductor said that it would begin offering the NEC SRAMs in July.

National Semiconductor is a leader in the design, manufacture and supply of integrated circuits and semiconductor products.

NEC Corp., headquartered in Tokyo, is a major builder of communications and computing equipment, and it is the largest manufacturer of integrated circuits in the world.

PASADENA, CA (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Progressive Savings Bank announced profitable first-quarter earnings to its stockholders and directors.

First-quarter earnings of $123,821 (as of March 31, 1990) compare extremely favorably to last year's first-quarter earnings of $42,438 (as of March 31, 1989).

Additionally, the month of April reflected a $65,000 gain resulting in $188,821 total profit from operations in the first four months of 1990.

Progressive Savings Bank continued to again reduce its non-earning assets to $7.8 million from $11.5 million as of Dec. 31, 1989. Perhaps the best news of all, however, was the Office of Thrift Supervision's (OTS's) approval of the thrift's Business and Capital Plan.

The approval by the OTS of the plan makes Progressive one of the selected members of Associations with a reasonable prospect to achieve regulatory DENVER (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Nevada Goldfields Corp. announced that it has scheduled a meeting for June 27, 1990, in Vancouver, British Columbia, of the holders of its 10 percent convertible subordinated debentures.

The purpose of the meeting is to obtain debentureholder approval to a two year interest moratorium under the debenture, being for the period Dec. 16 1989, to Dec. 15, 1991. In consideration for the forgiveness of interest payments for the period from Dec. 16, 1989, through Dec. 15, 1991 the company will reduce the debenture conversion price from Cdn $2.65 to Cdn $1.65.

In addition the company will allow any debentureholder who converts prior to Aug. 31, 1990, to do so at a conversion price of Cdn $1.40.

There is Cdn $10,404,000 principal amount of the debenture outstanding. To date Cdn $1,096,000 of debentures have been converted at the original conversion price of $2.65. The company has 9,314,882 common shares outstanding.

Supplementary to the proposed debenture conversion, the company has agreed on an amendment to its loan agreement with its secured lenders, Standard Chartered Australia Ltd. and the United Bank of Denver. These actions are made to rationalize the rate of debt repayment. Production from the Aurora Mine, in conjunction with the recent start-up of the Kingston Mine, allows the company to meet its obligation on the remaining gold loan currently amounting to US $4,800,000.

Nevada Goldfields Corp. is a Canadian public company that trades on The Toronto Stock Exchange under the symbol NGF, on NASDAQ under the symbol NGFCF, and on the Stuttgart Exchange, West Germany under the symbol NGF SG.

SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Cost reduction measures and a corporate-wide modernization program helped bring about Potlatch's fourth consecutive year of record earnings and its second consecutive year of sales in excess of a billion dollars, stated Richard B. Madden, chairman and chief executive, at the annual shareholders' meeting Friday.

Updating shareholders on Potlatch's modernization program, Madden reported that on the papermaking side, renovation of the pulping and bleaching operations in Lewiston, Idaho, will be completed in 1991, with rebuilds of the two paperboard machines scheduled for the fourth quarter this year. A new $95 million twin-wire tissue machine at Lewiston's consumer products operation will go online in mid-1992.

Madden said that this replacement for an older machine will increase Potlatch's tissue-making capacity by 47 percent.

In addition, while awaiting environmental permit approvals, planning continues on Potlatch's largest single capital project, an approximately $450 million program to modernize and expand the pulp mill at its Cloquet, Minn., fine printing papers facilities.

On the wood products side, recent modifications to Lewiston's new sawmill have resolved many of the problems which had affected the operation since startup, Madden said. In Bemidji, Minn., Potlatch is in the final stages of doubling oriented strand board production capacity and has budgeted $22 million for a new sawmill.

In Arkansas, modernization of the Prescott sawmill and Warren energy facilities are under way, and studies continue on the modernization of the Warren sawmill, Madden reported.

Board approval of a $333 million capital budget for 1990, by far the largest in the company's history, ''reflects our faith in the future of our businesses and Potlatch's ability to compete,'' Madden stated.

''But our faith is tempered with a realization that the business climate we face as a company operating in the 1990s will be globally more competitive and domestically more challenging in the areas of the environment and fiber availability.''

Madden said that ''the challenge for Potlatch, its customers and its competitors will be to maintain credibility while continuing to demonstrate awareness and sensitivity to environmental concerns, both in terms of our products and our manufacturing operations.

''Potlatch will continue to work assiduously with appropriate government officials to achieve a responsible balance between environmentally sound policies, jobs and a fair return to our shareholders.''

Survival in the world market, Madden said, ''demands constant attention to cost-competitiveness on a global scale with top quality products and service.''

In other business, Potlatch stockholders re-elected six directors and ratified the selection of KPMG Peat Marwick as its independent auditors.

HOUSTON (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Continental Airlines said it is pleased with a finding issued Friday by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals, because it greatly diminishes the claims of a small group of pilots and flight attendants who struck the airline in 1983.

Continental said that as a result of today's decision, a $40 million claim for back pay will be reduced to substantially less than a million dollars.

The former strikers contended they were entitled to several years of pay at rates they would have received if the Bankruptcy Court had not approved rejection of their contract. Although the Court ruled that the employees are entitled to back pay, it denied damages for any periods of time during which they were on strike.

Since the striking employees were not entitled to back pay while on strike back pay for the 474 affected employees will be limited to the six days between Continental's Sept. 23 bankruptcy filing and Oct. 1, the date the strike began.

SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Expenditure of $22 million for construction of a new sawmill to be located near Potlatch Corp.'s Oxboard plant in Bemidji, Minn., was approved Friday by Potlatch directors.

''The project represents an opportunity to utilize pine, an abundant resource in Minnesota,'' stated Richard B. Madden, chairman and chief executive officer. ''It also enhances our capability to compete for the fiber used by our Oxboard and Cloquet pulp mill facilities.''

The new Potlatch mill will manufacture 68 million board feet of 2 inch x 4 inch and 2 inch x 6 inch pine studs annually for the homebuilding market.

About 50 full-time manufacturing jobs will be created. The Bemidji site was chosen because pine tends to be more prevalent in western Minnesota.

The sawmill will utilize state-of-the-art technology to achieve the desired mix of lumber recovery and throughput while minimizing manufacturing cost. ''The relative uniformity of species, log sizes and product output will allow a mill design that is less complex than most other lumber mills in North America,'' Madden said.

Construction is slated to begin in June, with manufacturing startup scheduled for late second quarter, 1991.

NEW YORK (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Metro Mobile CTS Inc. (AMEX:MMZ.A, MMZ.B) Friday announced that its stockholders have approved a proposed amendment to Metro Mobile's charter to (i) increase the number of authorized shares of its Class B common stock from 50 million to 150 million and (ii) change the par value for shares of its Class A and Class B common stock from 10 cents per share to 3-1/3 cents per share.

The action was taken at a special meeting of stockholders on May 24. A certificate of amendment to Metro Mobile's charter was filed with the Secretary of State of Delaware on May 24, following that special meeting.

The charter amendment permits Metro Mobile to effect its previously announced 3-for-1 stock split in the form of a stock dividend of two shares of Metro Mobile Class B common stock for every share of Metro Mobile Class A or Class B common stock outstanding (the ''distribution''). Since all conditions to the distribution had been satisfied by the close of business on May 24, the distribution is being made Friday, May 25, (the ''payment date''). Holders of record as of May 15 will receive the distribution.

Metro Mobile stockholders entitled to receive the distribution will NOT have to return any stock certificates they now hold. New stock certificates representing Class B shares issued in the distribution will be mailed to stockholders beginning Friday by Metro Mobile's transfer agent. Existing stock certificates will continue to represent the same number and class of common shares after the distribution is made, with the new 3-1/3 cents par value per share, as they do now, with the 10 cents par value per share.

The American Stock Exchange has informed Metro Mobile that the ex-dividend date for the distribution will be Tuesday, May 29, (the ''ex-distribution date''), which is the first business day following the payment date. Purchasers of Metro Mobile Class A or Class B common stock on the American Stock Exchange on or after May 11 but prior to the ex-distribution date will, accordingly, receive the distribution. Sellers of Metro Mobile Class A or Class B common stock on the American Stock Exchange on or after May 11, but prior to the ex-distribution date, will not receive the distribution.

From May 11 through May 29, each share of Metro Mobile Class A or Class B common stock traded on the American Stock Exchange with a due bill attached (a ''due bill'') which will entitle a purchaser of Metro Mobile Class A or Class B common stock prior to the ex-distribution date to receive the distribution on the payment date. Holders of Metro Mobile Class A or Class B common stock should contact their brokers and watch for announcements from the American Stock Exchange with respect to the ex-distribution date, trading of ex-distribution Metro Mobile common stock and the dates on which due bills will settle.

For additional information about the charter amendment and the distribution, stockholders should review the proxy materials for the May 24 special meeting of Metro Mobile stockholders.

VENTURA, CA (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Benton Oil and Gas Co. (OTC:BNTN) announced its results for the quarter ended March 31, 1990.

Revenues totalled $303,460, expenses were $531,286 and the net loss for the quarter was $227,826, or 16 cents per share.

For the first quarter of 1989, in comparison, revenues were $12,367, expenses were $114,545 and the net loss was $102,178, or 28 cents per share.

''There are two primary reasons for the increases in revenues and expenses in the first quarter of 1990 over the corresponding period of 1989,'' said Alex Benton, president and chairman of the board. ''First, the company's oil and gas production now includes its 50 percent working interest in the existing wells in the Pershing Field, which was acquired effective Jan. 1, 1990.

''Benton is also now benefitting from its participations in producing property acquisitions and well completions during 1989. We anticipate additional growth in oil and gas sales during the remainder of 1990 as we develop the Pershing Field and bring on-line additional successful wells drilled during the first two quarters of 1990. Second, the company completed its initial public offering and acquired its interest in certain producing and non-producing properties on March 29, 1989, only three days before the end of the quarter. Therefore, that quarter's results really are not comparable to the results of any subsequent quarter.''

BOSTON (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - At the World Conference on Lung Health in Boston, Richard Branson, chairman of Virgin Atlantic Airways, received a special citation from Anne L. Davis, president of the American Lung Association, honoring his anti-tobacco campaign and his support of a smoke-free environment.

The citation also recognized Branson's extension of the airline smoking ban beyond the U.S. shores. Friday, Virgin Atlantic Airways became one of the first international airlines to offer completely non-smoking flights across the Atlantic.

Branson commented on the citation: ''I am deeply honored to be recognized by the American Lung Association for Virgin Atlantic's leadership in expanding smoke-free travel. Our decision to introduce smoke-free flights was prompted by our sincere desire to ensure clean air in our cabins for our passengers.''

Branson, one of the United Kingdom's best-known entrepreneurs and a leading force in the fight against the tobacco industry in Britain, has banned all tobacco-sponsored programs and advertisements from his aircraft -- a move that costs the company an estimated $500,000 per year.

Other Virgin companies have also followed Branson's policy of non-involvement in commercial activities relating to the tobacco industry.

Virgin Atlantic also flies to Los Angeles, Miami, Orlando, New York (JFK), Moscow and Tokyo. Plans to make some of these flights smoke-free are also under consideration. Branson's advertising campaign for the airline's first smoke-free flights between Newark and Gatwick airports included an x-ray of a clean lung and a caption stating: ''Doing our part to promote healthy lungs.''

In closing, Branson said: ''I salute the American Lung Association for its outstanding efforts to educate the public about the hazards of smoking and to influence legislation against tobacco use. I welcome this opportunity provided by the World Conference on Lung Health for a closer partnership with the American Lung Association in working towards a smoke-free society.''

LAS VEGAS, NV (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Goldriver Limited Partnership, owner of Sam's Town Gold River Hotel & Gambling Hall in Laughlin, Nev., Friday announced that its wholly owned subsidiary, Goldriver Finance Corp. (GFC) has commenced a consent solicitation to holders of record as of May 25, 1990 of its 13 7/8 percent first mortgage bonds due May 1, 1997.

Sam's Town Gold River Hotel & Gambling Hall is currently completing its major expansion project. GFC is requesting bondholders to approve an amendment to the bond indenture that would exclude from the partners' equity maintenance requirement any fiscal quarter ending on or prior to June 30, 1990. A consent payment of $10 per $1,000 principal amount of bonds will be paid to consenting bondholders if the amendment is approved.

On May 22, 1990 most of the expanded casino and public areas and all of the guest rooms, other than 27 suites, were opened to the public. The new facilities are expected to generate an increase in revenues for May 1990.

Due to the expansion project, April's net loss was $387,000 which reflects an increase in advertising and promotional expenses of approximately $200,000 compared with April 1989 and an increase in payroll costs due to training of new personnel.

BALTIMORE (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Allied Research Corp. (NASDAQ:ARAI) has named its president and chief operating officer, Reinald W. Carter to the additional post of chief executive officer, effective immediately.

He replaces M.B. Ruffin who remains as chairman until December 1990. At that time he will step down to a consulting position.

In making the announcement at the company's annual meeting, held in Baltimore, Ruffin applauded Carter's leadership of Allied Research and noted his significant contributions since becoming president in January 1990.

In his statement to the shareholders, Carter said that because of revisions to a contract at the company's Mecar S.A. unit, Allied Research may not return to profitability in 1990. Previously, the company said it hoped to report a modest profit in 1990.

Carter also reported that while the company was facing a variety of financial issues, it expected to resolve them through continued cost-cutting and refinancing.

Allied Research reported a loss for the three months ended March 31, 1990.

Sales were $8.4 million, down from $9 million for the like 1989 period. The loss was $2.1 million, compared with a loss of $1.3 million for the like 1989 period.

Per share loss was 52 cents, compared with a loss of 32 cents a share in 1989.

The company said the primary cause for the loss was reduced business and unabsorbed overhead at its Belgian subsidiary, Mecar S.A.

Allied Research's backlog at March 31 was $44 million.

Allied Research Corp. is a designer and developer of high technology products and weapons systems for conventional defense needs.

STAMFORD, CT (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - K.R.M. Petroleum Corp. announced Friday that the stockholders of the company had approved a change of the company's name at the annual meeting held May 17. The new name of the company is PrimeEnergy Corp., effective immediately. The company's common stock is traded in the over-the-counter market and the new trading symbol is ''PNRG''.

Charles E. Drimal Jr., CEO of PrimeEnergy reported that PrimeEnergy had a net income (unaudited) for the quarter ended March 31, of $131,000, or 2 cents per share, compared to $5,000, or $.00 per share, for the corresponding period in 1989.

Drimal also reported that PrimeEnergy had entered into an agreement for the sale of certain producing oil and gas properties in North Texas which would add in excess of $1 million in net income for the company during the second quarter of 1990, or about 14 cents per share.

PrimeEnergy Corp. owns interests in over 1,000 producing oil and gas wells located primarily in Oklahoma, Texas, West Virginia, New Mexico, Montana and Wyoming and acts as operator of over 900 of such wells.

Through its wholly owned subsidiary, PrimeEnergy Management Corp., the company is the managing general partner in 54 public and privately held drilling and exploration and income fund limited partnerships with over 7,000 limited partners.

Drimal concluded that PrimeEnergy is actively pursuing the acquisition of producing oil and gas properties and other companies to enhance the company's reserve base.

ROME (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Oscar Bartoli has been named chief of public relations for one of the world's largest conglomerates, the Istituto Per La Riconstruzione Industriale (IRI).

Fortune ranks IRI the 10th largest corporation in the world. It has 400,000 employees, 8,000 of them in the United States, and controls 400 companies.

Bartoli joined IRI in 1986 after working in public relations for Societa Metallurgica Italiana and other Italian companies.

Before being promoted, Bartoli operated IRI's news bureau. He was responsible for publicizing IRI's economic recovery during the 1980s.

He also founded IRI News, a newsletter circulated to IRI's U.S. managers and customers.

His new responsibilities will include IRI corporate video productions, advertising, exhibitions, fairs, conventions and other special events.

IRI has many joint ventures with U.S. companies and one IRI company, Ansaldo Trasporti of Finmeccanica, recently acquired Union Switch & Signal the U.S. leading marker of railway switches.

IRI's range of products and services is very wide. Aeritalia makes parts for Boeing and McDonald Douglas. Many U.S. post offices use optical scanners made by the IRI company Elsag.

A company called Castalia focuses on environmental technology and operates a model anti-pollution patrol in Italian waters while Selenia, a maker of radar equipment in use around the world, has recently developed a new computerized system for monitoring air pollution.

WESTFORD, MA (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Concurrent Computer Corp. and Kuck and Associates Friday announced the availability of the KAP Fortran Optimizer on Concurrent's 5000 and 6000 series real-time UNIX computer systems.

KAP is a powerful tool which automatically discovers parallelism within Fortran code.

The optimizer allows users to write code more efficiently by inserting the necessary concurrent parallel programming directives where parallel execution will improve performance. KAP takes full advantage of Concurrent's multiprocessing capabilities and makes Fortran programs run faster.

''KAP is a great addition to our third-party solutions,'' said Steven Parker, manager of third-party marketing at Concurrent. ''KAP will accentuate the power and versatility of Concurrent's multiprocessing capabilities. Users can expect to realize a significant productivity leap using KAP on our machines.''

''For application developers, the effort needed to obtain parallel performance can be daunting,'' said Bruce Leasure, vice president of technology at Kuck and Associates. ''KAP significantly reduces this effort by using automatic optimization techniques.''

Concurrent Computer Corp. is the leading supplier of high-performance, real-time computer systems worldwide. The company's products, marketed through the Commercial Products, Federal Programs and Real-Time Technical Systems Groups, provide real-time solutions to the commercial, communications, public sector, technical, aerospace and simulation markets. Its common stock (CCUR) is traded on the NASDAQ National Market System.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Breakwater Resources Ltd. (TSE,VSE: BWR) announces earnings for the first three months of $3,732,000 or 6 cents per share, compared to $2,498,000 or 4 cents per share in the like period last year.

Revenue for the period was $16,916,000 compared to $21,280,000 in 1989. The improvement in earnings resulted from a combination of lower operating costs at the El Mochito Mine and foreign exchange gains.

Breakwater's wholly owned subsidiary, American Pacific Mining Company Inc. posted first quarter earnings of $3,553,000, compared to $1,608,000 for the first quarter of last year. Sales from the El Mochito Mine totalled $10,884,000 in the first quarter, compared to $14,383,000 in the like period of 1989.

Sales from the Cannon Mine totalled $5,844,000 in the first quarter, compared to $6,897,000 in the like period of 1989. The average selling price received for gold in the first three months was US $412, compared to US $405 in 1989. The company has sold forward 21,000 ounces of gold through Feb. 21, 1991 at an average price of US $424 per ounce.

At the Cannon Mine, 131,293 tons of ore were milled at an average grade of 0.254 ounces gold per ton, compared to 128,721 tons at 0.309 ounces gold per ton in 1989. The grade of ore increased to 0.348 ounces gold per ton in April, and it is expected to continue at the higher level for the remainder of the year.

A total of 31,372 ounces gold and 63,475 ounces silver was shipped, compared with 36,414 ounces gold and 83,817 ounces silver in 1989. Gold recovery averaged 91.00 percent (1989 - 91.47 percent).

Production at the El Mochito Mine totalled 128,862 dry metric tonnes (DMT) of ore (1989 - 113,140 DMT), averaging 7.45 percent zinc, 1.75 percent lead, and 2.97 ounces per ton silver (1989 - 5.88 percent zinc, 1.65 percent lead, and 2.903 ounces silver per ton).

Concentrate production totalled 16,379 DMT of zinc concentrate and 2,578 DMT of lead concentrate. The cash operating cost was $5,437,304 or $42 per DMT of concentrate.

The installation in late January of a conveyor system and ongoing ramp development permit easier access to higher grade ore. Other capital programs at El Mochito include redesigning the underground ventilation system and completion of a paved road to the minesite.

These and other improvements will continue to enhance the site operating environment and help to reduce costs.

FRESNO, CA (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Pacific Agricultural Holdings Inc. (NASDAQ:PAGH) (''PAH''), announced Friday that it has completed a private placement of 4 million shares of its common stock at a price of $2.65 per share, with net proceeds of the placement to PAH of approximately $10 million.

The placement was made to a limited number of institutional investors, with Henry Ansbacher & Co. Ltd., the company's London based merchant bank, acting as placing agent in concert with Henderson Crosthwaite Investment Brokers Ltd.

700,000 of the shares offered in the placement were purchased by Albert Fisher Holdings Inc. (''Fisher Holdings''), the holder of approximately 25 percent of the company's outstanding common stock and the company's largest single shareholder. Fisher Holdings, which is a wholly owned subsidiary of The Albert Fisher Group PLC, purchased these shares pursuant to the exersise of its contractual right with the company to maintain its proportionate interest in new stock offerings made by the company.

PAH intends to use a significant portion of the proceeds of this placement for the expansion of its operations into the areas of the packing, handling and marketing of fresh produce. PAH is currently involved in negotiations to acquire two fruit packing and marketing facilities. If PAH is unable to complete the acquisition of these particular facilites, the company will seek to acomplish its expansion through alternate means. The company will report further on the progress of these negotiations as soon as possible.

Although PAH expects that substantially all of the permanent specialty crops developed and managed by PAH will be benefited by this expansion, particular benefit is expected for the company's table grape and citrus development and management operations. These operations are concentrated in Cadiz, Calif., where PAH owns approximately 20,000 acres of land. Currently, PAH depends upon outside facilities for the packing of these crops.

In addition to the foregoing, Thomas C. Morrison has been appointed as the president and chief operating officer of the company. Morrison had previously served as the president and chief operating officer of Superior Farming Company, an agribusiness concern based in Bakersfield, Calif. Morrison has also been appointed to the company's board of directors.

PAH is a diversified agribusiness with extensive farm management operations devoted to specialty crops. The company's business activites also include agricultural development, processing and irrigation system sales.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - William G. Mustain, president and CEO of Comdial Corp., announced Friday the promotion of Keith Johnstone to the position of vice president of manufacturing.

Formerly director of manufacturing, Johnstone will be responsible for all of the manufacturing engineering, test engineering, purchasing, materials, scheduling, and production required to run Comdial's modern 500,000 square foot manufacturing facility. Among Johnstone's top priorities will be three major programs: software driven production control, surface mount component assembly, and continuous flow manufacturing.

In explaining his selection of Johnstone to fill this newly created position, Mustain noted that, ''Comdial's ability to compete with low wage Far East exporters, both in price and product reliability, is due in large measure to our timely implementation of new manufacturing technology. Keith Johnstone has played a major role in the significant advances we have achieved over the past three years. With his promotion to vice president of manufacturing we are underscoring the critical importance of the manufacturing function to achieving our corporate goal of sustained profitability.''

Johnstone, 43, began his career with Comdial in 1980 as manager of marketing and sales support. Keith has since held several progressively responsible positions in the areas of marketing, materials management and manufacturing. Keith holds a BA in Economics from the University of Virginia and an MBA (1979) from the Darden Graduate School of Business, University of Virginia.

Comdial Corp. is a leading designer and manufacturer of advanced telephone sets and telephone systems for the general business and hospitality markets. These products are marketed under the brand names of ExecuTech, MaxPlus, InnTouch and Voice Express - all proudly made right in the USA. Comdial has 1,100 employees and achieved sales of $81.4 million in 1989. The company's stock is traded publicly over the NASDAQ exchange (CMDL).

WELLESLEY HILLS, MA (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Commonwealth Mortgage Co. Inc., New England's largest residential mortgage banking firm, has lowered its interest rate for a 30 year fixed-rate mortgage to 9.99 percent with two points, it was announced by John J. Sousa Jr., president and chief executive officer.

Commonwealth's 30 year fixed-rate had been 10.5 percent. The firm's one year adjustable rate mortgage was recently lowered to 7.99 percent.

''The drop is a direct result of a general improvement in the bond market, which often improves when the economy is in deep water,'' said Sousa, noting that rates for 30 year mortgages are largely determined by investor attitudes toward long-term instruments. He added that general uncertainty about the state of the economy has a tendency to make bonds--and therefore mortgages--even more attractive as investments.

''This spells good news for anyone in the housing market, especially those people who have been waiting for rates to drop so that they can take advantage of lowered home prices,'' said Sousa.

Commonwealth Mortgage Co., with a mortgage portfolio in excess of $4.2 billion, is headquartered in Wellesley Hills, and has offices in all six New England states.

According to data from industry sources including Fannie Mae, Commonwealth was the largest originator of residential mortgages in New England during 1989.

SAN FRANCISCO (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Alias Research Inc., a Canadian company, announced Thursday that it has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission for an initial public offering in the United States of 2 million of its common shares.

Of the shares being offered, 1 million will be offered by the company and 1 million will be offered by certain shareholders. It is currently estimated that the public offering price will be between US $9.00 and US $11.00 per share.

The offering will be managed by Robertson, Stephens & Co. and Wessels, Arnold & Henderson. Net proceeds will be used for general corporate purposes, working capital and possible acquisitions.

Alias Research Inc. develops, markets, and supports an integrated family of computer-aided industrial design (''CAID'') software products, which are used by designers to create manufacturable three-dimensional models of new products and generate photo-realistic three-dimensional computer images of product designs.

The company's family of products accelerates the product development cycle by enabling users to rapidly create multiple iterations of product designs for evaluation and modification by all members ofthe product development team. Industrial designers with a minimum of computer training can use the company's products to create and visualize product designs. The company's CAID products can be linked directly with widely used computer-aided engineering, drafting, and manufacturing (CAE/CAD/CAM) systems.

A registration statement relating to these securities has been filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission but has not yet become effective. These securities may not be sold nor may offers to buy be accepted prior to the time the registration statement becomes effective.

This press release shall not constitute an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy nor shall there be any sale of these securities in any state in which such offer, solicitation, or sale would be unlawful prior to registration or qualification under the securities laws of any such state.

BELLEVILLE, NJ (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Faradyne Electronics Corp. (NASDAQ:FARA) announced Friday that it has completed the sale of its Mansol Ceramics manufacturing division to a newly organized firm led by P.A. Argentinis, an industrialist who was, until recently, vice chairman of the American Express Bank's International Capital Corp.

The sale of Mansol, which has had disappointing operating results in the last several years, should allow Faradyne to concentrate on its profitable Total-Tel USA division.

Total-Tel USA is an expanding discount long distance telephone company with established operations serving the Northern New Jersey and New York City markets with a variety of communications services.

Manuel Brucker, a founder of Mansol and chairman of the board of Faradyne, and Fredric Rosen, a director of Faradyne, are minority investors in Argentinis' new company, which is called Mansol Industries Inc.

Warren Feldman, a director of Faradyne and president of Total-Tel USA, said that the company received approximately $1.4 million in cash and a note for approximately $900,000 in return for certain assets and certain liabilities of the manufacturing divison, subject to post-closing

OAK BROOK, IL (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - At the McDonald's Corp. annual shareholder's meeting Friday, representatives of the Dominican Sisters of the Sick Poor and Food & Water Inc. commended the company for its policy of not using irradiated food products in its restaurants.

The clarification of the company's policy regarding radiation exposed food which was requested by shareholders, was announced in the company's annual report. This policy is in accordance with McDonald's Food Product Specifications, which prohibits the use of misbranded or adulturated food.

Food irradiation is an unproven technique that prolongs the shelf-life of food by exposing it to ionizing radiation from radioactive sources such as cobalt 60 and cesium-137. The issue of food irradiation has provoked international concern among scientists and consumers who consider irradiated food products unsafe.

The McDonald's policy responds to a resolution filed by a coalition of the company's shareholders last fall requesting a clarification of corporate policy on food irradiation. The resolution was filed by the Dominican Sisters of Adrian, Mich. and the Dominican Sisters of the Sick Poor, Ossining, N.Y.

"We congratulate you for developing this policy against radiation exposed food and for announcing it here today at this annual meeting," Sister Pat Daly told the meeting of shareholders. "This move reflects an important commitment to food safety and to our consumers. McDonald's is the first restaurant to establish this far-sighted policy, and as such has become the leader in this area."

McDonald's is the first major quick service food provider to announce the adoption of an explicit anti-irradiation policy. This move is especially important to consumers because on May 1, the Food and Drug Administration approved the irradiation process for treatment of poultry.

"I applaud McDonald's new policy which protects our food and prevents the introduction of toxic residues caused by exposing food to radiation. This policy will be a health benefit for present and future consumers," said Christina Roessler, executive director of Food and Water Inc.

"By avoiding radiation-exposed foods, McDonald's is showing it cares about consumer concerns. We hope this action will lead the way for other companies to adopt a similar policy."

McDonald's joins H.J. Heinz, Quaker Oats, Ralston Purina, and Borden Foods all of whom have announced policies at their most recent annual meetings stating that they will not employ the technique in the production of their products or purchase irradiated whole foods or ingredients.

TORONTO (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Corona Corp. (AMEX:ICR.A) (TSE/VSE/ME:ICR.A, ICR.B) and Golden North Resource Corp. (TSE/VSE:GNO)(NASDAQ:GNOXF) Friday jointly announced that they have entered into a Letter of Intent providing for the sale to Corona Corp. of 16 contiguous Crown-granted Canty claims located approximately 2 kilometres northeast of Corona's operating Nickel Plate gold mine at Hedley, British Columbia.

The consideration for the sale will consist of: 1. The whole of Corona's 1,450,000 Golden North shares, for cancellation; and

2. A 2 percent net smelter return royalty on all gold recovered by Corona from the Canty claims in excess of 50,000 ounces.

When the formal agreement is completed, Corona' three nominees on the Golden North Board of Directors will resign.

The agreement also provides that Golden North would cause to transfer a 100 percent interest in three additional crown granted mineral claims, called the Hedley claims, which are currently 75 percent owned by Hedley Pacific Mining Corp. Ltd. and 25 percent owned by Golden North.

Under a separate agreement between Hedley Pacific and Golden North, Golden North intends to purchase Hedley Pacific's 75 percent interest in the Hedley claims for a cash consideration of $45,000 plus a 2 percent net smelter return royalty. In consideration for the 100 percent interest in the Hedley claims, Corona will transfer to Golden North 325,000 shares of Hedley Pacific, representing Corona's entire investment in the company.

Upon completion of this transaction, Golden North's interest in Hedley Pacific will increase from 325,000 shares ot 650,000 shares or 35 percent of the issued shares of Hedley Pacific and Corona's three nominees on the Board of Directors of Hedley Pacific will resign.

''With this transaction Corona will secure ownership of claims considered strategic to the operation of the Nickel Plate mill, thus potentially extending the life of the mine,'' said Peter Steen, Corona's president and chief executive officer.

Golden North continues to hold 116 mineral claims on Nickel Plate Mountain the principal properties being the remaining claims comprising the Canty Group, as well as the French, Good Hope and the Hedley Mascot mineral properties.

The agreements are subject to the relevant regulatory approvals where required.

LOUISVILLE, KY (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - ICH Corp. (ASE:ICH) Friday announced the election of Barth T. Murphy as president of Bankers Life and Casualty Co. (''Bankers''), ICH's primary health insurance subsidiary, and Thomas J. Brophy as president of Southwestern Life Insurance Co. (''Southwestern''), ICH's principal life insurance subsidiary.

Murphy, who is a 40 year veteran of Bankers, became senior vice president of Bankers in 1978, executive vice president in 1979 and chief operating officer in 1985. Commenting on the election, Steve Bing, president of ICH said, ''Bart's special knowledge and experience in the organization and operations of Bankers and the insurance industry make him the ideal person to lead Bankers into the 1990's.''

Brophy joined ICH as the chief operating officer of its operations in Houston in 1983 and became senior executive vice president and chief operating officer of Southwestern and ICH's other life operations in Dallas in 1987.

Recognizing Brophy's achievements, Bing said, ''Throughout Tom's career he has achieved every objective placed before him. With Tom's experience and knowledge of the industry, we are confident that he will lead Southwestern to new heights in the life insurance industry.''

Bing further noted, ''Since joining ICH, both Bart Murphy and Tom Brophy and the teams they have developed have been the key ingredients in the success of their respective companies. Their elections also advance ICH's goal of further decentralizing its insurance operations.''

BOCA RATON, FL (MAY 25) BUSINESS EDITORS - Humagen Inc. announced Friday that it is changing its name to Fed Med International Corp.

The NASDAQ symbol will be FDMD. Medical Depot Inc. recently agreed to acquired 52 percent of Humagen Inc. (subject to shareholder approval). The companies have entered into a further agreement in which Humagen will engage in international operations to:

a) Establish distribution centers internationally to sell Medical Depot products;

b) Enter into franchise agreements with foreign franchisees (individuals and institutions) to open Medical Depot Superstores internationally. Humagen is currently in preliminary negotiations to franchise Medical Depot Superstores in Singapore, Mexico, Spain and Panama;

c) Enter into joint venture agreements with foreign partners to open corporate Medical Depot Superstores internationally.

Humagen is searching to acquire existing local (U.S.) medical manufacturing companies whose products will be sold in Medical Depot Superstores in the U.S. and overseas.

The company recognizes that, if located, meaningful development of international corporate joint venture Superstores, and purchases of U.S. medical manufacturing companies require significant additional financing of which there is no present assurance.

Humagen Inc. also announced a change in management. The company's new president will be Roberto Riva. Its former president, James Whidden, will remain a director of the company and Riva will retain his position as chairman.

The company recently signed a Stock Acquisition Agreement with Medical Depot which provides for Medical Depot's acquisition of approximately 52 percent of the outstanding common stock of Humagen Inc. in return for approximately 772,000 shares of restricted common stock of Medical Depot Inc.

As part of the agreement, Humagen Inc. will be dividending to its shareholders, (excluding Medical Depot Inc.), approximately 500,000 shares of its restricted common stock of Bio-Monitor Inc. (from its total ownership of approximately 1.3 million shares) and 400,000 shares of the restricted common stock it is acquiring from Medical Depot Inc.

The entire Stock Acquisition Agreement is subject to the approval of Humagen shareholders.

Medical Depot Inc. is engaged in the business of franchising and building retail and wholesale stores dealing with medical equipment and related medical supplies and services at discounted prices. There are curently two Medical Depot Superstores open in Florida, with a third store opening anticipated in two weeks.

New Medical Depot stores are scheduled to open roughly every 30 days. There are 22 franchises in different stages of negotiations and more than 100 territory reservations to open additional Superstores.

Bio-Monitor Inc. owns 80 percent of the first Medical Depot Superstore located in Margate, Fla., and has purchased an additional eight Superstore locations. Rights to 31 future Superstore locations have been reserved and ''first right of refusal'' on another 47 franchise locations.

Bio-Monitor Inc. has decided to enter into the business of operating franchise Medical Depot Superstores for the combined purpose of beginning revenue producing operating activities and to augment its efforts with its ''CT System,'' a diagnostic system designed to identify patients with early stage breast cancer or at high risk of developing breast cancer.

The ''CT System'' is currently in early clinical tests throughout the United States and France.

Humagen is developing and marketing diagnostic testing products directed principally to the practicing urologist and infertility specialist for in-office use, including patented Penetrak and TruTrax infertility testing.

Humagen will continue its infertility business, with products to be marketed under the trade name of HUMAGEN.

Humagen trades Over-The-Counter NASDAQ under the symbol HUGE.

OAK BROOK, IL (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Nearly 2,000 shareholders--including employees, franchisees, and suppliers--Friday attended McDonald's Annual Meeting of Shareholders held on McDonald's Office Campus in Oak Brook.

The meeting included speeches by management who are also members of the Board of Directors. They reviewed the business philosophy of McDonald's, and made the following key points: - In April, McDonald's reported its 100th consecutive record quarter of year-to-year combined increases in revenues, income and earnings per share since going public in 1965. No other company in the current Standard & Poor's 500 has publicly reported results which equal this record. - McDonald's has been recognized as one of the world's five most powerful brands and is the most advertised single brand in the world. - Customers at more than 450 McDonald's restaurants in the New England area are helping us recycle by separating their trash. About 2,000 restaurants will be involved in recycling projects by year-end, and every U.S. McDonald's should be recycling by the end of 1991. Also, in April, McDonald's announced its intention to purchase $100 million worth of recycled materials annually for use in the construction, remodeling and operations of U.S. restaurants. - McDonald's employees, franchisees, and suppliers, together with the Kroc family, own 18.5 percent of the stock. - McDonald's policy is to use only locally produced and processed beef. For example, in the U.S., we use 100 percent U.S. beef. We do not, have not, and will not purchase beef from rain forest or recently deforested rain forest land. This policy is strictly enforced and closely monitored.

Chairman Michael R. Quinlan announced a 10 percent increase in the quarterly common stock cash dividend, from 7.75 cents to 8.5 cents per share. This dividend is payable on June 18, 1990, to common shareholders of record at the close of business on June 5, 1990.

In Better Investing magazine, the National Association of Investors Corporation's (NAIC) ranking shows that McDonald's is the most popular and widely held stock of investment clubs. Shares of McDonald's are owned by more than 2,500 clubs. ''NAIC members look for well-managed companies which have a record of consistent earnings growth and a strategy which provides for continued growth,'' said Ken Janke, president of NAIC, which includes nearly 7,000 investment clubs. ''McDonald's has clearly demonstrated these attributes over the long term.''

At the meeting, shareholders elected directors, and approved the amended and restated 1975 Stock Ownership Option Plan.

Quinlan also announced the appointment of four advisory directors who will serve a one-year term with the elected Board of Directors: - Debra A. Koenig--Regional Vice President - Peter D. Ritchie--Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, McDonald's--Australia - James A. Skinner--Senior Vice President, Zone Manager - Shelby Yastrow--Senior Vice President, General Counsel, Director of Environmental Affairs

McDonald's is the world's leading foodservice organization, serving 22 million people each day in more than 11,200 restaurants in 52 countries. Seventy-five percent of McDonald's restaurant businesses are locally owned and operated by independent entrepreneurs.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Northern Telecom Inc. (NTI) (NYSE:NT) has told the National Telecommunications and Information Administration

(NTIA) the company supports the adoption of a national telecommunications policy that removes obstacles to the deployment of intelligent, digital, interconnected, broadband networks.

These comments were contained in a reply statement submitted to the NTIA in connection with the agency's Comprehensive Study of the Domestic Telecommunications Infrastructure.

''Present legal and regulatory restraints constitute an 'industrial policy' weighted against deployment of new technology, and particularly broadband fiber technology in the local loop,'' said Roy Merrills, president, Northern Telecom Inc. He added that removing these restraints would ''set in place the infrastructure for the significant economic benefits of an information-based society.''

Northern Telecom had previously submitted comments to the NTIA concerning its study of the telecommunications infrastructure. The reply comments submitted today address issues raised by other organizations making comments regarding the appropriateness and cost of a digital switched broadband architecture for the delivery of video services.

Merrills used the company's FiberWorld product architecture to describe how the deployment of fiber-based transmission systems will permit carriers and service providers to deploy broadband services cost effectively.

Northern Telecom's network architecture would support one or more traditional cable television systems ... one of which could be operated by any service provider, including the current franchise holder.

In addition the architecture provides open access to an unlimited number of video program sources from new information services providers as well as an exciting range of two-way voice, data and image services. The company stressed this could be done at a cost no higher than the combined cost of today's current copper and coaxial systems.

''It should be understood that the FiberWorld architecture is cost effective for today's narrowband networks, including fiber to the curb for residential and small business access,'' Merrills said. ''For most of the specific networks Northern Telecom has analyzed, there are overall savings of both initial capital costs and ongoing operating expenses over current technology.

''Our experience in the Heathrow, Fla., fiber-to-the-home trial demonstrated that the studio quality signal delivered over a digital network is appreciated by consumers,'' Merrills said. He added that Heathrow showed ''there is no significant expense penalty for transmitting signals in a digital format over the network... Broadband switching is only practical if performed digitally and can be economical when it is digital.''

Northern Telecom is the leading global supplier of fully digital telecommunications systems. The company provides products and services to the telecommunications industry, businesses, universities, governments and other institutions worldwide.

Northern Telecom Inc., with its headquarters in Nashville, Tenn., employs approximately 22,000 people across the country.

FRAMINGHAM, MA (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - In connection with the proposed merger transaction between Dennison Manufacturing Co. and Avery

International Corp., announced Friday, the board of directors of Dennison yesterday declared a distribution of one common share purchase right for each outstanding share of the company's common stock.

In this connection, the board also authorized the redemption of the company's existing rights which were issued in April 1986.

Each right will entitle stockholders to buy one share of common stock at an exercise price of $80. The rights will be exercisable only if a person or group acquires 10 percent or more of the company's common stock or announces a tender offer, the consummation of which would result in ownership by a person or group of 10 percent or more of the common stock.

If the company is acquired in a merger or other business combination transaction, each right will entitle its holder to purchase, at the right's then current exercise price, a number of the acquiring company's common shares having a market value of twice such price.

In addition, if a person or group acquires 10 percent or more of the company's outstanding common stock, each right will entitle its holder (other than such person or members of such group) to purchase, at the right's then-current exercise price, a number of shares of the company's common stock having a market value of twice such price.

Further, at any time after a person or group acquires 10 percent or more (but less than 50 percent) of the company's outstanding common stock, the board of directors may, at its option, exchange part or all of the rights (other than rights held by the acquiring person or group) for shares of the company's stock on a one-for one basis.

Prior to the acquisition by a person or group of beneficial ownership of 10 percent or more of the company's common stock, the rights are redeemable for one cent per right at the option of the board of directors.

The company will make a cash payment of $.05 per right to common stockholders of record on May 24, 1990. The company intends to treat the redemption payment as a dividend for tax purposes. The new rights will be distributed to stockholders of record as of June 4, 1990 and will expire on June 1, 2000 or upon the successful consummation of the transaction with Avery in the proposed merger described above.

DALLAS (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - The United States Bankruptcy Court, Southern District of New York, has ruled that the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp.'s (PBGC) bankruptcy claims against the LTV Corp. do not merit preferential treatment and "must be valued in accordance with federal bankruptcy law standards applicable to all claims in reorganization cases."

The legal action challenging the status and priority of the PBGC's claims was brought by LTV and its official creditor committees, who asserted that the PBGC's $2.2 billion in claims "are vastly overstated...duplicative and overlapping."

In granting LTV's motion for partial summary judgment and denying a similar request by the PBGC, Chief Bankruptcy Judge Burton R. Lifland ruled that the PBGC's claims must be recalculated.

The PBGC's claims arose from the agency's termination of underfunded LTV Steel pension plans following LTV's filing for Chapter 11 reorganization.

LTV Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Raymond A. Hay said, "The court's ruling dealing with one of the most complex and significant issues in LTV's Chapter 11 reorganization is an important step. While the PBGC will undoubtedly object, the end result should be a substantial reduction in the size of claims asserted by the PBGC."

In his 67-page opinion, Judge Lifland said, "Federal bankruptcy law requires that discount or interest rate assumptions used to determine the allowable amount of claims must be those realistically likely to result in the determination of the full economic value of the claim, rather than those serving other policy goals."

The judge noted that each one percent decrease in the discount rate increases the PBGC's aggregate claims by as much as $250 million. He said the use of low rates "to enhance the claims of a single creditor" is inappropriate where Congress and the courts have mandated fair and uniform distribution among creditors.

The court also found that the PBGC's claims are "general unsecured claims" and generally not entitled to administrative priority. Lifland said that "the PBGC's claims do not constitute 'taxes' entitled to priority...nor did its claims ever ripen into liens."

"Allowing the PBGC two dollars of claims against the same debtor for one dollar of loss violates the principles of equality of distribution and uniformity of treatment of creditors that are fundamental to the (Bankruptcy) Code," Lifland said.

BRAINTREE, MA (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Grossman's Inc. (NASDAQ:GROS) announced in response to inquiries that the company has learned that a shareholder group including Hawaii-based real estate investor Jay Shidler and Robert W. Holman Jr. has made filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission indicating an intent to solicit shareholder consents to remove the companies board of directors.

Grossman's also confirmed that in April it had received a proposal from the Shidler-Holman group for a sale/leaseback transaction involving all of the company's owned properties, that the company and its advisers had determined that the proposal was not in the best interest of the company and its shareholders, and that the company had so advised the Shidler-Holman group in writing on May 21.

''Our board of directors has consistently acted in the best interest of the company and its shareholders and will continue to do so,'' said Mike Grossman, chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer. ''We have recently concluded a successful restructuring program involving the sale of our Moore's and Northwest divisions and the reduction of debt '' he added, ''and are implementing a program of store and merchandise improvements that will serve our company and its shareholders well in the future.''

Grossman stated that the company was preparing, and would distribute to shareholders as soon as possible, important additional information relating to the company and the Shidler-Holman group's consent solicitation.

Grossman's, a major retailer of lumber and building materials, operates 157 stores in nine northeastern states and in California.

ORLANDO, FL (MAY 25) BUSINESS WIRE - Gencor Industries Inc. (NASDAQ:GCOR) Friday announced the results of operations for the year ended Dec. 31, 1989, reporting a loss of $6,106,099, or $3.82 per share, vs. a net profit of $164,999, or 10 cents per share for the prior fiscal year 1988.

Sales remained relatively unchanged at $54,643,836 in 1989, vs. $56,799,157 for the prior year.

This loss is primarily the result of serious litigation in which Gencor has been involved during the past year pertaining primarily, to patent issues with two of its competitors. In the past few years the asphalt equipment industry, Gencor's primary market, has been rocked by internal strife and presently every substantial manufacturer is involved in this very serious patent litigation.

In June, 1989, one of the company's competitors, Standard Havens Products Inc. of Kansas City, Mo., succeeded in obtaining a judgement and injunction against the company in the amount of $8.2 million on technology which, in the company's opinion, was covered by substantial prior art including a Gencor patent which preceded the competitors by 2-1/2 years.

The company promptly appealed the Standard Havens decision, and the judgement as well as the injunction were stayed. Presently Gencor awaits the decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals, Federal Circuit.

In the meantime, the Patent and Trademark Office realized there were certain irregularities and improprieties connected with the Standard Havens patent, and intitiated a reexamination of the patent. In February of 1990, the patent office issued a final action rejecting each and every claim of the Standard Havens patent as being covered by prior art, including Gencor's own patent.

For the previous two years, audits performed by those former auditors contained no adverse opinion or disclaimer of opinion nor were they modified as to uncertainty, audit scope, or accounting principles.

For the previous two years, there were no disagreements between those former auditors and the company.

There was, however, a comment in the financial statement review as prepared by Deloitte & Touche for the company's fiscal year ended Dec. 31, 1989, questioning the absence of a provision for loss relating to the pending lawsuit against the company at that time for alleged securities violations. That period's opinion also noted the company's change in its method of accounting for loan origination fees and related costs in fiscal 1988.

SCHEDULE 14D9

SEC - AMENDMENT NUMBER: 014

ANNOUNCEMENT:

At a meeting held on Mar. 29, 1990, Norton's board of directors approved the amendment of certain executive termination agreements entered into between Norton and certain of its officers, incentive stock ownership agreements, and option and stock appreciation rights agreements.

The agreements have been modified to provide for a uniform definition of the term "change of control."

On May 15, 1990, the Gabelli Group agreed to limit its stock purchases of Norton to those approved by Norton's board.

The agreement was executed in consideration for Norton's exempting Gabelli from the operation of the rights agreement following purchases of shares by Gabelli, inadvertently at a level slightly in excess of the flip-in threshold.

ANNOUNCEMENT:

On May 24, 1990 Sikes Corp (TICKER: SKA) announced that it would settle two class action suits against it with respect to its acquisition by Premark International.

Pursuant to the agreement, the expiration date of the tender offer will be extended to June 7, 1990.

The settlement agreement also requires reducing the break-up fee payable by Sikes to Premark from $5 million to $3 million and the establishment of a settlement fund of $.04 per class A share for each share purchased pursuant to the offer or converted in the merger.

Also as part of the settlement, class B shareholders have agreed that if the directors approve a higher acquisition offer that is made before June 8 by someone else for all common equity, and if the class B shareholders decide to sell their stock in that offer, then the amount of the aggregate purchase price in excess of $201 million will be apportioned between the class A and class B shares based on the amounts that would have been paid by Premark in its acquisition of Sikes Corp.

TOKYO (MAY 25) - Daihatsu Motor Co., Ltd. said on Friday it has reached basic agreement with the Italian motorcycle maker Piaggio and on a joint venture for the production of Daihatsu Hijet commercial vehicles in Italy.

Daihatsu President Jiro Osuga told a press conference that Daihatsu and Piaggio agreed to conduct a feasibility study on the details of the plan for joint production of the Daihatsu commercial vehicle in Italy.

He said both companies are expected to sign a formal accord on the project this year.

The Pisa-based Piaggio has a close relationship with Italy's major car firm Fiat.

A Daihatsu official said on Tuesday it was negotiating with Fiat to jointly manufacture small commercial vehicles in Italy.

TOKYO (MAY 25) - Japan's Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corp. (NTT) said Friday its net consolidated profit rose 22.8 percent in the year to March to 274 billion yen (1.7 billion U.S. dollars).

The company, a partly-privatised former government monopoly which boasts the largest assets of any Japanese firm, said operating revenue grew 3.1 percent to 6,022 billion yen (38.1 billion dollars) in the same period.

For the parent company alone, net profit rose 12 percent to 259 billion yen (1.6 billion dollars) while operating revenue climbed 2.1 percent to 5,769 billion yen (36.5 billion dollars), it said.

The increase in the parent company's revenue, which reversed a 0.2 percent decline the previous year, reflected "efforts by NTT to stimulate demand for new telephone installation and to increase sales of network service," it said.

Revenue from subscriber telephone charges, 50 per cent of total revenue, fell 1.5 percent due to "intense competition and continuing rate reductions."

But revenue from other services grew - 3.2 percent for basic telephone-line charges, 9.6 percent for public-telephone and 43.6 percent for mobile-telephone charges. Telegram revenue meanwhile climbed 13.4 percent while revenue from leased circuits advanced 7.4 percent, it said.

The company's total consolidated assets, including those of NTT Data Communications Systems Corp., advanced 4.3 percent to 11,421 billion yen (72.3 billion dollars).

"NTT will continue its efforts to realise more efficient operations to overcome the influence of capital investment increases, rate reductions and stiffer competition from the new common carriers," a statement said.

The telecommunications giant, the world's biggest after American Telephone and Telegraph Inc., was incorporated as a private company in 1986 although two-thirds of its shares are still in government hands. The company has more recently lost its monopply and is now competing with newcomers.

MANILA (MAY 25) - The Philippines' trade deficit widened to 877 million dollars at the end of the first quarter of this year, nearly double the figure for the same period in 1989, the Central Bank (CB) said here Friday.

The figures were expected to put more pressure on the peso, which slid this week to an all-time low of 23 to the U.S. dollar.

Exports from January to March totalled 1.95 billion dollars, a 9.4 percent annual increase, but they were outstripped by imports, which rose to 2.82 billion dollars, a 27.2 percent increase, a CB statement said.

Electronics and garments remained the Philippines' top exports, while oil, machinery and transport equipment were the principal imports.

The Business World newspaper said the domestic energy crisis and higher investment spending largely accounted for the growing imports of oil and capital goods.

This was expected to further drain international reserves, which stood at 1.6 billion dollars in April, leaving the CB with less leverage to prop up the peso on the official trading floor, it added.

TOKYO (MAY 25) - Hardline communist North Korea will keep its defense spending high at 12.1 percent of its national budget to cope with U.S. and South Korean war moves, the Korean Central News Agency (KCNA) reported Friday.

The ratio is unchanged from 1989, after actual defense outlay last year at 12 percent helped "carry through our party's military line of self-reliance in defense," Pyongyang's official news agency said in a dispatch monitored here.

North Korean Finance Minister Yun Gi-Jong told the Supreme People's Assembly in Pyongyang that the 1990 budget revenue was set at 35.66 billion won (15.85 billion dollars), according to KCNA.

The budget is up 6.1 percent in revenue from 1989.

The report was made at the first session of the assembly, which opened Thursday after an unprecedented early election on April 22 seen as aimed at consolidating the North Korean leadership's position in the face of reforms in Eastern Europe.

Mrs. Yun said in a budget report that 12.1 percent of total outlay was needed to defend "the socialist homeland and our people in the face of the ever-escalating aggression and war moves of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet regime."

The defense budget will amount to 4.31 billion won (1.92 billion dollars) at the official exchange rate.

The ratio of planned defense spending is unchanged from 12.1 percent for 1989, the lowest in two decades. It hovered above 30 percent from 1967 to 1971 and then gradually declined.

But outside analysts say North Korea may have discreetly moved some items of its defense spending into other categories after 1971 to play down the heavy drain on North Korea's national economy.

TOKYO (MAY 25) - Mitsubishi Heavy Industries Ltd., Japan's biggest heavy-machinery concern, said Friday its net profit grew 12.1 percent in the year to March to 55.2 billion yen (368 million dollars).

The company - which ranks number one in shipbuilding, power plants, aircraft and arms - said sales advanced 22.4 percent over the previous year's level to 2,094 billion yen (14 billion dollars).

Exports, accounting for almost 20 percent of the total, rose 8.3 percent to 402 billion yen (2.7 billion dollars).

Sales of power systems soared 36.3 percent to 629 billion yen (4.2 billion dollars while machinery sales climbed 12.3 percent to 522 billion yen (3.5 billion dollars), the company said.

Aircraft and special-vehicle sales rose 25.5 percent to 365 billion yen (2.4 billion dollars). Sales of ships and steel structures jumped 34.9 percent to 289 billion yen (1.9 billion dollars) while sales of general machinery and other items rose 22.4 percent to almost the same amount.

Mitsubishi forecast its net profit to reach 83 billion yen (553 million dollars) in the current year with sales climbing to 2,250 billion yen (15 billion dollars).

MOSCOW (MAY 25) - Mongolia plans to move from a planned economy to one based on a market relationship by the end of the next five-year plan in 1995, TASS news agency quoted its finance minister as saying Friday.

"At the end of the government's economic recovery programme, the Mongolian economy will pass to a market economy system," Demchigjabyn Molomjamts said.

"The transition period to set up a market mechanism will last at least two to three years" and would cost 3.5 billion tugrik (1.06 billion dollars), only 40 per cent of which could be financed by the state budget, he added.

"During this period the focus will be on complete autonomy of enterprises and the economy and on price reform."

A new tax system for enterprises will be introduced next year to put an end to the current situation where non-profitable enterprises are being subsidised by profitable ones.

The Mongolian finance minister also said that "as from next year trade with the Soviet Union and other members of COMECON (the eastern bloc trading alliance) will be carried out on the basis of convertible currency."

LONDON (MAY 25) - East Germany wants to borrow up to 50 billion Deutsche marks (30.1 billion dollars) to provide liquidity for its industry, in dire need of modernisation, the Financial Times newspaper said Friday.

It quoted Wolfram Krause, deputy head of Treuhandanstalt, the trust body which owns most state property in East Germany, as saying that the money would be raised on the international market through various financial instruments over the next two years.

In a bid to reassure potential subscribers, Mr. Krause said that East Germany's 8,000 companies were worth some 300 billion Deutsche marks (180.7 billion dollars), or double that if land was included.

TOKYO (MAY 25) - Japan's Mitsubishi Motors Corp. said Friday its net profit soared 57.7 percent in the year to March to 20.2 billion yen (134 million dollars) in the year to March.

The country's third-biggest manufacturer of motor vehicles said sales grew 6.7 percent over the previous year's level to 2,026 billion yen (13.4 billion dollars).

Domestic sales jumped eight percent to 1,037 billion yen (6.9 billion dollars) while exports grew 7.5 percent to 988 billion yen (6.5 billion dollars).

By volume, however, overall sales grew by only 0.4 percent to 1.27 million vehicles. Domestic sales grew eight percent to 680,000, but sales abroad fell seven percent to 590,000.

Car sales surged 36 percent in volume to 660,000, but sales of mini-cars fell 9.2 percent to 270,000. Sales of small trucks plunged 28.8 percent to 170,000, sales of large trucks gew 6.9 percent to 160,000 and bus sales declined 0.1 percent to 7,900.

Mitsubishi forecast net profit of 22 billion yen (147 million dollars) in the current year on sales of 2,200 billion yen (15 billion dollars).

MONROVIA (MAY 25) - Government troops have killed 350 rebels in central Liberia and recaptured the seaport in Buchanan, about 90 miles southeast of Monrovia, state radio said here Friday quoting the ministry of information.

It quoted Acting Information Minister Moses Washington as saying government forces killed the 350 rebels while the insurgents were attempting to bypass Gbarnga in central Liberia.

The radio did not say when the incident occurred, but it most likely coincided with the recapture of the port of Buchanan on Thursday from rebel hands.

The radio also quoted Brigadier-General Charles Julu, commander of government troops in Buchanan, as saying that Moses Duopu, who led the insurgents, had fled and was being ''vigorously pursued''.

HAMBURG, WEST GERMANY (MAY 25) - The East and West German metalworkers' unions said here Friday that they would merge in 1991.

The presidents of the two unions, both called IG-Metall, Franz Steinkuehler and Hartwig Bugiel, said they had taken the decision because "the grass roots want rapid reunification."

"We wanted to put forward publicly our merger proposal before the implementation of monetary, economic and social union" on July 1, said Mr. Bugiel of the East German union.

The East German union will have to accept its merging into the West German union at a congress in September, while a special congress of the West German union in October will have to modify the union's statutes to make the merger possible.

The powerful West German IG-Metall, Europe's biggest single sector union, has 2.7 million members, while its East German counterpart has between 1.6 million and 1.7 million.

TOKYO (MAY 25) - Japan's seven trust banks suffered a decline in earnings in the six months to March, with figures released Friday showing an average fall of around 10 percent despite higher revenues.

Mitsubishi Trust and Banking Corp., the biggest, said its net profit fell 11.9 percent from a year earlier to 68.3 billion yen (452 million dollars). Current revenue rose 33.2 percent to 1,476 billion yen (9.8 billion dollars).

Sumitomo Trust and Banking Co. Ltd., which ranks second, said its profit dropped 15.4 percent to 62.2 billion yen (412 million dollars), the sharpest decline of all seven banks. But it also posted the biggest increase in revenue at 1,527 billion yen (10 billion dollars), up 40.6 per cent.

Mitsui Trust and Banking Co. Ltd., the third-biggest trust bank, said its net profit sank 10.8 percent to 54 billion yen (358 million dollars). Revenue climbed 28.9 percent to 1,168 billion yen (7.7 billion dollars).

Yasuda Trust and Banking Co. Ltd., an affiliate of Fuji Bank Ltd., suffered a seven per cent fall in profit to 48.7 billion yen (326 million dollars) while revenue advanced 32.4 percent 1,049 billion yen (6.95 billion dollars).

Toyo Trust and Banking Co. Ltd., which is close to Sanwa Bank Ltd., said its net profit dropped 13.4 percent to 35.5 billion yen (235 million dollars). Revenue rose 28.3 percent to 800 billion yen (5.3 billion dollars).

Chuo Trust and Banking Co. said its net profit was seven percent lower at 12.9 billion yen (85 million dollars) while revenue leapt 37 percent to 436 billion yen (2.9 billion dollars).

Nippon Trust and Banking Co., closely linked to the Mitsubishi group, said it profit fell 5.3 percent to 4.7 billion yen (31 million dollars) on revenue which was 19.5 percent lower at 153 billion yen (1.01 billion dollars).

TOKYO (MAY 25) - Japan's Mitsubishi Corp. remained the country's most profitable trading company in the year to March followed by Sumitomo Corp. and Mitsui and Co., according to figures released Friday.

But unconsolidated financial results posted by the nine biggest Japanese trading houses showed that Sumitomo ranked first in terms of sales followed by C. Itoh and Co. with Mitsui in third place.

Mitsubishi, the biggest trader of oil and other energy products, said its net profit rose 24.3 percent to 41.1 billion yen (272 million dollars) in the year. Sales grew 20.1 percent to 16,614 billion yen (110 billion dollars).

Sumitomo's net profit advanced 28 percent to 35 billion yen (231 million dollars). The company, which specialises in steel and chemicals, said sales soared 46.9 percent to 21,403 billion yen (141 billion dollars).

Mitsui, the biggest trader of of steel, chemicals and foodstuffs, said its net profit jumped 32.7 percent to 22 billion yen (146 million dollars). Sales increased 36.9 percent to 20,300 billion yen (134 billion dollars).

C. Itoh, an affiliate of Dai-Ichi Kangu Bank Ltd., the world's biggest bank, said its profit was up 19.8 percent at 18.6 billion yen (123 million dollars). Sales climbed 32 percent to 20,532 billion yen (136 billion dollars).

Marubeni Corp., whose main activities include machinery and textiles, said its net profit was 7.9 percent higher at 16.2 billion yen (107 million dollars). Sales rose 28.6 percent to 18,248 billion yen (121 billion dollars).

Nissho Iwai Corp., affiliate of Sanwa bank Ltd., said its profit advanced 43 per cent to 9.3 billion yen (62 million dollars). Sales leapt 36.6 per cent to 15,047 billion yen (100 billion dollars).

Toyo Menka Kaisha Ltd., strong in cotton-producing countries such as China and Egypt, said its profit rose 23.3 percent to 6.2 billion yen (41 million dollars). Sales grew 20.9 percent to 6,324 billion yen (42 billion dollars).

Nichimen Corp., which specialises in centrally-planned markets, said its profit climbed 24.4 percent to five billion yen (33 million dollars). Sales grew 24.8 percent 5,894 billion yen (39 billion dollars).

Kanematsu Corp., a textile trader which has branched out into electronics, said its profit surged 85.9 percent to 2.5 billion yen (17 million dollars). Sales grew 25.5 percent to 5,502 billion yen (36 billion dollars).

HANNOVER, WEST GERMANY (MAY 25) - West German tire group Continental announced a cooperation agreement on Friday with Japanese group Toyo Tire and Rubber Ltd, calling for three joint ventures: in Japan, Canada and Ireland.

The accord calls for cross-holdings between the two firms, which have already been linked by previous cooperation agreements.

Continental will acquire a 30 percent stake in a Toyo subsidiary, Ryoto Tire Company in Kuwana, Japan. Toyo will obtain a 20 percent holding in Continental subsidiary General Tire Canada, in Barrie, Ontario, and a 10 percent stake in the Semperit plant in Dublin.

In 1982, Continental and Toyo signed an agreement on exchange of technological information. The two firms also cooperate in a joint venture in Mount Vernon, Illinois, a truck tire factory producing for the North American market.

BERLIN (MAY 25) - West German auto maker Opel, a subsidiary of U.S. giant General Motors, is to assemble its middle of the range Vectra model in East Germany from the last quarter of this year, East German news agency ADN said Friday.

Opel president Louis Hughes was quoted as telling a press conference in Eisenach in southwest East Germany that initially 10,000 Vectras a year would be assembled there from parts brought in from West Germany.

The West German firm had set up a joint venture with East German auto maker Automobilwerk Eisenach (AWE), which makes the Wartburg, in March.

The initial investment in the Vectra venture would be 20 million Deutsche marks (12 million dollars).

AWE director Wolfram Liedtke said that it was planned to increase Eisenach's Vectra production to 150,000 vehicles a year by 1993, but that his plant would continue to make the Wartburg, particularly for the East European market.

The current 8,970 workers at the Eisenach plant would be cut to around 7,000 by 1993, he added.

TOKYO (MAY 25) - Japan's troubled Fuji Heavy Industries Ltd., the company that makes Subaru cars, said Friday its net profit plunged 47.3 per- cent to to 5.7 billion yen (38 million dollars) in the year to March.

The affiliate of Nissan Motor Co. Ltd. said it suffered an operating loss of almost 30 billion yen (200 million dollars) in the same period, reversing the previous year's operating profit of 2.7 billion yen (18 million dollars).

The loss, the first since the company was listed 30 years ago, was ten times larger than the shortfall it forecast after suffering a loss of four billion yen (27 million dollars) in the first half. It was also much bigger than the revised forecast of 23 billion yen (153 million dollars) it predicted in March.

Fuji Heavy, whose president resigned last month ahead of the restructuring of the company by Nissan, said sales fell 0.8 percent to 658 billion yen (4.4 billion dollars). The company said its poor performance reflected declining sales of small cars, particularly in the United States but also in Japan.

Japanese news agency Jiji Press said the company - which also makes heavy machinery, transport equipment and aircraft - sold some of its share portfolio along with land in Nagoya to transform the operating loss into a net profit.

Teachers in the majority membership higher education trade union had already given notice some days ago they would strike to press for improved work conditions.

The students came out unexpectedly in a show of solidarity with university students in Zaire, where, according to Amnesty International and other sources, up to 150 undergraduates were reportedly massacred at Lubumbashi by elite security forces two weeks ago after calling on President Mobutu Sese Seko to honour his pledges on introducing multiparty politics.

Several hundred students staged an hour's protest outside the Zairean embassy here. The Zaire authorities say one student died in inter-student clashes.

LONDON (MAY 25) - A subdued England avoided fans and well-wishers when they flew out to Sardinia to begin their final World Cup preparations on Friday.

It was only yesterday that Bobby Robson, England manager for eight years, had announced he would leave his job to for Dutch club PSV Eindoven after the Cup.

A spokesman for Britannia Airways said the Football Association had asked for the squad to avoid the main terminal at Luton airport.

"The FA wanted to make their transition as smooth as possible," he said.

Robson refused to talk to reporters but posed with the players for photographs before boarding the plane. He climbed the steps with midfielder Paul Gascoigne who is also in the news after police confirmed they were looking into his part in an alleged punch-up outside a Newcastle pub.

England legend Sir Stanley Matthews, who broke open a bottle of champagne on the team's Boeing 737 which was named after him, doubted the publicity would affect the team.

"As soon as they get on the plane, as soon as they begin training and playing it will forgotten. I think they will do well," he said.

Robson was going to tell the players about his move on Monday but was forced to go public after newspaper speculation that he was resigning for personal reasons.

At the press conference called hastily by the FA to answer the reports, Robson said the media had caused an "absolute bodge-up."

Most of the squad were accompanied by their wives or girl friends.

England play friendly matches against Tunisia and two Sardinian club sides before their opening game against Ireland on June 11.

After arriving at Cagliari Airport, Robson pledged 100 percent commitment to England's Cup cause.

"I'm here to give this attempt to try to win the World Cup every single moment of my attention," he said. "It's a very important part of my life and I'll give it wholehearted effort.

"From what I have experienced from previous visits, I'm sure our stay here will be a pleasant and happy one," said Robson. "And naturally, we hope to be very successful."

The squad is staying at a seaside base 25 miles outside Cagliari.

Meanwhile, Manchester United manager Howard Kendall has turned down an invitation from the FA to be interviewed for a place on the shortlist to succeed Robson.

Kendall said he told City chairman Peter Swales, a member of the FA's international committee, that it was a great honour to be considered as a candidate but he still had a task to complete at City.

Other contenders are believed to be Aston Villa manager Graham Taylor, Tottenham's Terry Venables and Leeds boss Howard Wilkinson.

MOSCOW (MAY 25) - An Armenian and two Soviet soldiers were killed and several people wounded Thursday in an armed clash between Soviet troops and ethnic Armenians in Stepanakert the capital of Nagorny Karabakh, the Armenian National Movement (ANM) said Friday.

ANM spokesman David Matevossian, contacted at ADN headquarters in Yerevan, the Armenian capital, said the shooting started as armored vehicles circulated through Stepanakert well before the curfew was in effect.

"Soldiers fired at windows that still had lights in them and on cars," the spokesman said.

"After this provocation, the populace retaliated and echanges of gunfire took place at about 11 p.m.," he said..

An Armenian, Gavstian Garik, 30, was killed in the exchange and many people were wounded, the spokesman said, while two Soviet soldiers were killed and four soldiers wounded, three of them seriously.

Nagorny Karabakh is a predominantly Christian Armenian enclave and autonomous province within the predominantly Moslem Soviet Republic of Azerbaijan that has been wracked with ethnic violence.

The incident began Thursday morning when protesters went to a bank in the city where a small group of inspectors had just arrived from Baku, the Azerbaijan capital, Mr. Matevossian told AFP.

The building was guarded by soldiers who fired into the air to break up the crowd of demonstrators. An argument broke out, but it didn't last long and no one was injured, the spokesman said.

Colonel-General Yuri Shatalin, commander of Soviet Internal Ministry troops, told Tass news agency Friday that the situation in neighbouring Armenia was "extremely tense and explosive" with armed groups "growing stronger."

A spokesman for the Internal Ministry in Moscow said Friday one soldier was killed and two injured in Stepanakert Thursday evening and seven "attackers" were injured.

The Interior Ministry spokesman said for his part that some extremists had attacked a military patrol which had returned fire.

Meanwhile, in Armenia itself, armed formations had taken over official buildings and were now in possession of more than 2,500 stolen weapons, Gen. Shatalin told Tass.

"There are several armed organisations in Armenia. Most active perhaps, is the so-called 'Armenian National Army'. (Its) units are deployed throughout the republic (...) its combatants are trained in special centres by instructors, mostly veterans of the Afghan war," he said.

"Our insistent appeals to the Armenian leadership to disarm illegal formations with the help of Interior troops have remained unanswered," Gen. Shatalin said, adding that his forces now stood ready to intervene to disarm these forces.

LONDON (MAY 25) - British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher affirmed Friday her government's commitment to reducing the emission of 'greenhouse gases'.

Opening a new centre for climatic research at the National Meteorological Office in Bracknell, southern England, she said Britain would reduce dioxide emissions 30 percent by the year 2005 ensuring they did not exceed present-day levels.

Observers noted that this would still leave Britain behind several other European countries which are committed to achieving the same goal by the year 2000.

At an environment conference attended by 34 countries in Bergen, Norway, last week, Britain refused to set a limit on carbon dioxide emissions, saying not enough scientific evidence was available to determine a credible ceiling.

Mrs. Thatcher's latest pronouncements on the environment coincide with the publication of a British report on global warming, or the 'greenhouse effect' as it has become known.

The report said that gases such as carbon dioxide which remain in the atmosphere a long time speed up the natural process of global warming.

Experts who drew up the report said that if steps were not taken quickly, by 2025 the temperature of the earth would be one degree higher, rising a further two degrees by the end of the next century.

They predicted that as a consequence the sea level would rise six centimetres (2.6 inches) every 10 years.

At Bracknell, Mrs. Thatcher reminded her audience of the measures the government has already agreed to take, including stricter anti-pollution controls, promotion of household waste re-cycling, cheaper lead-free petrol, reafforestation, aid for tropical rain forest preservation and the gradual closing down of coal-fired power stations.

The new climate research centre will be using its 5.5 million pound (9.3 million dollars) budget from the Department of the Environment on research to help formulate mathematical models of climate change. The government intends to use these as a basis for its policy-making.

While environmentalists have welcomed Mrs. Thatcher's gradual warming to their cause, the ecology group Friends of the Earth called on her Friday to go "much further much faster... The acid test for Mrs. Thatcher is whether her renewed interest in the subject is followed up with effective policy action."

MOSCOW (MAY 25) - Moscow City Hall was expected to decide Friday to bar food sales to non-residents to help cope with the current rush on the stores, Radio Moscow's Interfax bulletin announced on Friday.

The publication said that Moscow Mayor Gavril Popov said Friday morning that the government's announcement of planned price increases in connection with economic reforms had created "a very difficult situation in the food sector.

"City Hall was not aware (of the plan) until today, and a resolution will be adopted today to improve the food trade in Moscow", Popov was quoted as saying.

He said the city government would require food buyers to present a passport showing they are city residents, a step taken by the Leningrad government a few months ago to ward off an invasion of consumers from Baltic countries. Soviet citizens have been buying all the food they can lay hands on the last two days since the economic reforms were outlined.

In an article in the Friday morning edition of Trud, the labor unions' newspaper, a Commerce Department official urged people to avoid hoarding goods, noting that many items are perishable.

LONDON (MAY 25) - Courtaulds Textiles on Friday announced closure of three of its 14 remaining yarn spinning mills with the loss of 500 jobs, blaming the retrenchment on pricing pressure caused by overcapacity and weak demand on the European yarn market.

The closures, all in Britain's textiles heartland in the North of England, are the latest in a series of reductions in the scale of the company's British spinning activities, which have shrunk since April 1988 from 26 mills employing 5,500 people in 1987 to 2,500 employees in 11 mills after the latest cuts.

Courtaulds said the restructuring of its spinning operations "has led to considerable gains alongside capacity reductions", with output per employee to be nearly 30 percent higher than in April 1988 after the three closures.

Shares in Courtaulds Textiles were up a penny at 331 pence after the news, against the trend on an easier market.

KUALA LUMPUR (MAY 25) - The Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) on Friday approved a proposal from Japan's Nissan Motor Co. Ltd. to produce automobile parts for exchange in the Philippines, Malaysia and Thailand.

Lilia Bautista, chairman of the ASEAN committee on industry, minerals and energy (COIME) meeting here, said ASEAN economic ministers have given COIME the mandate to approve Nissan's project, Bernama news agency reported.

The programme, called the ASEAN Brand-to-Brand complementation scheme, allows parts manufactured by Nissan with its joint-venture partners in the three countries to enjoy tariff preferences in participating countries.

Japan's Mitsubishi and West Germany's Mercedes Benz are the other two makes participating in the scheme which is aimed at enlarging the automobile components market in the region. Sweden's Volvo has also applied to participate in the programme.

Ms. Bautista, who is also undersecretary in the Philippine trade department, said Dutch automotive firm DAF International N.V. which proposed manufacturing trucks, buses and vans with ASEAN partners, should restructure its proposal.

COIME dropped a proposal to produce soft gelatine capsules and put Indonesian firm P.T. Natra Raya's proposal to assemble Caterpillar heavy machinery on a review list, Ms. Bautista said.

The six-member ASEAN also groups Brunei, Indonesia and Singapore.

KUALA LUMPUR (MAY 25) - Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad said Friday that Malaysia would work to persuade the United States not to withdraw its trade privileges under the Generalised System of Preferences (GSP).

Mr. Mahathir told reporters that Malaysia would strive to contact the U.S. administration directly to explain the current situation of local workers.

Washington-based International Labor Rights Education and Research Fund said here last week that it would petition the U.S. Trade Representative to review Malaysia's GSP status for allegedly violating workers' rights.

The petition aims to force Malaysia to allow formation of a national electronics workers union and guarantee freedom to strike, minimum wages and protection against health hazards.

"Our philosophy concerning workers and workers' activities is to give priority to workers' interests without jeopardising the national economy," Dr. Mahathir said. He added that strikes and lock-outs destroyed employers and workers, as well as jeopardising the national economy and causing hardship to the people.

Labour activists claim American electronics companies in Malaysia which re-located here 20 years ago to escape U.S. unions have threatened to pull out their investments if Malaysia allowed a national union to be formed.

This is the fund's second attempt in two years to get Malaysia dropped from the GSP, which provides trade preferences to developing countries.

PARIS (MAY 25) - The Paris Bourse (stock market) lost 0.54 percent on Friday on the basis of the CAC-40 index, on low volume in a dull session between the Ascension holiday on Thursday and the weekend.

The market was up a slight 0.02 percent at the opening, but profit-taking depressed prices. Dealers said foreign investors were absent, and the few French investors around in the trading rooms did not feel like making any serious moves, especially since Wall Street will be closed on Monday for Memorial Day.

They added that the announcement of a dip in the French unemployment rate to 9.3 percent in April from 9.4 percent the previous month had no effect on the market.

Cap Gemini Sogeti went against the trend, jumping five percent in active trading amounting to 25,000 shares. Some analysts said a group was thought likely to acquire a substantial stake soon in the firm.

Eurodisneyland dropped more than four percent after the announcement that U.S. MCA Group would build a rival amusement park in the Paris region. Elf Aquitaine oil group was down 3.4 percent on the day on forecasts of stagnant 1989 profits, as well as concern about events in Gabon. The group's Elf Gabon subsidiary plunged almost 10 percent with 14,000 shares changing hands.

LONDON (MAY 25) - The tanker market was extremely dull this week, ahead of holidays in the United States and Europe, and rates failed to maintain their previous buoyancy, London brokers E.A. Gibson said Friday in their latest report.

Rates agreed for all sizes of tonnage dropped in the Middle-East Gulf.

But demand from West Africa continued to feature in the otherwise lacklustre market, with a large proportion of the tonnage fixed destined for discharge in the United States.

Dirty tonnage available in the Mediterranean market had a quiet week, but shipowners nevertheless managed to maintain rates about unchanged. A continued stream of enquiry for clean tonnage reduced availability, so rates were steadier.

Fluctuating rate levels were apparent in the North Sea, while the Caribbean market had a slow week.

Bonn (MAY 25) - West German oil imports rose to 23.3 million tons in the first four months of 1990, a 14.2 percent increase over the corresponding period of the previous year, the economics ministry said Friday.

The oil import bill for the same period came to 5.8 billion marks (3.45 billion dollars) - 754 million marks higher than in the first third of 1989.

Britain remained West Germany's biggest oil supplier with 4.9 million tons, followed by Libya (4.1 million), Saudi Arabia (2.3 million), Norway (2 million) and the Soviet Union (1.8 million).

Some 52 percent of the imported oil came from memebers of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (Opec), and 30 percent was North Sea oil.

LONDON (MAY 25) - Rubber prices fluctuated irregularly on the London physical market over the past week, with trading reduced by the Ascension Day holiday in continental Europe Thursday, and ahead of a holiday here and in New York next Monday, traders said Friday.

The price for Ribbed Smoked Sheet No 1 (RSS 1) for June delivery closed at 565 pounds per tonne against 555 pounds the previous Friday.

High-grade latex types, which had been underpinned by a supply shortage, showed signs of weakening, after news that Far Eastern tapping conditions, recently affected by heavy rain, are improving, traders said.

On May 23, trading got underway on the London Futures and Options Exchange (Fox)'s new screen-based rubber futures market. The market quotes Standard Indonesian Rubber, type 20 (SIR 20), a base product used by tyre manufacturers.

The previous futures market here closed four years ago due to lack of participation, after only a few months' trading. The London Fox hopes to re-establish its importance in a market dominated in recent years by Malaysia and Japan, market sources said.

TOKYO (MAY 25) - Japan's major steelmakers reported mixed performances Friday, with two of the six biggest companies - NKK Corp. and Sumitomo Metal Industries Ltd. - suffering a slump in net profits in the year to March.

But the rest posted higher earnings, led by Nippon Steel Corp. and followed by Kawasaki Steel Corp., Nisshin Steel Co. Ltd. and Kobe Steel Ltd.

NIPPON STEEL: The world's biggest steelmaker said its net profit soared 54.7 per cent from a year earlier to 97 billion yen (614 million dollars) in the year to March. Sales grew 7.9 per cent to 2,573 billion yen (16.3 billion dollars) in the same period, the company said.

Sales of steel advanced 4.8 per cent to 2,242 billion yen (14 billion dollars) but tonnage declined 0.9 per cent. Average prices rose 3.9 per cent to 83,343 yen (527 dollars) a tonne.

NKK: One of the top five steelmakers in the world and second-largest in Japan, said its net profit plunged 26.6 per cent to 30.8 billion yen (195 million dollars). Sales rose 1.3 per cent to 1,278 billion yen (8.1 billion dollars). Further details weren't available.

KAWASAKI STEEL: Japan's third-biggest steelmaker said its net profit grew 13.1 per cent to 50.1 billion yen (317 million dollars). Sales expanded 5.7 per cent to 1,112 billion yen (seven billion dollars)

Steel sales climbed 5.2 per cent to 904 billion yen (5.7 billion dollars), although tonnage fell 0.4 per cent. Average prices advanced 5.6 per cent to 88,076 yen (557 dollars) a tonne, the company said.

SUMITOMO METALS: Ranking equal third with Kawasaki, the company's net profit slumped 44.8 per cent to 30.5 billion yen (193 million dollars), although sales grew 6.2 per cent to 1,120 billion yen (7.1 billion dollars). A spokesman said the profit decline reflected "seasonal factors" but did not eleborate.

Steel sales rose four per cent to to 1,007 billion yen (6.4 billion dollars) but tonage declined 1.8 percent. Average prices climbed 4.3 percent to 97,300 yen (616 dollars) a tonne, the company said.

NEW DELHI (MAY 25) - The supreme court on Friday directed the federal government of India to produce a health report on a performing bear currently held under detention by wild life authorities in Delhi zoo.

The owner of the 12-year-old bear, street performer Nasir Khan Qalandar, had petitioned the court saying Munna Bhaloo (Baby bear) was used to a free life, and was languishing and unable to eat behind bars.

Justice I.M. Sharma said the government had until Monday to submit the report, and that the next hearing on Mr. Qalandar's petition challenging the government's right to detain Munna Bhaloo would be held June 11.

The hullaballoo over Munna Bhaloo's arrest has led to sit-down protests in front of environment minister Maneka Gandhi's residence.

Last week hundreds of roving street performers accompanied by performing monkeys, cobras, less-endangered bears and other animals, demonstrated in the streets of the capital for Munna Bhaloo's release.

Asked by Justice Sharma why authorities "had singled out Munna Bhaloo," a veteran and well-travelled street artist who took part in the Festival of India in France in 1985, additional solicitor general Kapil Sibal said he belonged to an endangered species.

The government was under statutory obligation to protect animals faced with extinction, he said.

Montevideo (MAY 25) EFE - Uruguay's largest labor union was to define its future strategy at its annual congress Friday, following the success of a 24-hour general strike which brought the capital to a virtual standstill.

Officials of the communist-led PIT-CNT described as "satisfactory" Thursday's strike which was called in pursuit of a 30 percent pay rise and to protest President Luis Alberto Lacalle's economic austerity measures.

Hardliners within the PIT-CNT Friday are to push for another two-day general strike in June during the union's fourth annual conference to maintain pressure on Lacalle's center-right Blanco Party administration.

But observers say opposition to further strike action from moderates who have called for a +democratization+ of the PIT-CNT, including the introduction of secret ballots, may open a breach in the labor group.

Thursday's strike was the most important in the country since Uruguay returned to democratic rule in 1985 after more than a decade of military dictatorship.

Banks, airports, schools and universities were closed and public transport services cut by 60 percent in the capital, Montevideo, where half of Uruguay's 3 million population live.

A number of buses were stoned on the outskirts of Montevideo but no injuries or serious damage were reported.

The strike received less backing outside the capital where only 20 to 50 percent of workers failed to show up for work.

Since taking office March 1, Lacalle has increased sales and income taxes in a bid to slash the country's fiscal deficit and has called for loss-making state-owned companies to be sold off.

BUENOS AIRES (MAY 25) EFE - Argentine President Carlos Menem and Britain's Queen Elizabeth II recently exchanged good will messages, Menem revealed Friday.

The British monarch sent Menem what he described as a +warm greeting+ for Friday's 180th anniversary of Argentina's independence from Spain.

The greeting was reciprocated by a message of +special thanks+ from Menem, in which he expressed the same +desire for prosperity for Britain that Your Majesty wished for the Argentine people on this patriotic date+.

Menem disclosed the exchange of messages Friday, when he reiterated his wish to meet British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher to cement bilateral relations.

Last February full diplomatic ties were restored between the two countries which had been severed in 1982 during the 74-day Falklands War in which British troops recaptured the Falklands Islands seized briefly by Argentina.

MADRID (MAY 25) EFE - A Spanish leftist terrorist on hunger strike for more than five months to protest the dispersal of jailed members of his group to different prisons died in a Madrid hospital Friday, doctors said.

Jose Manuel Sevillano Martin, a member of the October 1 Anti-Fascist

Resistance Group (GRAPO), began refusing food November 30 when he joined a fast by other members. He was the first GRAPO activist to die in the present hunger strike.

Sevillano Martin, 30, was serving a 24-year prison sentence for taking part in GRAPO attacks. He had served four years of the jail term.

Two months ago, a female member of the armed group shot dead a doctor who had ordered hunger-striking GRAPO prisoners to be force fed. Some 40 of the 81 jailed GRAPO members are on hunger strike.

Madrid daily Diario 16 Friday quoted jailed GRAPO chief Jose Maria Sanchez Casas as warning that the group would carry out a string of new attacks as soon as Sevillano Martin died.

GRAPO killed around 50 people since it surfaced in 1975.

BARCELONA (MAY 25) EFE - Spanish security guards Friday foiled a suspected arson attack on a replica of the Santa Maria, one of the three ships with which Christopher Columbus discovered America, two days after a similar attack damaged the vessel, police said.

A police spokesman said security guards surprised an intruder on board the full-sized wooden replica of the Santa Maria, berthed at the northeastern port of Barcelona, but the man escaped.

In a subsequent search of the vessel, the guards found four cans containing 20 liters of petrol.

On Wednesday, the interior of the ship was destroyed in a deliberate fire.

Catalan separatists, seeking independence for the northeastern region of Catalonia, tried to bomb the replica Santa Maria in December 1988.

Barcelona, some 600 km from Madrid, is to host the Olympic Games in 1992, coinciding with the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America.

The Crisis in Texas / Prisoners of AIDS: AIDS has become such a burden to the public health system that the U.S. Conference of Mayors reported public hospitals in 13 major cities on the verge of collapse. Two of those cities are in one state - Texas.

In the second report, we go to New York, where, so often, developments have indicated where the national epidemic is headed. When the New York State Health Department began keeping AIDS statistics, only 16 percent of AIDS cases were the result of contaminated needles used by drug addicts and more than two-thirds of all cases were the result of homosexual transmission. Today, almost ten years later, intravenous drug use accounts for almost half the new AIDS cases and that number keeps on rising. (Transcript #5)

S&L Bailout Update / Tax Hikes and Budget Balancing: Will taxes have to be raised in order to pay for bailing out the savings and loan institutions? Today, the Secretary of the Treasury announced that taxpayers will probably have to pay out over $300,000 to depositors. L. William Selfman, Chairman of the FDIC, comments on the situation and assures callers every effort is being made to indict those S&L entrepreneurs involved in fraud. In the second part of this evening's show, two economists discuss what can be done to balance the budget. Bill Wolman, Chief Economist for Business Week, basically feels that the government needs to cut spending, while Pat Choate feels the reality is that taxes will have to be raised, as spending cannot be cut. Mr. Choate's book on how our government is affected by lobbyists, Agents of Influence, will come out this Fall. (Transcript #50)

TOKYO (MAY 25) KYODO - PROPELLED BY ROBUST DOMESTIC DEMAND AND HIGHER OIL PRICES, EIGHT OF JAPAN'S NINE BIGGEST TRADING HOUSES ANNOUNCED FRIDAY A DOUBLE-DIGIT GROWTH IN THEIR UNCONSOLIDATED NET PROFIT IN THE BUSINESS YEAR ENDED MARCH 31.

MARUBENI CORP., THE ONLY EXCEPTION, ALSO PROSPERED, POSTING A 7.9 PERCENT INCREASE IN ITS AFTER-TAX PROFIT.

GAINS IN PRETAX PROFITS VARIED BETWEEN 3.6 AND 26.7 PERCENT, WITH SUMITOMO CORP. TOPPING THE LIST. SIX OUT OF THE NINE TOP FIRMS POSTED RECORD PROFITS.

IN SALES, SUMITOMO LED THE FIELD FOR THE FIRST TIME EVER AT 21,403.6 BILLION YEN, FOLLOWED BY C. ITOH AND CO. AND MITSUI CORP., BOTH OF WHICH ENJOYED SALES OVER 20 TRILLION YEN.

BUT WHEN GOLD REPURCHASE CONTRACTS ARE EXCLUDED FROM THE TOTAL SALES FIGURE, C. ITOH MOVES TO THE HEAD OF THE PACK.

THE COMBINED AMOUNT OF THE NINE TRADING FIRMS' GOLD CONTRACTS TOTALED 15.05 TRILLION YEN IN THE YEAR, A MAJOR FACTOR BEHIND THE TRADERS' HUGE SALES.

THE MOST PROFITABLE SECTOR WAS TRADE IN FUEL PRODUCTS, IN WHICH A 31 PERCENT AVERAGE GROWTH RATE WAS RECORDED, FOLLOWED BY MACHINERY AND CHEMICAL UNITS.

RESULTS OF THE NINE LEADING TRADING FIRMS IN FISCAL 1989 (IN BILLIONS OF YEN, WITH PERCENTAGE GAINS IN PARENTHESES) FOLLOW:

SALES PRETAX PROFIT NET PROFIT SUMITOMO 21,403.6 (46.9) 70.0 (26.7) 35.0 (28.0) C. TOKYO (MAY 25) KYODO - VISITING SOUTH KOREAN TRADE AND INDUSTRY MINISTER PARK PIL SOO ON FRIDAY TOLD HIS JAPANESE COUNTERPART KABUN MUTO THAT HIS COUNTRY HAS ABOLISHED RESTRICTIONS ON OVER 400 JAPANESE EXPORT ITEMS, OFFICIALS OF THE MINISTRY OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY (MITI) SAID.

MUTO APPLAUDED THE MOVE BUT SAID SOUTH KOREA NEEDS TO END ITS RESTRICTIONS ON 258 OTHER ITEMS EXPORTED FROM JAPAN, MITI OFFICIALS SAID.

SOUTH KOREA HAD RESTRICTIONS ON 429 JAPANESE IMPORTS SUCH AS SILICON DIODE AND AUDIO COMPONENTS THROUGH ANNUAL ADMINISTRATIVE GUIDANCE TO DOMESTIC IMPORTERS TO OBTAIN SUCH PRODUCTS FROM OTHER COUNTRIES.

THE POLICY WAS DESIGNED TO PROTECT SOUTH KOREAN INDUSTRIES FROM STIFF JAPANESE COMPETITION, MITI SAID.

THE SOUTH KOREAN GOVERNMENT DID NOT ISSUE THE IMPORT GUIDELINES THIS MARCH WHICH IT COMMONLY HAD DONE SINCE 1986, SOO WAS QUOTED AS SAYING.

BUT SOUTH KOREA STILL RETAINS IMPORT CURBS ON 258 JAPANESE PRODUCTS BASED ON THE EXTERNAL TRADE LAW, WHICH WAS ESTABLISHED IN 1980.

THE LAW REQUIRES DOMESTIC IMPORTERS TO OBTAIN PERMISSION TO IMPORT DESIGNATED PRODUCTS SUCH AS AUTOMOBILES AND LARGE COLOR TV SETS.

"DUE TO THESE RESTRICTIONS, IT IS QUITE RARE, FOR INSTANCE, TO FIND JAPANESE CARS RUNNING IN SEOUL," SAID TOKIO KATAYAMA, DIRECTOR OF THE NORTH ASIA DIVISION OF THE MITI'S INTERNATIONAL TRADE POLICY BUREAU.

WHEN ASKED BY SOO TO SEND JAPANESE MISSIONS TO PROMOTE IMPORTS FROM SOUTH KOREA, MUTO PRESSED FOR ELIMINATION OF SEOUL'S RESTRICTIONS ON THE ACTIVITIES OF FOREIGN TRADING FIRMS, ACCORDING TO KATAYAMA.

THE RESTRICTIONS MAKE IT VIRTUALLY IMPOSSIBLE FOR JAPANESE TRADING HOUSES TO ACTIVELY DO BUSINESS IN THE COUNTRY, HE ADDED.

TOUCHING ON THE HUGE TRADE IMBALANCE BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES, SOO SAID THE ACCUMULATED TRADE DEFICIT WITH JAPAN IS A MAJOR BILATERAL ISSUE, KATAYAMA SAID.

SOUTH KOREA SUFFERED A 3.6 BILLION DOLLAR TRADE DEFICIT WITH JAPAN IN 1989 ACCORDING TO THE JAPANESE STATISTICS.

THE TWO TRADE MINISTERS AGREED TO HOLD REGULAR BILATERAL MEETINGS TO DISCUSS TRADE ISSUES.

TOKYO (MAY 25) KYODO - HIGHER INTEREST HELPED DEPRESS THE PROFITS EARNED BY SEVEN MAJOR JAPANESE TRUST AND BANKING COMPANIES LOWER IN FISCAL 1989, THE FIRST DECLINE IN NINE YEARS, ANALYSTS SAID FRIDAY.

AMONG OTHER CONTRIBUTING FACTORS WERE THE HIGHER RATIO OF FUNDS RAISED FROM THE MARKET, THE LOSS RESULTING FROM THE SALE OF MEXICAN RELIEF BONDS, AND THE DECLINE IN THE VALUE OF THE YEN, STOCKS, AND BONDS SINCE EARLY IN THE YEAR, THE ANALYSTS SAID.

THE SEVEN TRUST AND BANKING FIRMS SUFFERED AN UNCONSOLIDATED NET PROFIT DROP OF 5.3-L5.4 PERCENT, AND AN UNCONSOLIDATED PRETAX DECLINE OF 9-22.5 PERCENT.

THE ANALYSTS FORECAST THAT THE RECENT RISES IN BOTH LONG AND SHORT-TERM INTEREST RATES WILL CONTINUE TO SEND THE COST OF RAISING FUNDS HIGHER IN FISCAL 1990.

MITSUBISHI TRUST AND BANKING CORP. AND SUMITOMO TRUST AND BANKING CO., WHICH HAVE VIED FOR THE TOP POSITION IN THE PAST FEW YEARS, BOTH POSTED UNCONSOLIDATED PRETAX PROFIT OF L33 BILLION YEN. HOWEVER, SUMITOMO'S OPERATING PROFIT EXCEEDED MITSUBISHI'S BY A NARROW MARGIN.

NIPPON TRUST BANK LTD., WHICH INCURRED A 1 BILLION YEN UNCONSOLIDATED OPERATING LOSS IN THE 1988 FINANCIAL YEAR, POSTED A 4.4 BILLION YEN UNCONSOLIDATED OPERATING PROFIT IN THE YEAR UNDER REVIEW.

THE SEVEN BANKS SUSTAINED 93.4 BILLION YEN IN MEXICO RELIEF BONDS SALES LOSSES.

AS A RESULT OF THE STOCK AND BOND MARKET DECLINES SINCE EARLY 1990, THE BALANCE BETWEEN THE CURRENT MARKET AND PURCHASE PRICES OF THE STOCKS AND BONDS HELD BY THE SEVEN BANKS PLUMMETED BY 1.7 TRILLION YEN AND 320 BILLION YEN, RESPECTIVELY, FROM THE YEAR BEFORE.

THE SEVEN BANKS' UNCONSOLIDATED PRETAX AND AFTER-TAX PROFITS IN FISCAL 1989 WERE AS FOLLOWS (FIGURES IN BRACKETS REPRESENT PERCENTAGE DECREASE FROM THE PREVIOUS YEAR; PROFIT FIGURES IN 1 BILLION YEN):

	PRETAX PROFIT	NET PROFIT
MITSUBISHI	L33 (-22.5)	68.3 (-11.9)
SUMITMO	L33 (-15.5)	62.2 (-15.4)
MITSUI	LL8.4(-12.3)	54.0 (-10.8)

KUSHIRO, HOKKAIDO (MAY 25) KYODO - LOCAL MARITIME AUTHORITIES FRIDAY RAIDED A JAPANESE FISHERIES FIRM SUSPECTED OF ILLEGALLY LEASING FISHING BOATS TO NORTH KOREA FOR OPERATIONS IN THE NORTHERN PACIFIC IN CONNECTION WITH SOVIET SEIZURE OF JAPANESE FISHERMEN PROBABLY BELONGING TO THE FIRM.

SEARCHED FOR EVIDENCE WERE THE HOME OF TERUO WATANABE, PRESIDENT OF SHOHO FISHERIES CO. IN KUSHIRO, EASTERN HOKKAIDO, AND HIS OFFICE, THE KUSHIRO MARITIME SAFETY OFFICE SAID.

THE PRESIDENT IS SUSPECTED OF LEASING TWO FISHING BOATS TO A FISHERIES COMPANY IN NORTH KOREA FOR JOINT SALMON FISHING VENTURE WITHOUT OFFICIAL PERMISSION, IT SAID.

SHOHO FISHERIES DISPATCHED MORE THAN 10 FISHING BOATS TO A NORTH KOREAN FISHERIES COMPANY TO PROVIDE TECHNICAL GUIDANCE, ACCORDING TO THE FISHERIES AGENCY.

THE JAPANESE COMPANY MAY HAVE IMPORTED FISH HAUL OF THE JOINT VENTURE, RECEIVING PART OF THE SALES PROCEEDS AS TECHNICAL GUIDANCE FEES, THE MARITIME AUTHORITIES SAID.

SOVIET AUTHORITIES SEIZED 10 NORTH KOREAN-REGISTERED FISHING BOATS AND THEIR CREW INCLUDING MORE THAN 100 JAPANESE, FOR ALLEGEDLY POACHING IN THAT COUNTRY'S TERRITORIAL WATERS OFF KAMCHATKA PENINSULA THE SAME DAY.

SHOHO FISHRIES PROBABLY DISGUISED ITS BOATS AS NORTH KOREAN BEFORE LEASING THEM FOR THE JOINT FISHING OPERATIONS, MARITIME SAFETY OFFICIALS SAID.

JAPANESE FISHERIES COMPANIES, THWARTED BY TIGHTENED CONTROLS ON OPERATIONS IN THE 200 NAUTICAL MILE ZONES OF THE UNITED STATES, THE SOVIET UNION, CANADA, AND OTHER COUNTRIES IN THE NORTHERN PACIFIC REGION, HAVE ENTERED INTO JOINT VENTURES WITH THESE COUNTRIES IN ORDER TO BAIL OUT OF THE DIFFICULT STRAITS.

ESPECIALLY, SALMON FISHING FIRMS MANAGE TO GET AN ANNUAL QUOTA OF 7,000 TONS FROM THE SOVIET UNION IN ITS ECONOMIC ZONE IN EXCHANGE FOR CONSTRUCTION OF A FISH CULTURE FACILITY IN SAKHALIN.

SHOHO FISHERIES IS SUSPECTED OF RIGGING ITS VESSELS WITH NORTH KOREAN FLAGS AND REPAINTING THE JAPANESE LOGOS TO DISGUISE THEM AS SHIPS OF NORTH KOREAN REGISTRY, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

THE COMPANY, ESTABLISHED WITH A CAPITAL OF 1 MILLION YEN IN MARCH LAST YEAR, IS NOT A MEMBER OF THE KUSHIRO FISHERIES COOPERATIVE.

THE MARITIME TRANSPORT LAW BANS LEASE OF VESSELS WITHOUT PERMISSION FROM THE TRANSPORT MINISTRY.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (MAY 25) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

The dollar falls below 150 yen in London. ... A stronger yen fuels a 482-point rise in the Nikkei to 32,793.88 as roughly one billion shares trade. ... After reporting lower earnings expectations, ADOBE SYSTEMS is indicated at 33 in London, compared to a New York close of 50 1/2. Other computer stocks also are lower in London.

RESORTS INTERNATIONAL says debt holders have endorsed its proposed reorganization plan. ... JAPAN AIR LINES says it has ordered 20 BOEING jumbo jets.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT releases balance of payment merchandise trade and personal income figures later today. ... DONALD TRUMP's brother says the TRUMP ORGANIZATION plans a "streamlining" at Atlantic City properties to cut costs.

MATSUSHITA ELECTRIC INDUSTRIES, maker of Panasonic and Technics products, says it plans to build a cluster of factories in Texas that is expected to be Japan's largest industrial investment in the United States.

FROM THE BULLS:

"We think the market can actually be like a freight train here and we might see [a] very, very big up-phase in the near future," says KEN HACKEL president of SYSTEMATIC FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT. "I would strongly advise viewers to really consider stepping up their equity portfolio. ... The big bang for the buck almost certainly will be in equities." (CNBC's "Market Wrap-Up", 5/24)

"It appears the market is simply consolidating," says KENNETH SPENCE of SALOMON BROTHERS INC. "My feeling is that the less ground the market gives the more bullish the intermediate-term uptrend will be.

"I turned bullish May 11, when the up volume overwhelmed the down volume. I believe the Dow will move to around 2950 in the next two to three weeks. ... At this point, I see little downside risk. There is good short-term support, though, at Dow 2810." ("Investor's Daily", 5/25)

THOM BROWN, managing director of RUTHERFORD, BROWN and CATHERWOOD, thinks the mediocre market late this week is a sign of good things to come. "A lot of people are taking profits and stepping back before the holiday," he says. "It's trading like a market that is consolidating its gains and will break out on the upside again." (Reuters, 5/24)

FROM THE BEARS:

"By summer's end I see the Dow well below the current high," says JOSEPH BATTIPAGLIA, associate director of research at GRUNTAL & CO. "I wouldn't be surprised to see it at around 2650 or 2600." (CNBC's "Market Wrap-Up", 5/25)

STOCK MARKET:

Look for ADOBE SYSTEMS to drag down other technology stocks and market leaders today, says PETER DaPUZZO, co-director of worldwide equities for SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON. He says there also is a potential for profit-taking leading into the long holiday weekend. After some consolidation, the market should make new highs during the summer, says DaPuzzo. (FNN's "World Business Report", 5/25)

JERRY MULLINS, head of over-the-counter trading at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS, looks for some profit-taking this morning before investors leave early for the three-day Memorial Day weekend. "I'm still sitting here with a lot of 'buy' orders, but they've become a little pricey at this point." (WSJ, 5/25)

"The key is that there's a substantial amount of money on the sidelines, and every time there's a slight pullback, that money comes in," says

trader JEFF KAMINSKY at MABON NUGENT. "This tells me that even though the market should be taking a breather at this point, there's still momentum to the upside." ("USA Today", 5/25)

CHARLES CLOUGH JR., chief investment strategist at MERRILL LYNCH, says investors "appear to be focusing on a narrower and narrower group of growth stocks" to carry out the current advance, especially technology issues. "What the market seems to be saying is that it's not discounting a new economic cycle or even a recovery in corporate earnings." Clough points to a retreat in the Dow transportation average as a possible warning sign of trouble ahead. (WSJ, 5/25)

"We are stretching the upper end of the fair value trading range for the stock market," says ALLEN SINAI, chief economist at BOSTON CO. He sees the market moving between 2600 and 2900 over the next three-to-five months. (CNN's "Business Day", 5/25)

"It looks like a Mexican standoff here," says MARSHALL ACUFF of SMITH BARNEY. "I think we're sort of getting into a consolidation period here [in the stock market]." (Reuters, 5/24)

"It was just a meandering type of day," says DENNIS JARRETT, chief market strategist at KIDDER, PEABODY & CO. "The market just didn't do much [yesterday]. It was like a sleepy summer day." Jarrett expects the market to wind down even more today on the eve of the Memorial Day weekend. (UPI, 5/24)

"The market is treading water with the holiday ahead," says ALAN ACKERMAN of GRUNTAL & CO. He says that can be positive because the market "recharges on pullbacks." (Reuters, 5/24)

"We've been hearing about inflation going away in the last couple of weeks but investors are still sensitive to it," says TRACY HERRICK, economist at JEFFERIES & CO. in San Francisco. (NYT, 5/25)

STOCK TIPS:

BARRINGTON RESEARCH ASSOCIATES recommends stock in W.W. GRAINGER, a major distributor of electrical and mechanical products. Barrington says the company's stock has averaged 17% annual growth since 1987 and should grow 13% to 15% annually. ("USA Today", 5/25)

CADENCE DESIGN SYSTEMS is "Stock of the Week" in this morning's "Investor's Daily." The stock is a leading player in a booming market for electronic design automation software and has risen from below ten in late 1988 to the high 20s now. Among the analysts who like the stock is MICHAEL LINSKY of BROWN BROTHERS HARRIMAN. "Investors are now confident that Cadence is for real," he says. ("Investor's Daily", 5/25)

RONALD GOLDSTEIN of KIDDER, PEABODY & CO. is hesitant regarding GREYHOUND's junk bond buy-back. "I believe the market is generally dubious as to the company's ability to obtain the instrumental financing needed to make the tender and provide the incremental working capital." (CNN "Moneyline", 5/24)

NIKE closed up 2 7/8 at 81 3/8 yesterday after JOSEPHINE ESQUIVEL of SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON and HEIDI STEINBERG of SALOMON BROTHERS recommended the stock. Ms. Steinberg also recommended L.A. GEAR, which rose 1 5/8 to 50 1/8. (NYT, 5/25)

"Leaders like PEPSICO INC., COCA-COLA CO. and PROCTER & GAMBLE CO. on the Big Board and MICROSOFT CORP. in the OTC market are extended and starting to slow," says KENNETH SPENCE of SALOMON BROTHERS. "But now we are seeing breakouts in some of the laggards like McDONALD'S, ANHEUSER BUSCH INC., TEXAS INSTRUMENTS INC. and LOTUS DEVELOPMENT CORP." ("Investor's Daily", 5/25)

GENERAL MOTORS is featured in the "Heard on the Street" column in "The Wall Street Journal" this morning. Money manager MARIO GABELLI says GM "looks like a really terrific opportunity." Other analysts high on the stock include PHILIP FRICKE of PRUDENTIAL-BACHE and SCOTT MERLIS of MORGAN STANLEY. (WSJ, 5/25)

"I haven't recommended an airline stock in the past year," says MARK DAUGHERTY, airline analyst at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS. "All of the stocks I follow are rated hold." ("USA Today", 5/25)

"One thing we all know is [that] high tech is the year's hottest performing stock group," says CNN's DAN DORFMAN. Many fear high tech stocks "have gone way too far too soon. They've gone up 15 percent to 20 percent" this year and are expected to gain another 20% in 1991.

Despite their strong performance, Dorfman is bullish this strength won't fizzle out. His favorites: ORACLE SYSTEMS, SUN MICROSYSTEMS, CHIPS & TECHNOLOGIES, PANASONIC and VITALINK. (CNN's "Moneyline", 5/24)

Movie industry analysts caution that one big hit movie does not guarantee a hot stock. However, analyst JESSICA REIF of FIRST BOSTON says "a series of successful movies can be critical to even the biggest studios." Her recommendations: DISNEY, PARAMOUNT and FOX. ("USA Today", 5/25)

HILTON HOTELS gained 2 1/2 points to 51 3/8 after FIRST BOSTON recommended the stock on a technical basis. L.A. GEAR rose after MERRILL LYNCH extended a buy recommendation. The LIMITED was also a winner, climbing 1 1/8 to 49 following a repeated buy recommendation from SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON. ("Nightly Business Report", 5/24)

DAN DORFMAN of "USA Today" asked five stock pickers to list their favorite bets for the next six, 12 and 24 months. The results: STEVE KROLL of SLH ASSET MANAGEMENT, the money management arm of SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON, likes INTEL; MONTY GUILD of INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT picks FINGERHUT; JERRY JORDAN of HELLMAN, JORDAN MANAGEMENT picks STORAGE TECHNOLOGY; ELLEN HARRIS of PAINEWEBBER picks CHAMBERS DEVELOPMENT CLASS A; and ROBERT RAIFF of C.J. LAWRENCE picks JAMESWAY. ("USA Today", 5/25)

TIME WARNER rose 2 7/8 to 107 1/8 after MARA BALSBAUGH of SMITH BARNEY issued a new buy recommendation. "Entertainment stocks as a group have really come back to life," she told Reuters. (NYT, 5/25)

PETER DaPUZZO, co-director of worldwide equities for SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON, says his firm has increased recommended equity exposure to 55% with 40% bonds and the balance in cash. He is avoiding defense stocks and looking at companies with heavy export sales that should benefit from a lower dollar.

DaPuzzo also likes growth stocks that have a group P/E ratio of about 12, compared to the S&P at around 14, which is as wide as the spread has been in the past seven years. "Since the S&P stocks will stay at a fairly high level, we think the growth stocks are going to have to move up in price." (FNN's "World Business Report", 5/25)

Hawks in the Fed feel inflation is still too high. But DAVID JONES, chief economist for AUBREY G. LANSTON, says the Fed needs to pay more attention to what he calls a "financial recession - real estate prices falling in many areas of the country, banks being downgraded, bank loans going bad." Jones looks for economic softness to lead to Fed easing but no earlier than this summer. (CNN's "Business Morning", 5/25)

JOSEPH BATTIPAGLIA, associate director of research at GRUNTAL & CO, says if Congress and the administration come up with a deficit reduction compromise that contains "some real meaningful improvement which will make bonds at eight percent very attractive. Without that, we'll bounce off eight and go right back to nine [percent] as sure as I'm sitting here." (CNBC's "Market Wrap-Up", 5/24)

"There is only a very small probability of a recession," says FRANCIS SCHOTT, senior vice president and chief economist at EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY. "At the moment, I see no basis for the Federal Reserve Board to ease monetary policy." (NYT, 5/25)

FRANK MYNARD, a small business lender at THE BANK OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS, says it is becoming increasingly difficult for small businesses to find loans. "We're still lending, we're still taking on more customers," says Mynard, "but there has been some strengthening of credit standards." (Reuters, 5/24)

"It seems like the psychology in the [Treasury bond] market just suddenly turned from positive to negative," says JOHN COSTAS, co-manager of government trading at FIRST BOSTON. (WSJ, 5/25)

The dollar got a push around midday yesterday when it was reported that ASSISTANT TREASURY SECRETARY SIDNEY JONES said the dollar was undervalued against all currencies but the yen. The Treasury, however, announced before the market closed that Jones' comments were taken out of context causing the dollar to close mixed in quiet trading. ("Investor's Daily", 5/25)

"We expect that the Treasury will borrow as much as $50 billion to $55 billion during the July-September quarter," say senior analysts at KIDDER, PEABODY & CO. "The announcements from Washington over the summer which indicate the size of the federal budget deficit could be discouraging for the bond market in the short-run particularly when the market is faced with increased Treasury supply." ("Investor's Daily", 5/25)

THE ECONOMY:

"I just think the revision downward in GNP is a reminder to us all that those people who are expecting a strong rebound in the second quarter are smoking something other than tobacco," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist for "CNBC" and "BusinessWeek." Wolman says the good news is there won't be much inflation, the bad news is earnings should be poor. (CNBC's "Business View", 5/24)

"I see nothing in the [GNP] data that calls the view of a weak economy into question," says JOSEPH CARSON, an economist at CHEMICAL BANK. "If anything, the numbers mask an even weaker economy." ("Investor's Daily", 5/25)

"The underlying strength of the economy is still there," says SUNG WON SOHN, chief economist for NORWEST CORP. ("USA Today", 5/25)

"The GNP revision masked a solid economic performance in the fourth quarter," says ALLEN SINAI, chief economist at BOSTON CO. "The GNP rate doesn't accurately depict what happened - we had solid demand, solid sales and an inventory correction ... which indicates that this was an intended inventory correction." ("Investor's Daily", 5/25)

"The areas of concern rotate, but there is always another one around the corner to drag down the economy," says ALBERT SOMMERS, a senior fellow at THE CONFERENCE BOARD. "That's indicative of the fact that there is no central driving force - strong consumer spending or strong capital spending, for example - to make the economy boom, despite these incidents." (NYT, 5/25)

"I think it's very much a part of a longer-term picture of a slower economy," says ANDREW RILEY of YAMAICHI INTERNATIONAL regarding the new GNP revision. Conversely, MORGAN STANLEY's STEPHEN ROACH is bullish on the economy. "When you have a combination of inventory reductions with firming demand, and demand was up at a 4 percent annual rate for the first quarter that's usually a precondition for good acceleration in the quarters ahead." (CNBC "Business View", 5/24)

IN WASHINGTON:

PRESIDENT BUSH indicates that he will withhold normal trade status from the Soviet Union as long as the Lithuanian question remains unresolved and confirms he will renew such economic benefits for China. (NYT, 5/25)

"We don't know the impact on the taxpayer yet," says PRESIDENT BUSH regarding the burgeoning costs of the S&L crisis. "We do know we will protect the depositors and that's what this is all about. It's not about saving any savings and loan people." (CNN "Moneyline", 5/24)

PRESIDENT BUSH says that when looking at the budget deficit, it is important to remember that "Congress appropriates all the money and raises all the revenues." But he refused to blame Congress outright yesterday in a mini-news conference. "I'm not trying to assign blame," said Bush. Grinning, he added, "If I go out and say what I think ... I might say something like I just said, and I don't want to do that." (Reuters, 5/24)

PRESIDENT BUSH vetoes legislation to continue federal subsidies for Amtrak because of a provision on takeovers of freight railroad lines, but there is a good chance his action will be overridden. (NYT, 5/25)

"We will work hard to get that [displaced worker aid plan] removed [from the clean air bill]," says WHITE HOUSE spokesman STEPHEN HART. "We feel this is bad public policy that's clearly something that he [President Bush] is very strongly against. If that amendment remains in the bill, senior advisers would recommend a veto." ("Investor's Daily", 5/25)

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION CHAIRMAN RICHARD BREEDEN says the SEC

But WENDY GRAMM, head of the COMMODITY FUTURES TRADING COMMISSION, tells the same House committee her agency has better information on the markets it regulates than the SEC does over stock markets. (NYT, 5/25)

CAMDEN, NJ (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Campbell Soup Co. (NYSE: CPB) yesterday authorized divestiture of D. Lazzaroni & C. S.p.A. in Italy; Campbell Seafoods Division, with operations in the UK and Belgium; the U.K. Vegetable Division of Campbell Foods P.L.C. in Hemel Hempstead, England; and Campbell Irish Foods Limited and Mallow Foods Limited in Ireland.

Total sales of these businesses exceed $200 million. The final three businesses were acquired as part of the Freshbake Foods Group P.L.C. in 1988. This outcome follows in-depth strategic analyses designed to set a new course and deliver sharply upgraded and sustainable financial performance.

The company presently expects that the sale of these businesses will result in a charge of approximately $55 million against fourth quarter net earnings.

The companies being sold have excellent positions in their respective market sectors and other operational advantages which Campbell believes should make them attractive to a number of prospective buyers.

Lazzaroni remains the most distinguished premium biscuit name in Italy, despite recent operating losses resulting from underutilization of the modern production facility in Saronno. The company is also a prominent producer of seasonal cake products, marketed under the Lazzaroni and Borsari trademarks.

The Campbell Seafoods Division is a leading processor of specialty seafoods with a particularly strong position in frozen "warm water" prawns. The company has a large share of this market throughout Western Europe.

The U.K. Vegetable Division is one of the largest suppliers of frozen green vegetables in the UK, with a 20 percent share of the market and a strong relationship with the major grocery chains. It also has a 25 percent interest in one of Europe's largest vegetable processing facilities.

Irish Foods is the largest frozen vegetable processor in Ireland, with a 42 percent share of the frozen, green vegetable market, selling against a largely fragmented competition. Its sister company, Mallow Foods, is a leading supplier of dehydrated vegetables, with a 25 percent share of the European market in dried peas. In addition, it has dehydration technology believed to be superior to most of its competitors.

Goldman, Sachs International Limited (London) is assisting the company in connection with these divestitures.

EL SEGUNDO, CA (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - INFONET, the leading international value-added network, announced today that it has signed an agreement with Globe-Mackay Cable and Radio (GMCR) Corporation to provide local telecommunications service and support for its customers in the Philippines.

Headquartered in Manila, GMCR is one of the Philippines' top telecommunications service providers, GMCR recently provided support for the installation of INFONET's new direct access network facility in the Makati district, Manila's major business center. As a result, the INFONET network is now accessible in 110 countries for worldwide data, E-mail, store and forward, fax and telex transmissions.

"The new telecommunications facility allows our customers in the Philippines to gain direct access to the INFONET worldwide network rather than going through an International Record Carrier (IRC)," said Theodore T. Iriye, vice president of INFONET's Asia-Pacific Operations.

"Data, E-Mail, fax and telex transmissions are therefore much more reliable since INFONET has complete network visibility to monitor any communications problems that might arise and can quickly resolve local issues through the GMCR support organization," added Iriye.

"When a company in the Philippines wants to be connected to the INFONET network, our experts order and install the required telephone lines and modems," said GMCR's President Manual P. Manahan.

"We even hold on-site education and training classes in Tagalog or English introducing users to the new technology and provide ongoing service and support, complete with a telephone hot line staffed by senior GMCR technical experts," said Manahan.

GMCR also designs, installs, and maintains private and hybrid networks for INFONET's Enterprise-Defined Network Services clients in the Philippines.

Established in 1970, INFONET is the leading standards-based international value-added network services company. It provides communications and computer services and directly supports those services throughout the world. The company is jointly owned by 11 major telecommunications administrations in the United States, Europe and Asia-Pacific.

Further information on INFONET products and services may be obtained by calling INFONET at 213-335-2875 in the United States or GMCR at 632-521-3550 in the Philippines.

PITTSBURGH (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - A management group has purchased the assets of Schneider Engineers, previously owned by the Schneider Group of Companies, and structured them as the Schneider Engineers Division of a new company, SE Technologies Inc.

The transaction closed Thursday.

The company has more than 500 employees with offices in Harrisburg, Pa.; Philadelphia; Houston; Columbus, Ohio; and Los Angeles, in addition to its Bridgeville, Pa., headquarters.

In addition to its core engineering and design business, the Schneider Engineers Division provides services in computer-based mapping; environmental engineering, industrial hygiene and asbestos abatement; emergency planning and management; project and maintenance management, construction management and plant start-up and operations.

Alexis Tsaggaris, formerly chief executive officer of Schneider Engineers, has been named president and chief executive officer of SE Technologies Inc.

Tsaggaris disclosed that the management group has formed a holding company Vanadium Enterprises Corp. Along with SE Technologies Inc., a subsidiary of Vanadium, three other Vanadium subsidiaries have been formed.

The new subsidiaries include: -- Jones Krall Inc., an electrical contracting firm providing construction and maintenance services to the industrial, heavy commercial and electric utility markets.

-- Construction Rental & Supply Inc., which supplies rental equipment and consumable supplies to contractors, fabricators, steel erectors and manufacturers.

-- SSI Services Inc., based in Tullahoma, Tenn., which contracts with the federal government to provide operations and maintenance services to government facilities.

Tsaggaris said that the founding group of managers who led the buy-out initially will own 100 percent of the common stock. Future plans will expand the ownership within the firm.

The purchase price, which was not disclosed, included substantial cash and long-term obligations.

SAN DIEGO (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has granted two Experimental Use Permits (EUPs) to Mycogen Corp. (NASDAQ: MYCO) for its M-One(R) Plus bioinsecticide, which controls the Colorado potato beetle in potatoes, tomatoes and eggplant, and the elm leaf beetle in ornamental trees.

Under the EUPs, Mycogen will conduct large-scale, commercial trials to demonstrate the performance of M-One Plus under a wide variety of commercial use patterns.

M-One Plus, a genetically engineered version of the company's M-One(R) bioinsecticide, is the second recombinant biopesticide approved by the EPA for large-scale testing. Large-scale testing of Mycogen's MVP(TM) bioinsecticide, which controls caterpillar pests of vegetables, was approved by the EPA in March.

"Mycogen's novel biopesticides offer superior insect control when compared to conventional biopesticides," said Albert D. Kern, Ph.D., executive vice president, commercial division. "Results from small-scale tests have demonstrated that M-One Plus delivers higher levels of insecticidal activity for an extended period."

Annually, more than $100 million is spent worldwide to control the Colorado potato beetle, M-One Plus' primary target. The Colorado potato beetle has become resistant to many synthetic chemical insecticides used by growers.

Colorado potato beetle resistance is particularly severe in the Northeast region of the United States. In addition, certain chemical pesticides effective against the beetle have been banned or withdrawn from the market because of groundwater contamination.

The active ingredient in M-One Plus is a protein produced by a naturally occurring bacterium called Bacillus thuringiensis, or B.t. Using recombinant DNA techniques, scientists insert the gene that produces the B.t. toxin effective against beetles into another naturally occurring bacterium called Pseudomonas fluorescens.

The recombinant bacteria are then killed with a process that stabilizes the microbial cell wall, forming a biocapsule around each insecticidal protein crystal. Because M-One Plus consists of dead cells, it cannot multiply or spread.

This patented encapsulation process, called the CellCap(TM) encapsulation system, encases the potent insect toxin much like a gelatin capsule protects pharmaceuticals. As a result, bioinsecticides protected by the CellCap system have longer residual activity.

"Using our CellCap technology, we have significantly enhanced the performance of naturally occurring bioinsecticides," Kern says. "We believe our novel bioinsecticides will give farmers effective and environmentally sound pest control alternatives, particularly where resistance and groundwater contamination have restricted the use of chemical pesticides."

Mycogen Corp. develops, manufactures and markets biopesticides as alternatives to chemical pesticides for the control of a variety of insects, weeds and other pests. Mycogen's biopesticide products are based on natural agents such as microorganisms, fatty acid compounds and highly refined paraffinic oils, which biodegrade rapidly and are generally more compatible with the environment than most chemical pesticides.

SEATTLE (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Immunex Corp. (NASDAQ: IMNX) announced today in the Journal "Science" that its scientists have cloned the gene encoding a receptor for human tumor-necrosis factor (TNF) -- the fifth cytokine receptor cloned at Immunex.

In their paper, the scientists noted that the part of the receptor that binds TNF matches closely in structure with a group of at least eight other receptors, including a nerve-growth factor receptor and a viral protein. These findings suggest that this group represents a family of receptors that evolved from a common gene.

Since the preparation of the paper published in "Science," Immunex scientists have developed a soluble form of the TNF receptor, which could lead to a new treatment for cachexia, septic shock, and inflammatory diseases such as rheumatoid arthritis.

Cachexia is a condition suffered by approximately 100,000 cancer and trauma patients every year in the United States. The condition renders the body incapable of processing nutrients appropriately and results in life-threatening weight loss. Septic shock results from severe bacterial infections commonly picked up in hospitals. It affects approximately 200,000 people each year in the United States, of whom roughly half die as a result. More than 7 million Americans suffer from rheumatoid arthritis.

TNF Receptor is one of five receptors being developed by Immunex for Receptech Corp., which Immunex created in August 1989 to fund the accelerated research and development of cytokine-receptor therapeutics.

The TNF Receptor is the fifth cytokine-receptor gene cloned by Immunex scientists. Immunex announced in 1989 that its scientists had cloned the gene encoding the Interleukin-4 Receptor. That announcement was followed in March 1990 that the gene encoding the Interleukin-7 Receptor had been cloned. Both of these proteins have soluble forms that are produced naturally by immune cells, lending credence to the idea that soluble cytokine receptors are natural and potent regulators of the immune system. Phase I clinical trials for Interleukin-1 Receptor, disclosed in 1988, are currently planned to begin in 1991. Immunex scientists cloned the Interleukin-2 Receptor in 1984.

IMMUNEX Immunex is a leading biotechnology firm focused on the research, development, marketing and manufacture of immunological therapeutic products. The company has under development one of the biopharmaceutical industry's largest proprietary portfolios of cytokines and cytokine receptors.

MALVERN, PA (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Dr. Felix Zandman, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Vishay Intertechnology Inc. (NYSE: VSH), announced today that Salomon Brothers International Ltd., on behalf of Vishay, has commenced a tender offer to acquire 100 percent of the outstanding ordinary share capital and preference share capital of Crystalate Holdings plc, a United Kingdom company.

According to the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the United Kingdom announcement, Salomon Brothers will offer to acquire, on behalf of Vishay, each Crystalate ordinary share for 80 pence in cash and each Crystalate 5.6 percent cumulative preference share for 55 pence in cash. In addition, Crystalate shareholders may elect to receive, instead of cash, one share of Vishay common stock for every 14 Crystalate ordinary shares. This exchange option is limited to 1.5 million new Vishay shares of common stock.

The cash option values the fully diluted share capital of Crystalate at 30.6 million pounds sterling, or approximately $51.8 million.

These offers are not being made to any United States person or to any person in the United States.

Commenting on the offers, Dr. Zandman said, "Crystalate represents a tremendous opportunity for Vishay. We have been business partners for many years and the commercial fit is superb. Crystalate will enable Vishay to strengthen its base in Europe."

Crystalate, based in the United Kingdom, is a manufacturer of a wide range of fixed and variable resistive products, and custom automotive sensors, and provides conventional and surface mount electronic component contract assembly service. Crystalate is the parent company of Welwyn Electric (U.K.) and IRC and RCL/Shallcross (U.S.). Sales for the year ended Sept. 30, 1989, were approximately $180 million. Vishay maintains a commercial relationship with Crystalate by supplying Crystalate with resistor chips and strain gages for distribution and resale.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - At the annual meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research in Washington, researchers for Immunomedics, Inc. (NASDAQ: IMMU) reported on their work with baboon antibodies. The baboon antibodies will potentially be used as a cancer vaccine by inducing an anti-tumor immune response in patients with cancers that contain carcinoembryonic antigen (CEA). CEA is present in almost all colon cancers and in a high percent of lung and breast cancers.

"This novel approach of using baboon antibodies as a vaccine to induce anti-CEA immunity in patients is possible because the baboon antibody mimics the specific tumor site of CEA," noted Dr. Hans Hansen, vice president, exploratory research.

Similar vaccines have been derived from lower animals; however, the baboon antibody vaccine may be superior since baboon proteins more closely resemble human protein. Because of this resemblance, the patient is more likely to generate an immune response against CEA and not against the foreign protein that is injected.

"In collaboration with University Hospital, Newark, N.J. and the Center for Molecular Medicine and Immunology, we hope to begin clinical trials with this vaccine in the near future," Dr. Hansen added.

Immunomedics is a biopharmaceutical company applying innovative technology to the development of new methods and products using antibody-based radioisotopes and drugs for diagnosis and therapy of cancer, infection and other diseases. NEW YORK (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - John Wiley & Sons, Inc. (NASDAQ: WILLA) announced today that Charles R. Ellis, currently president of the Wiley Publishing Group and executive vice president of John Wiley & Sons, Inc. was elected effective June 1, 1990 to succeed Ruth R. McMullin as president and chief executive officer. McMullin had earlier indicated that she would resign at the end of May to pursue personal interests.

In making the announcement, W. Bradford Wiley, chairman of John Wiley & Sons, Inc., said, "In the years that Mrs. McMullin has led Wiley, she has been responsible for remarkable progress in putting into place an outstanding team of senior publishing and training executives in addition to the financial, information, and distribution systems required to enable Wiley to achieve its global strategies in the future. We are grateful for her dedication and her accomplishments, and we are confident that, in Charles Ellis, we have someone who can build on her achievements."

Prior to joining John Wiley & Sons, Inc. in 1988, Charles Ellis was president of Elsevier Science Publishing Company. He had also held senior executive positions with Pergamon Press and D.C. Health, both in the United States and abroad.

Responding to the announcement, Ellis said, "Mrs. McMullin's accomplishments here will enable all of us to carry out the strategic plan we have, together, created for the future. Her leadership will remain well after she leaves us."

Ellis is president of the board of trustees of Princeton University Press. He formerly served as vice chairman of the Association of American Publishers and vice chairman of the Copyright Clearance Center.

Ellis received his bachelor of arts Degree from Princeton University in 1957 and his master of arts degree from Columbia in 1961. Ellis, 54, and his wife, Jeanne, live in New York City and have four sons and one daughter.

Founded in New York in 1807, John Wiley & Sons is an independent, global publishing company that specializes in scientific and technical books and journals, professional and trade books and subscription services, and educational textbooks and packages for colleges and universities. DETROIT (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - General Motors will become the first American automaker to build cars in East Germany when it begins assembling Opel Vectra models there later this year, GM Chairman Roger B. Smith said here today.

Smith said the move is part of GM's "New Europe" strategy, an "all-out push" to be positioned to take advantage of the opportunities of 21st-Century Europe.

He said the East German vehicle assembly operations mark the first step in what will be a 25-percent increase in GM's European assembly capacity by the mid-1990s. The assembly operations are part of a GM joint venture with Automobilwerke Eisenach (AWE).

Speaking at the 82nd Annual Meeting of GM stockholders, Smith said initial production in East Germany will be at the rate of 10,000 cars annually for sale in Europe. GM already has appointed 170 dealers in East Germany to take advantage of the vehicle sales opportunities there and, by the end of the year, GM will have dealers and distribution companies in place in six Eastern European countries.

Smith also told stockholders that GM has established its second joint venture in Hungary, where GM's Packard Electric Division will assume a 60-percent partnership with Hungarian interests. The joint venture will manufacture automotive wiring in Hungary for the recently announced GM engine and assembly plant in that country as well as assembly plants in Western Europe.

Smith indicated that these steps are significant because "with the economic integration of Western Europe, plus the opening of Eastern Europe and maybe even the Soviet Union, we could be talking about an automotive market of 20 million units a year by the end of the century ... and GM plans to be right in the thick of it."

"As we work to gain ground in the North American market," he said, "we're also moving to take advantage of the truly remarkable possibilities that are now emerging in Europe."

By 1995, he said, GM Europe will be offering an entirely new passenger car lineup as well as new trucks that will cover 80 percent of the light commercial vehicle market.

Smith said that GM Europe anticipates its sales will grow from 1.5 million units a year to more than 2 million units by the mid-1990s, and that GM is moving aggressively into the $60-billion-a-year European components business that is expected to grow to $100 billion by the year 2000.

In addition to the new joint venture in Hungary, ACG-Europe, GM's European components organization, already has several programs under way to help capitalize on that opportunity, including a new chassis center in France, expansion of an engine management center in Luxembourg, and additional component-production capacity in Portugal, Spain, Germany, and England.

Smith also told stockholders that GM's progress in the 1980s has kept the corporation financially strong and ready for the challenges of the 1990s.

He said GM strengthened its competitive position in the last decade by revamping its manufacturing base, introducing many new vehicles, improving quality, reducing costs, and continuing improvements in its basic earning power.

TROY, MI (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - R.P. Scherer Corporation announced today that it has entered into agreements with Pfizer, Inc. for the development of one of Pfizer's pharmaceutical products utilizing Scherer's ZYDIS(R) fast dissolving dosage form technology. Under the terms of these agreements, Pfizer will pay Scherer to develop such ZYDIS products and will obtain an option on exclusive worldwide marketing rights. Scherer will receive development and option fees and, following successful registration and launch, manufacturing revenues and royalties.

The patented ZYDIS technology enables pharmaceutical products to be made in a form which dissolves instantaneously on the tongue and which does not require water to aid swallowing. It is particularly suitable for children and the elderly, as well as many patients who have problems swallowing traditional tablets and hard-shell capsules.

R.P. Scherer Corporation is an international company specializing in the development, manufacture and marketing of advanced drug dosage delivery systems. Scherer's proprietary and patented dosage delivery systems optimize the efficacy of drugs by regulating the dosage, rate of absorption, and place of release. In addition to being the world's largest developer and manufacturer of softgels, Scherer's drug dosage delivery range includes the patented SCHERERSOL(R) and ZYDIS systems. The company operates a global network of 14 facilities in 13 countries.

ZYDIS is a registered trademark of R.P. Scherer Corporation. R.P. Scherer is now a subsidiary of RPS Corporation (OTC: RPCPP).

FAIRFIELD, NJ (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - American Phonemeter Corporation (OTC) has filed suit against National Patent Development Corp. (AMEX: NPD) and two subsidiaries alleging fraud and breach of contract in the licensing, marketing and manufacturing of American Phonemeter's proprietary "Cashphone" and its supporting pay telephone technology, it was announced today by Sidney S. Barzman, American Phonemeter's chairman of the board.

In a law suit filed in the United States District Court of New Jersey, American Phonemeter, the developer and original manufacturer of the "Cashphone" claims National Patent willfully failed to perform its end of the contract. American Phonemeter originally licensed National Patent to manufacture, market and support the "Cashphone" by means of Patent's subsidiaries, wholly owned Eastern Electronics Manufacturing Corp. and Capital Tel Systems, Inc. (OTC).

Barzman said that American Phonemeter is seeking a minimum of $3 million in damages based on a preliminary review of sales, royalties and update fees and believes this amount could increase after a more complete review of National Patent's books and records. In addition, American Phonemeter is seeking "extensive" punitive damages and an order requiring National Patent to honor and comply with the contract.

Said Barzman: "At the time of the contract, signed in January of 1987, our proprietary technology was in advance of the state-of-the-art, and National Patent's willful failure to perform its end of the contract impaired American Phonemeter's major opportunity to become a leader in the production and operation of independently owned pay telephones.

#90145p2201 05/25/1990 ~PR Newswire

PITTSBURGH (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - TCI of Pennsylvania Inc. today announced a restructuring of its customer rates, including a decrease in the monthly rate for basic service, a monthly rental charge for all converters and a modest monthly charge for the TV Entertainment program guide. The changes are effective July 1.

In most systems, the monthly rate for basic service will decrease 60 cents.

In addition, a monthly rental rate of $2 will be charged for all converters, regardless of whether they are used for primary outlets or additional outlets. Currently, there is no rental charge for primary outlet converters, while the monthly rate for each additional outlet is $1.50.

However, customers requiring a company-supplied converter to descramble a premium service will not be charged a monthly fee for that converter.

The new converter charge will not apply to the City of Pittsburgh system, since its technological design is not completely compatible with converter de-emphasis. As a result, the monthly rates for Basic Service and Expanded Basic Service in the City of Pittsburgh will decrease 10 cents rather than the more general 60 cents.

Also, the new rate structure will not apply to the company's Greensburg, Pa., system.

TV Entertainment, currently distributed at no cost to those who subscribe to it, will be priced at 50 cents per month.

Joseph Aman, state manager for TCI of Pennsylvania, said the restructuring would provide a fairer system by assessing charges for special features only against those customers using those features.

"Until now, the cost of providing these features has been spread across our entire customer base," Aman said. "However, not all customers take advantage of or desire to use these features. We feel those who do not use a feature should not be charged for it. With this change to a fairer distribution of costs, we can provide lower-cost basic service to all our customers."

Aman said the company's research indicates that more than half its customers currently utilize cable-ready television sets and cable-ready VCRs and do not require converters for clear cable reception and viewing variety.

All customers will be informed of the new rate structure in billing inserts in two consecutive months.

The company serves approximately 450,000 customers in the commonwealth.

EDISON, NJ (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - E&B Marine Inc. (NASDAQ: EBMI) today reported sales for the first quarter ended April 1, 1990, of $16,218,000 an 11.1 percent decrease from the $18,239,000 recorded in the first quarter ended April 2, 1989. The operating loss before extraordinary items was $1,753,000 compared with the operating loss of $636,000 reported in the first quarter of 1989. Net income for the first quarter of 1989 was $4,128,000, including an extraordinary gain of $4,765,000 resulting from the extinguishment of debt related to the restructuring of the company's debt and equity in March 1989.

Net loss per share before extraordinary items in the first quarter of 1990 was 15 cents compared with 10 cents in 1989. Net income per share in 1989, including the extraordinary gain, was 72 cents. The weighted average number of outstanding shares for the first quarter of 1990 was 11,901,000 vs. 5,796,000 for the comparable 1989 period.

The decline in sales is attributable to continued softness in new boat sales, competitive conditions and timing delays in catalog mailings.

Operating expenses increased 14.6 percent over the prior year. The increase in operating expenses was principally attributable to the planned openings of nine new stores, the retrofit of the distribution center, and additional management expenses to support future growth.

Interest expense for the first quarter was $302,000, or 34 percent less than last year as a result of the restructuring of the company's debt to equity in 1989.

As previously announced, on April 5, 1990, the company completed the acquisition of certain assets of Suncoast Marine Distributors, Inc., d/b/a Boatgear America, a 10-store retail chain located in the Southeastern United States.

E&B Marine Inc. is the nation's largest direct-mail merchandiser and specialty retailer of marine supplies and accessories with 50 retail outlets.

SILVER SPRING, MD (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Business Publishers, Inc., publisher of leading environmental newsletters since 1963, has been selected by United Press International to contribute to UPI environmental reports that comprise a new information service for corporate and government executives.

"UPI Environmental NewsNow" offers round-the-clock reports on regulatory and legislative initiatives, environmental disasters and cleanup activities, environmental project finance, liability, grass roots activity and other developments, according to UPI Vice Chairman Joseph K. Taussig. The service is delivered via UPI telecommunications to subscribers' personal computers, where it is readily accessible through UPI's unique software.

The environmental group of Business Publishers, Inc., which comprises the largest staff of environmental reporters in the nation, will join forces with UPI's worldwide network of correspondents to provide global environmental coverage for the new service. Other contributors include wire services from Europe and Asia, Invest/Net and Business Wire.

"BPI is proud to have been chosen to participate in this exciting venture " Business Publishers President Leonard Eiserer said. "We are confident that BPI's environmental focus and UPI's broad environmental coverage will quickly make this an indispensable service for corporate executives and government officials."

In addition to providing up-to-the-minute coverage of breaking environmental news, in Washington and around the world, "UPI Environmental NewsNow" will also give clients a quick overview of each day's scheduled environmental events, perceptive analyses of major environmental issues, and daily financial and stock market reports on environmentally oriented industries.

Business Publishers, Inc., has been publishing environmental newsletters for industry, government and the academic community for the past 27 years. From a single title, "Air/Water Pollution Report," the company's catalog has grown to more than 50 specialized newletters -- most of them in the environmental field.

Robert Varela, editorial director of the environmental group and editor of "Environmental Health Letter," has been named to head BPI's editorial team. Michael Silverstein, author of "The Environmental Factor" and editor of BPI's "Directory of Environmental Investing," will cover the financial and securities beat.

All of the company's environmental reporters and editors will participate in the daily coverage, and several will write analytical pieces in their areas of special expertise.

ST. PETERSBURG, FL (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Home Shopping Network, Inc. (AMEX: HSN) announced today that it will launch an employee drive on May 29 to find potential bone marrow donors to be listed on the National Marrow Donor Program registry.

United States Representative Bill Young, who initiated the national marrow donor program, will attend a kickoff ceremony at noon at Home Shopping's headquarters, 2501 118 Ave. North, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Also scheduled as special guests at the event are the award-winning, popular country music singing stars The Judds. Wynonna and Naomi Judd will speak briefly to encourage participation in the marrow donor program.

Rep. Young's advocacy of the marrow donor program has gained endorsements from President Bush and Secretary of Health and Human Services Louis Sullivan. Young said, "I am extremely pleased that Home Shopping has stepped forward to be a model for other companies to follow in seeking marrow donors. The employees of Home Shopping could make no more important contribution than this precious gift of life."

Home Shopping is organizing its drive in conjunction with Life-Savers Foundation of America, a national non-profit organization whose role is to recruit and test potential donors for patients suffering from leukemia, aplastic anemia, or other fatal blood disorders, as well as raise money in the private sector to underwrite testing. The only cure for such diseases is marrow transplant. Home Shopping is the first company in the South to sponsor an employee marrow donor drive.

The community Blood Bank bloodmobile will be at Home Shopping on May 29 and May 30 to collect blood samples from Home Shopping's employee volunteers. Each blood sample will be tissue typed by an independent human leukocyte antigens (HLA) lab at a cost of $75 per sample to be paid by Home Shopping.

In agreeing to underwrite lab costs for employee samples, Home Shopping assumes a leadership role among companies sponsoring marrow donor drives, with the goal of becoming a model to entice more organizations to sponsor such drives.

The chance of finding a perfect match in two unrelated persons is one in 20,000. If matches are found among its employees and potential transplant patients, Home Shopping will pay employee donors despite time off required to undergo the marrow donation process.

Roy M. Speer, Home Shopping chairman and chief executive officer, said, "It takes special commitment to be a marrow donor. I am proud of the many Home Shopping employees who have chosen to help save lives."

TORONTO (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Helen Roman-Barber, chairman and chief executive officer of Denison Mines Limited (TSE: DEN), told shareholders at today's annual meeting that she foresees "a period of renewed growth for Denison, based, in large measure, on uranium, our core business."

Roman-Barber said that Denison was experiencing a down period characterized by depressed markets, a strong Canadian dollar, high interest rates and temporary production setbacks last year at several of the company's operations.

Last November Denison sold its Canadian oil and gas assets for $44.6 million, although stiff competition from other properties now on the market has made the task of selling Denison's remaining interests "difficult, but not insurmountable."

Denison also financed the retraction of the preferred shares Series A last August and has paid all regular preferred share dividends. Denison's board of directors yesterday declared the regular quarterly preferred share dividends, payable on June 15, 1990 to shareholders of record on June 8, 1990.

As for the uranium business, Roman-Barber said that "change is occurring. Demand is increasing as Canada, France, Japan and a number of other countries add to their nuclear generating capacity."

And with promising high-grade, low-cost uranium properties in northern Saskatchewan and Australia, she said that "Denison is well positioned to take advantage of this impending recovery" and intends "to be one of the major suppliers of uranium to the market of the '90s."

RICHMOND, VA. (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Tredegar Industries Inc. (NYSE: TG) today announced its intent to divest its Fiberlux Inc. subsidiary and the aluminum extrusion and fabrication operations of Capitol Products Corporation in Mechanicsburg, Pa. The sales, subject to IRS approval, are expected to be completed by year-end.

The action was approved by Tredegar's Board of Directors and announced to shareholders attending the company's annual meeting held today in Richmond.

Fiberlux, a manufacturer of vinyl extrusions and vinyl windows and doors, has 160 employees and operates plants in Mount Vernon and Pawling, N.Y., and South Bend, Ind. The aluminum extrusion and aluminum window and door fabrication operations of Capitol Products are headquartered in Mechanicsburg and include a second facility in New Oxford, Pa. These facilities have 550 employees.

Tredegar will continue to operate aluminum extrusion facilities in Newnan, Ga., Carthage, Tenn., and Kentland, Ind., through its William L. Bonnell subsidiary.

The assets to be sold generated revenues of approximately $77.364,000 in 1989 and operated at a loss. Tredegar had 1989 revenues of $637,883,000 and pro forma net income of $11,253,000.

In announcing the decision, John D. Gottwald, Tredegar president and chief executive officer, said: "After extensive analysis and review, we've determined that the vinyl and aluminum window and door businesses don't fit our strategic criteria. Once these divestitures are accomplished, I believe Tredegar will be stronger and better able to support its long-term businesses."

After the divestiture, Tredegar's businesses will include plastic films and molded products, aluminum extrusions, coal, oil and gas.

BURBANK, CA (MAY 24) PR NEWSWIRE - USAir announced today that effective July 1 it will almost double the number of flights between Burbank and San Francisco International Airport and will be adding an additional flight to Oakland from Burbank according to Lawrence M. Pickett, assistant vice president corporate communications.

Presently, USAir has eight flights between Burbank and San Francisco International. Starting July 1, that number will increase to 14 with hourly flights on the half hour with the last flight departing at 7:30 p.m.

Currently, USAir has five flights per day between Burbank and Oakland. That number will increase to six.

In addition to the schedule changes, USAir will also be providing coffee and newspapers in the boarding areas for selected flights as well as modular work stations.

"We believe that these schedule changes and other services reinforce our position that USAir intends to remain competitive in the highly competitive California market," noted Pickett.

USAir will have 81 daily departures from Southern California to Northern California compared to 53 for United and American, 19 for Delta, 16 for Southwest.

NEW YORK (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - The 'A-1'-plus ratings on commercial paper issued and guaranteed by Australia & New Zealand Banking Group (ANZ) are affirmed and removed from S&P CreditWatch following the bank's decision not to proceed with a planned acquisition of 51 percent voting control of National Mutual Life Association of Australasia.

Also affirmed are the double-'A' rating on senior debt and 'A-1'- plus rating on commercial paper issued by National Mutual's unit, National Mutual Group Finance Ltd., and, the double-'A'-minus claims- paying ability ratings of its Integrity Life Insurance Co. and National Integrity Life Insurance Co. units. The ratings, which benefit from the support of the parent, are removed from CreditWatch where they were placed on April 9.

The proposed acquisition was to have been voted upon by National Mutual policyholders on May 29, and been effective Oct. 1.

However, it was blocked by the Australian government on May 23, after a determination that the merger would lead to a reduction in competition that would not be in the national interest. The statement by the government treasurer, Paul Keating, indicated that the government would prefer to see the largest Australian banks and insurers remain separate.

Ownership of National Mutual Royal Bank, which was conditionally acquired by ANZ in April as part of the merger agreement, will now revert to National Mutual Life, S&P said.

ANN ARBOR, MI (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - In a move aimed to expand its share of the growing European market, Interface Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: INTF) has acquired 25 percent of Sintec Peripherals Ltd., a London-based distributor of computer peripherals to users of IBM mainframe and midrange systems.

Sintec Peripherals has handled European sales and distribution of Interface Systems' IBM-compatible printers since 1987.

As part of the agreement, Interface Systems also received an option to purchase the remaining 75 percent of Sintec Peripherals Ltd., along with all of its wholly owned subsidiary, Sintec Supplies Ltd., in 1992. The latter company sells printer supplies in Europe.

Ann Arbor-based Interface Systems is a diversified manufacturer of high-technology products. The company and its subsidiaries manufacture industrial-grade computers and computer terminals, called industrial workstations; plug-compatible printers for users of IBM mainframe and midrange computer systems; remote high-speed PC-to-mainframe data communications systems; and custom-printed circuit boards.

Carl L. Bixby, the president and board chairman of Interface Systems, has joined the board of directors of Sintec Peripherals. He said, "Like most manufacturers, we expect the 1992 unification of the European market to provide us with excellent opportunities for new business. Our investment in Sintec helps position us for this growth."

The Sintec investment is Interface Systems' second major move in recent months to expand its European business. In January, the company's wholly owned Nematron subsidiary, which manufactures industrial workstations, established a European sales and technical- support subsidiary, called Nematron Europa BV, in Maarsenbroek, the Netherlands.

HOUSTON (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Kelley Oil Corporation (NASDAQ: KOIL) announced that on May 24, 1990 its common stock was designated for listing on the NASDAQ National Market System (NMS), with NMS trading in the common stock to commence on June 5, 1990.

The common stock is currently traded on the NASDAQ system, and prices are reported in the National List.

The NMS designation was made on the basis of an increase in Kelley Oil's net worth from $9.9 million to $12.1 million resulting from the company's private placement on May 24, 1990 of 220,000 shares of its $1.00 cumulative convertible preferred stock at $10.00 per share. Proceeds of $2.2 million from the private placement will be used to fund continued development drilling activities.

The entire issue of preferred stock was purchased by David L. Kelley, Joe M. Bridges and Bromley DeMeritt, officers, directors and principal stockholders of Kelley Oil. In connection with the private placement, Kelley, Bridges and DeMeritt granted a one-year option for the purchase of the preferred stock by Kelley Oil's Employee Stock Ownership Plan, which currently owns all other outstanding shares of the company's preferred stock and over 500,000 shares of the company's common stock.

Kelley Oil Corporation is an independent oil and gas producer with oil and gas properties located primarily in Louisiana. Kelley Oil serves as the managing general partner of Kelley Oil & Gas Partners, Ltd. (AMEX: KLY), in which it owns interests aggregating 6.56 percent.

It also serves as managing general partner of Kelley Partners 1988 and 1989 Development Drilling Programs and owns interests of 48.11 percent and 44.32 percent, respectively, in these publicly held programs. Concorde Gas Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary , markets gas for the company, its affiliates and third parties.

PITTSBURGH (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Equitable Resources (NYSE: EQT) told shareholders at its annual meeting in Pittsburgh today that recent developments in the company "should pave the way for continued growth well into the future."

Donald I. Moritz, president and CEO, credited the company's new interstate pipeline subsidiary -- Equitrans -- with adding a significant dimension to Equitable's utility operations.

"Equitrans was the driving force behind last year's volume and market expansion of our utility segment, and should lead the segment to further gains in throughput and an increasing share of the interstate market."

Moritz said that the outlook for Equitable's energy resource segment has been enhanced by recent diversification moves, including the company's successful entry into the Gulf of Mexico and its expanding development of coal seam gas reserves in Virginia. "These two programs complement our conventional gas and oil drilling in Appalachia, which remain the core of our operations, and could add significantly to Equitable's profit picture over many years".

The Gulf offshore program has already proved up three of the six tracts tested for potential gas production since drilling began in late 1989, Moritz said. Overall, Equitable has an average 12-1/2 percent interest in 20 offshore tracts, all of which will be tested over the five-year life of the Gulf program.

He also observed that Equitable had approximately doubled its coal seam gas production to 2 million cubic feet per day since the beginning of the year. The company plans to drill 55 additional coal seam wells in 1990, bringing the total to 69.

Moritz stated that the Clean Air Act, now being molded into final form, is certain to give additional growth impetus to Equitable and the gas industry. "New demand for clean burning natural gas, triggered both by law and public concern, should benefit every segment of the industry in which we're involved."

He noted that an outgrowth of the environmental movement was the massing of institutional funds for investment in companies that contribute to a healthy environment. "I'm pleased to report that four such funds have purchased Equitable shares, and a fifth includes us in their model portfolio."

At the meeting the company's shareholders reelected directors John C. Bertges, Merle E. Gilliand, David S. Shapira and Barbara Boyle Sullivan to additional three-year terms. A shareholder proposal for a change in voting requirements was defeated.

NEW YORK, (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Kidder, Peabody & Co. has established a municipal finance office in Minneapolis to supplement its existing securities business in Minnesota. James Mayer, a vice president in Kidder's investment banking division, has been selected to head the office.

Kidder, Peabody is the only New York-based investment banking firm with a municipal finance operation in Minnesota. Kidder currently has a 35-person staff of retail and institutional sales people in Minneapolis.

"Establishing the ability to provide in-state service to meet the financing needs of state and local governmental agencies is a natural extension of Kidder's long-standing commitment to Minnesota and its residents," said Mayer.

He added that Kidder is currently managing a financing of approximately $70 million in wastewater treatment bonds for the Minnesota Public Facilities Authority. The money raised from the sale of these bonds will be used to provide low interest loans to several municipalities in the state, including the Metropolitan Waste Control Commission.

Prior to joining Kidder in 1989, Mayer worked as a vice president in municipal finance for Rauscher Pierce Refsnes, Inc., San Francisco, a sister company of Dain Bosworth Incorporated and as a municipal bond lawyer for Wood, Dawson, Smith & Hellman, New York, and Orrick, Herrington & Sutcliffe, San Francisco. He started his career as a law clerk at Holmes & Graven, Chartered, Minneapolis.

Mayer earned a bachelor of arts degree in government from St. John's University, Collegeville, Minn., and his juris doctor from the University of Minnesota Law School.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, IL (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Motorola, Inc. (NYSE: MOT) learned that it has been selected as Nippon Idou Tsushin Co.'s (IDO) supplier for their new Narrow-band Total Access Communications System (NTACS) cellular system in Japan. With IDO's selection, Motorola's TACS systems will ultimately serve all of Japan, since Daini-Denden Inc. (DDI), another Japanese provider of cellular service with seven regional cellular operating companies, has previously adopted Motorola TACS as their cellular system of choice.

"We are pleased to have been chosen by IDO. We expect that Japanese demand for cellular will be tremendous in the 1990s, and we look forward to providing advanced cellular systems technology required by IDO to fill this demand," stated Bernard R. Smedley, senior vice president of Motorola Inc. and general manager of the Radio-Telephone Systems Group.

"This decision now will result in nationwide roaming on TACS/NTACS in Japan, allowing Japanese cellular subscribers new levels of flexibility in using mobile and portables virtually anywhere. In particular, Japanese subscribers can now take full advantage of the Motorola Micro-TAC(TM) Personal Telephone," Smedley added.

Motorola's understanding is that IDO is planning to start Phase I services in October 1991 and Phase II in April 1992. Phase I covers Tokyo's twenty-three Ward area, and Phase II, major surrounding cities. Five Megahertz of spectrum are expected to be allocated for this service.

BALTIMORE (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Environmental Elements Corporation announced today that it has filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission a registration statement relating to a proposed initial public offering of 2,300,000 shares of common stock.

Of the shares to be offered, 1,600,000 shares will be sold by the company and 700,000 shares will be sold by certain selling stockholders. The company and its selling stockholders will also grant the underwriters an option to purchase an aggregate of 345,000 additional shares solely to cover overallotments.

It is currently estimated that the initial public offering price will be between $14 and $16 per share. Kidder, Peabody & Co. Incorporated and Legg Mason Wood Walker, Incorporated have been selected to manage the offering.

The net proceeds to the company from the sale of its shares will be used to repay indebtedness, support an expansion of contract bonding capacity, fund increased product development activity and possibly acquire related businesses, products or technologies.

Environmental Elements Corporation is a leading provider of large- scale, custom-engineered air pollution control systems which enable customers to operate their facilities in compliance with regulatory standards limiting particulate and gaseous emissions. The company serves selected markets in which it has, or believes it can obtain, a strong competitive position.

The company's principal customers are electric utilities and private power generators, pulp and paper producers, and developers of municipal solid waste incineration facilities, all of which have traditionally been intensive users of types of precipitation, filtration, scrubbing, and related systems and technologies offered by the company.

RALEIGH, NC (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - GE Mortgage Capital Corp. (GEMCAP), the holding company for GE Capital Mortgage Insurance Company and a subsidiary of GE Capital, said it has reached an agreement in principle to purchase The Travelers Corporation's Travelers Mortgage Services Inc. (TMSI) subsidiary. The purchase price was not disclosed.

Travelers Mortgage Services, based in Cherry Hill, N.J., provides mortgage servicing, mortgage wholesaling and mortgage origination services, as well as relocation services.

Prior to the closing of the transaction, TMSI will begin a transition from the retail mortgage origination business because GEMCAP does not want to compete with GEMCAP customers in the retail origination business.

TMSI noted that during any transition it will "continue to keep the origination business vital and healthy, and will work to ensure any potential new owner keeps the origination business as successful as it has been."

Speaking about the significance of the deal, Greg Barmore, GEMCAP's president and chief executive officer, said: "Particularly in the case of the mortgage servicing business, this will allow us to use our customer service and risk management expertise, as well as capital, to help our customers. In today's marketplace, many of our customers are trying to sell valuable servicing rights to generate capital. Due to the current restructuring of the industry, there's a shortage of buyers. This transaction will help preserve the value of our customers' servicing portfolios."

Barmore said that another area of the transaction that will provide benefits to GE Capital's customers is the relocation business. "We view the relocation company and its leading network of independent real estate professionals as both a profit center in its own right and an additional service for our customers," he said.

Barmore noted that while GEMCAP remains totally committed to its core mortgage insurance business, "this acquisition reflects our stated strategy of adding services that will benefit our customers and benefit the mortgage finance industry."

"The addition of Travelers Mortgage Services' businesses," he added, "will complement our mortgage insurance business, which we have bolstered with the recent purchase of the insurance portfolio of Integon Mortgage Guaranty Insurance.

"Our business focus has not changed at all. Our aim is to help people get into houses and the businesses we are purchasing do just that."

Talking about Traveler Mortgage Services, Barmore pointed out, "Traveler's employees have an outstanding track record, understanding of the mortgage financing business and a customer-service orientation. There is a natural complement between our strengths and theirs, and we look forward to a bright future together."

GEMCAP is the holding company for GE Capital Mortgage Insurance companies and other affiliated businesses.

ST. PAUL, MN (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - The St. Paul Companies announced that its board of directors today authorized the purchase from Alleghany Corporation of the approximately 9 percent ownership interest held by Alleghany in The St. Paul Companies' outstanding common stock. The St. Paul has been informed by Alleghany that its executive committee approved the sale earlier.

The stock will be repurchased at the market price at the close of the market on May 23, 1990 ($59.25 per share) and will be retired. The company currently has 49.2 million fully diluted shares of common stock outstanding, of which Alleghany owns 4.4 million shares.

The St. Paul Companies will reimburse Alleghany for up to $5 million of certified out-of-pocket expenses, other than interest expense, that Alleghany has incurred in its attempt to secure approval to acquire more than 10 percent of The St. Paul Companies' stock. All related legal proceedings over which Alleghany or The St. Paul has control will be discontinued.

"We are pleased that after two and one-half years of regulatory process and litigation, this issue has been brought to a close," said Douglas W. Leatherdale, chairman and chief executive officer of The St. Paul. "The agreement means we will not incur considerable future legal expense or continue to have our employees distracted from pursuing our business objectives."

Leatherdale said the repurchase would not strain the company's financial capacity and will have a positive impact on earnings per share.

SUNNYVALE, CA (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - SuperMac Technology and Macamerica announced today that the SuperMac line of hardware is now available through Macamerica's U.S. distribution channel.

The agreement comes on the heels of last month's merger between Softsel Computer Products and Microamerica, Macamerica's parent firm. Like Softsel, Macamerica will distribute Supermac's full line of hardware products to SuperMac's authorized resellers. With the merger finalized, the total number of distribution points available to SuperMac in the U.S. climbs from seven to seventeen.

The impending merger between Softsel Computer Products and Microamerica was a key factor in SuperMac's decision to make Softsel its exclusive national distributor last January. "The distribution agreement SuperMac signed with Softsel was greatly influenced by the merger with Macamerica because of Macamerica's access to multiple distribution centers and its Macintosh focus," stated Dean Tucker, vice president of sales for SuperMac.

"With the completion of the merger, all parties felt comfortable taking this next step to insure the best service possible for SuperMac's authorized resellers," commented Martin Fishman, vice president and general manager of Macamerica. "Over 90 percent of SuperMac's existing dealers are currently Macamerica customers, so they get the best of both worlds: SuperMac quality expedited by Macamerica."

SuperMac Technology is a supplier of color graphics products for the Macintosh. The company manufactures color, grayscale and monochrome monitors and graphics cards, as well as software and application support products. SuperMac pioneered the Macintosh enhancement market and continues to offer value-added graphics products to extend the capability of Macintosh computers into new vertical markets and in the traditional business market.

Macamerica is the Macintosh division of Microamerica/Softsel, an international, value-added distributor of premium microcomputer products and services.

LANSING, MI (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Despite a shareholder vote approving a $42 million pension plan increase for executives of the General Motors Corporation (GM), State Treasurer Robert A. Bowman urged the company not to implement the plan.

"GM does not have to implement this pension bonus plan, and I urge them to abandon the effort despite shareholder authorization," Bowman said. "GM could make much better use of this money by investing in product research and development, plant modernization or directing the funds to the dramatically underfunded worker pension system."

Bowman is the sole fiduciary of the state of Michigan Retirement Systems, an $18 billion asset representing one-half million current and future retirees. The pension funds are invested by the Michigan Department of Treasury on behalf of retired state employees, public school employees, judges, probate judges and state police. The state pension funds are among the largest owners of GM stock with 8.8 million shares.

"Our commitment to General Motors is longstanding and cannot be questioned " Bowman said. "But a responsibility to our retirees requires us to consider what action will help preserve the long-term financial health of the company and be in the best interest of both management and workers."

CLIFTON, NJ (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Keystone Camera Corporation (AMEX: KYC) -- the sole remaining U.S. camera manufacturer -- charged today Eastman Kodak Co. "has abandoned" the U.S. camera industry and "relies on importing foreign-made cameras."

"Kodak has divested itself of U.S. camera production and now serves overwhelmingly as an importer, promoter and distributor of cameras produced in several foreign countries," Keystone said in a filing with the U.S. International Trade Commission -- in answer to Eastman Kodak's petition seeking to bar trade relief for Keystone Camera.

"It would turn the statute inside out to abort this investigation on the basis of Kodak's parts and assemblies production that feeds the creation of injurious imports," Keystone said.

"Kodak has abandoned all segments of the U.S. camera industry but the lowest technology, lowest featured portion of the low-end segment of the 35mm product line."

In March, Keystone filed a petition for trade relief with the ITC asking higher tariffs be placed on all imports of hand-held 35mm cameras (except single lens reflex models) and all fixed-focus, hand-held 110 cameras.

Keystone asked that restrictions on imports be instituted for a five- year period. It also said a "flood" of imports has seriously threatened its ability to compete and survive.

Keystone, in its response to Kodak, said: "...it appears that Kodak's imported cameras would be treated as imported cameras, and that Kodak's U.S. facilities devoted to those imported cameras would be excluded from the definition of the domestic industry.

"Thus, it is especially appropriate, in this standing dispute, for the commission (ITC) to weigh Kodak's U.S. involvement in throw-away cameras against Keystone's entire existence. The rest of Kodak, to the extent it is in cameras, is an imported camera operation."

Keystone asked the ITC to target "why Kodak started its conventional 35mm product line with imports, tried to produce such cameras in the U.S., and then gave up, reverting to complete reliance on imports."

And, in its filing, Keystone said, "Kodak omits mention of its S100(camera), a manual 35mm model produced by Haking (which has facilities in Hong Kong, Taiwan and Thailand). The camera is said to account for more Kodak camera sales units in the U.S. "than all other conventional 35mm Kodak models combined," Keystone said.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - "RoboCop," the original adventure of the futuristic crime-fighter, will be released in exclusive engagements in selected markets on Friday, June 1, it was announced today by Orion Pictures.

The special engagements pave the way for the national opening of "RoboCop 2" three weeks later, on Friday, June 22.

A visionary thriller laced with dark, prophetic humor, "RoboCop" was released by Orion during the summer of 1987 to critical acclaim and box-office impact, grossing over $50 million.

Produced by Jon Davison and directed by renowned Dutch filmmaker Paul Verhoeven, "RoboCop" starred Peter Weller as heroic policeman Alex J. Murphy, murdered in the line of duty and resurrected as a steel-sheathed cyborg (half-human, half-machine), to challenge urban crime and his own corrupt corporate creators. Nancy Allen starred as his mortal partner, Officer Lewis.

The popularity of the film gave birth to a modern legend. RoboCop made headlines when he rode the New York subway system; led the parade that commemorated the 200th anniversary of the Constitution; addressed the West Coast's top-ranking law-enforcement officers; inspired humorous variations (like Jay Leno's "RoboPopa") and lent his image to millions of merchants who proudly posted stickers proclaiming "These premises protected by RoboCop."

"RoboCop 2" re-unites co-stars Weller and Allen with producer Davison and the special-effects team, led by Rob Bottin and Phil Tippett, who invented new techniques in makeup, computer graphics and stopmotion wizardry for the original.

Under the director of Irvin Kershner ("The Empire Strikes Back," "Never Say Never Again"), the new adventure plunges RoboCop deeper into the "near future" of mythical Old Detroit, where a deadly designer drug has fueled a soaring crime rate and plans are underway to scrap the steel-sheathed hero for a mechanical monstrosity, unhampered by a human soul. Once again, the tale is peppered with news flashes which sardonically reflect our own time.

Exclusive engagements of the original "RoboCop," starting June 1, have been set for New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles, Atlanta, Dallas, Ft. Worth, Houston, Miami, Toronto, Montreal and others.

While "RoboCop 2" takes the hero off in a totally new direction, the two films are linked in spirit and invention," stated David Forbes, president of Orion Pictures Distribution Corp. "We thought Robo's fans would enjoy the chance to refresh their memories, while those who never saw the original can find out how he was created before they enjoy what he does next."

CLEVELAND (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - BP and Zeigler Coal Holding Company today announced that they have reached an agreement, subject to Federal Government approval, for Zeigler to acquire substantially all of BP's remaining U.S. coal operations by a purchase of the stock of those coal companies for $115 million.

The primary businesses involved are those of BP's Franklin Coal and Old Ben Coal companies. They consist of the company's four underground steam coal mines in Illinois, its two surface steam coal mines in Indiana, and its Mine 20 steam and metallurgical operations in West Virginia.

The company controls more than 390 million tons of salable coal reserves primarily in these three states. Its 1989 revenues were $380 million and total sales were 14.1 million tons, mostly for domestic power generation.

James Ross, BP America president and chief executive officer, said: "We believe that the agreement reached with Zeigler represents the best opportunity for the long-term development of the business ann fits with BP's strategy of returning to its core businesses."

Michael K. Reilly, president of Zeigler, said: "We are excited about this agreement because it will significantly expand our one and only business. Both Zeigler and Old Ben have been mining and selling coal since the early 1900's and have strong commitments to excellence in customer service. The combined assets of these companies will make this a winning combination."

WATERTOWN, MASS. (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - AT&T (NYSE: T) announced Friday the closing of its Watertown service center on Mt. Auburn Street by late summer. The repair work and custom assembly operations will be consolidated into other service centers in Kansas and North Carolina.

About 235 people are currently employed at the facility which has experienced a steady decline in its work operations over the past six years, forcing several downsizings of its work force. Approximately 750 employees worked at the plant at the time of the breakup of the Bell System in 1984.

Bob Stewart, service center manager, said, "A closing decision is never an easy one for any business to make. Unfortunately, the realities of today's flat business climate, new technology introductions and work lost to competition has made this action necessary.

"We've strived to keep our costs in balance with our work load, but in recent years haven't been able to acheive this due to a lessening demand for the transmission equipment repair and custom assembly work we perform here," Stewart added.

Stewart said employees affected by the closing will have several options to consider which include early retirement, retraining, reassignment and transfer to other AT&T locations and separation allowance.

BOSTON (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Uno Restaurant Corporation (AMEX: UNO) today announced that the company purchased the assets of Abbondanza Foods, Inc., a producer of refrigerated pizza products distributed through supermarket chains in the Northeast.

The purchase was made to secure additional F.D.A.-approved production facilities in Massachusetts currently owned by Abbondanza. Uno intends to use the new facilities to broaden its product offerings and expand the production capability for its own "Pizzeria Uno" brand fresh, refrigerated pizza sold through supermarket chains serving the Northeast.

Uno's retail business has grown rapidly to an annualized sales level of $1.25 million, and increasing demand for the company's fresh, refrigerated pizza has exceeded the capacity of its present production facilities.

Uno Restaurant Corporation also operates and franchises a chain of casual dining, full-service restaurants under the name "Pizzeria Uno Restaurant & Bar". The restaurants feature gourmet, Chicago-style deep dish pizza and a variety of entrees, sandwiches, appetizers, salads, desserts and beverages.

It currently owns and operates 27 Pizzeria Uno restaurants in Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, and Washington, D.C. and has 46 franchised restaurants in 15 states.

MIAMI (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastern Airlines today said about 150 jobs in Miami will be phased out this summer as the company transfers its Latin American routes to American Airlines.

Eastern said 75 part-time and 75 full-time airport employees are affected by the route sale.

"We're doing everything possible to ease the transition and identify other opportunities for these employees," said Marshall Wingo, vice president-customer service.

He said Eastern is identifying available positions within the company and that these employees will be considered for openings in the Miami reservations center. They will also have the option of exercising seniority rights to transfer to other stations.

Eastern is also working with other airlines in Miami to find positions and has already placed several dozen employees. The company said it will also provide outplacement counseling for all affected employees.

On June 30 Eastern will transfer its operations in Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Guatemala and Costa Rica to American, followed July 20 with Panama, Peru, Bolivia and Paraguay. Colombia and Ecuador will follow July 31 and the transaction will be completed August 14 with Belize, Honduras, El Salvador and Venezuela.

Eastern today began meeting with each affected employee to discuss individual options. They were first advised they would be placed on "no work" status last December when agreement was reached to sell the routes to American.

NEW YORK, (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - An agreement providing for the purchase by The St. Paul Companies, Inc. (NASDAQ: STPL), of Alleghany Corporation's (NYSE: Y) 8.9 percent interest in St. Paul was confirmed today by F.M. Kirby, chairman of the board of Alleghany Corporation.

The purchase price is to be $59.25 per share, the closing price of St. Paul common stock on Wednesday, May 23. The 4.4 million shares owned by Alleghany, which were purchased in 1987-89 at a cost of $230.7 million, will be sold to St. Paul for $260.7 million, representing a pre-tax gain to Alleghany of $30.0 million, equal to approximately $3.00 per share after provision for income taxes.

In addition, St. Paul has agreed to reimburse Alleghany for up to $5.0 million of out-of-pocket expenses (other than interest expense) related to Alleghany's attempt to secure approval to acquire more than 10 percent of St. Paul's common stock. Alleghany expects to be entitled to the maximum $5.0 million reimbursement.

Alleghany, with assets of $4.04 billion at March 31, 1990, is engaged in the businesses of title insurance, banking, property and casualty insurance, and other financial services.

BURLINGTON, NC (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Environmental Diagnostics, Inc. (NASDAQ: EDIT) announced today that it has formally terminated its relationship with Tambrands, Inc. (NYSE: TMB), for the development of a home test for cholesterol.

Environmental Diagnostics, Inc., and Tambrands, Inc. executed a letter of intent on January 17, 1989 relating to the product development efforts, clinical studies necessary for submission of the cholesterol test to the Food and Drug Administration and the rights to distribute the cholesterol test to the over-the-counter marketplace. Subsequent to entering into the letter of intent, Tambrands, Inc. sold its diagnostics division.

James D. Skinner, EDI President and Chief Executive Officer, said, "Environmental Diagnostics, Inc. has developed a working prototype of the consumer cholesterol test which was demonstrated at the EDI Annual Shareholders' Meeting held in October, 1989. Although our efforts did not result in a definitive agreement with Tambrands, Inc. for continued development and marketing of the cholesterol test, research conducted in connection with the development of the prototype test has resulted in the discovery by EDI of a unique new technology. This discovery has resulted in a new patent application which, we feel, would be of significant value, not only to EDI for its diagnostic tests, but also to other companies. Accordingly, Environmental Diagnostics may continue to pursue relationships with other possible marketing partners for the cholesterol test."

Environmental Diagnostics, Inc. develops and manufactures human clinical and agricultural diagnostics specifically designed for on-site testing by non-technical personnel. The Company's Conventional Biodiagnostic Products are used by government agencies, researchers, clinical testing laboratories and other companies for clinical and veterinary testing. The Company's EZ-SCREEN products provide the accuracy of laboratory results in minutes.

NEWARK, NJ (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Prompted by complaints about large bills for calls to 700 and 900 type numbers, New Jersey Bell is asking the state Board of Public Utilities for approval to offer its customers the option of blocking such calls.

Under the proposal, customers would request the blocking by calling their New Jersey Bell business offices. The one-time charge to have a line blocked would be $21 for residential and $26 for business customers. There would be no charge to have the numbers unblocked or if the request for blocking was made at the time a new line was ordered and installed.

To implement the blocking service, the company will have to modify each of its central switching offices. The company plan is for all areas to have the blocking capability by the end of this year.

Customers will have the option to block only 700 numbers, only 900 numbers or both 700 and 900 numbers. They will be informed about these options in their bills as the blocking options become available in their local areas. The customer guide section of New Jersey Bell directories also will contain information about the blocking service.

The 700 and 900 number blocking options will supplement the company's existing billing policy that requires long distance companies to block access to live talk line and adult 700 and 900 services. To call those numbers, customers must request in writing that the long distance companies unblock the numbers.

When the policy was implemented in July 1989 by Bell Atlantic, New Jersey Bell's parent company, the company said it was designed to give its customers control over the live and adult 700 and 900 programming entering their homes by telephone. But the policy did not apply to other 700 and 900 numbers that still generate a number of customer complaints each year, according to New Jersey Bell.

HAUPPAUGE, NY (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - United-Guardian, Inc. (AMEX: UG), today reported its financial results for the fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1990.

Revenues from continuing operations were $4,630,924, a decrease of 4 percent from fiscal 1989, and a net loss of $158,424 was reported compared to net earnings of $177,321 for fiscal 1989. This represents a loss of $.03 per share in fiscal 1990 compared to a gain of $.04 in fiscal 1989.

Discontinued operations from the company's former metal powders subsidiary Consolidated Astronautics, Inc., and its precision instrument and tool subsidiary, Admiral Tool and Supply Co., Inc. (formerly Precision Industries, Inc.), resulted in a net loss of $425,392 in fiscal 1990 compared to a loss of $168,364 in fiscal 1989. The per share losses were $.09 in fiscal 1990 and $.04 in fiscal 1989. The Admiral Tool subsidiary accounted for all of the losses, with the Consolidated subsidiary showing a small gain in both years.

With recent reductions in operating costs, additional income from option payments, and price increases effective in June 1990, United- Guardian expects its operations to improve in the coming months.

In making the announcement, Alfred R. Globus, chairman and CEO, stated, "With the recent agreements we have signed with Schering-Plough and Becton-Dickinson and the recent approval of our Clorpactin WCS-90 for mastitis in cows in the U.K., we expect fiscal 1991 to show a sizable increase in sales and to be a profitable year. In addition, when our New Drug Application for Renacidin Solution is approved by the FDA we expect a dramatic impact on our sales and profitability."

DALLAS (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - International Broadcast Systems Ltd. (NASDAQ: IBTVA) has been selected by SI Communications Inc. as domestic distributor for "A Laugh, A Tear," two one-hour prime time specials hosted and produced by Whoopi Goldberg saluting black American humor. The program will be available for distribution Fall 1990.

"After seeing the fantastic way in which IBS handled 'Red, Hot & Cool' at MIP-TV '90 and the tremendous success that they are now generating with international sales, it was an easy decision to let IBS handle all of our television shows in their new domestic division. I am looking forward to the same quality and success for 'A Laugh, A Tear' that IBS has accomplished for 'Red, Hot & Cool,'" commented Bob Dockery, president and CEO, SI Communications Inc.

"IBS is extremely excited to bring the star power of Whoopi Goldberg, Redd Foxx, Richard Pryor, Arsenio Hall, and an additional galaxy of comedy stars to viewing audiences throughout America and the world," commented Earl L. Jones Jr., president and CEO, IBS.

With offices in Dallas, Los Angeles, Paris, Santiago, and Washington, IBS distributes television programming in more than 125 countries. Additionally, the firm secures airtime and sponsorship internationally, and provides broadcast management and consulting services to television stations and program producers both domestically and abroad. WASHINGTON (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed Caguas Central Federal Savings Bank, Caguas, P.R., under government conservatorship and appointed the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) to manage the institution.

The conservatorship did not result in any interruption of Caguas Central's day-to-day operations. The institution and its 35 branches will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund. Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because Caguas Central was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition in that it has substantially insufficient capital with no prospect of replenishment without federal assistance.

Caguas Central's condition is due primarily to poor underwriting, lack of internal controls over construction loan disbursements and poor lending practices.

The institution reported negative tangible capital as of March 31, 1990. The recognition of approximately $75 million in loan loss reserves will further weaken the position of the thrift. For the 12 months ended December 1989, Caguas Central incurred a net loss of $14.8 million and suffered a decline in capital in excess of 40 percent.

The thrift received a supervisory directive on Jan. 10, 1990, that restricted it from entering into any new lending activities other than the origination of 1-4 family residential loans. The directive subsequently was amended to permit origination of consumer loans not exceeding $10,000 and to permit the leasing activities of its subsidiary, Leaseway of Puerto Rico.

As of March 31, 1990, Caguas Central reported assets of $1.6 billion, liabilities of $1.6 billion and tangible capital of negative $2.2 million, for a tangible capital-to-assets ratio of negative 0.14 percent.

NEW YORK (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Bristol-Myers Squibb Company (NYSE: BMY) today announced it is gratified by the recent decision of an International Trade Commission (ITC) Administrative Law Judge who ruled that the company's anti-cancer drug RUBEX (doxorubicin) does not infringe a process patent owned by Farmitalia Carlo S.r.l of Italy and exclusively licensed in the U.S. to Erbamont, Inc. Doxorubicin is marketed in the United States by Bristol-Myers Squibb under the brand name RUBEX and by the Adria Laboratories division of Erbamont under the brand name Adriamycin.

Bristol-Myers Squibb said that Judge Sidney Harris decided in its favor on all issues brought before him in the ITC case. In his decision, Judge Harris ruled that the doxorubicin process patent licensed to Erbamont is invalid and unenforceable. Judge Harris also found that the manufacturing process used by Meiji Seika Kaisha, Ltd. of Japan, from whom Bristol-Myers Squibb imports doxorubicin, does not infringe the doxorubicin process patent licensed to Erbamont by Farmitalia. Lastly, Judge Harris ruled that the doxorubicin imported into the U.S. by Erbamont, for sale by Adria is not made by the patented process held by Farmitalia.

In a separate but related case in the U.S. District Court for the District of Delaware, Bristol-Myers Squibb sought a declaratory judgment by the court that the doxorubicin process patent licensed to Erbamont be declared invalid, unenforceable and not infringed by the process used to manufacture the doxorubicin imported by Bristol-Myers Squibb.

Erbamont subsequently counterclaimed for infringement. Bristol-Myers Squibb then moved for a summary judgment of non-infringement on the grounds that it imported the doxorubicin involved prior to the Feb. 23, 1989 effective date of the process patent legislation on which Erbamont predicated its claim of infringement. This motion for summary judgment was granted and in April 1990 the case was dismissed. An appeal by Erbamont on this issue is presently pending before the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit.

The recent decision in the ITC case and the decision in the Delaware District Court case together totally relieve Bristol-Myers Squibb of any charges of infringement of the doxorubicin process patent licensed to Erbamont.

Doxorubicin has become an integral component of numerous chemotherapy regimens and is one of the most commonly used anti- neoplastic agents in the U.S. The drug was introduced into the U.S. by Adria Laboratories in 1974. Bristol-Myers Squibb received U.S. Food and Drug Administration approval to market RUBEX in April, 1989.

SEATTLE (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Iberia Airlines of Spain today announced the purchase of 16 Boeing 757 twinjets to begin its fleet renewal program.

The Iberia order, which includes spare parts and training, is valued at about $1 billion including spares and training. The Spanish national carrier also secured options on an additional 12 of the advanced-technology airliners. Engine selection will be made at a later date.

Iberia's new 757s will be outfitted for 188 passengers in a roomy two-class layout; 86 in business class and 102 in tourist. The carrier joins 32 other customers who have selected the Boeing 757 which is one of the quietest and most fuel-efficient airliners available today.

The carrier plans to use the new Boeing 757s on its route network to European, African and Middle Eastern destinations. In the longer term, Iberia's use of the 757 will range from increasing capacity on its Madrid-Barcelona air shuttle, to service on transDAtlantic routes.

Today's announcement brings total orders for the 757 to 648 airplanes. Boeing's orders for the year-to-date total 154 aircraft valued at about $12.4 billion.

TALLAHASSEE, FL (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - State Comptroller Gerald Lewis today authorized the U.S. Office of Thrift Supervision to place American Pioneer Savings Bank into conservatorship.

The action was taken on grounds that the Orlando-based thrift is operating in an "unsafe and unsound" manner.

As a result, regulators have determined that there is no reasonable prospect for the institution to survive without government assistance, Lewis said.

The Comptroller emphasized that little, if any, interruption of service will occur at the S&L, and no depositors will lose any money.

"From a depositor's standpoint, it will be business as usual at American Pioneer," Lewis said.

The thrift, which opened in November 1980 as First Fidelity Savings and Loan Association, changed its name to American Pioneer on July 1, 1985. A year later, it merged with Heritage Federal Savings and Loan of Daytona Beach.

The institution has 43 branch offices around Florida, primarily in Central Florida.

Regulators attribute the thrift's failure to poor lending practices, inadequate oversight of subsidiary activities and an overabundance of non-earning assets.

According to the latest financial data available, American Pioneer has assets of roughly $1.7 billion. Under the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA), the institution has a negative tangible capital of $28 million.

KALAMAZOO, MI (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - PRAB Robots, Inc. (NASDAQ: PRAB) reported second-quarter sales of $4,233,000 and a net loss of $873,000 for the period ended April 30, 1990. This compares with sales of $6,246,000 and net loss of $779,000 in the same period a year ago. First-half sales of $8,106,000 and a net loss of $1,746,000 were reported. These results compare with sales of $12,496,000 and a net loss of $1,643,000 in the same period a year ago.

The company's low sales volume, down 35 percent from a year ago, accounts for a significant portion of the loss. Cost-reduction programs continuing from 1989 and through the second quarter 1990 kept this first-half loss of $1,746,000 comparable to last year's loss of $1,643,000 despite reduced sales.

Consolidation of manufacturing facilities was completed in the second quarter as well as reduction in overhead. Reserves were established for salaried personnel reductions, warranty, and plant reorganization.

The current backlog of $4,435,000 compares with $4,786,000 at the end of the previous quarter.

NORWALK, CT (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Caldor, Inc. announced today that it has completed permanent financing arrangements which will enable it to retire the $460 million bridge loan note obtained in connection with its leveraged buyout.

Odyssey Partners, L.P., together with Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette and Caldor management, acquired the Caldor operations from May Department Stores for $500 million in cash plus the assumption of $52 million in debt and capitalized lease obligations in November, 1989.

The $460 million bridge note was retired with $300 million provided by senior and senior subordinated notes, approximately $90 million in cash on hand and approximately $70 million, plus closing costs, as a draw on a new working capital line of credit the company has arranged. All of the debt was privately placed by Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette.

The company's new working capital agreement, for up to $235 million, was arranged with Citibank, N.A., Chemical Bank and Security Pacific Business Inc.

"We are pleased to have arranged this financing package, in spite of the difficult retail environment," said Don R. Clarke, chairman and chief executive officer of Caldor. "Our ability to do so is attributable to the fact that Caldor has made considerable progress since the buyout, with both revenue and profits exceeding our projections. While we are pleased with this progress, we still have more work to do and anticipate further improvements in the periods ahead."

Caldor also reported that its sales for the first quarter ended May 5, 1990 rose $352.4 million, up 10.9 percent (12.2 percent on a same store basis). EBITDA rose 70 percent, reaching $10.2 million.

Caldor's new permanent financing package includes $200 million of senior notes and $100 million of senior subordinated notes. The $170 million of Series A senior notes are due June 1, 1997 and have an interest rate of LIBOR plus 2.75 percent, or approximately 11.19 percent currently. The interest rate will reprice quarterly, based on changes in LIBOR and interest will be paid quarterly in arrears beginning Sept. 1, 1990. The $30 million of initial Series B senior notes are also due June 1, 1997 and carry a fixed interest rate of 12.875 percent. Interest will be paid semi-annually in arrears starting on Dec. 1, 1990. There is a mandatory redemption of 25 percent of total Series A and Series B principal on June 1, 1995 and again June 1, 1996.

The $100 million in senior subordinated notes are due June 1, 2000 and have a fixed interest rate of 15 percent. Interest will be paid semi-annually in arrears starting Dec. 1, 1990. There is mandatory redemption off $25 million of the initial senior subordinated notes on June 1, 1998 and again June 1, 1999.

Caldor is a widely recognized regional chain of quality discount retail stores offering a broad assortment of branded and unbranded goods.

DALLAS (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - The U.S. Bankruptcy Court, Southern District of New York, has ruled that the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp.'s (PBGC) bankruptcy claims against the LTV Corp. (NYSE: QLTV) do not merit preferential treatment and "must be valued in accordance with federal bankruptcy law standards applicable to all claims in reorganization cases."

The legal action challenging the status and priority of the PBGC's claims was brought by LTV and its official creditor committees, who asserted that the PBGC's $2.2 billion in claims "are vastly overstated...duplicative and overlapping."

In granting LTV's motion for partial summary judgment and denying a similar request by the PBGC, Chief Bankruptcy Judge Burton R. Lifland ruled that the PBGC's claims must be recalculated.

The PBGC's claims arose from the agency's termination of underfunded LTV Steel pension plans following LTV's filing for Chapter 11 reorganization.

LTV Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Raymond A. Hay said, "The court's ruling dealing with one of the most complex and significant issues in LTV's Chapter 11 reorganization is an important step. While the PBGC will undoubtedly object, the end result should be a substantial reduction in the size of claims asserted by the PBGC."

In his 67-page opinion, Judge Lifland said, "Federal bankruptcy law requires that discount or interest rate assumptions used to determine the allowable amount of claims must be those realistically likely to result in the determination of the full economic value of the claim, rather than those serving other policy goals."

The judge noted that each 1 percent decrease in the discount rate increases the PBGC's aggregate claims by as much as $250 million. He said the use of low rates "to enhance the claims of a single creditor" is inappropriate where Congress and the courts have mandated fair and uniform distribution among creditors.

The court also found that the PBGC's claims are "general unsecured claims" and generally not entitled to administrative priority.

Lifland said that "the PBGC's claims do not constitute 'taxes' entitled to priority...nor did its claims ever ripen into liens."

"Allowing the PBGC $2 of claims against the same debtor for $1 of loss violates the principles of equality of distribution and uniformity of treatment of creditors that are fundamental to the (Bankruptcy) Code," Lifland said.

In a separate legal action, the PBGC and LTV are awaiting a decision by the U.S. Supreme Court on the pension agency's appeal of lower court decisions that reversed the PBGC's attempt to restore three terminated LTV Steel pension plans.

LTV is a diversified manufacturing company involved in steel, aerospace/defense and energy products.

COLUMBUS, OH (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Nationwide Communications, Inc. (NCI) which owns Houston-based EagleVision Inc., today signed an agreement to purchase Prime Time Cable of Houston. The agreement was announced by NCI President Steve Berger.

Prime Time is the third Houston private cable company acquired by NCI in less than a year. NCI also completed the purchase of Houston's KNRJ-FM from Emmis Broadcasting last month for $30 million.

The acquisition of Prime Time makes NCI the country's largest single-city private cable operator. NCI will serve 85,000 apartment and condominium units in Houston.

In the Prime Time purchase, NCI will obtain 80 private cable television systems serving more than 46,000 apartment and condominium units in the Houston area.

"The agreement to purchase this third group of systems and the recent purchase of KNRJ-FM give NCI a major presence in Houston," Berger said. "It also clearly indicates our confidence in the Houston market's vitality."

The Prime Time systems will be merged with NCI's two previous private cable acquisitions. All will be operated under the name of EagleVision Inc., which is managed by Tony Condo.

Condo said EagleVision's goal is to deliver high-quality cable service. "We want to be the best in offering quality services to our customers," he noted.

"We're still not where we want to be," Condo said, "but we're closer than we were last fall when we purchased our original systems. The addition of Prime Time will help us achieve our quality-service goals."

EagleVision is rebuilding many of its current systems to provide better quality, Condo said. It's also developing an internal management system that will assure prompt response to customers' needs.

In addition to EagleVision's cable operations, NCI owns and operates 16 radio stations, making it one of the country's largest radio groups, and four television stations. NCI stations are located in 16 metropolitan areas. Founded in 1946, NCI is a subsidiary of Nationwide Mutual Insurance Company, parent of the Columbus-based Nationwide Insurance group.

Private cable, as opposed to franchised, provides cable television services on private property and, therefore, does not require a cable franchise from local governments. It's used primarily in major apartment complexes where cables don't cross or where public rights-of- way aren't used to deliver cable signals.

NCI last fall bought two Houston private cable groups -- from Gulf American and Continental cable companies. Combined, those 120 systems serve more than 38,000 Houston apartment and condominium units.

NEW YORK, (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Bairnco (NYSE: BZ) today announced that it held its annual meeting in Orlando, Fla., the site of its new headquarters. There was a quorum present and the management nominees for directors were elected to serve until the next annual meeting of stockholders. However, because of unanticipated delays, a significant number of stockholders whose stock was held in street name did not receive their proxies in time to vote at the annual meeting. Consequently, the meeting was adjourned until June 7, 1990 to permit further solicitation of proxies with respect to the 1990 stock incentive plan of Bairnco, the reincorporation of Bairnco in Delaware, and the shareholder proposal concerning the ratification of auditors by the stockholders, each of which is described in the proxy statement. The meeting will be reconvened at 2 p.m. local time at the Sun Bank Building, Third Floor, the Sun Room, 200 South Orange Avenue, Orlando, Fla.

BLUE SPRINGS, MO (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Harmon Industries Inc. (NASDAQ: HRMN), of Blue Springs, the nation's most fully integrated supplier to railroad companies, announced today that it has agreed to acquire the remaining 20 percent of Cedrite Technologies Inc., that it did not already own.

"With Cedrite's proven track record and tremendous interest from major domestic and international transportation companies, we are now in a stronger position to explore the best ways to expand the process worldwide " said Robert E. Harmon, chairman and president of Harmon Industries.

Cedrite Technologies produces reconstituted railroad ties from old, worn-out ties provided by the railroad companies. The used ties are pulverized into wood chips, mixed with a proprietary resin formula, and formed under great pressure to produce the Cedrite tie. The manufacturing facility in Kansas City produces nearly 550 ties daily.

This transaction, which involves the exchange of Harmon Industries stock for the Cedrite minority interest, will relieve Harmon of various contingent obligations relating to the original agreement of 1987, which was to have been consummated after June 30, 1990. All Harmon stock issued as a result of the agreement will be restricted from trading for a period of 30 months.

Harmon Industries, is traded in the over-the-counter market and is quoted on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol HRMN.

HOUSTON (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - LL&E Royalty Trust (NYSE: LRT) today announced that its monthly distribution to unit holders will be made on June 15, 1990, to unit holders of record on June 5, 1990. This distribution represents amounts payable to the trust with respect to production for the month of March 1990.

The total amount of the May distribution will be $986,028 or approximately $0.05192 per unit. Due to the nature and timing of other operating and capital projects along with monthly production fluctuations, this distribution is not necessarily indicative of future monthly distributions.

As previously announced, the working interest owner has begun to escrow amounts for the Fort Worth Basin property in connection with the issue of recapture of intangible drilling and development costs under Section 1254 of the Internal Revenue Code.

The trust's interest in the amount escrowed from the current month's distribution and the cumulative balance of such are $8,203.33 and $501,866.13, respectively.

As stated last month, pending the possible appeal by the IRS of the previously announced favorable ruling rendered by the U.S. Tax Court on the Section 1254 issue, the working interest owner has made no decision on whether and when these amounts will be released from escrow.

The working interest owner has determined under the terms of the trust documents that it is eligible to escrow funds from all trust properties for the 1254 recapture issue.

However, it has advised the trustee that it does not intend to exercise its rights to escrow funds, other than for the Fort Worth Basin, for this issue for the June 1990 distribution. However, the working interest owner intends to continue to monitor its estimates of relevant factors in order to evaluate the necessity of escrowing funds for this issue on an ongoing basis.

The working interest owner is under no obligation to give any advance notice to the trustee or the unit holders in the event it determines that funds should be escrowed. If the working interest owner does begin to escrow such funds with respect to the productive properties, other than Fort Worth Basin, the effect on royalties paid to the trust would be significant, and in certain circumstances could eliminate distributions for a period of time.

PARSIPANNY, NJ (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - AIM Telephones, Inc. (AMEX: AIM), and NEC America, Inc., today announced agreements which form another step in the long relationship between NEC and AIM which dates back over 16 years.

AIM and NEC have renewed AIM's distribution agreement for the marketing and support of NEC's NEAX(R) 2400 PBX products. Concurrently AIM has been designated a Prime Associate for distribution of package products in the northeastern United States.

NEC and AIM also have mutually agreed, among other things, to a termination of NEC's option to purchase additional shares of the company's stock and to release NEC's right to a seat on AIM's board of directors. NEC will remain a stockholder of AIM.

"These developments have provided AIM with additional flexibility and, at the same time, will permit AIM to continue to support its entire NEC customer base and to successfully market NEC CPE products," commented William C. Christopoulos, president of AIM.

"Given the long, highly visible, and unique aspects of the relationship between AIM and NEC, these agreements express NEC's confidence in AIM's ability to function as a leading distributor of NEC CPE products," commented Robert C. Miller, executive vice president of NEC America, Inc.

NEC America, Inc., develops, manufactures and markets a complete line of advanced communications products and software for public and private networks, including digital key telephone and PBX systems and central office switching systems; cellular mobile telephones, pagers; facsimile equipment; fiber optic transmission systems; data communications products; digital microwave and satellite communications systems. As an affiliate of NEC Corporation, NEC America is part of a global high technology presence comprising more than 104,000 employees with annual revenues in excess of $23 billion.

AIM Telephones sells, installs and services PBX and key telephone systems, voice, mail network services and other communication devices for approximately 21,000 customers from Maine to the Carolinas.

DRYDEN, MI (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - For its fiscal year ended March 2, 1990 Champion Enterprises, Inc. (AMEX: CHB), headquartered in Dryden, reported a 14-percent decrease in sales to $313,722,000 from $363,822,000 for the prior year.

The company recorded a net loss of $13,874,000 ($1.97 per share) for the fiscal year compared to a net loss of $7,209,000 ($1 per share) last year.

Manufactured housing sales, representing 74 percent of total sales and revenues, decreased 17 percent for the year to $233,174,000 from $282,545,000 last year. Factory unit shipments decreased 18 percent to 11,733 homes from 14,243 homes shipped last year. Champion said sales volume declines were largely a result of the sale and liquidation of Global Homes, Inc., the company's previously owned retail subsidiary, one less week in this year's reporting period and an overall industry unit-shipment decline of 11 percent for the year.

Motor home and bus sales for the fiscal year, representing 24 percent of total sales and revenues, decreased 2 percent to $74,597,000 from $75,858,000 for last year. Motor home shipments were down 22 percent to 1,135 from 1,456 units shipped a year earlier, while bus shipments increased 1 percent to 728 units from 722 last year. Industry sales of motor homes were off 17 percent during the fiscal year.

"Our fiscal 1990 loss is due primarily to general market declines in our industries and to our major restructuring over the past year to focus on our core businesses -- manufactured housing, motor homes and buses," stated Champion's newly appointed president and CEO, Walter R. Young Jr. "Our encouraging performance during the first quarter of fiscal 1991 indicates that our restructuring is starting to prove successful."

Champion Enterprises, Inc. is a holding company whose principal subsidiaries are leading producers of manufactured homes, motor homes, and medium-duty buses with production operations at 24 plants in 14 states, and British Columbia, Canada.

CHICAGO (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Johnson Products Co. Inc. (AMEX: JPC) announced that its board of directors approved Thursday, May 24, 1990, a 1-for-10 reverse stock split of the company's common stock.

The reverse stock split is subject to shareholder approval at a special meeting, the date of which has not yet been set, and continued listing on the American Stock Exchange.

In lieu of issuing fractional shares resulting from the proposed reverse stock split, the company will pay cash based on the closing price the day prior to the special meeting, but in no event less than $2.75 which was the closing price on May 23, 1990.

The company estimates that the reverse stock split will reduce the number of shareholders from approximately 1,440 to 1,180.

Johnson Products also announced the election to its board of directors, Thomas P. Polke, vice president, finance and chief financial officer, and William R. Giles, chairman, E.P.C. International Inc., a multinational advertising specialty and premium promotion organization.

Eric G. Johnson, president and chief executive officer of Johnson Products said, "We believe the reverse stock split will increase interest in the stock by the financial community and the investing public. It will also allow our shareholders holding less than 10 shares to liquidate their holdings without incurring brokerage fees. It is our intention to effectuate a forward stock split or stock dividend in connection with this transaction, if necessary, in order to maintain the company's stock exchange listing."

Johnson Products manufactures and markets hair care and cosmetic products, domestically and internationally, under such leading product brand names as Gentle-Treatment, Ultra Sheen, Sta-Sof-Fro and Sof N' Free.

BOISE, ID (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - As part of a long-range strategy of focusing its Rail Systems Group's activities on the transit car and locomotive markets, Morrison Knudsen Corp. (MK) (NYSE: MRN) today announced the sale of its Power Systems Division to Wartsila Diesel Inc., an affiliate of Oy Wartsila Ab, a Finnish company.

The transaction will produce cash in excess of $20 million to MK, which consists of the proceeds of the sale of the business and the disposition of assets that were not a part of the sale.

Consistent with the company's financial goals for 1990, the results of this transaction will favorably impact second-quarter results but will not materially increase annual earnings.

MK's Power Systems Division, based at Rocky Mount, N.C., manufactures and sells diesel-powered electrical generating units that are used mainly as standby sources of power for a broad range of industrial customers.

CINNAMINSON, NJ (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Wall to Wall Sound & Video Inc. (NASDAQ: WTWS) today announced its results for the fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1990.

The company reported net sales of $171,534,199 and a net loss of $3,679,476 for the fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1990, compared to net sales of $152,059,200 and net income of $1,007,186 for the fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1989.

Jerry Shulman, chairman and chief executive officer, explained that the losses were primarily due to increased costs and expenses related to new store expansion, physical inventory adjustments and continued disappointing sales results in video and audio equipment.

On May 15, 1990, the company announced that it would consolidate the home electronics portion of its business by phasing out sales of electronics from approximately 47 of the 60 stores which carried electronic equipment in addition to entertainment software.

Wall to Wall Sound & Video Inc. currently operates 101 specialty retail home entertainment stores, including 21 Superstores, principally in the six-state mid-Atlantic market in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, upstate New York, Virginia and Maryland, under the "Wall to Wall Sound & Video" and "Listening Booth" names. WASHINGTON (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Delta Air Lines (NYSE: DAL) Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Ronald W. Allen, in a state-of-the-industry address before the Aero Club of Washington yesterday, said: "The issue of aircraft noise is a problem that we can no longer ignore. Unless we deal with it at the national level, our system will become strangled through non-uniform, uncoordinated and highly restrictive local rules."

Allen continued, "It is our hope that a sound and sensible noise policy can be developed during the next year that will afford the necessary predictability and planning for aircraft acquisition, fleet retirements and airport development." He further stated that Delta as a leader in meeting earlier fleet noise rules would continue to be a leader and was now committed to achieving an all Stage III fleet prior to the year 2000.

Allen expressed the opinion that the full potential of the industry in a global economy was not yet being realized. He said: "The challenge for the 1990s is whether industry and government will have the courage and foresight to build an aviation system that matches the dynamic energy and entrepreneurial spirit so prevalent throughout the world today.

"Our success will be largely determined by decisions made here in Washington and at other capitals around the world," Allen explained. "The entire industry's development is linked directly to the efficiencies of this country's air transportation system and whether governments will pursue a path toward economic liberalization."

In closing he said, "The challenge to both government and industry alike, is to create an aviation system that will nurture growth and harness the entrepreneurial spirit of the 1990s."

PARSIPPANY, NJ (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - AIM Telephones, Inc. (AMEX: AIM), which designs, sells, installs and services PBX and key telephone systems, voice mail, automated attendants, automatic call distributors, as well as sells a broad range of network services under sales agency agreements with several of the Regional Bell Operating Companies, and services approximately 21,000 customers from Maine to the Carolinas, announced today sales and earnings for the fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1990.

Fiscal 1990 net loss was ($6,249,000) or ($1.14) per share compared with net income in the prior year of $906,000 or 17 cents per share. Sales increased less than 1 percent to $48,049,000 in fiscal 1990 from $47,843,000 in fiscal 1989.

The weighted average number of shares outstanding for the 12 months was 5,504,000 in fiscal 1990 and 5,357,000 in fiscal 1989.

Commenting on results, William C. Christopoulos, president and chief executive officer, said, "AIM Telephones has just completed the most difficult fiscal year in its 16-year history. AIM was faced with a myriad of external factors that directly impacted performance. NEC America's decision to go direct in our marketplace forced us into head-on competition with our major telecommunication equipment supplier. AIM then began a costly transition to another major supplier of telecommunications equipment, Mitel Corporation, requiring extensive sales and technical training of our people. In addition, the marketplace remains fiercely competitive, resulting in lower margins on sales of new equipment. To adjust to the above, AIM has reduced operating costs, consolidated its inventory and written off obsolete inventory, increased computer capability to provide better control of its assets, and has taken steps to more efficiently utilize its most valuable resource, its people."

The fourth quarter results from operations were negatively impacted by the charge to costs and expenses of approximately $4,000,000 relating to inventory reduction, the significant decrease in new installation contract revenues during the quarter, costs associated with the introduction of the Mitel product line, the work stoppage by union personnel of the Regional Bell Operating Companies, price increase on the company's principal products, significantly increased legal costs, and severance and other costs associated with staff reductions.

Revenues for the year ended Feb. 28, 1990 were also adversely affected by the work stoppage by union personnel of the Regional Bell Operating Companies (RBOC's) in the company's primary service areas. The work stoppages occurred during the company's second, third and fourth quarter. The work stoppages resulted in the inability of the RBOC's to deliver new telephone lines in a timely manner, which, in turn, prevented the company from performing scheduled work.

AIM also announced today that Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., Inc., investment bankers, has been retained by the company to explore possible means of maximizing shareholder value. "The marketplace has significantly undervalued AIM's unique franchise within the interconnect industry," stated Ladenburg's Porter Bibb. "We believe that important economies of scale are readily achievable through consolidation and will be evaluating a number of opportunities available to AIM in that area."

HOUSTON (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - AT&T and Southwestern Bell Telephone (SWBT) today announced that AT&T has chose SWBT's self- healing, all digital access network for service in the Houston metropolitan area.

SWBT's Self-Healing Transport Network (STN) will connect AT&T's long-distance facilities with selected SWBT Houston-area central office "hubs," called "access nodes."

Calls handled by the STN network will have the benefit of a network with a "ring" architecture, the companies said. This design provides improved flexibility and "dual pathing" of customers' transmission.

The high-speed network will have automatic restoration capabilities in case of single facility or access node fails. With dual pathing, if a failure occurs, service will be restored automatically in not longer than 2.5 seconds. The engineering design objective is 50 milliseconds, the companies said.

SWBT's STN architecture also allows for easy addition of AT&T long distance facilities, access nodes and other facilities.

"This demonstrates AT&T's commitment to ever improving high-quality, end-to-end service," said Woody Kerkeslager, AT&T executive director, business special services. "We are pleased that Southwestern Bell Telephone is providing a network which is state-of-the-art. This ensures that AT&T customers calling to or from Houston will experience the best service that the telecommunications industry has to offer."

Claude West, SWBT's vice president-sales operations, said the agreement was a "grand opportunity" for his company.

"One of our goals is to do a stellar job of focusing on the needs of long-distance companies," he explained. "This means listening to them, developing products that respond to their needs and looking at opportunities to do more for them. This access service is a grand opportunity to show our largest customer, AT&T, that we can do just that."

SWBT's STN will serve the marjority of AT&T's Houston-area private-line and long distance customers. SWBT's generally available offering needs to be approved by the Federal Communications Commission. After approval, STN service in Houston is scheduled to be operational in the third quarter 1990.

Southwestern Bell Telephone is a wholly owned subsidiary of Southwestern Bell Corporation and provides network exchange service to nearly 9 million customers in Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas and Missouri.

CINCINNATI, (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Cincinnati Milacron Inc. (NYSE: CMZ) today filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission for the public offering of 3 million common shares.

Of the total, 2.4 million shares will be offered in the United States and 600,000 shares will be offered internationally. The First Boston Corporation will act as lead manager of the U.S. offering, and Credit Suisse First Boston Limited will act as lead manager of the international offering. Milacron has also granted the underwriters an over-allotment option for an additional 450,000 shares. The company currently has 24.4 million common shares outstanding.

"The proceeds from this offering will help fund Milacron's programs for new product development, process improvement and modernization," Daniel J. Meyer, president and chief executive officer of Cincinnati Milacron, said. "These programs include not only the design of new products within our core businesses but, just as important, the development of improved production processes and the implementation of advanced manufacturing technology and equipment to produce these new products," Meyer said.

The registration statement for the offering of the common stock, while filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission today, has not yet become effective. Such shares of common stock may not be sold nor may offers to buy be accepted prior to the time the registration statement becomes effective. This announcement shall not constitute an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy, nor shall there be any sale of these shares in any state in which such offer, solicitation or sale would be unlawful prior to registration or qualification under the securities law of any such state.

Cincinnati Milacron, with 1989 sales of $851 million, is a world leader in advanced manufacturing technologies -- machinery, computer controls and software -- for the metalworking and plastics processing industries; and in robotics, metrology and inspection for factor automation in general. The company is also a major producer of precision grinding wheels and metalworking fluids.

SPOKANE, WA (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - The Pentzer Corporation, a subsidiary of The Washington Water Power Company (NYSE: WWP), and Pacific Power have reached an agreement in principle that will result in the Centralia Coal Mine being fully owned and operated by Pacific.

Washington Irrigation and Development Company, a Pentzer subsidiary, has been a 50 percent owner and the operator of the coal mine. Pacific has owned the other 50 percent of the mine, which has supplied fuel to the 1360-megawatt Centralia Steam-Electric Generating Plant near Centralia, Wash., since 1971.

Under the proposed sale, WIDCo's interest and assets associated with the Centralia mine will be transferred to Pacific effective July 31, 1990 for approximately $41 million.

Dick Davis, president of Pentzer, said the sale of WIDCo's interest in the mine is the most beneficial way of satisfying the long-term interests of both parties.

"The benefit to WWP and its shareholders is that it frees up capital for Pentzer to invest in emerging non-regulated diversified activities," Davis said. "This is a win-win situation for all parties."

Pacific already is the majority owner and operator of the Centralia power plant, and the company's executive vice president for power supply, Bob Smith, said managing the mine as well should improve the long-term prospects for both facilities.

"The consolidation of the coal mining operations with operation of the generating facility will give us greater flexibility and control in managing both the fuel and generating aspects of power production," Smith said.

Davis said Pentzer's plan is to continue to focus its non-regulated investments on businesses where the opportunity for growth is greater than it would have been through the continued operation of the coal mine at Centralia.

The 750 mine workers will become employees of a Pacific Power mining operation as of July 31. Under terms of the agreement, the mining operation will assume WIDCo's position under the bargaining agreement currently in effect with the Operating Engineers Union, and will retain all non-bargaining unit employees in comparable positions at comparable pay levels. The only specified exception is that Pacific will appoint a new mine manager to replace Lloyd Meyers, president and chief operating officer of WIDCo.

Davis said WWP will retain its 15 percent ownership in the Centralia power plant, and maintain a continued presence in the Centralia area through another of its Pentzer subsidiaries, Widco Waste Services. Widco Waste is proposing to site and operate a regional non-hazardous solid waste repository in one of the unfilled pits at the Centralia mine.

SEATTLE (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - The Boeing Defense & Space Group has named John E. Schmick to be vice president, Electronic Systems, at the group's Aerospace & Electronics Division, effective June 1.

Formerly vice president of the company's Washington, D.C. office, Schmick replaces John Sheridan, who recently was named executive vice president of Aerospace & Electronics. Schmick will report to Sheridan.

In his new position, Schmick will be responsible for Electronic Systems programs and activities, including the E-3 AWACS (Airborne Warning and Control System) program, the E-6 submarine communications aircraft, the P-3 Update IV air/anti-submarine warfare program, the Peace Shield ground-based air defense system, and other command, control and communication (C3) programs. Schmick also will oversee the manufacture of certain advanced electronics components -- primarily sophisticated avionics for Boeing military and civilian aircraft.

Schmick joined Boeing in 1960 with an electrical engineering degree from the University of Washington. His early assignments included the Minuteman Inter-Continental Ballistic Missile and Short Range Attack Missile (SRAM) programs.

He later served as chief engineer for the NATO AWACS program, and manager of the Royal Saudi Air Force AWACS program. Schmick had been vice president of business development and preliminary design at Boeing Aerospace in Kent, Wash., prior to being named to head the company's Washington, D.C., office in January 1989.

WEST CHESTER, PA (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - QVC Network Inc. (NASDAQ: QVCN) today reported consolidated revenues of $161.3 million for its first quarter ended April 30, 1990, an increase of 207 percent compared with $52.5 million last year.

QVC's sales for this fiscal year include expanded operations as a result of its recent acquisition of CVN Companies Inc.

Gross profit for the quarter rose 201 percent to $61.4 million from $20.4 million a year earlier. Although the company had previously projected a first-quarter net loss of approximately $10 million, the actual net loss was $5.8 million, or $.34 per share, compared to net income of $1.2 million, or $.08 per share, in the same quarter last year. The lower-than-expected net loss was due primarily to a change in the quarterly allocation of income taxes.

QVC Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Joseph M. Segel said, "Neither the substantial increase in revenues nor the loss was a surprise. The first-quarter results were impacted by the huge task of consolidating the CVN and QVC televised-shopping operations, which is still ongoing and is expected to be completed by September."

The QVC televised-shopping program is broadcast live 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Transmitted from the powerful Galaxy III communications satellite, QVC now reaches more than 34 million cable subscribers and nearly 3 million satellite dish owners across the entire United States, from Hawaii to the Caribbean.

HOUSTON, (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Rexcom Systems Corp. (NASDAQ: RXSC), announced today that it has filed the following Form 8-K with the Securities & Exchange Commission:

Since the date of the company's quarterly report on Form 10-Q for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1989, certain events and developments have occurred which have affected and could further affect the company's financial position and its ability to continue its business as it is currently operated.

As has been reported in all of the company's filing since March 31, 1989, the company made a large sale on credit during the 1989 fiscal year to one of the company's largest customers in terms of sales (Lease-It-Corporation d/b/a American International Rent-a-Car, Boston, MA, herein "Lease-It"). Because Lease-It failed to repay fully its obligations to the company in accordance with the original terms of the sale, the company and Lease-It negotiated an extended payment schedule calling for the full payment of the amount by March 31, 1990; however, Least-It has failed to make the required payments. As of May 24, 1990, Lease-It owed the company $124,997.71. Moreover, American International Rent-a-Car ("AI"), which is an affiliate of Lease-It, owed the company $52,650.67 as of May 24, 1990. AI has also failed to meet its payment obligations to the company. Although the company continues to sell its AutoLink product to various customers, sales to Lease-It and AI collectively represented approximately 25 percent of the company's total sales during the 1990 fiscal year, representing approximately 68 percent of the company's accounts receivable as of May 24, 1990.

AI and Lease-It have informed the company that neither AI nor Lease-It will be able to make any significant payments in the near future with respect to their respective obligations to the company. Consequently, the company's cash position, which has been depleted substantially as a result of Lease-It's and AI's failure to pay their obligations to the company, is critically low.

Second, and perhaps more importantly, the company's management has concluded that in order for the company to internally generate sufficient working capital to support its operations, the company has to penetrate deeper the targeted market for the AutoLink product; to do so, however, the company would require additional working capital -- working capital that is represented by the AI and Lease-It receivables -- that is not being generated by the company's operations. Therefore, while management believes that there is a market for the AutoLink product, the working capital shortfall being experienced by the company is preventing the company from effectively pursuing that market.

All of the factors described above have contributed to the company's working capital shortfall, and the company's shortage of cash has become critical. Because of this shortfall, the company has delayed its annual audit of its financial statements due to the cost involved of that audit. Thus, the company will be unable to file its annual report on Form 10-K by the deadline for the filing.

HOPEWELL JUNCTION, NY (MAY 25) PR NEWSWIRE - Robert-Mark, Inc. (AMEX: RMK), announced today that its net loss for the year ended Feb. 28, 1990, was $3,456,000 or $.76 loss per share as compared to a $867,000 net loss or $.20 loss per share in the comparable period a year ago.

For the three month periods ended Feb. 28, 1990 and 1989, the net losses were $1,884,000 and $47,000, respectively. The 1990 fourth quarter loss includes non-recurring charges of $1.0 million associated with write-offs of goodwill and acquisition costs, accrued severance pay and reserves for estimated uncollectible loan and commission receivables. In addition, the company incurred significant start up costs to integrate the RAMS Marketing operations into those of the company. As stated in earlier quarters, the revenues and profitability of the company have been unfavorably impacted by sharply lower real estate and mortgage banking commissions in the company's market area.

Total expenses for the current year increased 18 percent to $9,287,000 from $7,868,000 for the prior year. The increases were primarily attributable to non-recurring write-offs of goodwill, other intangibles, provisions for bad debts, severance pay and lease termination costs on consolidated branch office locations. In addition, the increases were also attributable to the company's assumption of the ongoing operations of RAMS Marketing, Inc.; a real estate marketing company.

M.I. Ritter, chairman of Robert-Mark, stated that the company has been actively pursuing new revenue enhancement strategies, including recruiting and rewarding more productive commissioned sales personnel and expanding opportunities to represent builders and developers in a wider geographic market. It is management's belief that recent successes in this area will have a positive impact on plans for restoring profitability in the upcoming year. Ritter cited "the RAMS Marketing merger as evidence of the successful expansion efforts of the company. RAMS Marketing represents a powerful marketing force for our company."

Project listing inventory currently exceeds over 1,800 units where the company acts as exclusive marketing agent on a commission basis. This increase in units represents approximately a 50 percent increase over the comparable period in the prior year. Ritter stated that this represents over $300 million of saleable inventory from which to earn commission revenues in the future.

The company also intends to pursue cross-selling opportunities among its real estate divisions and mortgage banking and insurance subsidiaries. The company's newly formed commercial lending division which contributed favorably to the fourth quarter results is also expected to be a positive factor towards growth in revenue and profit for the first quarter of fiscal 1991.

PRINCETON, NJ (MAY 27) PR NEWSWIRE - UJB Financial Corp. today confirmed that its bid has been accepted by the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) for the purchase of the eastern Pennsylvania franchise of the former Horizon Financial, F.A. The RTC has operated Horizon since June of 1989 under its conservatorship program.

Under the terms of the purchase and assumption agreement, UJB Financial will purchase some of the assets and assume approximately $935 million in deposits of 21 Horizon branch offices located in Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Lancaster, Montgomery and Philadelphia counties in southeastern Pennsylvania. Regulatory approvals have been received which will allow the offices to operate May 29 as branches of UJB Financial's largest Pennsylvania affiliate, First Valley Bank, which is headquartered in Bethlehem.

UJB Financial will not issue any stock or other capital instruments for this acquisition. "UJB Financial has capital ratios which are among the highest in its peer group of banks, and that gives us the ability to take advantage of selected expansion opportunities," Semrod observed. "This transaction will have little effect on our risk-based capital ratios."

First Valley Bank will purchase Horizon's cash, marketable securities, certain consumer loans, and will have options to acquire fixed assets. First Valley will also receive approximately $740 million in cash from the RTC which is the difference between the liabilities assumed and the assets purchased. First Valley will not purchase Horizon's real estate loans, commercial loans or lease portfolio.

Horizon customers can continue to bank in their usual manner and use their existing forms and checks. Howell noted that First Valley Bank will inform customers on an ongoing basis with regard to conversion to First Valley products.

Headquartered in Princeton, UJB Financial Corp. is the 47th largest bank holding company in the nation and now has approximately $13 billion in assets. With this transaction, it operates out of more than 270 offices in New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania. First Valley Bank will now have over 50 branches in 10 counties of Pennsylvania and $1.6 billion in deposits. UJB Financial common stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol UJB.

WALTHAM, MA (MAY 27) PR NEWSWIRE - As previously announced, Kurzweil Music Systems Inc. has agreed to sell its technology, distribution rights and certain other assets, including the right to manufacture and market musical instruments using the Kurzweil technology and under the "Kurzweil" name, to Young Chang Akki Co. Ltd. of Korea.

Under the Young Chang agreement, the purchase price consists of $3,000,000 to be paid at closing and royalties over a period of approximately six years based on sales of Young Chang musical instruments and related products incorporating the company's technology with minimum royalties totalling $2,750,000 during 1991 and 1992. The Young Chang agreement is subject to bankruptcy court approval.

The company announced today that the bankruptcy court had held a hearing on the company's petition for expedited approval of the Young Chang agreement. During this hearing, certain projections made by Young Chang and by the company regarding future royalties under the Young Chang agreement were disclosed. Although the company disclaims all responsibility for Young Chang's projections, and there can be no assurance as to the extent of payment, if any, that will be made among the company's creditors and stockholders, the company believes that this information may be considered material and therefore is disseminating this information concurrently to the financial community.

The company emphasized that the Young Chang and Company projections disclosed today do not constitute representations as to actual royalties, that no assurance can be given regarding the attainability of the projections or the reliability of the assumptions on which they are based, that actual royalties will depend upon the level of Young Chang's future sales of products incorporating the company's technology, and that unanticipated events and circumstances could adversely affect actual royalties.

The company also announced today that the Boston Stock Exchnage has informed the company that trading in the company's common stock on the Boston Stock Exchange was halted May 14 because of the company's pending Chapter 11 proceeding. The company's common stock remains eligible for trading in the over-the-counter market.

BOSTON (MAY 25) UPI - The Edmonton Oilers' team speed ended Boston's title hopes faster than the Bruins expected.

''They were making good plays off the rush at the blue line,'' Boston Coach Mike Milbury said after the Oilers downed the Bruins 4-1 in Game 5 Thursday night, capturing their fifth Stanley Cup in seven seasons.

''That was their strong point coming in and we knew it. But they were able to sustain it against us in this final series.''

Edmonton, which outscored Boston 20-8 in the series, continually limited the Bruins' scoring chances by outplaying Boston in the center-ice area.

Once the Bruins moved into the Oilers zone, goaltender and playoff MVP Bill Ranford was there to make the save, sending Edmonton's offense off and flying.

''A lot of guys on that team skate well,'' Boston defenseman Ray Bourque said. ''If it wasn't (Glenn) Anderson, it was somebody else.''

The Oilers, who struggled to get untracked in the opening game, started rolling offensively in Game 2 and kept their momentum going for most of the remainder of the series.

The Oilers scored seven goals in the second game. After being held to one in Game 3, they re-established their offensive superiority in Game 4, carrying it right into the clincher.

''The momentum was something they created in Game 4 and we were unable to stop it,'' Milbury said. ''I don't know how many goals they had off rebounds, but I think they scored a lot of the initial rush.''

Edmonton team speed worked defensively also, stopping Boston's top two playoff scorers in the series. Cam Neely, who entered the finals with 12 goals and 12 assists, contributed only four assists. Center Craig Janney, the team's top playmaker, was held scoreless for the entire series. Janney entered with three goals and 19 assists in 14-playoff games.

''They turned it up in the playoffs, playing very well defensively,'' Neely said. ''I certainly don't know who labled them underdogs because it certainly wasn't us. It came down to we didn't have a lot of offense and they had a lot of defense.''

Boston finished the regular season as the top team overall. The Bruins strong point the entire season was their defense, which had the lowest-goals against in the league.

But the Oilers' team speed killed the Bruins.

''Their defense was defintely underrated,'' Boston captain Ray Bourque said. ''Obviously, we're disappointed. We throught it could go a lot better than that.''

Now the Oilers proved they can win without Wayne Gretzky and goaltender Grant Fuhr. All it takes is a team effort, offensively and defensively.

It was a total team concept and a lot of hard work,'' Edmonton Coach John Muckler said. ''Coming out of training camp, we never expected to be here. It's probably the nicest of the five.''

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (MAY 25) UPI - President Joaquin Balaguer finished first in his bid for a sixth term in office, edging fellow octogenarian Juan Bosch in last week's election, officials said.

The election, monitored by former President Jimmy Carter, occurred May 16, but total provisional results were not released until Thursday because a revision of the original vote count was ordered after charges of fraud were made by Bosch, Balaguer's main rival.

With all 6,663 polling stations counted, the nearly blind Balaguer, 82, had a total of 669,063 votes, while former President Bosch, 80, a former Marxist, trailed with 647,369, the Central Electoral Board said.

Pre-election violence May 14 killed one person and wounded several, and Bosch had called for protests after alleging fraud last week, but there were no reports of disturbances Thursday in the nation that shares the Caribbean island of Hispaniola with Haiti.

The electoral board issued a statement saying the final provisional results ''could eventually be subject to modifications,'' but that in revising all ballots in the central statistics office, ''we have reduced to a minimum the possibility of modifications.''

According to the provisional results, Jose Francisco Pena Gomez of the Dominican Revolutionary Party remained in third place with 438,647 votes and former President Jacobo Majluta, the candidate for the Independent Revolutionary Party received 132,344 votes.

Bosch's Dominican Liberation Party contested results from 90 percent of the polling stations in the capital, accusing the electoral board of fraud.

Pena Gomez also denounced the Central Electoral Board for various irregularities, but has insisted there has been no fraud and warned that the review of the ballots ''will not alter the provisional results.''

Carter had declared the elections as ''clean and honest'' after observing the voting process.

Majluta, who lost to Balaguer in the 1986 elections by a mere 44,000 votes has recognized the victory of Balaguer and his Social Christian Reform Party.

Wednesday, four international observers - two from the Organization of American States and two from the Inter-American Electoral Advisory and Promotion Center - congratulated the Central Electoral Board for ''the orderly fashion and the quiet climate of the elections.''

Balaguer has said he would seek to increase productivity and take other economic measures to rein in inflation and address a shortage of imported goods, including medicines, rice and milk.

Bosch, who was ousted as president in 1963 by the military, had called for the industrialization of the nation.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Democratic participants in the budget talks between the White House and Congress charged President Bush ''soured'' the atmosphere by urging Congress to take a greater leadership role.

The criticism Thursday came as budget negotiators, meeting for a fourth time, failed during their three-hour session to agree how much deficit reduction is needed next year and over five years.

Before negotiators met, Bush told a White House news conference he believed Congress must share responsibility for proposing solutions to the deficit problem and disputed Democratic charges of lax leadership on the issue.

He defended his decision not to go on television to explain the problem and his own proposals, as Democrats have urged him to do before they lay out their proposals.

''I'm going to outline the (deficit) problem when we get agreement so we can go forward with the solution,'' Bush said.

He said if he went on television now, he would note ''that the Congress appropriates all the money and raises all the revenues. That's their obligation.''

''I will point out that the Congress bears a greater responsibility for this,'' said Bush. ''But I'm not trying to assign blame. That's why I'm not doing it right now. That's why I'm saying we're going to sit and talk.''

Democrats were displeased with Bush's remarks but said they they were not discussed during the negotiations.

''It soured, I think, some of the attitude of the negotiators ... when we're making a good faith effort to try grapple with this problem, to try to come up with solutions, to try to work with the administration's designated negotiators,'' said Senate Budget Committee Chairman James Sasser, D-Tenn., one of the participants.

''Then to have cold water thrown on us ... was not helpful,'' he said.

House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif., also a negotiator, said Bush's comments make him ''perhaps one of the first presidents in recent history to say that the Congress has greater power than the presidency in determining the course of the economy, and I don't think anybody believes that.''

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said that since the administration has admitted that the $1.2 trillion fiscal 1991 budget Bush submitted in January is inadequate, ''I think it's appropriate that the president at some point should recommend what he believes is needed now.''

House Democratic leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri, the chairman of the budget talks, said ''the president is wrong if he believes the budget is more the Congress's responsibility than his. It's a shared responsibility.''

Gephardt said Republicans and Democrats could not agree on the amount of deficit reduction needed over five years. Democrats want savings next year of $50 billion to $60 billion and savings of $500 billion to $600 billion over five years.

''We did not come to an agreement,'' Gephardt said. ''People have different views of what should be done.''

The administration has focused on a five-year deficit plan that saves $420 billion.

Negotiators hope to craft a compromise package of savings sufficient to meet the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law's $64 billion deficit reduction target for fiscal year 1991, beginning Oct. 1.

Recent administration and congressional estimates have said the deficit could soar more than $100 billion above that target, forcing Congress to either slash spending or raise taxes to bring the deficit down.

Failure to meet the $64 billion target would trigger automatic, across-the-board spending cuts split betweeen defense and domestic programs.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - The Senate anti-crime bill, despite its political appeal in an election year, is in serious trouble and its chief sponsor, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., acknowledges it might not survive.

Negotiations between Senate Democrats and Republicans to cut the number of amendments and reach a final vote broke down Thursday evening when senators flooded leaders with 271 proposed changes to the anti-crime legislation.

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine put off action until after the Memorial Day recess and filed a petition to limit debate and drop more than 150 of the amendments when the Senate returns June 5.

But Senate Republican leader Robert Dole said, ''I'm not certain that cloture (which takes a 60-vote majority) can be invoked. There will be a great deal of pressure to kill the bill. It will be close.''

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said of the cloture vote, ''Who knows, it's a crap shoot. If we don't get cloture, it's almost a guarantee we won't have a bill.''

''If you don't get cloture, you bring (the bill) down,'' Biden told reporters. ''You just declare Republicans killed the bill and go home.''

A source close to the negotiations said, ''I think there is an attempt on the part of the gun guys to kill the bill.''

The Senate is in virtual agreement on three of the bill's main provision: an expanded federal death penalty law that covers 30 offenses; strict curbs on filing of appeals in federal court by death row convicts; and a more lenient approach to searches by police.

But the fourth major item, a ban on the importation and manufacture of nine military-type assault weapons, threatens to derail the bill and is strongly opposed by President Bush, most Senate Republicans and the powerful National Rifle Association.

Biden said senators are now ''locked in'' on the gun vote, which might make it difficult for opponents of the assault weapon ban to vote for cloture.

''Anybody who switches on guns - you can give them a going away party,'' Biden said in reference to the repercussions in the elections.

Biden also questioned whether ''some of the Republicans want a bill'' and noted that the administration, unlike its negotiations on many other issues, has refused to sit down and discuss a compromise.

Before negotiations between Republicans and Democrats broke off, the Senate adopted tight restrictions on appeals by death row inmates, proposed by Republicans, less than 24 hours after they were rejected.

The curbs include a limit on the number of times a person sentenced to death can appeal in federal court and sets a timetable for disposing of capital cases on a priority basis.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., a co-sponsor of the proposal, said that ''in almost all cases'' the death sentence could be carried out within a year after the state Supreme Court approves the sentence.

''This means that these cases, which have taken up to 15 years and more to dispose of, can ideally be taken care of in a year and even with a slippage inside of two years,'' Specter said.

The Senate also neared approval of a new and expanded federal death penalty that covers 30 offenses and meets the procedural safeguards required by the Supreme Court in 1972 for capital punishment.

(MAY 25) UPI - The House Thursday pushed through a more than four-BILLION-dollar spending package that contains 720-Million dollars in emergency aid for Panama and Nicaragua. Although President Bush has urged passage of the Central American aid package, he views the total bill as filled with unnecessary spending.

Authorities in Oakland, California, say an explosive device ripped through a station wagon driven by two members of a militant environmental group Thursday. The blast critically injured one of the car's occupants. The F-B-I has entered the investigation but has NOT determined if the device was planted or carried for future use by the two members of the Earth First! group.

The official Soviet news agency Tass quotes an official at the Soviet Health Ministry as saying half of the 482 known AIDS cases in the Soviet Union are children. The official Communist Youth League newspaper says the problem stems from the re-use of tainted needles. The Soviet Union has a severe shortage of disposable needles.

VALLETTA, MALTA (MAY 25) UPI - Pope John Paul II's three-day visit to Malta beginning Friday marks an end to stormy relations that erupted between the Vatican and an earlier government of the island bastion of Christianity.

The pontiff's trip is aimed at meeting as many of the faithful as possible across the rugged, Catholic-dominated Mediterranean republic. It is his 48th trip outside Italy since October 1978, when he was chosen head of the 840-million strong Roman Catholic Church.

The pontiff was scheduled to deliver an address concerning international affairs to the island's diplomatic corps and members of Parliament Friday evening.

His visit comes five months after Malta was host to a summit between President Bush and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. Unlike that event - which was disrupted by a howling storm - the pope's visit was expected to be blessed by sizzling summertime temperatures.

The pope's trip symbolizes the end of another storm that rumbled between the Vatican and Valletta during the 16-year-long socialist government, which lost power in May 1987.

The left-wing Labor Party of Dom Mintoff had challenged the church's status and demanded it fund education in church-run schools and a private hospital looked after by Irish nuns.

The dispute fanned anti-clericalism and was linked to the socialists' broader platform of forging strong relations with Warsaw Pact nations and communist China, and showing hostility to the United States and Britain, which ruled Malta for 150 years before its 1964 independence.

But the antagonism has calmed since the assumption of power of the Nationalist Party, which espouses Christian Democrat policies. Prime Minister Eddie Fenech Adami is a devout Catholic who attends daily mass.

Maltese President Vincent Tabone visited the Vatican in November and officials say an agreement is imminent on the funding of Catholic-run schools.

The socialists have also shown a desire for conciliation, and a recent Labor Party conference was dominated by speakers calling for the greater church-state cooperation.

The pope's visit symbolizes that relations have been repaired between the Vatican and Malta, where Christian tradition runs deep among the population of 350,000.

Only 122 square miles, Malta has 313 churches and is one of the few places where many young men still opt for a career in the priesthood. Maltese Jesuits were among the first missionaries in India.

The island's famous order of knights in 1565 resisted a siege by a vastly superior Turkish force, effectively checking the advance of Islam into southern and western Europe.

The pope is visiting Malta at a time of rapid economic change, with greater purchasing power - reflected in a construction boom and new cars choking Valletta's narrow streets.

Abortion is illegal, and Malta and Ireland are the only two European nations that forbid divorce. Social workers say there has been a boom in marital breakups, legal separations and annulments.

He planned to travel Saturday to Gozo island to deliver an outdoor mass, and meet local church officials. The highlight of the trip was expected to be Sunday's mass youth rally in Valletta's National Stadium. The pontiff was scheduled to return to Rome Sunday evening.

WARSAW, Poland (MAY 25) UPI - Railway workers in the Baltic Sea port of Gdynia Friday joined the wildcat strike already paralyzing northwest Poland, according to strikers involved in the Solidarity government's first major labor crisis.

A strike committee said in a telephone interview that the last long-distance passenger train left Gdynia early Friday, and no more trains were being permitted to leave.

The committee said it also was considering whether to call a halt to commuter trains, a move that would shut down transportation in the tri-city area of Gdansk, Gdynia, and Sopot and affect thousands of commuters.

The strike has not sanctioned by the Solidarity Union. It was first confined to the northwest and then spread to Gdansk, the birthplace of Solidarity, after Alfred Miodowicz of the OPZZ federation of communist unions agreed to take up the cause of the wildcat strikers.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa earlier alienated striking rail workers in northern Poland by declining their invitation to hold talks on the issue.

Walesa's call to end the strike went unheeded Wednesday. He warned Thursday that the wildcat protest by about 1,000 rail workers demanding an 85 percent wage increase could endanger the stability of the Solidarity-dominated government and threaten expected Western aid.

In indications of the seriousness of the crisis, Walesa canceled a trip to Scandinavia and Solidarity Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki pleaded with the strikers to end the protest, saying, ''Poland counts on your wisdom and common sense.''

Mazowiecki said the strikes, affecting one-fifth of the rail network, would not spread and predicted other rail workers would not try ''to destabilize the country.''

Two rival union leaders, Miodowicz and Marian Jurczyk, leader of a Solidarity splinter group, Thursday threw their support behind the strikers.

Miodowicz and Jurczyk traveled to the northwestern city of Slupsk and held overnight talks with strike leaders after government officials refused to send a delegation.

The strikers chose Miodowicz and Jurczyk to represent them in talks with the government, but the official news agency PAP reported late Thursday the talks had broken down.

Walesa, speaking Thursday in Gniew, 60 miles west of Gdansk, accused Miodowicz and Jurczyk of ''trying to take advantage of Polish poverty.''

Stressing that the West intends to help Poland economically, Walesa said such aid ''will not come if everybody will strike and stage hunger protests.''

Walesa warned the strike could cause the collapse of Poland's fledgling democracy and the 9-month-old Solidarity government.

''We are in the middle of the river and we should not change the harness '' he said.

Strikers in Slupsk, which has been the headquarters of the 15-day-old strike in the Pomerania region, said Walesa lost prestige and the support of thousands of Solidarity members by turning down their invitation Wednesday to come and talk to them.

''Walesa showed his arrogance refusing to come to Gdansk,'' said Ireneusz Chmielewcz, a strike organizer reached by telephone. ''He lost a lot (of support) and many Solidarity badges could be seen in the streets of Slupsk thrown away by the people.''

He said some railwaymen participating in the talks with Miodowicz and Jurczyk shouted ''Walesa out!''

Solidarity gained substantial power in the last decade. Mazowiecki was elected prime minister in August, and many members of the labor movement went into the government. Walesa, who leads the union, has no position in government.

(MAY 25) UPI - Vince Coleman normally sprints around the bases; Thursday he trotted.

Coleman, the speedy St. Louis outfielder, blasted a two-run home run in the 12th inning to lift the Cardinals to a 3-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

''It's one way you won't get dirty,'' Coleman said. ''That's stealing four bases the easy way.''

Coleman, who has 492 career steals and just 11 homers in five seasons, went 3-for-4, walked twice and stole a base for the Cardinals.

''It's like a childhood dream,'' Coleman said. ''You're up in the bottom of the 12th and you hit a home run to win the game. It was a jubilating feeling running around the basepaths.

''I told Terry (Pendleton) before I went up that if I had the opportunity, I'd swing for the fences. It was 3-1 and he had to come in with a fastball. I took my rip and I hit it out for a home run.''

Coleman's second homer of the season, which stayed just inside the left field foul pole, came against Ed Vosberg, 0-1.

''I knew it was out the minute he hit it,'' St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said. ''It's funny how the ball carries better in this park down the line but it does.

''Vince has been ripping the ball lately. He hit two doubles last night (Wednesday) and he's been hitting it harder than anybody else we have.''

The Cardinals had been shut down by Giants' relievers on one hit over 5 2-3 innings before Coleman's homer.

''I didn't know if we'd ever score again,'' Herzog said.

Frank DiPino, 1-0, benefited from Coleman's shot to pick up the victory.

Elsewhere in the National League: Los Angeles pummeled Chicago 15-6, Cincinnati blistered Montreal 7-1, San Diego nipped New York 5-4, and Philadelphia topped Atlanta 8-4.

In the American League it was: Oakland 13, Milwaukee 1; Boston 4, Kansas City 1; Chicago 5, Baltimore 3; Texas 3, Detroit 2; Minnesota 5, New York 4; Cleveland 5, Seattle 3; and California 4, Toronto 3 in 11 innings.

-- AROUND THE NL --

Dodgers 15, Cubs 6

At Chicago, Lenny Harris and Mike Scioscia drove in four runs each to power a 20-hit attack that carried the Dodgers to their highest run total of the year. Scioscia and Juan Samuel went 4 for 5 with a solo homer. Fernando Valenzuela, 4-3, won his first road game in three starts, allowing six hits over six innings. Les Lancaster, 3-2, gave up eight hits and eight runs over 2 1-3 innings.

Reds 7, Expos 1

At Montreal, Ron Oester, Eric Davis and Todd Benzinger each had two RBI to power the Reds. Ron Robinson, 2-1, allowed four hits over six innings for the victory. The Reds scored four runs in the second off Montreal starter Kevin Gross, who dropped to 5-3.

Padres 5, Mets 4

At New York, Andy Benes allowed three hits, collected his first two hits of the season and drove in two runs to pace the Padres. Benes, 4-4, gave up three runs, two walks and struck out four. Craig Lefferts pitched the final two innings for his sixth save. The Padres roughed up Mets starter Frank Viola, 7-2, for five runs and eight hits over 3 1-3 innings.

Phillies 8, Braves 4

At Philadelphia, Von Hayes homered, tripled and drove in four runs to lead Philadelphia to its third straight victory. Bruce Ruffin, 3-4, gave up six hits and three runs in five innings. Marvin Freeman allowed two hits over the final four innings for his first major league save. Marty Clary, 1-3, suffered the loss. Len Dykstra went 3-for-5 for the Phillies to increase his major-league-leading batting average to .411.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Scientists reported they have zeroed in on immune cells that appear responsible for the nerve damage of multiple sclerosis, possibly leading to better treatments for the debilitating disease.

About 250,000 Americans, mostly between ages 20 and 40, suffer from multiple sclerosis or MS. An unpredictable, chronic disease, MS destroys the protective sheathing around nerve cells and hinders the ability of the brain and spinal cord to control movement, speech and vision.

The exact cause of MS is not known.

Recent evidence has suggested that in MS patients, one kind of immune system cell, called T-cells, go awry and attacks the protective sheathing, which is made of a protein called myelin.

However, efforts to develop ways to wipe out troublemaking T-cells while leaving beneficial ones unharmed have been hampered because there are 20 families of T-cells.

Now, in studies published in the journals Nature and Science, teams from Harvard and Stanford universities said Thursday they have pinpointed specific types of T-cells that may be involved in MS.

''What we have learned will allow us to do clinical trials (of treatments) to target these cells and eliminate them,'' said Dr. David Hafler, who directed the Harvard research. Results of such work should indicate whether the T-cells play a key role in MS as scientists suspect, he said.

In a study looking at T-cells taken from the blood of five MS patients and five healthy people, the Boston researchers found only two of the 20 possible types of T-cells reacted to myelin and may play a role in MS. Many researchers had thought a wide range of T-cells would be involved in MS, and there would be little consistency among patients.

''It may be more simple than we thought. We feared there would be many, many different T-cell receptors. It may be very restricted. That's good news for patients - it may be easier to find therapies to try to target them (the T-cells),'' said Hafler, whose work was done at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston.

Hafler said the newly identified T-cells probably were not the only answer to nerve cell destruction, noting they were not present in all MS patients. In addition, T-cells with the potential to attack myelin were found in some healthy people, but those cells apparently were not activated.

There are many different theories about how T-cells may be activated to attack nerve cells, including speculation that a virus may trigger the harmful immune response.

In a study complementing the Harvard research, Stanford University scientists found only two to four types of T-cells in brain tissue taken from three MS patients who had died. No such T-cells were found in brain tissue samples from three healthy people, researchers said.

Unlike the Boston study, the California work did not check to see if the T-cells responded to myelin.

Dr. Stephen Reingold of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society called the new findings ''an important advance in the understanding of the immune system problems involved in MS,'' but said MS patients should not expect any immediate treatment benefits.

Drugs currently used to alleviate MS symptoms work by depressing the entire immune system, which can lead to harmful side effects. The new work opens the possibility of ''specific, highly targeted therapies to go after only the part of the immune system involved in MS without hurting the rest '' Reingold said.

The Harvard team plans to use the latest results to improve its efforts to create a vaccine that would spur MS patients' immune systems to destroy harmful T-cells.

The approach, using a vaccine made of a wide range of T-cells, has been tested in a handful of MS patinets and found to be safe, although its effectiveness was not known. Now, the tests will be expanded to include a vaccine made of only those T-cells that recognize myelin, Hafler said.

Other treatment tactics opened by the latest work include the production of tailor-made antibodies to search out and destroy the culprit T-cells or the creation of drugs that would act as decoys to sop up the T-cells and keep them away from nerve cells. Such therapies are probably years away, Hafler added.

TOKYO (MAY 25) UPI - South Korean President Roh Tae Woo said that only when Japan accepts Koreans as equals will the two nations heal the wounds inflicted during Japan's colonization of Korea earlier this century.

''There still remains a psychological barrier that hinders the evolution of genuine friendship between our two peoples,'' Roh said in a speech before the Japanese Diet, or Parliament, on the second day of his three-day visit.

Japan's Emperor Akihito and Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu apologized to Roh Thursday for the suffering Japan inflicted on Koreans when Japan colonized Korea from 1910 to 1945.

But Roh said Japanese-Korean friendship will only be possible when the Japanese accept the nearly 700,000 Koreans living in Japan as equals.

''Only when they become able to live in this land as good neighbors of the Japanese and without artificial inconvenience, will both our peoples feel genuine friendship to each other,'' said Roh, the first Korean president to address the Diet.

Most Koreans living in Japan were brought over by the Japanese during the war to serve as laborers or are the laborer's descendants.

Although they are of the same race and indistinguishable from Japanese in appearance and language, they are discriminated against in employment, marriage and housing. Japanese law, for example, forbids Koreans from teaching in public schools.

''Japan has to become a new country, much different from what it used to be,'' Roh said. ''When Japan fully opens up to history and the world, it will be able to present a new image, especially to Asians.''

During the colonization, the Japanese killed thousands of Korean resisters forced Koreans to work in slave-like conditions, speak only Japanese and adopt Japanese names.

''I believe you find it difficult to understand the heartache of a Korean child who was whipped by his teacher for using his own name, not the Japanese name imposed on him, and for using his own native language that he had learned at his mother's bosom,'' Roh said.

In Akihito's apology to Roh at a state dinner Thursday, he said, ''When I think of the sufferings your people underwent during this unfortunate period, which was brought about by my country, I cannot but feel the deepest regret.''

Kaifu also apologized, saying, ''Japanese actions inflicted unbearable suffering and sorrow on the people of the Korean Peninsula.''

Both statements went further than past Japanese apologies, which never identified Japan's responsibility.

Roh said Japan has failed to ease the pain of history, where European nations have been able to put it behind them.

''The perceptions and emotions of the Korean and Japanese peoples about past mistakes are yet to be sorted out even now, when, with the passage of 45 years since the end of World Wr II, European countries that fought each other in that all-devastating savage conflict are banding together in a single community,'' he said.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Millions of dollars worth of U.S. government food aid for malnourished mothers and children in India may have been misused by some bishops, priests and nuns within India's Roman Catholic Church, The Washington Post reported Friday.

The newspaper, quoting unidentified U.S. officials in a dispatch from New Delhi, said evidence of the alleged misuse was turned up in a requested audit of the food program of the U.S. Agency for International Development or AID.

The Baltimore-based Catholic Relief Services acts as sub-contractor of U.S. food aid in India, handling about $25 million worth of free food aid annually.

The audit, conducted by the accounting firm of Price Waterhouse, reported that at 79 of 84 Catholic food distribution centers inspected in India, devices used to measure out food to the poor gave short weights.

As a result, recipients received 15 to 20 percent less food than was allocated by AID, the newspaper said. The loss from inaccurate measuring devices during fiscal 1987 and 1988 was estimated at $3 million to $4 million.

The audit said that all inaccurate measuring devices found gave short weights, indicating they may have been deliberately fixed to skim off food according to the Post report.

Price Waterhouse, which stopped short of charging the church officials with outright theft, also said the Indian Catholic officials created false lists of food recipients, improperly used donations and made up inaccurate records to conceal abuses.

In one instance, a priest at a distribution center had arranged sacks of food to make a warehouse look full. Price Waterhouse inspectors, brushing aside the clerics' assurances that all was in order, looked closer and found the center of the wall of sacks was hallow.

''There may be some small instances of poor record-keeping,'' the newspaper quoted an unidentified U.S. official as saying. ''But with the amount of supplies that are missing - you need to have an army to move that amount of food.''

CRS has disputed the audits findings, saying the audit's findings ''are based on factual errors, speculation and, at times, misrepresentation.'' In a letter to AID, it said Price Waterhouse unfairly inferred the violations of a few churches and convents into a charge against the agency's relief network in India, the newspaper said.

''We admit the management is weak, but I don't think there is widespread abuse in the program - definitely not,'' James deHarpporte, the head of CRS's program in India, said.

U.S. officials were said to be reviewing the advisability of CRS acting as a sub-contractor in India, the newspaper reported, and CRS officials were in India working on a plan for changes in their program in the hope of persuading AID to continue government donations to the charity.

The Post said U.S. officials would not be making a decision on the CRS link in India for several months.

(MAY 25) UPI - Jose Canseco blasted two homers and garnered a major achievement for himself and teammate Dave Stewart as well.

With his second homer, Canseco tied Detroit's Cecil Fielder at 17 to lead the Major League in home runs en route to Oakland's 13-1 thrashing of Milwaukee Thursday. With four hits he drove in three runs and scored four times to help pitcher Dave Stewart, 8-1, to his major league-leading eighth win.

Canseco is confident he will improve on his 1988 season when he became the only player in major league history to hit 40 homers and steal 40 bases in one year.

''Nothing is impossible,'' said Canseco. ''Anything can happen for Jose Canseco. If I keep hitting home runs and I hit 70, 50-50 (50 homers and 50 steals) doesn't matter. I never set limitations on myself.''

Stewart agrees.

''This could be another record breaking year for Jose,'' said Stewart. ''He looks much better than he did in the 40-40 season.''

Stewart pitched seven innings, allowing five hits and striking out six. He is on target to fulfill a streak of his own, winning at least 20 games the last three seasons.

''I'm starting to throw the ball with more control,'' Stewart said. ''I feel like I'm pitching better. I'm on track to win more games than I did last year.''

Loser Tom Filer, 2-3, allowed four runs in the first, including Canseco's initial home run, which put the A's ahead 2-0. Oakland added two more on a single by Mark McGwire, a double by Dave Henderson, Canseco's RBI infield out and an RBI infield hit by Steinbach.

''We walked too many guys and didn't keep the ball in the park,'' Milwaukee Manager Tom Trebelhorn said. ''We were never a factor. You have to contain things from the mound and we didn't. We didn't play good defense.''

In other American League games, Boston pounded Kansas City 4-1, Chicago defeated Baltimore 5-3, Texas edged Detroit 3-2, Minnesota nipped New York 5-4, Cleveland beat Seattle 5-3, and California tripped Toronto 4-3.

In the National League, it was St. Louis 3, San Francisco 2; Los Angeles 15, Chicago 6; Cincinnati 7, Montreal 1; San Diego 5, New York 4; and Philadelphia 8, Atlanta 4.

-- AROUND THE AL --

Red Sox 4, Royals 1

At Boston, Luis Rivera knocked in two runs to back the five-hit pitching of Roger Clemens lifting the Red Sox. Clemens, 7-2, struck out seven and walked one to improve his career record to 10-1 against the Royals. Mark Gubicza, 2-5, gave up nine hits, walked four and struck out three.

White Sox 5, Orioles 3

At Baltimore, Ron Kittle capped a five-run fourth inning with a three-run homer night to power Chicago. Scott Radinsky, 4-0, struck out the side in the fifth inning in relief of Jack McDowell who gave up five hits and two runs in four innings. Jay Tibbs, 2-5, gave up five consecutive hits in the fourth inning.

Rangers 3, Tigers 2

At Detroit, Rafael Palmeiro's leadoff homer in the seventh inning broke a tie and Charlie Hough and two relievers combined for a three-hitter lifting Texas. Palmeiro hit a 2-1 pitch to snap a 2-2 tie on the fourth hit allowed by Frank Tanana, 3-3. Hough, 5-2, survived eight walks by striking out four and allowing three hits.

Twins 5, Yankees 4

At Minneapolis, Shane Mack raced home from third base on Gary Gaetti's bases-loaded groundout with one out in the ninth inning, pacing Minnesota. Rick Aguilera, 1-1, picked up the win despite allowing the Yankees to tie the score with two runs in the ninth. Aguilera gave up two runs on four hits over 1 2-3 innings. Greg Cadaret, 1-4, pitched one inning, giving up two hits and one run.

Indians 5, Mariners 3

At Seattle, Candy Maldonado snapped a tie with a home run in the eighth inning and Doug Jones picked up his major-league leading 15th save, helping Cleveland snap a four-game losing streak. Jesse Orosco, 3-2, replaced starter John Farrell and picked up the victory with a perfect seventh inning. Seattle starter Matt Young dropped to 1-5.

Angels 4, Blue Jays 3, 11 innings

At Anaheim, Calif., Johnny Ray's RBI double in the 11th inning lifted the Angels to their fourth straight victory. Despite allowing Toronto to tie the game in the top of the ninth, Bryan Harvey, 2-1, earned the win. Tom Henke, 0-1, took the loss.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 25) UPI - The record 21 tons of cocaine seized by drug agents at a San Fernando Valley warehouse last fall was smuggled across the Mexican border at El Paso, Texas, in the trunks of cars, a federal report said.

Smugglers stockpiled the cocaine in the border town, then drove it to a warehouse in refrigerated tractor-trailers, according to a federal Drug Enforcement Administration report obtained by the Los Angeles Times and quoted in the newspaper's Friday edition.

The world record tonnage, with an estimated street value of more than $6 billion, was seized in a warehouse in suburban Sylmar Sept. 28. Seven people have been arrested in the case.

Another 60 tons believed to have passed through the same warehouse within the past six months was concealed ''in the trunks of cars (usually Mercury Marquis) in quantities of roughly 300 kilograms (660 pounds) per shipment and driven across the border,'' the report said.

The document, dated February 1990, differed from previous accounts theorizing that more elaborate smuggling methods were used to get the drug across the border.

Among those theories: drug dealers divided the cocaine among human ''mules'' to transport or hid it in commercial vehicles too difficult for border guards to search.

The report did not criticize U.S. Customs, but a General Accounting Office study did find fault with the agency for relying on data that could not offer border agents adequate warnings against suspicious individuals or vehicles.

The report from the DEA's Office of Intelligence contends that Mexico was used as a smuggling point by Colombian traffickers who had earmarked the shipment for Colombian distributors in Southern California, New York and Florida.

Moreover, it warned that Mexico is increasingly being used as a transit point for Colombian-produced drugs intended for the United States, and that the practice of cross-border smuggling was ''facilitated'' by Mexican organizations operating as middlemen.

Overland smuggling apparently has become the ''method of choice'' by drug smugglers, the report said. Before stepped up efforts to slow the smuggling in Florida, most cocaine headed for the United States was shipped by boat through the Southeast.

The document was drafted before the discovery last week of a 273-foot undergound tunnel used to smuggle cocaine into Douglas, Ariz., from Mexico.

(MAY 25) UPI - The Senate has followed the lead of the House and passed by voice vote a four-point-three-BILLION-dollar supplemental spending bill that includes 720-Million dollars for Panama and Nicaragua. The legislation was delayed for several months despite White House insistence that the aid package was necessary to ensure democratic change in Latin America. The bulk of the Central American money is for economic development.

Several U-S officials say if past patterns hold true, more bombings will occur in Colombia. Medellin officials say the driver of a pickup truck triggered his dynamite-loaded vehicle as it was searched at a police checkpoint Thursday. The blast killed the driver, two police officers, a child and a woman in two separate cars. Narcotics experts say drug cartels are responsible for the bloodshed, which comes three days before presidential elections.

China's state-run news agency offered NO official response from Beijing on President Bush's renewal Thursday of most-favored-nation trade status for China. There was response on Capitol Hill, though. Democrats and even some Republicans criticized Bush's decision to grant preferential trade status, despite China's anti-democracy crackdown. Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell says he'll do everything possible to overturn Bush's action.

The Navy says the unexplained ignition of powder used in 16-inch battleship guns prompted officials to re-open the investigation into the cause of the explosion aboard the U-S-S Iowa. A previous naval report said the blast probably was intentionally caused by one of the 47 sailors killed in the blast. The father of that sailor told U-P-I Thursday the Navy has a lot of explaining to do for the previous report.

BANGKOK, Thailand (MAY 25) UPI - Vietnam, in a sudden return of wartime fears, accused the CIA of trying to undermine the communist regime with leaflets, armed infiltrators, agents posing as tourists and calls for democracy, official Vietnam radio said.

CIA agents ''are trying in every way to cause instability, instigate dissatisfaction, and to stir up trouble'' to bring the collapse of communism in Vietnam as in Eastern Europe, the radio said in a broadcast Wednesday.

In an indication of internal divisions, the radio charged that some ''confused and Utopian'' Communist Party members have assisted the CIA campaign aimed at the ''peaceful evolution'' of the communist system.

A Western analyst in Bangkok said the broadcast indicated a return of wartime paranoia among some segments of the communist leadership and the security forces. This has triggered the arrests of Catholic priests, intellectuals, foreign travelers and businessmen, including one American, in recent weeks.

The campaign of suspicion appears intended to slow recent moves to open Vietnam's sluggish economy to foreign investment and trade, the analyst said.

The radio report said the CIA is employing tourists, overseas Vietnamese, minority ethnic groups and Vietnamese Catholics to subvert the Communist Party.

''In February and March 1990, we discovered and arrested 14 persons armed with weapons and reactionary documents who intruded into our country,'' it said.

The report said more than 500 kinds of ''reactionary propaganda documents'' have been circulated inside Vietnam. It said some were church letters and publications of anti-communist groups in the United States, Britain and France.

''They have turned black into white, spoken ill of, defamed, and driven a wedge between the Communist Party and the people,'' it said.

The documents called for the privatization of state enterprises, demonstrations to reclaim confiscated land, labor strikes, the creation of secret oganizations, opposition to the military draft and refusal to pay taxes.

Intellectuals, artists and writers have been urged to demand freedom of creativity, the right to read literary works from the Free World, and an end to travel restrictions, the radio report said.

Workers and officials returning from Eastern Europe and visits to capitalist countries have been deceived into praising capitalism, it said.

It said political opponents of the Communist Party were abusing recent party pledges of more democracy and openness to attack the party, demand a multi-party system and ''progressively change the political regime in our country, and turn it onto the capitalist road.''

''Regrettably, some cadres and party members have become Utopian or confused, and have even given a helping hand to them, seriously violating party and mass organization discipline and law,'' it said. ''Such activities cannot be passed off lightly.''

The charge appeared to reflect party infighting, which diplomats in Hanoi said were likely to escalate this year with preparations for a major party congress next year.

The congress is supposed to endorse significant personnel changes in the party hierarchy and outline policies for several years.

Some party members have urged a much faster pace of political change and the wholesale retirement of top leaders.

But the centrist faction in the party, which so far seems dominant, has argued that orderly change must continue, but not at such a fast pace that it leads to chaos.

BANGKOK, Thailand (MAY 25) UPI - The Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge resistance group has agreed to a Thai cease-fire plan to be signed in Tokyo next month, Deputy Prime Minister Gen. Chavalit Yongchaiyudh said Friday.

The Khmer Rouge was the last of the four battling factions in Cambodia to agree to the cease-fire first made public by resistance leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

''Everything that Sihanouk has agreed to, the Khmer Rouge has also agreed to,'' Chavalit said.

Diplomatic sources said Chavalit this month signed separate but similar agreements with each of the factions for a cease-fire, and each group has agreed not to use the cease-fire to expand its territorial control, the sources said.

However, one analyst said, ''These agreements are with Chavalit. The question is whether there will be any hitch in transforming them into a single agreement among the four parties.''

Chavalit said Sihanouk's commitment to the cease-fire plan has also been accepted by the other two Cambodian faction leaders - Son Sann of the U.S.-backed Khmer People's National Liberation Front and the Vietnamese-installed Cambodian prime minister, Hun Sen.

Vietnam invaded Cambodia in late 1978 and ousted the Khmer Rouge, which is blamed for the death of more than 1 million people during its radical communist rule from 1975 to 1979.

The deputy premier declined to be more specific about the Khmer Rouge agreement, saying, ''Too much talking will not be good.''

The cease-fire is to be monitored by the 18-nation Paris International Conference on Cambodia. The conference will also be asked to enforce an end to foreign military assistance to all sides, the diplomats said.

The agreements made little mention of arrangements for a transitional administration before general elections, but in a key concession to the Phnom Penh government, they said that a National Reconciliation Council would include equal representation from ''both sides.''

Previously, the Khmer Rouge has insisted on equal representation for each of the four groups so the three resistance factions could outweigh the Phnom Penh government.

Earlier, Sihanouk, 68, told reporters he will go to Tokyo for talks with Hun Sen beginning June 4.

''I will approve and sign any text of settlement that will be proposed to me,'' he said.

He said Chavalit would have to use his influence to persuade the other three parties to sign the formal cease-fire agreement.

Chavalit said Thailand's allies from the Association of Southeast Asian Nations - Singapore, Malaysia, the Philippines, Brunei and Indonesia - supported the Thai effort on Cambodian issue.

''We are not alone. They have supported everything we've done,'' Chavalit said.

CHICAGO (MAY 25) UPI - An FBI agent posing as a trader in the Chicago Mercantile Exchange Swiss franc pit made numerous mistakes when helping a broker fill customer orders on a heavy trading day, according to tapes played at the racketeering and fraud trial of three traders.

FBI agent Randall Jannett testified Thursday that broker Robert Mosky recruited him to help fill customer orders on April 14, 1988 - the day the government's monthly foreign trade figures were released.

Jurors spent most of Thursday reviewing tapes and records of a half-hour of hectic trading that followed the release of those figures. They were expected to spend more time Friday reviewing the day's trading.

Mosky and fellow CME Swiss franc traders Danny Scheck and David Zatz are the first traders to face trial on charges resulting from a two-year FBI undercover investigation at the CME and the Chicago Board of Trade.

Prosecutors have indicated they will introduce some 130 tapes at the trial. Thus far, the jury has waded through fewer than a fourth of them.

In tapes secretly recorded by Jannett on the morning of April 14, 1988, and played for the jury Thursday, Mosky advises traders not to dump their orders on Jannett.

''I don't want him to get buried,'' Mosky said.

Then Mosky gave Jannet a ''deck'' of orders and a few basic tips on how to go about filling them on a high-volume day.

''Don't (expletive) with 'em (orders),'' Mosky told him, according to the government transcript. ''Just fill them. Don't try to squeeze 'em (push for a better price); don't be a hero. Just get it done.''

Ten minutes after trading opened, the foreign trade figures were released, and prices began swinging wildly, moving up and down in increments of 100 points and more - with 100 points representing $1,250 per contract.

What can be heard on the tapes makes it clear Jannett was confused.

''I screwed up,'' he announces at one point.

At another, according to the government transcripts, Jannett - sounding frustrated - growls to another trader, ''Buy this (expletive)!''

The agent could be heard repeatedly asking advice, cursing or telling Mosky and others he had failed to execute an order at the proper price and asking what to do with such ''missed'' orders.

The advice he got, Jannett testified, was to engage in pre-arranged, non-competitive trades - including matching customer buy orders with customer sell orders.

Asked by Assistant U.S. Attorney James Fleissner why he was asing what to do with orders, Jannett testified, ''Certainly I was not an experienced order filler.''

''I did not know how these orders were to be filled or at what price,'' he testified.

That is the crux of the defense's position in the case - that Jannett had inadequate training and experience in commodities trading and did not recognize what was happening around him.

The defense contends the agent often mistook confirmations of trades - required by exchange rules - with illegal pre-arranged trades.

The trial before U.S. District Judge Ann Williams, concluding its third week, is expected to take a total of six to eight weeks.

The government contends Mosky masterminded a scheme that allowed brokers - who trade for public customers of brokerages houses like Shearson, Lehman Hutton - to escape personal liability for mistakes they make when trading customers orders.

Prosecutors say Mosky and other brokers recruited locals - traders who trade almost exclusively for their personal accounts - to absorb losses from their trading mistakes, then compensated the locals with sweetheart deals at the expense of customers.

Mosky, 34, of Chicago, is charged with racketeering conspiracy, fraud, and violation of federal commodities trading rules. If convicted, he could be sentenced to up to 415 years in prison.

Scheck, 28, of Skokie, Ill., and Zatz, 43, of Chicago, are charged with fraud and violations of commodities law. If convicted, Scheck would face up to 90 years in prison and Zatz up to 70 years.

TOKYO (MAY 25) UPI - The organizers of the Goddess of Democracy ship, who abandoned their plan to broadcast pro-democracy messages to China, said Friday they succeeded in exposing how nations bow to China despite its questionable human rights record.

The crew of the floating radio station announced Thursday they were giving up the project because of the unwillingness of Taiwan and Japan to allow the ship access to ports or equipment. They said the two Asian democracies had caved in to pressure from China.

''The Goddess of Democracy failed to broadcast, but it has succeeded in showing these dubious relationships and in showing Beijing was afraid of a small and rusty boat,'' said Pascal Dupont, a spokesman for the group, A Boat to China, during a news conference.

''At a time when in Africa, South America and Eastern Europe, the last walls of the totalitarian system are collapsing, we are very surprised that a regime responsible for the worst civil massacre in the decade would find support so easily in this part of the world,'' he said.

Taiwan and Japan said they were reluctant to support the ship because treaties prohibit radio broadcasting in international waters.

''But talking about the law, when did China last respect the basic laws of individual human rights,'' Dupont said.

''One reason (Taiwan and Japan were reluctant to help) is obviously they have very strong economic relations with China,'' Dupont said.

Japan denied it was pressured by China to reject the ship.

''There is no pressure exerted on Japan by China on this issue,'' said Taizo Watanabe, the Foreign Ministry's chief spokesman. ''We simply make this announcement from purely legalistic point of view.''

Lawyers for the Goddess of Democracy argued the broadcast would be legal since they are not commercial and the treaty has not been ratified by a quorum of international signatories.

Chinese officials made it clear in April they were opposed to the ship's mission as well as any ''provision of support or facilities given to it by any state.''

''The Goddess of Democracy will not shut up,'' Dupont said as he announced plans for a Goddess of Democracy compact disc to be given to radio stations as a way of spreading their message.

The ship left France March 17 and was to broadcast from international waters near China on the June 3-4 anniversary of China's bloody crushing of the pro-democracy movement.

Dupont said the ship, a 1,200-ton freighter, will be sold for scrap in Taiwan and the crew will fly back to France.

The project cost about $1.5 million, Dupont said. Half of the money was from contributions, including some from sources in Taiwan, and half was raised through benefit concerts, he said.

MOSCOW (MAY 25) UPI - French President Francois Mitterrand arrived in Moscow Friday to meet with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev for talks expected to focus on German unification and other key issues in a rapidly changing Europe.

''The president of the French Republic, Francois Mitterrand, arrived in the Soviet Union today for a short working visit,'' the official Tass news agency said. ''Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and other officials met him at the airport.''

Gorbachev and Mitterrand were scheduled to meet and then hold a joint news conference later in the day, Tass said. The unification of East and West Germany and other rapid changes in Europe were expected to be among the topics discussed by the two leaders.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Congress passed and sent to President Bush a bill sending $720 million in emergency aid to Panama and Nicaragua early Friday after months of delay that the White House said put the two new U.S.-backed governments in Central America at risk.

The $420 million for Panama and the $300 million for Nicaragua is the centerpiece of a $4.3 billion supplemental spending bill that also provides money for domestic purposes ranging from food stamps to flood relief.

The House passed the bill crafted by a conference committee 308-108, and the Senate approved it by a voice vote shortly after midnight. But the easy margins masked the fact that the measure was held up for months by disputes over issues as disparate as abortion and military aid to El Salvador.

Bush went so far as to urge Congress to work through its Memorial Day recess starting Friday if it had not completed action on the aid.

Administration officials said Nicaragua was bankrupt and that both it and Panama desperately needed money to rebuild economies ravaged in part by U.S. actions intended to oust the nations' previous governments.

''The United States has a special responsiblity for the rebuilding of both of these nations,'' said Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass. ''This issue here should not be held up ... and bring down another government.''

Despite such pleas, the bill moved slowly Thursday as the House spent nearly 12 hours debating procedures and so-called pork-barrel provisions.

An obstacle to final action was then cleared when senators decided, after much discussion, against using the bill as a vehicle for making up shortages in Pentagon payroll accounts created by the deficit reduction law. That problem threatens the layoffs of thousands of soldiers, sailors and airmen.

The issue will be taken up after the recess, ending June 4. Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said he was told by the Defense Department there would be no layoffs while Congress is away.

Bush in January had asked for $500 million for Panama and $75 million for the refugee programs, and he added a request for $300 million for Nicaragua in March. The bulk of the Central American money is for economic development.

Democrats wanted to shift some aid to Eastern Europe or domestic programs. But nearly all of Bush's foreign aid request was approved by the House April 3, the Senate May 1 and the conference committee Tuesday.

However, Bush's victory came at a price - billions of dollars in domestic spending and controversial amendments on social issues.

Major provisions included $1.2 billion for food stamps, $885 million for foreign aid, $529 million for veterans, $433 million for firefighting and $216 million for disaster relief. Not included in the totals was $400 million in housing loan guarantees for Soviet Jews settling in Israel.

Most of the domestic spending was for mandatory programs and much of it, such as $110 million for the census, was sought by the administration. The non-mandatory spending is mostly offset by about $2 billion in defense cuts.

Bush and many lawmakers complained the bill was larded with pork-barrel provisions, and the House overwhelmingly voted out $238 million inserted by the Senate for building a new RDX explosives factory in Louisiana.

The action came after Secretary of Defense Richard Cheney sent a letter saying the plant was unneccessary. The letter was requested by Rep. James Quillen, R-Tenn., whose district is home to America's only current RDX plant.

The House also removed a provision shifting $25 million in unused money to make up part of the deficit in its postal fund, which has been created by a deluge of election-year mailing.

''The issue is here is whether or not you are going to have a few people go into a closed room and carve up a little bit of money,'' said Rep. Robert Walker, R-Pa.

But Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., disputed that the bill was loaded with unnecessary domestic programs, saying, "We better look after our own country."

A controversial measure that went unchallenged provides $185 million for an automated FBI fingerprint facility expected to be built in the home state of Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Bush earlier threatened to veto the bill if it included language added by the Senate allowing the District of Columbia to use local tax money for abortions. Conferees dropped that provision.

Another clash developed when House Democrats tried to hold up the bill to press for a 50 percent cut in military aid to El Salvador.

The House approved an amendment cutting the aid, but the bill containing the amendment lost. The Democrats said they would seek the cut later this year.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - President Bush called his decision to renew preferred trading status to China ''difficult,'' but the move was denounced in Congress as ''business as usual,'' and some lawmakers vowed to overturn it.

Bush, saying economic moves against Beijing would hurt American business and the Chinese people, announced Thursday that he would renew most-favored-nation status for China.

The announcement occurred less than two weeks before the first anniversary of the June 4 massacre in Tiananmen Square, where hundreds and perhaps thousands of pro-democracy demonstrators were killed by tank-led troops.

''This was a difficult decision, weighing our impulse to lash out in outrage that we all feel against a sober assessment of our nation's long-term interests,'' Bush told a news conference.

In Beijing Friday, Prime Minister Li Peng welcomed Bush's announcement, saying both countries and Hong Kong would benefit from the decision.

''The promulgation by Mr. Bush is a wise decision,'' Li said during a meeting with a Japanese business leader. ''We appreciate it and welcome it.

''The decision benefits both China and the United States and also benefits the prosperity and stability of Hong Kong,'' Li said. ''The Chinese government continues to make efforts to restore and develop Sino-U.S. relations.''

A resolution was introduced in the House Thursday calling on members to stand behind ''the clearest signal we can send that America can not and will not condone the abuses that continue today in the People's Republic of China.''

Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., who announced the introduction of the resolution, said there are some in Congress ''who believe that the strongest possible signal of disapproval sent now is really in the best interest of our two countries' further relations and, more importantly, in the best interests, the long-term interests of the Chinese people.''

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., indicated that there was widespread support for revoking China's trade status. ''Across the board, from the most liberal members to the most conservative members of both parties there is a great deal of concern,'' Foley said.

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine called the president's decision ''profoundly wrong,'' and promised, ''We're going to do everything we can to prevent it from taking effect.''

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., criticized Bush's decision, saying, ''Despite the massacre on Tiananmen Square, it is going to be business as usual.'' He added, it was a ''shameful policy'' that ''ignores the issue of human rights. ''He is sending a message that crime pays, that anything goes,'' Humphrey said.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas said Bush ''argued persuasively'' for renewing MFN status but said ''it's going to be a close call for many senators.''

Dole said he told the Chinese ambassador that ''unless we see some real action'' on the part of China's leaders ''the political support will not be there for the status quo with China.''

Congress can pass legislation overturning Bush's decision, but proponents would have to muster a two-thirds vote in the House and Senate to override a presidential veto.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, promised hearings on the decision and said Bush's ''policy of accommodation toward China has not worked to this point.''

U.S.-China trade in 1989 added up to $18 billion, with China exporting $12 billion to the United States and the United States exporting $5.8 billion worth of goods.

Bush, who served as the first U.S. envoy to China after diplomatic ties were re-established in 1974, angrily dismissed suggestions that he was soft on human rights abuses there.

''What irks me is when some of the people up on the Hill accuse me of being less interested than they are in human rights. I think we're on the right track here,'' he said.

''Most important of all, as we mark the anniversary of Tiananmen, we must realize that by maintaining our involvement with China, we will continue to promote the reforms for which the victims of Tiananmen gave their lives.''

''Taking MFN away,'' he said, ''would hurt the Chinese people themselves. I do not want to do that.''

BONN (MAY 25) UPI - West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl reitrated Friday his view that a united Germany must remain in NATO, that NATO must retain nuclear weapons and that the United States must maintain a military presence in Europe.

He said the military role of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will gradually diminish while its political role will continue to increase, but he rejected ''utopian calls'' for a nuclear-free world.

''These war-preventing weapons alone have secured us in Europe the longest period of peace in modern history,'' he told delegates at a week-long conference on disarmament.

He said the Western military alliance made peace possible and that ''any consideration of neutrality, demilitarization, alliance- or block-disengagement is out of the question for a united Germany.''

''Therefore, we Germans want to make use of our sovereign right. We want to be members of an alliance and that is the North Atlantic defense alliance. I therefore support the continuation of the military presence of the USA and Canada in Europe,'' he told the closing session of the Interparliamentary Conference on Disarmament.

The West German leader reiterated his view that in a united Germany there will be no NATO units or installations in what is now East German territory.

He said he is confident that next week's American-Soviet summit in Washington will pave the way toward the signing of a START treaty for reductions of both superpowers' nuclear arsenals, and hoped the Vienna negotiations on Conventional Forces in Europe will lead to further troopcuts ''in all states, including a united Germany.''

Kohl also suggested the gradual establishment of a ''center for the verification of arms control agreements'' and a ''European center for conflict prevention'' that could be used as ''an instrument of consultation and dispute settlement''.

(MAY 25) UPI - Congress has passed a bill providing Panama and Nicaragua with 720-Million dollars in emergency aid. Nicaragua will get 300-Million dollars and Panama 420-Million for domestic purposes such as food stamps and flood relief. The House voted 308-108 in favor of the measure and the Senate later passed it by voice vote.

Officials in California say a bomb exploded in a station wagon yesterday in downtown Oakland, injuring two leaders of a militant environmental group. Judi Bari and Darryl Cherney, leaders of Earth First!, were on an organizing trip in the Bay area. The group is planning a logging blockade in northern California this summer.

The Navy is reopening its probe into last year's explosion aboard the U-S-S Iowa that killed 47 sailors. Recent testing of some powder charges indicated for the first time the Iowa blast could've been an accident. The Navy originally blamed gunner's mate Clayton Hartwig, who died in the explosion.

All systems are go for the shuttle Columbia to blast off next Wednesday, two weeks late. NASA engineers replaced a faulty valve in the spacecraft's cooling system and agency officials say everything is on schedule for a May 30th lift off. Columbia will be on a 10-day Spacelab astronomy mission.

As beach weather approaches, health officials once again are sounding warnings about sun-bathing. The U-S Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta say during the past 10 years, the death rate from the most deadly form of skin cancer linked to sunlight exposure has jumped 25 percent.

CLEVELAND (MAY 25) UPI - The family of Clayton Hartwig wants an apology for accusing Clayton Hartwig of causing the explosion aboard the USS Iowa that killed him and 46 other sailors.

The Hartwig family's lawyer said he may file suit against the Navy, which Thursday reopened the investigation of the fatal gun turret blast. Doubts were raised about the initial report, which said Hartwig may have caused the explosion as a suicide tactic, after a bag of gunpowder exploded unexpectedly during tests of a theory that friction could have caused last year's blast.

''I knew he couldn't do it,'' said Kathy Kubicina, Hartwig's sister and a resident of Cleveland. ''I think the Navy should apologize.''

Earl Hartwig, the dead sailor's father, singled out Rear Adm. Richard Milligan, who led the Navy investigation.

''I think Admiral Milligan ought to be made to stand and take his medicine '' he said. ''We've said that we know there was no detonator or timer. And what they've done to the boy - calling him homosexual and all these other things -they just ruined his name.

''The Navy has got to do an awful lot of apologizing to 47 families for the wrongful attitude they used (toward our) family unit and for what my wife and and I have gone through for the last year, claiming my son did this.''

Kubicina has fought long and hard to clear her brother's name. The Navy in a 7,000-page report had concluded that Hartwig likely caused the explosion April 19, 1989, by placing a detonating device among the bags of gunpowder rammed into the gun's breech.

Kreig Brusnahan, the lawyer for the Hartwig family said, ''I'm elated. This is proof positive that the Navy's conclusions have to be rejected.'' Brusnahan said he expects to file a claim against the Navy for more than $1 million for the suffering the Navy put the family through.

Kendall Truitt, an Iowa survivor, once had been linked to the explosion and an alleged homosexual relationship with Hartwig after it was learned the two had taken out insurance policies on each other.

''My wife and I are very happy, very happy that finally the Navy's taking probably a closer look this time at what really happened and this basically clears my friend Clyaton Hartwig from any wrongdoing,'' said Truitt, who has moved to Marion, Ill., to attend Southern Illinois University.

''They're going to have to take a serious look at the way they stored the powder and they're going to have to take a closer look at their procuedures in t he Navy and this time they can't blame my friend,'' he said in an interview on ''Good Morning America.''

Rep. Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, has criticized the Navy for its earlier investigation.

''The Navy should rescind its original report and take steps that this sort of tragedy should not happen again,'' Oakar said. ''The Navy should publicly apologize to the Hartwig family and the families of all the sailors of the USS Iowa.

''The Navy tried to destroy that young man's reputation and sweep the cause under the rug,'' Oakar said. ''The Navy should be ashamed. We've been saying all along that friction could have caused the explosion.''

(MAY 25) UPI - Thunderstorms soaked the nation's midsection early Friday, a day after more than 18 tornadoes slashed across the Midwest, injuring at least six people in Kansas, damaging farm buildings and derailing 88 cars of a coal train.

In southeast Texas, the swollen Trinity River was ebbing, while the Ouachita crested in Arkansas without causing serious problems in the town of Camden.

The National Weather Service said at least 18 twisters ripped across the northern Plains and Mississippi Valley states Thursday, the result of powerful afternoon and evening thunderstorms. Nine tornadoes were spotted in central Kansas, six in Wyoming, two in Montana and one in South Dakota.

''We had a tornado about a mile wide that went through the area,'' a Barton County sheriff's department dispatcher said Thursday in central Kansas. ''We had power lines down, we had gas leaks, telephones were knocked out.''

Eight farms in Barton County reported structural damage due to high winds, and four workers were slightly injured when they tried to outrun a funnel cloud in a car. The tornado picked up their vehicle and slammed it into an oil rig, but the men escaped with only cuts and bruises, authorities said.

Two other people were slightly hurt by falling tree branches in the town of Great Bend, officials said.

A tornado derailed 88 empty coal cars on a Denver & Rio Grande Western Train near Hoisington in Barton County while it was traveling from Kansas City to Denver. There were no known injuries, authorities said.

The weather service said tornadoes were also spotted near seven other towns in Barton and neighboring counties.

Afternoon and evening thunderstorms in Marion county in Kansas also brought hail the the size of golfballs.

The storms moved east, knocking down trees and power lines and causing damage to farm houses.

''As far as we know there's no injuries,'' said Karen Hawkinson, office supervisor at the McPherson County sheriff's department. ''We have another front building up; hopefully it won't come into our county.''

Tornado watches were posted in several parts of the Great Plains.

Storms brought heavy rain early Friday to Nebraska and Iowa. Golfball-size hail was reported near Auburn, Neb., and flash flood watches were posted in southern and western Iowa, the NWS said.

Meanwhile, the Ouachita River appeared to have crested at Camden, Ark., early Friday, while Texas officials said they believe the flooded Trinity River had reached its ebb as it emptied into the Gulf of Mexico.

''It's cresting now,'' Lt. David Hammett of the Camden Police Department said Friday.

Hourly readings taken late Thursday and early Friday held steady at 35 feet, or about 9 feet above flood stage, Hammett said.

State Highway 7 and several county roads in the Camden area remained closed. Hammett said the high water did not cause serious problems.

''We didn't have to evacuate anyone,'' he said.

The Trinity River in Texas began dropping Thursday at the Liberty Bridge, about 40 miles from Houston, as the record crest flattened out at 30 feet, 6 feer above flood stage.

The release from the Lake Livingston Dam, which reached an all-time high of 100,800 cubic feet per second last weekend, was falling steadily, Trinity River Authority officials said.

''Our estimation is probably by Saturday morning we will be around 60,000 cfs. We project that in a week to 10 days we will be around 50,000 cfs,'' said Jimmy Sims, TRA spokesman.

Any release over 20,000 cfs floods low-lying areas below the dam.

Five more Texas counties were added to the disaster area list Thursday, bringing to 46 the number of counties eligible for federal and state assistance.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms Friday moved through parts of west Texas, central and eastern Oklahoma and north-central Arkansas.

A weakening high-pressure system Friday gave parts of the South cloudy skies but only spotty rain. A tropical depression in the Caribbean pushed rain into south Florida, but was not expected to develop top wind speeds that would make it a tropical storm.

Temperatures across the South early Friday ranged from 59 in Knoxville, Tenn., to 62 in Jacksonville, Fla., 65 in Charleston, S.C., 67 in Atlanta and 76 in Miami.

Skies were mostly cloudy over Pennsylvania overnight with lows in the 40s and 50s. It was partly cloudy over Delaware and New Jersey with lows around 50.

A cool, moist north to northeast air flow across New England has been weakening, allowing the region sunshine and temperatures in the 60s. A low-pressure system to the east of New England moved slowly away, leaving the entire region with clear skies but cool temperatures early Friday.

Morning temperatures ranged from a low of 29 in northern Maine to a high of 47 in Boston.

In the western part of the country, high pressure brought sunshine and warm temperatures to California but several cold fronts were pushing southeastward over the northern Pacific Ocean.

Washington state enjoyed a drier weather. Another storm was moving into the Oregon coast Friday.

COVINGTON, TN (MAY 25) UPI - About 750 people were evacuated Thursday night when 31 cars of an Illinois Central freight train derailed, causing three tankers containing alcohol to explode, authorities said.

Tipton County Sheriff's Department dispatcher Rickey Smith said there were no injuries or deaths caused by the accident, which was reported shortly before 10 p.m.

Officials said the cause of the derailment was under investigation.

Cecil Whaley, a spokesman for the Tennessee Emergency Management Agency, said 80 residents of a nursing home were among those evacuated. He said the other evacueees lived in trailer parks and single-family dwellings south of Covington near U.S. Highway 51, about 40 miles north of Memphis.

''The 750 evacuated were taken care of by the American Red Cross. They were taken to an elementary school and a junior high school,'' Whaley said.

Smith said three cars containing chemicals exploded and burned after the derailment.

Whaley said the tankers contained an alcohol base used for pharmaceutical products.

They said some of the residents had already returned to their homes early Friday and the others were expected to by mid-morning.

The sheriff's department said Highway 51 was closed temporareily as crews worked to secure the safety of the remaining freight.

Whaley said 31 cars of the freight derailed and 14 of them were destroyed.

(MAY 25) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange closed sharply higher in heavy trading Friday as investors were encouraged by improved market conditions.

The blue-chip Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which gained 135.24 points for its fourth straight advance on Thursday, soared 482.13 points, or 1.50 percent, to 32,793.88. The key index climbed 780.16 points overall for the week. The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Index of all listed major shares surged 24.04 points to 2,419.94.

Trading was heavy with an estimated at 1 billion shares changing hands, up sharply from the 649 million shares Thursday. Advances outpaced declines 603 to 354, while 168 issues were unchanged.

Analysts said environment surrounding the market has improved, triggering heavy buy orders. Market watchers cited the Japanese yen's rise, lower bond yields and Thursday's announcement by long-term credit banks of their intention to lower long-term prime rate as favorable factors.

On the Tokyo Foreign Exchange, the U.S. dollar fell sharply against the Japanese yen on news that a U.S. Treasury official said the dollar was undervalued against all major currencies except the yen.

The Bank of Japan reported the dollar closed at 150.05 yen, down 1.38 from Thursday's close of 151.43 yen.

"The securities industry's decision to resume equity financing seems to mirror waning worries regarding the future of the market," an analyst at a major securities company said.

Purchases of stocks in the domestic demand-related sectors, such as construction issues, contributed to lifting the Nikkei Average, analysts said.

On the trading floor, constructions were generally higher. Other gainers included large-capital steels and shipbuildings like NKK, Sumitomo Metal, Mitsui Engineering, and Shipbuilding and Kawasaki Heavy Industries.

Real estates also gained ground along with electric railways. Precision instruments and high-tech issues such as Olympus Optical, Sony and TDK eased slightly.

Elsewhere in Asia, prices closed higher in moderate trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange for the fifth consecutive session amid strong institutional buying and a good showing by blue chip issues.

The key Hang Seng Index, which gained 19.70 points Thursday, added another 11.49 points to 3,059.50. The closely watched index has added 133.61 points in its past five winning sessions.

Among the narrower-indexes, utilities rose 34.85 points, financials gained 12.93, industrials climbed 3.67 and properties added 0.59 points.

An estimated 1.59 billion shares chnaged hands, up slightly from the 1.58 billion shares on Thursday.

"There was a heavy dose of institutional buying and quite a lot of action in the blue chips," Nick Peacock, an analyst with Citicorp Scrimgeour Vickers Ltd. said.

"A lot of this rally is based on current political calm and the perception that the economy is going to improve," Peacock said. "But it looks like there is not going to be any improvement in upcoming export data and that would pretty much limit the market for the next few months."

Traders will take a break from the action Monday, May 28 as they celebrate the Dragon Boat Festival holiday. Trading will resume Tuesday, May 29.

Stock prices on the Singapore Stock Exchange closed slightly lower in light trading amid some profit taking.

The closely watched Straits Times Industrial Index, which eased 4.67 points Thursday, slipped 2.93 points to 1,565.35. The narrower All Singapore Index eased 1.01 point to 437.39.

An estimated 76.4 million shares changed hands, compared with 80.2 million shares Thursday.

Analysts said the sharply higher closing in Tokyo sparked a brief spate of buying late in the session, but the momentum quickly dissolved. Analysts said the market was consolidating after its recent gains.

On the trading floor, Isetan Corp. paced the declining issues followed by Singapore Airlines (foreign shares) and United Overseas Bank.

Development Bank of Singapore led the advancing issues followed by Chemical Industries and G.B. Holdings.

In Australia, stock prices closed higher in cautious trading on the Sydney Sharemarket.

The blue-chip All Ordinaries Index, which eased 2.0 points Thursday, added 8.0 points to end the week at 1,479.9.

An estimated 85 million shares chnaged hands, compared with 77.7 million shares on Thursday.

Analysts said large insvestors stepped the sidelines late in the session ahead of the weekend and Monday's key report on Australia's April trade picture.

There was a general agreement across the floor that no major moves would be made until the release of those trade figures. Forecasters are expecting the government report to show a deficit of around $1.35 billion to $ 1.5 billion for the month.

On the trading floor, Advance Bank gained four cents to $4.35 and Challenge Bank gained ten cents to $2.50, among the seconary issues.

Elsewhere, News Corp. slipped five cents to $10.25, Brambles rose five cents to $13.50, and Coca Cola Amatil gained five cents to $10.80.

Around the world... around the clock... the latest news from United Press International.

President Bush travels to Kennebunkport, Maine, later today for the Memorial Day holiday. The president will spend three days fishing, golfing and playing tennis and also continue preparing for next week's summit. Soviet President Gorbachev arrives in Washington Wednesday.

President Bush says Moscow's approach to Lithuania's drive for independence may cost the Soviet Union trade benefits. Bush says ''the political climate in this country'' would make it ''extraordinarily difficult'' to grant the Soviet Union most-favored nation trading status. This is the first time Bush has linked the Lithuanian crisis to U-S-Soviet trade relations.

Liberal Soviet legislators are calling for the government to be subjected to a NO-confidence vote. They say the country's current leadership is NOT capable of healing the Soviet Union's troubled economy. One lawmaker says- quote- ''The government has lost control over the economic situation.''

The administration has renewed China's most-favored nation trading status. President Bush calls the decision ''difficult,'' but says imposing economic moves against Beijing would only hurt American businesses and the Chinese people. Some members of Congress are vowing to overturn the president's decision.

Pre-election violence in Colombia continued yesterday with another car bomb explosion in Medellin. At least five people died in the blast and 15 others were injured, including eight police officers. Voters go to the polls Sunday to cast their ballots for a new president.

Congress has passed a bill providing Panama and Nicaragua with 720-Million dollars in emergency aid. Nicaragua will get 300-Million dollars and Panama 420-Million- the bulk of it going toward economic development. The House voted 308-108 in favor of the measure and the Senate later passed it by voice vote.

Officials in California say a bomb exploded in a station wagon yesterday in downtown Oakland, injuring two leaders of a militant environmental group. WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - The U.S. merchandise trade deficit decreased eight percent to $26.4 billion in the first quarter, the lowest since the fourth quarter of 1983, the Commerce Department said Friday.

The trade deficit stood at $28.7 billion during last year's fourth quarter. The department said both exports and imports were at record levels during the first quarter.

Exports increased five percent, or $4.3 billion, to $96 billion, with gains posted by agricultural and nonagricultural products. Imports increased by two percent, or $1.9 billion, to $122.4 billion, the department said. Petroleum imports increased during the quarter while imports of nonpetroleum products decreased.

The trade deficit with Japan decreased by $1.9 billion to $10.4 billion during the quarter. Trade imbalances with several other countries also decreased.

The U.S. trade deficit with Canada narrowed by $1.1 billion to $1.6 billion while the deficit with the newly industrialized countries of Asia was clipped by $1.8 billion to $4.6 billion.

The deficit with Mexico increased by $800 million to $1.2 billion and by $800 million to $6.7 billion with the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. The United States posted a trade surplus of $400 million with Western Europe.

(MAY 25) UPI - News from China to Romania... from Florida to California... the latest developments from around the world and across the nation... U-P-I has the details.

A fight is looming on Capitol Hill over President Bush's decision to renew most-favored-nation trade status for China.

Republican Representative Gerald Solomon announced the introduction of the House resolution calling on members... quoting here... ''NOT to condone the abuses that continue today in the People's Republic of China.'' House Speaker Thomas Foley indicated there's wide support for revoking the trade status.

Bush called his decision to renew preferred trading status ''difficult.'' He argued that any economic moves against Beijing would hurt American business and the Chinese people. Bush is a former U-S envoy to China.

Bush's announcement comes less than two weeks before the first anniversary of the June 4th massacre in Tiananmen Square. Hundreds and perhaps thousands of pro-reform demonstrators were killed by Chinese troops.

At the same time, Bush appears willing to wave the trade stick at the Soviet Union... saying Moscow's handling of independence movements in the Baltic states could cost U-S trade benefits needed to revive the Soviet economy.

Asked whether the United States would grant most-favored-nation trading status to the Soviet Union... Bush said the political climate in the United States probably would NOT allow it.

MOSCOW (MAY 25) UPI - Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov said Friday he would resign if the parliament rejects the government's plan to move toward a modified market economy.

Ryzhkov told reporters during a break in the parliament's debate on the econonomic reforms he did not fear a proposed, unprecedented no confidence vote put forward by radical deputies Thursday.

''I am not afraid,'' Ryzhkov said. ''I am honorably carrying out my duties. I believe in what I am doing and if I see that I no longer have the confidence of the people, then of course I will not go against its will.

''I would not allow myself to be sent from one podium to another'' to defend the economic program, he said. ''If there is no confidence in the government, then another government will work.''

Officials at the Supreme Soviet, or parliament, said a vote on the no confidence motion was unlikely Friday, although a vote on the economic plan was possible.

Ryzhkov said he realized there is dissatisfaction with the economy and fear among many residents of the reform that will include steep price hikes and cuts in many subsidies.

''It is difficult for the government to work today,'' Ryzhkov said. ''Every day we receive ultimatums from this region, from that region. We are threatened with strikes, all sorts of difficulties, and of course in such a situation it is very hard to work.''

Ryzhkov's plan to move the country to a modified market economy over the next six years drew furious protest when he presented it to the parliament Thursday.

''The market does not tolerate half-cocked measures,'' snapped Alexander Orlov, a liberal deputy from the Ural Mountain city of Chelyabinsk.

The no confidence motion proposed by radical deputies was unprecedented in a country run by secret order with virtually no public accountability before Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's reforms.

Several liberal legislators acknowledged privately, however, that they lacked the votes in the 542-seat Parliament to topple the government and a vote on the issue was thought unlikely to reach the floor.

Gorbachev, who chaired the legislature until assuming his strengthened executive post in March, attended the session Thursday but did not participate in the heated debate after Ryzhkov presented the economic plan in a two-hour address.

''The point is to consistently reduce the degree of direct state influence on the economy step by step and to expand the sphere of market relations '' Ryzhkov told the legislators.

''Only by those means will it be possible to hold inflation under control, see to it that there is not a major recession and prevent living standards from declining,'' he said.

But members of the Inter-Regional Deputies' Group, a bloc of about 50 radical lawmakers in the Supreme Soviet, said the government plan falls far short of the drastic steps needed to stimulate the country's ailing economy.

Liberal legislator Gennadi Filshin, an economist chosen by the radicals to present their objections, called for the legislators to vote on whether they support the government headed by Ryzhkov.

''The government has lost control over the economic situation and is unable to pull the nation out of the worsening crisis,'' Filshin said.

Liberal deputies lambasted Ryzhkov's economic plan, which would begin price reforms by tripling the cost of bread July 1 but postpones additional price increases or further measures until next year.

''A market is a common universal asset, not an ideological notion,'' said Ivan Misun, a lawmaker from the Siberian city of Krasnoyarsk. ''There is no market without private property.''

Lawmakers accepted a suggestion by Anatoli Lukyanov, who succeeded Gorbachev as Parliament chairman, to conclude all debate on the program before acting on the radical bloc's demand for a vote of no confidence.

With a long list of speakers still demanding the floor at the session's close, the discussion was suspended until Friday.

The radicals huddled in a conference room during a break in the session and voted unanimously by a show of hands to bring the challenge to the Parliament floor.

(MAY 25) UPI - The way has been cleared for Nicaragua and Panama to receive U-S emergency funding. Congress yesterday passed a supplemental spending bill that includes 720-Million dollars in aid for the two ailing countries.

A variety of issues stalled passage of the legislation, including abortion and U-S military aid to El Salvador. President Bush, frustrated by the delay, had told lawmakers to postpone the Memorial Day holiday until work on the bill was completed.

The House voted 308-108 in favor of the bill which will provide Nicaragua with 300-Million dollars and Panama with 420-Million. The Senate approved the measure with a voice vote.

Bush administration officials say Nicaragua is bankrupt, and both Nicaragua and Panama need money to rebuild crumbling economies, ravaged in part by U-S actions intended to oust their governments.

Romania's president-elect, Ion Iliescu, will be inaugurated in Bucharest in today... an event his opponents are calling a new communist takeover.

Yesterday, about 12-thousand anti-government activists held a huge rally in a central Bucharest square marking what one protester called- in her words- ''the last day before communism takes over.''

Iliescu is the leader of the National Salvation Front... and, like many of the Front's leaders, he was once a top communist party official. He was kicked out of the leadership in 1984... and banished to an obscure position after opposing the policies of deposed dictator Nicolae Ceausescu.

The opposition fears that the Front will eliminate its opponents and install a communist-like regime following its landslide victory in recent elections.

Iliescu tried to calm these fears Wednesday... saying that there's ''NO danger of sliding back to communism'' under his new government.

(MAY 25) UPI - Police in Oakland, California, scheduled a news conference today to discuss yesterday's bomb explosion in a car carrying two members of a militant environmental group.

The F-B-I is trying to determine whether the bomb was being carried by the so-called ''eco-guerrillas'' or was planted by their opponents.

Two members of the group Earth First!... 40-year-old Judi Bari and 33-year-old Darryl Cherney... were injured when the explosion tore through their station wagon, sending it careening into a car and a truck.

Bari said recently her life had been threatened because of her involvement in Earth First!. She suffered a fractured pelvis and was listed in critical but stable condition after undergoing surgery at Highland Hospital. Cherney was treated for facial cuts and turned over to authorities.

A member of Earth First! said late last night that investigators intend to charge Bari and Cherney with possessing and transporting explosives... but police officials would NOT confirm that. Earth First! spokesman Alan Van Tress says Cherney and Bari are committed to non-violence.

Earth First! is planning a non-violent blockade against logging in some 30-thousand acres of virgin forests in California's Humboldt and Mendocino counties.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Americans earned and spent more in April but did not manage to save as much as the month before, the Commerce Department said Friday.

Personal income increased by $14 billion during the month to an annual rate of $4.6 trillion. Spending increased by $22.1 billion to an annual rate of $3.7 trillion but savings decreased 5.5 percent to $222.1 billion from $233.6 billion in March, the department said.

Wages and salaries were up by $19.1 billion last month, compared with an increase of $$15.4 billion the month before. Payrolls for commodity-producing industries decreased $4.2 billion after gaining $4.3 billion in March.

Manufacturing payrolls were trimmed by $2.3 billion after fattening by $4.8 billion the month before. But payrolls for distributing companies gained $8.6 billion during the month after gaining $3 billion the month before.

Service industry payrolls gained $11.7 billion, up from $5.4 billion in March and government wages and salaries were up by $2.8 billion in April from a $3 billion gain the month before.

Farmers' income decreased $11.5 billion in April after gaining $14.1 billion the month before. Federal subsidies to farmers were down $9.9 billion during the month after gaining $11.2 billion in March. Excluding the subsidies, farmers' income slipped $1.6 billion in April after gaining $2.9 billion in March.

Non-farm proprietors' income gained $700 million in April after increasing $2 billion the month before. Personal interest income increased by $1.5 billion from a gain of $1.3 billion in March.

Tax payments rose in April to $4.3 billion from an increase of $3.4 billion the month before. Disposable personal income - the amount left over after tax payments and other nontax payments - increased by $9.7 billion after an gain of $32.6 billion the month before.

Personal spending increased by $22.1 billion in April after gaining $18.1 billion in March. Personal consumption expenditures increased by $21.9 billion after gaining $19.4 billion in March. Americans saved less during April, managing to tuck away $221.2 bilion during the month after squirreling away $233.6 billion in March.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Americans earned and spent more in April but did not manage to save as much as the month before, the Commerce Department said Friday.

Personal income increased by $14 billion during the month to an annual rate of $4.6 trillion. Spending increased by $22.1 billion to an annual rate of $3.7 trillion but savings decreased 5.5 percent to $222.1 billion from $233.6 billion in March, the department said.

Wages and salaries were up by $19.1 billion last month, compared with an increase of $15.4 billion the month before. Payrolls for commodity-producing industries decreased $4.2 billion after gaining $4.3 billion in March.

Manufacturing payrolls were trimmed by $2.3 billion after fattening by $4.8 billion the month before. But payrolls for distributing companies gained $8.6 billion during the month after gaining $3 billion the month before.

Service industry payrolls gained $11.7 billion, up from $5.4 billion in March and government wages and salaries were up by $2.8 billion in April from a $3 billion gain the month before.

Farmers' income decreased $11.5 billion in April after gaining $14.1 billion the month before. Federal subsidies to farmers were down $9.9 billion during the month after gaining $11.2 billion in March. Excluding the subsidies, farmers' income slipped $1.6 billion in April after gaining $2.9 billion in March.

Non-farm proprietors' income gained $700 million in April after increasing $2 billion the month before. Personal interest income increased by $1.5 billion from a gain of $1.3 billion in March.

Tax payments rose in April to $4.3 billion from an increase of $3.4 billion the month before. Disposable personal income - the amount left over after tax payments and other non-tax payments - increased by $9.7 billion after a gain of $32.6 billion the month before.

Personal spending increased by $22.1 billion in April after gaining $18.1 billion in March. Personal consumption expenditures increased by $21.9 billion after gaining $19.4 billion in March. Americans saved less during April, managing to tuck away $221.2 bilion during the month after squirreling away $233.6 billion in March.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Soviet and U.S. church leaders will join together in prayers for peace and the success of the Bush-Gorbachev summit the National Council of Churches said Friday.

''Our prayers will give expression to the hopes and longings of the American and Soviet peoples for the coming of peace and the prospects for increased mutual understanding among the nation,'' said James Hamilton, general secretary of the church council.

The prayer vigil and summit conference will be held May 30- June 4 in Washington.

The opening service for the prayer vigil will be held Wednesday evening in Washington's National (Episcopal) Cathedral. Prayers will continue throughout the summit sessions at various sites around the nation's capital.

Church council officials said the Soviet delegation will be headed by Archbishop Kirill of Smolensk, who chairs the Russian Orthodox Church's department of external affairs.

It is expected that the Soviet religious delegation will include Armenian, Soviet Georgian, Baptist and Lutheran church leaders in addition to representatives of the Orthodox Church.

The U.S. delegation will be led by the Very Rev. Leonid Kishkovsky of the Orthodox Church in America, president of the National Council of Churches, and by Hamilton, a United Methodist layman.

U.S. and Soviet church leaders have held similar prayer vigils in both Moscow and Washington during the last three summits. Hamilton said, however, that for the first time, a delegation of Americans will participate in simultaneous prayer services in Moscow during the Washington summit.

Churches in both countries are being asked to peal their church bells for an hour following worship services on Sunday, June 3, in observance of the Bush-Gorbachev summit.

Meanwhile, prominent television preacher, the Rev. Robert Schuller, said the U.S.S.R. Committee for Radio and Television - Gostelradio - has invited him to broadcast a May 27 pre-summit moral and spiritual message to the Soviet people.

During the service, Schuller said, he will ask all viewers to answer his call for prayers for the summit so that ''in the final moments, Gorbachev and Bush together will have been used by all the good forces in the universe to bring the world ever closer to the total abstinence of war.''

TOKYO (MAY 25) UPI - Pioneer Electronic Corp., a major Japanese audio equipment maker, said Friday its profits and sales increased substantially in the year ended March 31.

The company said net income soared 48.5 percent to 29.456 billion yen ($187.6 million), or 175.33 yen ($1.12) a share, up 47.0 percent from the previous year.

Net sales rosed 21.6 percent to 511.7 billion yen ($3.26 billion) with overseas sales accounting for 284.12 billion yen ($1.8 billion), the company said.

Pioneer said sales of audio products grew 11.7 percent to 178.936 billion yen ($1.14 billion) and contributed 35.0 percent of total sales. Sales of video products surged 39.9 percent to 152.886 billion yen ($974 million) while those of car electronics products increased 19.8 percent to 148.613 billion yen ($946.6 million), the company said.

BEAVERTON, OR (MAY 25) UPI - Tektronix Inc., the Portland area's largest private employer, has begun issuing layoff notices to employees, but the company said the exact number of cuts won't be announced until next week.

Doug Babb, spokesman for the electronics firm, said some employees began receiving their notices Thursday. "I wish I could confirm the numbers, but I can't," he said. "It will be a few more days."

Tektronix, a manufacturer of electronic testing and monitoring equipment, employs 14,200 people worldwide, 10,300 of those in Oregon. Stagnant sales of testing equipment has forced a gradual reduction in the Tek workforce which reached a high of 24,000 in 1981.

In the past year, the company has layed off 800 employees and shut down a plant on Guernsey in the British Channel Islands. It also announced in February it intended to make 600 additional cuts by the end of its fiscal year May 26. But rumors at the plant put the figure much higher.

Babb said some of the rumors had been "pretty outlandish." "We are in kind of an awkward situation, but we just can't say anything," he said.

Babb said the company would not reveal department-by-department cutbacks for competitive reasons. In a letter to employers last week, company management said more job cuts were necessary to keep the company healthy.

Tektronix current business quarter ends Saturday. Babb said the layoff notices were related to the quarter ending and a federal law requiring 60 days notice to employees laid off due to a plant closure. The law comes into play when a plant employing more than 100 people is to be shut down, according to a spokeswoman for Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore.

MOSCOW (MAY 25) UPI - The Russian premier withdrew his candidacy for the presidency of the giant republic Friday, stunning its new legislature and clearing the way for renegade Boris Yeltsin to gain the powerful post.

''I was always a fighter and I remain one,'' Premier Alexander Vlasov told the Russian Congress of People's Deputies. ''But the situation dictates making a choice and my choice is to withdraw my candidacy.''

He gave no further explanation.

The surprise move left Yeltsin the clear favorite to be chosen by the legislature - possibly later Friday - as its chairman. That would make him Russia's effective president and give the populist Communist a strong base from which to challenge Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Before Vlasov announced his withdrawal, Yeltsin accepted his nomination in a bracing speech in which he said ''Russia is ill'' and declared himself the man with a cure.

The withdrawal of Vlasov left Yeltsin with only three opponents and only nationalist Communist Ivan Polozkov is viewed as a serious challenger.

Polozkov, known for his opposition to fledgling cooperatives and other independent businesses, has been linked to neo-Stalinist forces. Vlasov's withdrawal increased the likelihood Yeltsin would be able to draw the support of moderate deputies.

The broad-shouldered Yeltsin, appearing relaxed and confident, mapped out a program of rapid transfer to a market economy for the republic that takes up three-quarters of the Soviet Union and includes half its 285 million people.

Yeltsin told the other deputies he could work with Gorbachev, who Wednesday took the podium at the 1,060-seat legislature and launched a brutal attack on Yeltsin's notions of Russian autonomy.

''Relations (with Gorbachev) should be businesslike, principled, using dialogue and negotiations, without harming the priority of Russian independence,'' Yeltsin said.

The two men enjoyed close ties when Yeltsin was a candidate member of the Communist Party's ruling Politburo and boss of the powerful Moscow city apparatus, but the relationship began to deteriorate in late 1987 when Yeltsin lost those posts after criticizing the pace of Gorbachev's reform program as being too slow.

Their interaction has been further strained in the past 15 months with Yeltsin's landslide election last March to the first U.S.S.R. Congress of People's Deputies, his subsequent selection from that body to the country's standing parliament and now his likely ascension to the No. 1 postion in all of Russia.

''If I had certain personal concerns, I would put them aside,'' Yeltsin said of his relationship with Gorbachev.

But the 59-year-old Yeltsin, born 29 days before Gorbachev in 1931, again confronted the Soviet leadership for delaying radical action, criticizing ''the federal government's indecision and inconsistency over the past five years.''

Yeltsin called for a ''resolute, bold and charge-ahead policy'' of economic change in the Russian republic, but he urged guarantees against massive social dislocations and said lawmakers should act ''without breaking the entire system at once.''

Yeltsin proposed a series of measures for quick movement to a market economy including eventual use of world prices in all commercial exchanges and introduction of a parallel currency backed by gold reserves.

''We must transfer to the market without harming or lowering the population's standard of living,'' Yeltsin said.

Yeltsin's rival Polozkov, first secretary of the Communist Party in Krasnodar, a large territory in the northern Caucuses, has begun sounding populist themes while contending, ''I think the Russian people are not ready for transfer to a market'' system.

That fairly moderate stance seemed to mark a shift to the center by Polozkov, who attained national prominence by criticizing what he said was a ''cooperative lobby'' hostage to business interests at the March session of the U.S.S.R. Congress of Peoples Deputies that also elected Gorbachev president.

Looking ill at ease Friday in a mob of reporters, Polozkov said after the congress's morning session he had not expected Vlasov's withdrawal and refused to comment on how it affected his chances.

Yeltsin refused all comment, saying, ''Better not for now.''

LIBREVILLE, GABON (MAY 25) UPI - France began evacuating foreigners from Gabon Friday after two days of anti-government riots sparked by the mysterious death of an opposition leader.

Also Friday, the government set up a commission to investigate the death of Joseph Redjambe, leader of the Gabonese Progress Party, found dead in a Libreville hotel room with syringe marks on his body hours after he was lured there by an Ivory Coast woman, official sources said.

Some opposition militants and demonstrators accused President Omar Bongo's government of murdering Redjambe and demanded Bongo's resignation.

There were no official reports of casualties in the burning and looting that erupted Tuesday after Redjambe was found dead in a room at the Hotel Dowe. The newspaper L'Union reported two people were killed and 17 seriously injured.

A precarious calm held in Libreville Friday after a second night of curfew with only isolated incidents reported.

But unrest continued in the oil city of Port Gentil, 80 miles south of the capital, where Gabonese commandos were dropped by parachute Thursday to try to restore order, security sources said.

A French Air Force Transall transport aircraft began ferrying some 700 members of families of French, American, British and other foreign expatriate employees from Port Gentil to Libreville, where two jetliners were expected to arrive to to take them to Paris, official sources said.

In Paris, Cooperation Minister Jacques Pelletier said the situation at Port Gentil remains ''tense and worrisome'' and that there were ''acts of looting'' in the city, considered Gabon's economic capital, during the night.

''The government has taken the necessary measures to permit the departure from Port Gentil of the French who want,'' Pelletier said. ''Other countries having nationals there, notably the Netherlands and the United States, have been informed of the deployment of this disposition that naturally is open to them.''

About 3,500 of the 15,000 French nationals in Gabon are based at Port Gentil. Many foreigners are employed by oil companies operating in the African nation.

France flew 200 Foreign Legion troops to Gabon on Thursday to reinforce some 500 French troops based in its former colony under terms of a bilateral defense agreement.

A spokesman for ELF-Gabon, the largest oil company in Gabon, said its personnel will remain there for now but that it turned off its offshore oil production pumps on Wednesday.

One French officer took part in negotiations with demonstrators that led to the freeing of seven French oil workers and one British executive who were taken hostage by the rioters.

The demonstrators have been demanding Bongo's resignation, alleging his aides may have been involved in the death of Redjambe. But in an interview with Le Figaro newspaper published Friday, Bongo seemed unruffled by the political crisis.

''Nothing is happening. In Libreville, everything is all right. Everything is back in order,'' he said.

''People are telling stories about the regime,'' Bongo said. ''People have written that there were assassinations in Gabon. You have to see how things have happened. When one is in politics and you go into a hotel with a girl..."

Authorities say Redjambe was lured to the Hotel Dowe by a woman from the Ivory Coast, Jeanne Canonne, who has disappeared.

The government decided after an all-day emergency cabinet session Thursday to open a commission of inquiry into the death that would work in connection with his family.

The government plans to invite foreign pathologists, probably from France, to take part in the autopsy and inquiries to demonstrate their impartiality, official sources said.

Prime Minister Casimir Oye Mba's cabinet expressed ''solemn homage'' to Redjambe, who also had extensive business interests in the construction sector.

But it condemned opposition militants who torched the Hotel Dowe and other buildings in Libreville and Port-Gentil. ''These countrymen want to ruin several years of effort and sacrifice.

''By setting afire the Hotel Dowe, they have themselves destroyed important elements for the pursuit of the investigations,'' the cabinet statement said.

Bongo avoided a direct answer when asked if he has been in telephone contact with French President Francois Mitterrand.

HOUSTON (MAY 25) UPI - The only group to make a bid for the financially struggling Sakowitz Inc. has withdrawn its offer to pay $4.5 million for the upscale retail chain.

Sakowitz Acquisition Partners said it will opt instead to bid for all or part of Sakowitz in federal bankruptcy court. The six-store Sakowitz chain is involved in Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings in New York, where an auction of its assets is scheduled June 6.

Executives at Sakowitz Acquisition Partners said Thursday they withdrew their bid because of disputes over language in the sale document. L.J. Hooker Corp., the corporate parent trying to sell Sakowitz, declined comment.

The investment partnership had pledged to submit a financial package to support its offer May 10. The financial commitment never was submitted, but the group said it still wants to buy Sakowitz.

If successful, Sakowitz Acquisition would liquidate Sakowitz stores in Dallas and Cincinnati. The investors are considering whether to keep all four Houston locations open.

Also under consideration is whether to retain company Chairman Robert Sakowitz, whose grandfather founded the chain 88 years ago. Sakowitz had been working to solicit investors to help him bid for the chain, but it was not certain if he would take part in the June 6 auction.

Sakowitz Acquisition Partners disclosed Thursday that it is working with Baytree Investors Inc., which will line up financing for the deal.

Baytree has been criticized in the past for buying the Chicago-based Wiebolt Stores in 1985 and later closing the chain. Baytree also made an unsuccessful run at buying Carson Pirie Scott & Co.

If no acceptable bid for Sakowitz is received, Buxbaum, Ginsberg & Associates of Encino, Calif., has signed an agreement to liquidate Sakowitz.

TOKYO (MAY 25) UPI - Japanese dairy farmers plan to resume exports of high-grade beef to the United States after an interval of more than two decades, Kyodo News Service reported.

It said the Japanese government has formulated guidelines for beef exports under which the Health and Welfare Ministry will license Japanese exporters.

The names of exporters will be disclosed to the U.S. government, and their licenses will be reviewed periodically by both Japanese and U.S. governments, Kyodo said.

Japan exported 591 kilograms of beef to the United States from 1964 to 1967 but suspended shipments because of high production costs. Japan will liberalize beef imports in April 1991, and resumption of Japanese beef exports to the United States will help reactivate Japan's livestock industry, Kyodo said.

TOKYO (MAY 25) UPI - Daihatsu Motor Co. Friday reported a 50 percent decline in operating profits for the year ended Mar. 31 because of sluggish demand for mini-vehicles.

The Osaka-based company said net income fell 13.5 percent to 5.665 billion yen ($36.1 million), or 13.34 yen (8 cents), from the previous year, while operating profits dropped 50 percent to 5 billion yen ($31.8 million).

But sales grew 1.6 percent to 694.682 billion yen ($4.4 billion).

Company executives attributed the poor performance to sluggish demand for mini-vehicles following introduction of a 6 percent sales tax in April 1989 and customer reluctance in advance of the marketing of models meeting new standards.

No acquisition tax was levied on most mini-vehicles before the sales tax was enforced.

The company said vehicle sales declined 1.8 percent to 841,679 units in the latest year.

Daihatsu said exports surged 34.2 percent to 134.925 billion yen ($859.4 million) but domestic sales slumped 4.1 percent to 559.757 billion yen ($3.565 million).

Officials in Kansas say four people were injured when they tried to outrun a funnel... and two others were hurt by falling tree branches.

Checks totaling 720-Million dollars in U-S aid soon will be in the mail to Panama and Nicaragua. Congress passed a spending bill early this morning after months of delay. The aid is part of a four-point-three-BILLION-dollar supplemental spending bill. The measure was held up previously over such wide-ranging issues as abortion and military aid to El Salvador.

President Bush will leave this morning for his seaside home in Kennebunkport, Maine, for the Memorial Day weekend. Bush aides say the pesident plans to spend three days relaxing his robust way- a heavy regimen of fishing... golfing... boating... and tennis. Next week Bush meets with Soviet President Gorbachev in Washington.

TOKYO (MAY 25) UPI - Kobe Steel Co. reported Friday its net income grew 6.7 percent to 23.03 billion yen ($146.7 million), or 8.17 yen (5 cents) a share, in the year ended Mar. 31, down from 8.5 yen (5.4 cents) in the prior year.

Sales were up 3.8 percent at 1.22 trillion yen ($7.73 billion) due mainly to strong domestic demand, the company said.

Exports were down 23.4 percent to 240.19 billion yen ($1.52 billion), accounting for 19.7 percent of total sales.

Sales in the iron and steel and welding sector increased 6.9 percent to 622.35 billion yen ($3.96 billion), while sales in the aluminum and copper sector rose 7 percent to 256.57 billion yen ($1.62 billion), the company said.

Kobe said sales in the machinery sector declined 3.4 percent to 342.84 billion yen ($2.17 billion).

TOKYO (MAY 25) UPI - All Nippon Airways, Japan's leading domestic carrier, said Friday it is negotiating with USAir for a joint venture on the route linking Washington, D.C., and Orlando, Fla. All Nippon said the two companies were close to signing an agreement on the project.

Plans call for All Nippon to launch passenger service on the route in October, using crew and equipment offered by USAir and purchasing part of the seats for its own service, the company said.

Company executives said the new service will attract Japanese travelers planning to visit Disney World near Orlando. All Nippon now operates six weekly flights between Tokyo and Washington.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Stubbornly high mortgage rates pushed sales of existing homes down 2.1 percent nationwide in April but that didn't stop house hunters in the Northeast from taking advantage of a regional buyer's market, the National Association of Realtors said Friday.

The association said sales of previously owned single-family homes dipped 2.1 percent to an annual rate of 3.3 million in April from 3.4 million the month before. April's sales were 3.2 percent below year-ago levels.

Still, the Northeast real estate market, which has been battered economically in recent months, heated last month with housing sales up four percent to 520,000 from 500,000 the month before.

Despite high mortgage rates, eager buyers were drawn into the Northeast real estate market where supply has topped demand and sellers are ready to deal.

Mortgage rates ranged between 10.26 percent and 10.56 percent for fixed-rated loans during the month. The association expects mortgage rates to go down in future months.

On Friday, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. said fixed-rate mortgage rates fell for the second consecutive week to 10.33 percent from 10.37 percent. Adjustable-rate mortgages also fell to 8.53 percent from 8.56 percent.

"It appears that buyers have sized up the inventory and have decided to start negotiating with sellers," said Norman Flynn, the association's president.

The median price of an existing single-family home in the Northeast was $140,700 in April, down 2.3 percent from year-ago levels. Nationally, the median price increased 2.6 percent from year-ago levels to $95,300.

Flynn said the fall in Northeast housing prices followed a "steady sprint" in appreciation during th early 1980s. The region's prices have settled "back into a steady walk," he said.

"This is opening up the market to relatively moderate-income buyers, some of whom are grabbing their first opportunity at homeownership," he said.

Without such factors as a buyer's market, as in the Northeast, mortgage rates have stayed high enough to keep many buyers out of the housing market, said John Tuccillo, the association's chief economist.

In the West, for example, housing resales slipped 7.9 percent in April to an annual rate of 580,000 units from 630,000 units in March. The region's median home price dropped 4.4 percent from year-ago levels to $134,900.

Tuccillo said price fluctuations in high-cost areas in the West appear to be stabilizing after surging in recent years. "Annual price increases of more than 20 percent couldn't last indefinitely," he said.

Sales decreased 1.1 percent in the Midwest to an annual rate of 900,000 units from March's rate of 910,000 units. The region's median price for an existing home reached $75,300 last month, up seven percent from year-ago levels.

Southern resales were down 3.7 percent to an annual rate of 1.31 million from 1.36 million in March. Median existing home prices in the region gained 0.5 percent from year-ago levels to $85,700.

At the end of April there were 2.55 million existing homes available for sale nationwide, or a 9.2 month supply.

BOGOTA, COLOMBIA (MAY 25) UPI - A ''never before seen'' wave of violence wracked Colombia's cocaine capital of Medellin two nights before national elections, killing 25 people in shootings and car bombs, authorities said Friday.

Five people, among them three police officers, died when a suicide driver exploded a car bomb at 5:20 p.m. Thursday near a luxury hotel in the exclusive El Poblado district of Medellin, 160 miles northwest of Bogota.

Another 20 people were killed during the night in firefights with police and other shootings, a Medellin police spokeswoman said. Medellin is the hometown of the violent Medellin cartel of cocaine traffickers.

Authorities declared a curfew Friday from 10 p.m. to 4 a.m.

''It has been a very big wave of violence, never before seen in Medellin '' Medellin Mayor Juan Gomez told a Bogota radio station.

In the the car bomb incident, the occupant of the car set off the explosion when officers at a police checkpoint discovered the vehicle was carrying dynamite, said Cesar Perez Berrio, spokesman for the mayor's office.

''When the agents were conducting the search, the occupants exploded it,'' Perez Barrio said.

The driver of the car bomb died, along with three officers and another person, police said. Eight more officers and 14 citizens were wounded.

Six vehicles were destroyed by the explosion, and windows were shattered in the Hotel Intercontinental, the most luxurious in Medellin.

A second bomb exploded at 2:20 a.m. Friday in an office building called El Omni in the El Poblado district, injuring three people, the spokeswoman said.

Thursday at 10:15 p.m., gunmen killed three men and two women in an office in the western part of the city, police said. Another four people standing on a street corner were shot to death by gunmen who fired from a moving car in another part of the city.

Police also said they killed four people trying to rob a travel agency in a shootout early Friday. And the bodies of five people were discovered along a highway, the police spokeswoamn said.

She said a police officer was shot to death early Friday shortly after she left her home to report to work.

And another officer was killed Thursday night when he was shot while guarding a campaign office of leading presidential candidate Cesar Gaviria.

Top Colombian and U.S. officials have said they believed a series of bomb attacks was likely before Sunday's vote. Gaviria, candidate of the ruling Liberal Party, has taken the toughest stand against the cocaine cartels in the campaign. He is expected to win the election.

The Medellin Cartel, which declared war on the government last August, has been blamed by police for most of the 10 car bombs that exploded in Colombia between April 11 and Thursday. The explosions killed at least 59 people, wounded hundreds and caused millions of dollars in damage.

Gen. Miguel Gomez, head of the National Police, had said earlier it was likely the traffickers would try to set off bombs despite a huge military and police security effort called Operation Democracy.

''We have information about (possible) attacks,'' Gomez said.

''The different security (forces) have increased the number of bodyguards, the physical protection of people, the protection of installations,'' he said.

Several U.S. officials also had said based on past patterns, more bombings were likely.

The spate of terror was aimed at ''intimidating the public, the government to keep people from voting,'' said a U.S. official with expertise in narcotics. ''We're under the presumption the violence will continue.''

Gaviria, 43, an economist, has said he will give no quarter to the cartels ruling out negotiations as proposed by his two main rivals.

The nation's 80,000 police officers and 150,000-member armed forces were to be involved in Operation Democracy, with vacations canceled and administrative officials assigned to street patrol, Gomez said.

Col. Eduardo Arevalo, Defense Ministry spokesman, said planning had been carried out ''to the last detail'' to ensure a safe election. The armed forces would begin reinforcing police units around voting places beginning Saturday morning, he said.

''The army will reinforce the police, placing patrols directly in the voting areas to prevent the placing of bombs, that there is sabotage etc., etc.,'' Arevalo said.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (MAY 25) UPI - The European Community's top competition official said Friday he was concerned about a growing trend toward "non-agression pacts" in the airline industry.

The EC executive Commission is also closely monitoring signs that major airlines are building "fortresses for themselves" by purchasing emerging domestic competitors, said Sir Leon Brittan, the commissioner for competition and financial services.

"We are concerned about the trend toward European-wide networks and the possibility of so-called 'non-agression pacts' between airlines," Brittan said in a speech to a London conference, copies of which were released in Brussels.

He specifically mentioned a joint venture between Sabena, British Airways, and KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, and an agreement between Air France, Lufthansa, and Iberia.

The deal between Sabena, British Airways and KLM, announced in January, calls for BA and KLM to own 20 percent each of a new Sabena airline subsidiary. EC competition officials were reviewing the joint venture, and their conclusions are eagerly awaited by airlines and consumer groups as a potential test ruling in the spiraling trend toward European airline consolidation.

"I certainly will have no hesitation in applying (EC antitrust) rules, should such agreements be shown to have an adverse effect upon competition " Brittan said.

He also vowed to crack down on any airline that abuses its dominant position, with fines where appropriate, regardless of whether the abuse has since been abandoned.

"Companies who engage in deliberate predatory behavior cannot rely on subsequent expressions of contrition to wipe the slate clean," said the Commission vice president. "I have yet to come across a convincing case of inadvertant predatory behavior."

Abuse of a dominant position is illegal under Article 86 of the EC's founding document, the Treaty of Rome. National courts can award damages for breaches of Article 86, and Brittan said he was seeking ways to widen public awareness of this little-publicized option as the 1992 completion of the EC's internal market nears.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - A partnership battling for control of the Pic'N'Save Corporation Friday dismissed as half-hearted the board of directors' efforts to sell the Dominguez, Calif., retail chain.

Girard Partners, an investment firm led by David Batchelder, spurned an invitation to join that bidding process and also turned down a Pic'N'Save offer of minority representation on the company's board of directors.

In an SEC filing released Friday, Girard said it would not bid for Pic'N'Save because the company's present board was not sincerely pursuing a sale.

The partnerhsip explained its position in the filing by citing recent statements attributed to Pic'N'Save chairman Lewis Merrifield III that questioned the ability of ''potential acquirors'' to finance an offer that exceeded Pic'N'Save's current market price.

Rather than cooperate with the board, Girard will continue to wage a proxy battle to get its own nominees elected to a majority of the seats on Pic'N'Save's board, the filing said.

If elected, Girard's nominees will conduct a ''full and fair'' bidding process to sell Pic'N'Save at ''a full and fair'' price,'' the filing said. Girard expects to participate in this latter bidding process.

On May 23, Pic'N'Save' issued a press release containing excerpts from a letter sent by Merrifield to David Batchelder.

Merrifield's letter said ''we continue to be willing to negotiate all aspects of our confidentiality agreement in order to induce you to join other interested parties in the bidding process.''

The letter also urged Girard to abandon its proxy battle and ''support us in our efforts to find a buyer for the Company willing to pay a fair price.''

VIENNA (MAY 25) UPI - Albania has issued more than 3,000 passports since the Stalinist government lifted a virtual ban on foreign travel two weeks ago, the Albanian news agency ATA said Friday.

The tiny Balkan country of 3 million also has significantly eased restrictions on foreigners entering the country, opening the door to what had been one of the world's most isolated countries, ATA said.

Communist leader Ramiz Alia called for sweeping political reforms, including more liberal travel laws, in a speech last month signaling a major policy shift in Europe's last bastion of orthodox communism. He also called for a restoration of ties with the United States and Soviet Union.

Quoting a report by the government newspaper Zeri i Popullit, ATA said most of the 3,000 passports given out so far were for Albanians wishing to travel to Western countries, including Canada, Australia, West Germany, France and Italy.

''After receiving the passport the citizen has the right to keep it for five years and to go everywhere after being equipped with the respective visa,'' the news agency said.

The new freedom to obtain a passport is ''one of the most frequent topics in the talks among the people,'' it said.

After decades of granting entry visas to a restricted few, Albania is now handing them out relatively freely, even at border points, ATA said. Those who apply in advance can receive visas in some cases within 24 hours.

The Albanian Parliament voted to ease travel and religious restrictions May 8, about two weeks after the speech by Alia.

Despite the reforms, Alia has insisted Albania will not follow its Eastern European neighbors in abandoning communism.

Bounded by Yugoslavia to the north and east, Greece to the south and the Adriatic Sea to the west, rugged Albania is the poorest and most underdeveloped country in Europe. Analysts say a worsening economic situation and growing political unrest prompted Albania's leaders to implement reforms.

NEW DELHI, INDIA (MAY 25) UPI - The governor of the troubled Jammu and Kashmir state resigned Friday under mounting attacks for trying to crush the region's independence uprising with harsh measures that have fueled anti-India hatred.

A communique from the presidential palace said Gov. Jagmohan's resignation was accepted by President Ramaswamy Venkataraman, who appointed Girish Saxena, a security adviser to Prime Minister V.P. Singh, as his successor.

Saxena, who has been Singh's adviser on Kashmiri affairs for about two months, is a former chief of the Research and Analysis Wing, India's equivalent of the CIA.

Jagmohan, whose position as governor made him New Delhi's chief representative in the state, took control there on Jan. 19 to combat a rising secessionist drive in Kashmir.

''If my presence is not likely to serve or help the people of Jammu and Kashmir to join the mainstream, I would prefer to resign and be allowed to leave,'' a senior official quoted Jagmohan as saying.

Jagmohan's resignation came during a political storm that beset the minority Singh government after the assassination Monday of Mouli Farooq, the chief Moslem cleric of Kashmir, by three unknown gunmen. Security forces Monday fired on mourners who were carrying his body through the streets of Srinagar.

The government said at least 27 people were killed in the melee and claimed security forces opened fire only after they were first shot at by militants engineering the insurrection against Indian rule of predominantly Moslem Kashmir.

Hospital and police sources in Srinagar, the Jammu and Kashmir summer capital, put the death toll higher. They said 65 were killed and more than 150 people remained hospitalized in serious condition. Witnesses accused security personnel of unprovoked and indiscriminate firing.

More than 400 people, most of them demonstrators shot by government forces have died since the revolt began in mid-January, and numerous Kashmiris complain of excesses and serious human-rights abuses by troops and paramilitary police.

Human-rights groups said they have confirmed numerous cases of abuse. They also charged Jagmohan's policies have fueled hatred of India among Kashmir's 4 million Moslem majority and created new recruits for outlawed militant groups.

Jagmohan has been stoutly defended by the Hindu chauvinist Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), which favors a tough policy against militants and Indian military action against camps purportedly run by Pakistan in which India claims the militants are receiving arms training.

Singh's minority National Front coalition depends on the BJP for its survival and has been reticent to remove Jagmohan. It joined the BJP in making statements against Pakistan that have raised concerns of a possible fourth Indo-Pakistan war.

Monday's incident, however, ignited demands for Jagmohan's resignation even from members of the prime minister's Janata Dal, the main component of his five-party ruling alliance.

''The prime minister can no longer choose to ignore the burgeoning pressure on him to recall Mr. Jagmohan from Srinagar,'' the independent Times of India said in an editorial Friday entitled: ''Time Jagmohan went.''

The issue consumed much of the morning session of the upper house of Parliament, with the opposition Congress (I) Party accusing Jagmohan of ''communal bias'' against Moslems and engaging in lengthy verbal duels with BJP legislators.

N.K.P. Salve, a Congress (I) Party member, said Singh's government was responsible for Jagmohan's ''repressive'' policies and called for his trial on charges of ''high treason.''

Meanwhile, security forces conducted house-to-house searches in Srinagar and nabbed at least 10 suspected militants for questioning about Farooq's murder.

Scores of people have been taken into custody for questioning since the Monday slaying, although the killers have not been identified.

GENEVA (MAY 25) UPI - PLO leader Yasser Arafat, warning of a fast approaching ''catastrophe,'' called on the U.N. Security Council Friday to send emergency peace-keeping forces to the Israeli-occupied territories.

The United States ruled out any such permanent force although a top official said it could be possible for U.N. inspectors to make ''a brief visit'' to the area.

Israeli Deputy Foreign Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said sending of U.N. observers or troops would require the consent of all parties.

''We will not give that consent,'' he told reporters.

Arafat, a special guest of the council, spoke for 50 minuites and bitterly attacked Israel and the United States.

The Palestine Liberation Organization chairman told the council - meeting for only the third time ever away from U.N. New York headquarters - that Israeli ''expansionism, invasion and stupid arrogance of military superiority'' has led to ''an extremely dangerous and explosive situation.''

''Israel is leading the whole region to a catastrophe unprecedented in its nature and which will spread beyond the borders of the region,'' he said, saying nuclear as well as chemical and biological weapons exist in the Midle East.

Arafat called on the Security Council to take five ''practical steps'' in ''shouldering its responsibilty'' for international peace and security:

-Have U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar designate a permament envoy to work full time on Middle East peace or ''undertake the duties of this mission on his own.''

-''Safeguard the lives, properties and holy places of Palestinians in the occupied territories under the flag of the United Nations and by means of international forces in addition to the deployment alongside of the United Nations observer force now stationed in Jerusalem with the purpose of ending completely the Israeli occupation of our Palestinian land.''

-''Stop (Jewish) settler immigration to completely prevent the construction and expansion of Israeli settlements, military or civilian, in the occupied Palestinian lands and particularly in Arab Jerusalem.''

-Call on the council's five permanent members - the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, China and France - to prepare the immediate convening of an international Middle East peace conference.

-Adopt arrangements ''for the imposition of sanctions on Israel ... as a response to the crimes committed by Israel against the Palestinian people '' as sanctions against South Africa led to independence for Namibia.

Arafat renewed the PLO's offer to negotiate directly with Israel, although he said the Israelis ''stubbornly reject'' all and any peace initiatives.

Thomas Pickering, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, did not plan any formal address at the initial Geneva session which was only convened so Arafat could speak, a top U.S. official said.

The 15-member council will only consider possible concrete action or resolutions when the debate continues in New York next week, the official said, but added that Pickering would intervene if judged necessary.

Diplomats were puzzled why Arafat chose to attack the United States as well at a time of strained U.S.-Israeli relations and with Washington prepared to back at least a temporary U.N. inspection in the occupied territories.

''I see it as my duty to point out, most regrettably, the unlimited support on all levels given by the USA to Israel which has encouraged it to continue the occupation and to escalate to terrorist and barbaric practices against the Palestinian people,'' he said.

''The USA which raises the slogan of human rights has totally neglected the Palestinians,'' Arafat said.

The high American official said the United States rejects any permanent U.N. peace-keeping or observer force in the region, although ''a short visit'' by U.N. inspectors could be acceptable.

Officals said after Arafat's speech that Washington would also oppose any sanctions against Israel as demanded by Arafat.

They said work on a resolution would start when the council continues its meeting in New York next Tuesday after the Memorial Day holiday on Monday.

MOSCOW (MAY 25) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev has softened his opposition to Lithuanian independence, making a compromise between Moscow and the tiny Baltic republic more likely, Lithuanian officials who met with Gorbachev said Friday.

The Lithuanian news agency ELTA said Gorbachev called Egidijus Bickauskas, chief of Lithuania's mission in Moscow, Wednesday evening and said he was prepared to talk about the crisis sparked by Lithuania's March 11 declaration of independence from the Soviet Union.

Nikolai Medvedev, one of four Lithuanian representatives who met with Gorbachev Thursday, quoted the Soviet leader as having said: ''It is in our interest to have a good neighbor rather than a constantly bleeding wound in the country.''

The meeting and Gorbachev's apparently more tolerant stance toward Lithuania signaled a possible breakthrough in the showdown between Vilnius and Moscow, and Medvedev hinted the republic may be willing to meet Gorbachev's demand that it freeze or suspend its independence declaration.

Medvedev told reporters in Moscow that Gorbachev had ''clearly said independence is acceptable'' and set a shorter term for achieving it than in his previous hard-line position.

Medvedev quoted Gorbachev as having said, ''If there is a divorce, it would take two years to divide up the property.''

Gorbachev previously insisted that Lithuania follow a new Soviet law on secession, which requires a five-year waiting period for any of the country's 15 republics seeking to secede.

Gorbachev also stressed the Lithuanians do not need ''to annul or revoke, but specifically to suspend (the independence declaration) at least for the period of negotiations,'' and that the wording of any act freezing the proclamation could be ''quite flexible,'' ELTA said.

Asked whether Gorbachev's softer stance might persuade the Lithuanian parliament to suspend its unilateral act, Medvedev responded: ''Perhaps even that.''

''Tactically, it would be better to wait (to freeze the independence declaration), but economically it would be very difficult,'' Medvedev said. ''We cannot even bring our farm products in from the countryside.''

Virtually all transportation in Lithuania has been paralyzed by the economic blockade Gorbachev imposed April 18, which cut off deliveries of crude oil and most other raw materials to the tiny northern republic.

If Lithuania agrees to suspend the independence proclamation, Gorbachev ''is prepared to begin negotiations immediately ... and promised not only to end the sanctions, but also to take measures to rebuild Lithuania's economy,'' ELTA said of the talks Thursday.

Lithuanian Parliament spokesman Edward Tuskenis said the republic's lawmakers would likely respond positively to Gorbachev's new offer.

''I think it's going to be considered seriously, at least by some people '' Tuskenis said by telephone from Vilnius.

The Lithuanian Parliament passed a resolution Wednesday night freezing laws implementing sovereignty on the condition that Moscow agree to hold ''interstate'' negotiations, but it refused to withdraw the independence declaration.

Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov told reporters at the Supreme Soviet Thursday that the declaration of independence must be frozen or suspended for talks with Moscow.

''If it is drafted so that the declaration of independence is at least suspended, that would be a step forward for negotiations or at least discussions of the Lithuanian issue,'' he said. ''(But) if again there is no mention of the declaration, there is no basis for further discussions.''

To force the Lithuanians to back down, Gorbachev has imposed an economic embargo, drastically slashing oil and natural gas supplies to the Baltic republic.

ELTA quoted Gorbachev as having told the Lithuanian delegation during the Kremlin meeting: ''I understand your desires. You are acting honorably, openly and consistently, but for (secession) negotiation is necesssary.''

Medvedev, an ethnic Russian born in Lithuania who holds seats in both the Soviet and Lithuanian parliaments, was joined in the talks by Lithuanian mission chief Bickauskas, Forestry Minister Vaidotas Antanaitis and Romas Gudaitis, a deputy in the local legislature.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - USAir Inc. has reached a marketing agreement with Alitalia Airlines, sources close to the airlines said Friday.

Terms of the marketing agreement will be announced Monday in Rome by the Italian carrier, the sources said.

Until now, Arlington, Va.-based USAir did not have a marketing agreement with another airline for the European market. The Italian flag carrier, in turn, did not have a marketing agreement for the U.S. market.

USAir currently has a limited service to Europe and only flies to London. Next month, the carrier will start service to Frankfurt, West Germany.

USAir, whose parent company USAir Group recently posted a loss in its operations, could be involved in yet another agreement with a foreign airline.

In Tokyo, All Nippon Airways, Japan's leading domestic carrier, said it was close to signing an agreement with USAir for a joint venture on the route linking Washington, D.C., and Orlando, Fla.

Plans call for All Nippon to launch passenger service on the route in October, using crew and equipment offered by USAir and purchasing part of the seats for its own service.

Company executives said the new service will attract Japanese travelers planning to visit Disney World near Orlando.

All Nippon now operates six weekly flights between Tokyo and Washington.

BEIJING (MAY 25) UPI - China beefed up its tough state secrets law, saying Friday that breaches in security fueled last year's ill-fated democracy movement.

The announcement in the state-run Legal Daily newspaper came 10 days before the first anniversary of China's brutal June 4 crackdown on peaceful demonstrators in Tiananmen Square.

''The turmoil and counterrevolutionary rebellion that took place in our country last spring ... proves that the struggle between guarding and protecting state secrets is becoming increasingly sharp and complex,'' the daily said in a commentary.

The commentary accompanied a new 41-point measure designed to enforce current laws protecting state secrets.

''Counterrevolutionary rebellion'' is the hard-line government's official term for last spring's demonstrations for greater freedom, which began on Beijing college campuses and spread nationwide.

Under the new rules, security authorities will step up the policing of officials with access to state secrets.

Security workers responsible for enforcing the measure should ''fight against all indications of violating'' China's state secrets law, the commentary said.

Enforcement of the new law will fall to China's shadowy State Security

Ministry, established in 1983 to oversee counterintelligence and monitor contact between Chinese and foreigners.

The measure appears to be aimed partly at stemming leaks to the foreign press.

Despite a tough state secrets law passed in 1988, reports on confidential government and Communist Party documents have appeared regularly in the foreign press over the past decade of China's open-door reforms.

According to the 1988 law, state secrets are divided into the three categories: secret, confidential and top secret. Serious violations of the state secrets law are punishable by death.

The Legal Daily said the new measure is a ''forceful weapon to undertake the struggle against stealing state secrets'' and will be strictly enforced nationwide.

BEAUMONT, TX (MAY 25) UPI - Mark Durand gave his fiancee, Bambi Medley, a $4,000 diamond ring when they became engaged.

When they divorced after a year of marriage, he wanted the ring back. She wanted to keep it. So they went to court.

A state district judge said Bambi Durand could keep the ring after her lawyer argued that it was a gift.

But a state appeals court ruled Thursday that she must return the ring to her husband.

''At best, it was a very conditional gift as a matter of law,'' Associate Justice Jack Brookshire said.

''The record glaringly asserts that the ring was conditioned on the marriage staying together and that Bambi Durand had definitely promised that, if the marriage dissolved, the ring would be delivered to the husband,'' Brookshire said in his ruling.

Bambi Durand agreed that she had always wanted a 2-carat diamond ring, the court found. Before they were married, she asked her fiance to buy one.

The court said that Mark Durand suggested that the couple buy a less expensive ring until they could afford a bigger one.

''In any event, the lady insisted on a 2-carat diamond ring. Such a ring was found for the price of about $4,000. Since the young man was without funds, he had to borrow the same,'' Brookshire said.

Bambi Durand told her husband before and during the marriage that if the marriage dissolved, she would return the ring, she said in earlier testimony.

They had separated twice before the third separation that ended in divorce. On the first two separations, she returned the ring.

On the third separation, the husband insisted that the couple go to counseling, which Bambi Durand said she did not want to do, the opinion stated.

''But after the counseling sessions, which she dissapproved of, she failed (to return the ring),'' Brookshire said. ''The counseling had made her angry.''

ABIDJAN, IVORY COAST (MAY 25) UPI - Customs officers in the Ivory Coast struck Friday and disgruntled troops firing automatic weapons seized control of Abidjan port and airport, security sources and witnesses said.

Shooting broke out during the early morning in Abidjan's large port area, and armed troops later blocked off the Houphouet-Boigny bridge, one of the two bridges linking the city centre with the airport at Port-Bouet, 5 miles from Abidjan. No casualties were reported.

The customs officers were demanding that they become part of the armed forces, as well as asking for improved pay and working conditions.

President Felix Houphouet-Boigny met a delegation of customs officials Friday and said that he would consider their demands and announce his conclusions next Wednesday.

The strike is the latest in a series of protests by members of the key security and emergency services. On Saturday, the president is to announce his response to demands by fire fighters for better pay and an end to automatic monthly payments made to the party by state employees, officials said.

Soldiers and militia from the special guard of the ruling Democratic Party were in heavy presence at Abidjan airport. There were no customs officers on duty, although flights have continued to arrive and depart throughout the day.

The few remaining airport staff members told UPI that the absence of customs officials had not stopped people leaving or entering the country. However, armed soldiers were asking people the purpose of their visits as they arrived at the airport.

At the port, lorries carrying the country's vital coffee supplies, which is Ivory Coast's second major export, were lined up outside the barred gates near the quaysides.

Soldiers stopped cars from traveling towards the closed bridge, which leads from the port to the president's offices, scene of protests in the past two weeks.

In the past weeks the government has generally given in to the demands of strikers. Police officers and soldiers who mutinied last week have all had their demands for better working conditions met.

The customs officers' strike comes only a day after the government announced new plans to revitalize the economy. It was a series of public sector pay cuts and nationwide tax increase which unleashed the current rash of protests in February and March.

The government announced Wednesday that a new economic austerity would be introduced next Friday which seek to increase state income by improving the efficiency of the custom and tax services. Action is also to be taken against fraud and corruption.

While the customs officers strike is not a direct response to the new austerity measures, their role is clearly going to increase in importance as the government attempts to improve its finances, Ivory Coast watchers say.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said Friday a U.S.-Soviet strategic nuclear arms reduction treaty is ''clearly within our grasp.''

Cheney, in an interview on CNN, said he is confident the United States can reach agreement with the Soviets on reducing strategic weapons by between 30 percent and 35 percent.

''I am reasonably confident we can do that,'' Cheney said, adding that Secretary of State James Baker's latest trip to Moscow ''produced, I think some significant breakthroughs in terms of cruise missile agreements. We think we've got the broad outlines of a treaty pretty well in hand. There's still some outstanding issues. But I think a START agreement is clearly within our grasp.''

Baker told reporters Wednesday that President Bush ''will work toward finalizing a Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty this year, which would reduce the superpower arsenals, not just cap the levels of weapons.''

A strategic arms reduction treaty has been an elusive goal for U.S.-Soviet summits since 1987, when President Ronald Reagan and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev embraced the idea of a 50 percent reduction in nuclear arms as a step toward total elimination.

Cheney said, ''It's important here to remember what the terms are. The goal was to get a 50 percent reduction in the number of re-entry vehicles on ballistic missiles, that is on fast-flying weapons systems. The way the counting rules work, though, with respect to START, they encourage the deployment on bombers, that is slow flyers that can be recalled in a crisis and that counting rule is different. The net result when you get all through is going to be a reduction of 30 percent of strategic weapons although it's a higher percentage reduction of the ballistic missile warheads.''

Under complex formulas, the two superpowers already have agreed to limit themselves to 6,000 warheads each. But the ''counting rules'' actually will allow far more warheads. By some estimates, the United States can have just over 11,000 warheads and the Soviet Union about 9,000. Of those figures, up to 880 sea-launched cruise missiles will be the subject of a side-letter rather than part of the treaty itself.

Exclusive of the sea-launched cruise missiles, the United States will have about 10,200 treaty-covered warheads, and Moscow about 8,250. The United States now has roughly 12,000 warheads on strategic weapons, Moscow about 11,000.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (MAY 25) UPI - A fellow prisoner tried to kill Mohammed Ali Hamadi, a convicted Lebanese Shiite extremist serving time in a German prison for hijacking a 1985 TWA flight to Beirut, a Lebanese magazine said Friday. Ash Shiraa, the magazine that broke the U.S. arms-for-hostages story, said the attack occurred early this month and Hamadi escaped with a minor injury.

Ash Shiraa said in an article to be published Saturday and written by the magazine's editor-in-chief, Hassan Sabra, that an Israeli inmate convicted on drugs and sex abuse charges tried to stab Hamadi in the neck with a dagger. Hamadi resisted and was cut on the arm, the magazine said.

Ash Shiraa said Hamadi was earlier transferred from a fifth floor cell to a third floor cell near the Israeli, identified only as Youssef, and said the move could suggest "there may be a well-organized plan to get rid of him."

Jochen Schroers, a spokesman for the state prosecutor's office in Frankfurt, refused to confirm or deny the report but acknowledged hearing "something had happened" at the prison. But he said he was certain Hamadi was not injured. Some Ash Shiraa reports in the past have been inaccurate. Ash Shiraa said Youssef tried to provoke Hamadi by kicking and insulting him almost every day.

Hamadi, the brother of a senior security official in the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, was sentenced to life in prison by a Frankfurt court for the hijacking of TWA 847 and the murder of U.S. Navy diver Robert Stethem, a passenger on the flight.

Sabra said the attack may have been organized by the West German government to pressure the kidnappers of two of its nationals held hostage in Lebanon.

West Germans Thomas Kemptner and Henrich Struebig, employees of the West German relief agency Asme Humanitas, were kidnapped in the southern Lebanese city of Sidon on May 16, 1989.

Their abduction occurred a few hours before a Frankfurt court sentenced Hamadi to life imprisonment and was seen as a last-minute attempt by Shiite extremists to influence the verdict.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Scientists told Congress Friday the ''plausible cause'' of the explosion aboard the battleship USS Iowa that killed 47 sailors was an accident, caused by over-ramming powder charges into a 16-inch gun barrel.

Members of Congress and families of the dead 47 sailors bitterly assailed the Navy for its original conclusion that the explosion was probably the result of sabotage by gunner's mate Clayton Hartwig, who died in the blast.

''Blame was placed on Hartwig because of an inability to find other reasons,'' Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said. ''The rush to blame Hartwig was flat wrong.''

Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., called the Navy's effort ''flawed'' and said its conclusion of a ''wrongful, intentional act is not supported by reliable, probative and substantial evidence.''

But Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, in an interview on Cable News Network, said he was reserving judgment on the Navy. ''At this point I'd like to keep my powder dry, so to speak,'' Cheney said.

The 47 sailors were killed when an explosion ripped through the Iowa's No. 2 gun turret during firing practice in the Atlantic Ocean on April 19, 1989. The turret housed three of the ship's nine 16-inch guns.

After a five-month investigation, the Navy ruled out accidental cause or mechanical malfunction and concluded the blast was most likely the result of an intentional act by Hartwig.

But Sandia National Laboratories of Albuquerque, N.M., which recently completed independent tests and analysis of the Navy's Iowa investigation at Nunn's request, told the Senate Armed Services Committee Friday in its report:

''We conclude that a plausible cause of the explosion aboard the USS Iowa was a higher-than-normal speed overram of the bag charges into the rear of the projectile, initiating one of the forward bag charges.''

Richard Schwoebel, director of Sandia's components division, told the panel that scientists were able to achieve ignition of powder-charge bags when the same pressure was applied that would occur from over-ramming.

In 16-inch naval guns, a mechanical ramming rod pushes the shell and the powder-charge bags into the open rear of the barrel and then is withdrawn before the breech is closed and the gun fired.

Schwoebel also said that substances found in the barrel of the Iowa's 16-inch gun that the Navy said was residue of a detonator could not be determined to be from a detonator and that most of the ingredients were commonly found on battleships.

The scientists' testimony to the Senate committee came one day after the Navy ordered a halt to the firing of the massive 16-inch guns on its battleships and reopened its investigation into the Iowa explosion.

The Navy took the action when a new Navy test - prompted by Sandia's initial findings - resulted in the ignition of powder bags when they were dropped from a tower Thursday. Nunn had notified the Navy in mid-May of Sandia's findings.

Nunn said ''additional work by the Navy will be essential to bringing Sandia's work to its logical conclusion,'' and the Navy told him it plans to conduct tests for at least two more weeks.

But he also said Sandia's findings exposed ''significant shortcomings in the Navy's investigation'' and raised ''grave doubts'' about the Navy's conclusions.

''This morning's testimony has identified a very plausible, if not probable, explanation for the explosion,'' Nunn said.

LONDON (MAY 25) UPI - Stock prices closed lower in light trading Friday on the London International stock exchange.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 10.3 points Thursday, lost 11.5 points to 2,265.6.

For the week, the key index, which measures the value of Britain's largest 100 companies in terms of market capitalization, posted a loss of 3.5 points.

The narrower top 30 industrial average lost 9.1 points to 1,796.1 but added 2.8 points for the week.

Volume amounted to around 386 million shares, down from the 420 million shares that changed hands on Thursday.

Analysts said prices eased amid disappointing increases in U.S. spending and incomes, coupled with the early fall on Wall Street, prompted a sympathetic decline in Britain's market.

On the economic front, Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major reiterated his belief that U.K. interest rates need to remain high for some time yet.

Major, speaking to the Edinburgh Chamber of Commerce, said there were not enough indicators pointing in the direction of an economic slowdown.

''Although there are plenty of signs that the economy is righting itself '' Major said, ''there need to be a great deal more before anyone should anticipate interest rates being relaxed.''

On the trading floor, Imperial Chemical Industries lost 16 cents to $18.64 and Grand Metropolitan fell 26 cents to $9.44 as investors showed dismay with the group's decision to hold on to its U.S. pet foods division.

P and O, a ferry operator, fell 17 cents to $9.61, reflectng an appeal of the corporate manslaughter charge faced by the company following the Zeebrugge ferry disaster in 1987.

Among some of the day's other highlights, Bass fell 14 cents to $16.60, Euro Disney tumbled 78 cents to $17.56, Capital Radio added 14 cents to $2.73 and Central Television gained 14 cents to $10.78.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange closed lower in light trading.

The closely watched German Stock Index eased 8.63 points to 1,823.17.

Traders noted there was no major selling pressure.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - A limited partnership led by Texas financier T. Boone Pickens announced Friday that it has approximately halved its investment in Edisto Resources Corp. The announcement was contained in an amendment to a Schedule 13D filed Friday with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Mesa L.P., which lists Pickens as its general partner, sold a total of 1.5 million shares of Edisto common stock as of May 22, according to the filing. Mesa retained 1.87 million shares over which it has sole voting power. The May 22 transaction reduces Mesa's stake from about 24 percent to 13.6 percent of Edisto's 13 million shares outstanding.

Mesa, an oil and gas exploration firm, in 1986 swapped oil and gas properties outside its principal areas of interest with Edisto for a one-third stake in the company, which at that time was a limited partnership called NMR Energy LP.

When Edisto converted to a corporation last year, the value of Mesa's investment increased 20 percent, but the company's earnings did not show a similar increase.

"It was our desire to reduce our holding to less than 20 percent of (Edisto's) outstanding stock so we did not have to consolidate its earnings," said Steve Gardner, a Mesa consultant. In addition to serving as Mesa's general partner, Pickens owns five percent of the limited partnership.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Avco Financial Services Inc. filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission for a shelf offering of up to $500 million in bonds and warrants, according to a registration statement released Friday at the SEC.

The shelf registration, which gives the company the right to periodically issue the bonds and warrants at terms to be set at the time of sale, was filed Thursday. When combined with Avco's previously registered debt securities that remain unsold, the new issue allows Avco to raise $764 million.

The new bonds will be issued as senior, senior subordinated, or junior subordinated debt. The warrants may be issued separately or in combination with the bonds.

Avco Financial Services is a consumer finance and insurance company based in Irvine, Calif., that has 1,185 offices located throughout the United States. Textron Inc. owns all of Avco's outstanding stock.

HOUSTON (MAY 25) UPI - The federal government has accused The Circle K Corp. of trying to fire Vietnamese employees and other Asians working in area convenience stores.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, in a suit filed in federal district court, claims local Circle K officials in July 1985 ordered managers who oversaw multiple stores to fire all Asian employees or force possible termination themselves.

The suit said Circle K forced two managers to resign after they refused to fire two employees based on their national origin. The government is not sure how many people lost their jobs because of Circle K's alleged decision to rid itself of employees of Asian or Vietnamese descent, John Williams, an EEOC attorney, said Thursday.

About 100 Asians were believed to have been working for Circle K when the policy allegedly was put in place. "The firings were to be done strictly because of race," Williams said. As far as the EEOC is aware, Houston is the only city in which the tactic was used, he said.

Attorney George Parker Jr. of San Antonio represents Circle K, but declined comment until he could study the lawsuit.

Circle K has 218 stores and about 1,300 employees in the Houston area. The Phoenix-based corporation last week filed for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

Williams said the directive to fire Vietnamese and Asian employees came from a "high level" at Circle K, but declined to be more specific. But a manager cited in the suit, Bill Sargent, said the order came in early 1986 from a corporation official responsible for 246 stores in the area.

Sargent claimed the official's decision to fire Vietnamese employees apparently stemmed from a desire to "upgrade" Circle K's image and give jobs to whites looking for work in a sluggish economy. Sargent said he quit in February 1986 rather than fire the Vietnamese workers at eight stores he managed in southeast Houston.

PARIS (MAY 25) UPI - French authorities Friday discovered that vandals have desecrated two more cemeteries and the rightist National Front accused Interior Minister Pierre Joxe of covering up for those who desecrated a Jewish cemetery two weeks ago at Carpentras.

About 50 Roman Catholic tombs and a church were damaged late Wednesday or early Thursday in eastern France at Thonon-Les-Bains on the banks of Lake Leman, police said.

And in the far north of the country, at the village of Ecault, near Boulogne-sur-Mer, vandals painted swastikas, Jewish Stars of David and anti-Semitic graffiti on about 30 graves at a cemetery that also holds Roman Catholic graves.

Nobody has claimed responsibility for the profanations.

''It must be the act of an unbalanced person, without doubt influenced by the affair at Carpentras,'' police at Boulogne-sur-Mer said. At least 34 graves were desecrated May 10 at Carpentras, the oldest Jewish graveyard in France, and the body of an elderly Jewish man was dug up and impaled on a parasol handle.

At Thonon-les-Bains, vandals climbed over a wall, pulled up stone crosses, damaged a monument and smashed 10 plaques. Vandals attacked the same cemetery last July.

A small Jewish section in the Thonon-les-Bains cemetery was unharmed. Vandals also smashed windows, candles and a crucifix and overturned benches inside a Capucins Fathers Chapel near the graveyard.

In the southern city of Avignon, a regional councillor for the National Front, which opposes increased immigration to France, accused Joxe of ''covering the authors'' of the desecration of the cemetery at Carpentras.

Councillor Jacques Bompard, a former deputy in the National Assembly, claimed to have ''information according to which Monsieur Joxe is covering the authors who are of Maghreb origin.''

The statement was expected to provoke an angry reaction from the left and the Arab community in France, which blamed National Front leader Jean-Marie Le Pen for inciting desecration at Carpentras.

Police have made little progress in finding those responsible for the desecration at Carpentras, which sparked nationwide protests including a march in Paris in which President Francois Mitterrand took part.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (MAY 25) UPI - The Supreme Court found a former bodyguard of Winnie Mandela guilty Friday of murdering a 14-year-old activist and said the wife of nationalist leader Nelson Mandela was present during the torture of the child and three other young men.

The rulings raised the possibility Winnie Mandela could face assault charges, since the three surviving youths accused her of attacking them with her fists and whips. But a finding that the cause of death for Stopie Moeketsi Seipei was stabbing appeared to exclude Mrs. Mandela from facing murder charges.

The murder of Seipei in January 1989 and the abduction and beating of the three other blacks, shocked anti-apartheid groups into accusing Winnie Mandela of ''complicity'' and calling for her repudiation by the black community.

Nelson Mandela earlier this week defended his wife, saying she had been the target of government attempts to ''besmirch'' her reputation. Mandela, in prison at the time of the incidents, said her refusal to testify at the trial was intended to protect her should the government decide to formally charge her.

Rand Supreme Court Justice Brian O'Donovan, wearing a traditional red gown said overwhelming circumstantial evidence led ''irresistably to the conclusion'' that Jerry Richardson, 42, had murdered the young anti-apartheid activist.

He also found Richardson - the former coach of the Mandela United soccer team that doubled as Mrs. Mandela's group of bodyguards - guilty of four counts of kidnapping, one count of attempted murder and five charges of assault.

Richardson, who pleaded not guilty, faces a maximum sentence of death, although executions have been suspended by President Frederik de Klerk pending approval of new criminal law giving courts a more liberal interpretation of the imposition of the death penalty.

Defense lawyers were granted an adjournment until August to prepare psychological evidence in mitigation of sentence.

Richardson, wearing a yellow jogging suit with the word ''Slovo'' emblazoned across the chest after South African Communist Party leader Joe Slovo, showed little signs of reaction. A couple friends shook his hands and gave him some cash after the court adjourned.

Authorities have said Seipei, a township activist nicknamed ''Stompie'' because of his short size, was accused by Richardson of being a police informer.

According to authorities, he was abducted by Richardson and other members of the soccer team from a Methodist Church hostel in the sprawling black satellite city of Soweto on Dec. 29, 1988 and taken to Mrs. Mandela's house.

''The court finding on the issue is that Mrs. Mandela was present on Dec. 29 for at least part of the time,'' O'Donovan said in accepting state testimony she was there and rejecting Richardson's testimony she was not at home.

''Evidence that Mrs. Mandela was present for only part of the assault on that night and that she left while the assaults were proceeding has, the court finds, a ring of truth,'' the justice said.

The judge's ruling Mrs. Mandela was present during some of the torture raised the possibility she could be charged should court records be forwarded to the attorney general's office.

All three men abducted with Seipei, Kenny Kgase, 31, Thabiso Mono, 20, and Pelo Mekgwe, testified they were assaulted by Mrs. Mandela with her fists and whips, then by Richardson and others.

Authorities said the three other were accused of having sexual relations with the Methodist Church's white minister, the Rev. Paul Verryn.

Kgase quoted Mrs. Mandela as telling them, ''You are not fit to be alive.''

Kgase escaped from the Mandela house and the two others were released later into the custody of anti-apartheid lawyers after Seipei's murder.

After three days of beatings, Seipei allegedly was taken from the house, and the other men testified Richardson returned the following day with bloodstains on his shoes. Seipei's badly decomposed body was found in a Soweto field a week later.

(MAY 25) UPI - The United Nations Security Council is meeting outside New York today to discuss ways to curb violence in the Israeli-occupied territories. Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat will address the council in Geneva. U-N officials and involved diplomats will NOT make a decision about sending U-N peace-keeping troops to the West Bank and Gaza Strip because they believe the United States will automatically veto such a move.

President Bush will spend the Memorial Day holiday at his seaside vacation home in Kennebunkport, Maine. The president will spend the three-day weekend meeting with aides and preparing for next week's summit with Soviet President Gorbachev. But it's NOT expected to be all work and NO play. Bush also plans to fish, golf, and play some tennis.

Congress passed a supplemental spending bill that includes a total of 720-Million dollars in emergency aid for Nicaragua and Panama. Bush administration officials have said Nicaragua is bankrupt. Both nations need American money to help rebuild crumbling economies, hurt in part by U-S government actions intended to overthrow the nations' governments. The bill also includes money for domestic programs here in the United States, such as food stamps and flood relief.

Outspoken Soviet lawmaker Boris Yeltsin may be the next president of the Soviet republic of Russia. The Russian premier has decided to withdraw his candidacy as president of the giant republic which makes up three-quarters of the Soviet Union and includes half of its 285-Million people. Yeltsin favors a rapid transfer to a market economy for the Russian republic, which he says is sick. If the Russian parliament elects Yeltsin, it would give him a solid base from which to challenge Soviet President Gorbachev.

JERUSALEM (MAY 25) UPI - Israeli troops remained on guard against unrest in the occupied territories Friday as the U.N. Security Council discussed the violence in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

A curfew to prevent further unrest during Moslem Sabbath prayers remained in effect.

Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, asked the council meeting in Geneva to send U.N. peacekeeping troops to the Israeli-occupied territories to safeguard the lives and property of Palestinians.

In the Gaza Strip and West Bank, Palestinians listened to Arafat's speech on Radio Monte Carlo broadcasting from Paris. In Gaza City, many Arabs went to their roofs after the speech to celebrate, whistling and shouting ''God is Great.''

The United States has said it might agree to a proposal to allow U.N. inspectors to make a short visit to the area. Israel has ruled out stationing any type of U.N. observers or forces in the territories.

In the West Bank, four Palestinians attacked an Israeli settler working in his banana fields early Friday, stabbing him in the chest and stealing his pistol before fleeing, military sources and Army Radio reported.

The military clamped a curfew on the nearby village of Tammun in their search for the assailants. Army Radio reported three suspects were detained and a fourth, who apparently had the stolen weapon, remained at large.

The army was determined to prevent more violence and to keep Palestinian casualties to a minimum, military sources said.

Since Sunday, 14 Palestinians have been killed and hundreds wounded in riots that erupted after seven Arab workers from Gaza were gunned down by an Israeli outside the Israeli town of Rishon Le Zion.

''The goal is zero casualties,'' one military source said. ''In the wake of (this week's) casualties, from the top commander to the lowest soldier, there is a real feeling that it is vital to lower the casualties and that has been the general trend.''

Maj. Gen. Matan Vilna'i, whose command includes the Gaza Strip, gave orders that only officers above the rank of lieutenant colonel could give permission to fire plastic or rubber bullets at demonstrators, the Israeli daily Al Hamishmar reported.

Israel came under sharp international criticism, including from its closest ally, the United States, for the high number of casualties, making the week one of the bloodiest in the 29-month-old uprising. Israeli leaders, however, have said their forces performed in an exemplary manner against thousands of rioting Palestinians.

They also accused Palestinian activists of using the workers' deaths to refuel the uprising, known in Arabic as the intifada, in the territories, which have been relatively calm in recent months. In an effort to contain the violent reaction, the military slapped curfews on the entire Gaza Strip and much of the West Bank.

After violence subsided by midweek, the military lifted curfews on several areas, but reimposed them Friday because of Moslem prayers. Area commanders had the authority to allow individuals to attend prayers at local mosques.

In Jerusalem, police and paramilitary Border Police maintained a reinforced vigil as Moslems attended Friday prayers at the Haram al Sharif known also as the Temple Mount, Islam's third holiest site and revered by Jews as the site of their destroyed temples.

Police said they detained and were investigating a 16-year-old Arab at the Lion's Gate entrance to the walled Old City who had in his possession an ax, knife and mask.

Several hours after prayers broke up, an Israeli civilian was hit in the head by a stone as he was driving through Arab East Jerusalem, police said.

Five prominent Palestinians started a hunger strike at Red Cross offices in Gaza City, following the footsteps of dozens of West Bank and East Jerusalem Palestinians who began refusing food Sunday to demands the withdrawal of Israeli troops from the territories.

(MAY 25) UPI - The Tennessee Emergency Management Agency says 31 cars of a freight train jumped the tracks near Covington last night. The derailment ignited a chemical fire and forced the evacuation of about 750 people. Agency spokesman Cecil Whaley says there were NO reported injuries. Whaley adds the derailed cars contained alcohol used as a base in pharmaceutical products.

Authorities in Jacksonville, Florida, think a pair of tennis shoes found inside a 350-pound tiger shark caught earlier this week may belong to a missing Jacksonville police officer. Commercial fishermen were cleaning the fish when they discovered human body parts inside the big shark. The shoes have been identified by some family members as belonging to Officer Thomas Caron who was lost at sea last month during a fishing excursion. The body of his fellow officer, Ronald Jones, was found.

The National Weather Service says at least 18 twisters ripped across the northern Plains and Mississippi Valley late yesterday. Nine tornadoes swept through Kansas, injuring at least six people, damaging farm buildings and derailing 88 empty cars of a coal train. The Trinity River in southeast Texas is beginning to ebb, and the Oachita River has crested in Arkansas without causing serious problems.

Police in Kissimmee, Florida, are a bit red-faced after getting a police officer very drunk during a training exercise and then realizing he was too young to legally be served alcohol. Officials say 19-year-old Officer Elbert ''Scooter'' Smith volunteered to get drunk last weekend so recruits would learn how to recognize and handle a drunken driver. But Florida's drinking age is 21. The exercise was done with the full consent and knowledge of the Kissimmee Police Academy and academy chief Wayne Sorrell says he accepts full responsibility for what went on.

OAKLAND, CA (MAY 25) UPI - Two anti-logging ''eco-guerrillas'' hurt in a pipe bomb explosion were arrested Friday and accused of building the device themselves.

Judi Bari, 40, and Darryl Cherney, 33, members of the Earth First! environmental organization, were charged with the ''possession and transportation'' of the bomb that exploded Thursday in a station wagon in which they were driving, sending it careening into a car and a truck.

''The decision to arrest was based on the placement of the device, the nature of its construction and physical and other evidence developed by the investigators,'' police Lt. Mike Sims said.

Sims made the announcement at a news conference held under heavy security as demonstrators gathered outside the Hall of Justice in Oakland to protest the arrests. He told reporters a device similar to the one involved in Thursday's blast had partially exploded May 8 at a lumber mill in Cloverdale, Calif.

Police suspect Bari and Cherney had intended to use the bomb that exploded Thursday, Sims said.

''We don't know what form that would take,'' he said. ''We're making an assumption that if a bomb is built, it was intended to be used.''

A firefighter at the scene of the explosion had told reporters the device was apparently placed under the front seat of the car. Asked if there was evidence the defendants had made the bomb, Sims said, ''Yes,'' but would not elaborate.

The two environmentalists were headed for Santa Cruz, Calif., to recruit students for a summer protest when the blast occurred. They had been organizing college students nationwide to participate in what Earth First! has dubbed a non-violent ''Redwood Summer,'' of blocking logging trucks and picketing timber operations in Northern California's forests starting June 1.

Earth First! spokesman Alan Van Tress said in a statement that Cherney and Bari ''are thoroughly committed to non-violence.''

''It smells like a setup to me,'' he said.

Bari, who had said recently her life had been threatened because of her involvement in Earth First!, suffered a fractured pelvis in the blast and was hospitalized in critical but stable condition after undergoing surgery. Cherney was treated for facial cuts and turned over to the authorities.

Sims said police searched two houses in Oakland that had been visited by Bari and Cherney but did not find any other explosives. No other arrests were anticipated, he said.

The blast occurred near Oakland High School near where a track class was jogging, but no students were injured. School officials said if the blast had happened 10 minutes later, there would have been hundreds of students in or near the street on their lunch break.

The car was apparently in a convoy of three vehicles carrying Earth First! members. Just after the blast, a man in one of the other cars jumped out and started yelling, ''It's the loggers. The loggers are trying to kill us.''

Bari, of Mendocino, Calif., and Cherney, of Garberville, Calif., have been active in organizing the summer protest to help save some 30,000 acres of giant redwoods belonging to Pacific Lumber Co. Another 130,000 acres of redwoods are protected in federal and state parkland.

Bari said Tuesday during an interview on San Francisco radio station KCBS that death threats have been phoned and tacked to her door, and that she was once run off the road by logging trucks while driving with her two children on a remote road near Mendocino.

Earth First! once advocated such methods of fighting logging as the ''spiking'' of trees with steel rods that would cause chainsaws to whip if they were hit, endangering the lives of lumberjacks. Last month, Cherney said such violent measures were not tolerated or practiced by the group.

Earth First!, based in Tucson, Ariz., claims about 15,000 members, who some call ''eco-guerrillas.'' They say they are fighting to protect 4 billion years of evolution, and call their industrial opponents ''greedheads'' and ''eco-thugs.'' In addition to tree spiking and chaining themselves to soon-to-be-logged trees, they have been accused of such ''monkeywrenching'' tactics as pouring sand in the fuel tanks of logging bulldozers, pulling up survey stakes and tearing down power lines.

Earth First! co-founder, Dave Foreman, was recently arrested in the Arizona desert and is awaiting trial on charges of plotting to cut power lines leading to a Central Arizona Project pumping plant. The arrest of Foreman and three others followed an FBI infiltration and investigation into what authorities said was a plot to cut the power lines to three nuclear plants.

Foreman is the author of ''Ecodefense: A Field Guide to Monkeywrenching,'' a handbook on how to carry out sabotage, or ''ecotage,'' as Earth First! calls it. He is being defended by high-profile attorney Gerry Spence, who says the government has carried out a deliberate program of harrassment to discredit the organization.

OTTAWA (MAY 25) UPI - A Canadian proposal to brief Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev after future economic summits is gaining acceptance among the Group of Seven leading industrialized nations, Canadian government officials said Friday.

The officials, at a briefing for reporters on Gorbachev's two-day visit next week to Ottawa, said the idea was first raised by Prime Minister Brian Mulroney when he met with Gorbachev last November in Moscow. The idea is being pursued by government officials from various countries who are preparing for an economic summit scheduled for July in Houston.

"One of the interests Canada has is to bring the Soviet Union into the international framework. The sooner it happens, the better for all of us," said a senior Canadian official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Mark Entwhistle, a spokesman for the External Affairs Department, said Mulroney has proposed that the chairman of future economic summits brief Gorbachev on the substance of the meetings so he is "kept abreast of the macroeconomics in world developments."

Gorbachev's visit to Canada, which precedes a summit in Washington with President Bush, has been kept deliberately low-key. The Soviet leader declined an invitation from Canada to address Parliament but will make a public speech at the National Art Gallery on Wednesday. Gorbachev arrives in Ottawa May 29 and will spend most of the two days in private meetings with Canadian politicians.

Government officials stressed the need for western leaders to publicly throw their support behind Gorbachev's program of reforms. "His problems are extremely serious," said one official. "There is not much we can do for him except in terms of economic relations. It is incumbent on other leaders to support him."

The official said it was important the Russians understand "that what he has set in motion is having positive effects, that arms are being reduced on both sides and the Soviet Union will be able to devote its energies to economic reforms."

Gorbachev last visited Canada in 1983 as a senior member of the Politburo in charge of agriculture. Since then, Canada has maintained its status as the Soviet Union's single largest supplier of wheat. Canada has about 26.4 percent of the Soviet wheat market, compared to the European Community's 26.5 percent.

Canadian officials said the Soviet Union is attempting to become self-sufficient in wheat production but would continue to buy large quantities of Canadian grain because it is valued for bread-making.

But one official said that Soviet agricultural reforms appeared more "on paper than in the field" and that it was doubtful whether the country would become self-sufficient in wheat.

SAN FERNANDO, CA (MAY 25) UPI - A woman described as an obsessed fan of actress Sharon Gless has pleaded innocent to charges she barricaded herself in the actress's home with a loaded rifle, court officials said Friday.

The woman, Joni Leigh Penn, 30, of Garden Grove, allegedly broke into Gless's home and planned to sexually assault the actress, then commit suicide, prosecutors have said.

Penn, appearing in Superior Court Thursday for arraignment, pleaded not guilty to two felony counts of residential burglary. She was ordered by Superior Court Judge John Major to remain in custody without bail and to return to court June 7 for a pretrial hearing. A July 12 trial was also scheduled.

If convicted of the charges, Penn could be sentenced to up to six years in state prison. Penn had been scheduled to be arraigned Friday, but her case was moved up a day because court officials mistakenly believed that Judge Major's courtroom would not be open Friday.

The District Attorney's Office said that Penn, armed with a loaded rifle, broke into Gless' Studio City home March 30, threatened suicide and barricaded herself in a bathroom for nearly seven hours before surrendering to police.

Penn, who was purportedly in love with Gless, also allegedly broke into the home on March 27.

Gless, the Emmy award-winning star of the television police drama ''Cagney and Lacey,'' which also starred actress Tyne Daly, was not home during either break-in.

Prosecutors said Penn allegedly planned to sexually assault Gless, then commit suicide in front of her.

The woman had mailed hundreds of letters to Gless, who later obtained a restraining order against her, prosecutors said.

BOSTON (MAY 25) UPI - The money-losing owner of Sail magazine has agreed to sell the slick monthly to British-owned Cahners Publishing for an undisclosed price, the two companies said Friday.

Meredith Corp., a diversified media company based in Des Moines, Iowa, is selling Sail "as a strategic move" and not because of the loss the company says it will suffer for the year that ends June 30, said Gail Stilwill, a Meredith spokeswoman.

Meanwhile, the magazine may relocate to Cahners' Newton headquarters from the Charlestown section but "not immediately," said Mark Danes, a spokesman for Cahners.

As for editorial and staffing changes, Danes said, "I don't think they've ironed that out yet." The companies signed a letter of intent and expect to close the sale by July, Stilwill said.

Sail, which has ridden a wave of interest in sailing in the past two decades, claims a paid circulation of 166,000, down from 180,000 as recently as a couple of years ago, Danes said. Also, it has suffered along with most consumer magazines the effects of a broad slump in advertising revenues in the past year, said Stilwill.

However, Stilwill said Meredith has been "pleased" with Sail's performance. Most of Meredith's other magazine properties are home and family publications including Better Homes and Gardens and Ladies' Home Journal. Sail, which the company has owned for ten years, thus "is not a strategic fit," Stilwill said.

Cahners Publishing, which is owned by Reed International PLC of England, is primarily a publisher of trade titles, but also publishes other boating magazines including Power & Motoryacht, MotorBoat and Motoryacht International.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Mark Strand, a prize-winning lyric poet best known for his treatment of the themes of human darkness and doubleness, Friday was named the 1990-91 ''poet laureate cosultant in poetry'' at the Library of Congress.

Strand, 54, born in Canada to American parents, is the fourth poet to be named laureate in the recently redesigned chair of poetry consultant to the Library of Congress. He succeeds Howard Nemerov, who held the post for the 1988-1990 term.

''We are pleased that a poet of the versatility and inventiveness of Mark Strand will bring his creativity and energy to the position of poet laureate,'' said James Billington, librarian of Congress, in making the announcement.

The nation's first official poet laureate was Robert Penn Warren, and he was succeeded by Richard Wilbur.

Strand, whom some critics call a ''minimalist ... affected by surrealism '' has published seven volumes of poetry, beginning with ''Sleeping With One Eye Open'' in 1964. His ''Selected Poems'' were published in 1980.

Library of Congress officials said a new Strand volume, ''The Continuous Life,'' is due for publication in October and his ''Selected Poems'' is to be reissued.

In addition to his poetry, Strand is also a well regarded translator from the Spanish. He has edited anthologies, including ''The Contemporary American Poets'' (1969) and, with Octavio Paz, ''New Poetry of Mexico,'' has authored three children's books, most recently ''Rembrandt Takes a Walk'' (1986).

Strand received his bachelor of arts degree from Antioch College in 1957, a bachelor of fine arts from Yale University in 1959 and a master of arts degree from the Univeristy of Iowa in 1962.

Currently he is distinguised professor of English at the University of Utah.

He has served as a Fulbright scholar to Italy, a Fulbright lecturer at the University of Brasil, a National Endowment for the Arts fellow, a Rockefeller fellow, a Guggenheim fellow and a John D. and Catherine T. McArthur fellow.

He is a fellow of the Academy of American Poets and the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters.

In 1974 he won the Edgar Allen Poe prize and in 1975 the National Institute of Arts and Letters award.

The consultancy in poetry was established in 1937 and held by the now largely forgotten Joseph Auslander. Warren, the first to be designated poet laureate, was also the third consultant, serving the 1944-45 term.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - The attorney for Mayor Marion Barry Friday asked a federal judge to throw out the entire drug and perjury case against the mayor, saying the FBI illegally endangered Barry's life during his Jan. 18 cocaine arrest.

Barry's arrest and an ensuing indictment followed ''impermissible conduct'' by law enforcement officers who provided Barry with ''87 percent proof crack cocaine'' that he allegedly smoked in an FBI sting operation, attorney R. Kenneth Mundy said.

Mundy told U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson that Barry could have died from the effects of the drug. He said prosecutors knew the dangers because they posted emergency medical personnel outside the Vista International Hotel room where Barry was arrested Jan. 18, and that later that night had Barry's stomach pumped.

The motion to dismiss the 14 counts Barry faces at a June 4 trial was among more than a dozen pre-trial motions Jackson began hearing Friday. He made no immediate ruling.

Mundy offered to present a cardiac specialist as a witness he said would testify that potent crack cocaine can be lethal.

''Regardless of the testimony it will not change the fact that the defendant's smoking of the crack was voluntary,'' argued Assistant U.S. Attorney Judith Retchin.

Barry was charged with a single count of cocaine possession at his arrest. On Feb. 15 he was indicted on three felony counts of perjury and five misdemeanor cocaine possession charges.

Six more misdemeanor charges - five possession and one charge that Barry conspired to possess cocaine dating back to 1984 - were added to the indictment May 10.

One of Mundy's motions asks Jackson to separate the charges into two trials - with Barry facing on June 4 only the first eight counts from the earlier indictment.

The government is asking that all 14 counts be included in the June 4 trial.

Mundy also is asking that a Barry hair sample allegedly showing prior drug use be thrown out, and that videotape and audiotape evidence allegedly showing the mayor smoking crack on the night of his arrest be disallowed.

''The videotape begins at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 18 and an audiotape shows Miss Rasheeda Moore began doggedly calling Barry's office at 6 p.m.,'' said Mundy. ''I want the record to be clear that certain overzealousness, certain conduct not worthy of the government is the main reason why the indictment should be dismissed.''

Moore, a former model, worked with the FBI to lure Barry to the hotel room.

DALLAS (MAY 25) UPI - The Superconducting Super Collider Laboratory took Friday its initial step toward the eventual design and production of 8,700 giant magnets to be installed in the collider's particle acclerator.

The twin-polar magnets will help guide beams of protons into collision in detector chambers for experiments to examine the fundamental structure of matter and energy.

The laboratory issued a "draft request for proposal" - or RFP - for the magnets, which will cost an estimated $1 billion. The RFP is the first step leading to the selection by next fall of an industrial team to work with the lab to complete the development of the magnets for high-volume industrial production and for installation.

The special magnets, each measuring 45 feet in length and 26 inches in diameter and each weighing 13.2 tons, will operate at a temperature near absolute zero - equal to about 240 degrees below zero fahrenheit.

"The draft will provide an opportunity for the industry to go through the document carefully and come back to us for any clarification or to let us know if we are proposing something which the industry might not find fully compatible with their normal processes," said lab spokesman Russ Wylie. "We want to have a final RFP that everybody will understand because once the final procurement begins, you cannot make any changes."

The draft RFP says two companies or a joint venture will be selected for contract awards in a leader-follower arrangement. These companies will work together in the product development and initial manufacture of the magnets so that both can demonstrate a superior production design with accompanying tooling processes and material infrastructure.

The initial prototype magnet will be made at the Enrico Fermi National Acclerator Laboratory in Batavia, Ill. The magnets will operate up to 6,700 AMPs of electricity, or about 150,000 times the strength of the earth's magnetic field.

Once a firm design has been decided on, each company will produce at its facility 35 preproduction magnets to be shipped to the super collider lab beginning in 1993 for extensive testing and evalaution. The next step will be the installation of 251 magnets in the acclerator tunnel with deliveries beginning in 1994.

A final RFP will be published for formal solicitation of proposals in the summer. Final selection of the leader-follower companies will be made by this fall.

The super collider is to be build 30 miles south of Dallas, at a current estimated cost of $7.5 billion.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Powder-charge bags used in the massive 16-inch battleship guns were ''over-rammed'' into the USS Iowa's gun barrel by 3 inches more than the Navy thought, Sandia National Laboratories said Friday.

In addition, scientists from the national laboratory in Albuquerque, N.M., said there may be an increase in the ''impact sensitivity'' of a powder bag that has a reduced number of propellant pellets in its ''trim layer.''

The trim layer is an incomplete layer of pellets lying on their sides in the front of the bag and - when five bags are loaded end to end to go into a gun barrel, resembling a huge Tootsie Roll - it would be just behind the black powder ''ignition pad'' on the next bag.

''Our half-scale experiments indicate that reducing the number of these pellets lying next to the powder pouch increases impact sensitivity enough that an explosion could have been caused by an over-ram at a higher-than-normal speed,'' Sandia said in its report.

''Our studies indicate that impact initiation depends on two key factors: the number of pellets in the trim layer, and the speed of the overram.''

In 16-inch naval guns, a mechanical ramming rod pushes the shell and the powder-charge bags into the open rear of the barrel and then is withdrawn before the breech is closed and the gun fired.

''We confirmed that the powder bags were over-ramed against the projectile and determined that the extent of the over-ram was approximately 3 inches greater than that established by the USN (U.S. Navy),'' the report said.

''Our analyses indicate that the bag charges were under a compressive load of at least 2,800 pounds at the time of the explosion. There may have been even higher transient forces due to dynamic loading resulting from a greater-than-normal ram speed. While the rammer is capable of a speed of 13.9 feet per second, we could only establish that the rammer speed was at least 2 feet per second,'' the report said.

Sandia scientists made the following recommendations:

-A mechanism should be added to these guns to control the speed of the rammer and the placement of the powder bags.

-A new bag charge design should be developed in which the weight of the propellant can be adjusted without the use of a trim layer of pellets. Such a design would be much more robust and less sensitive to impact.

-Studies of propellant-impact sensitivity should be broadly extended and include both commonly used propellants, D846 and D839. The objective of such studies should be to fully define the safe limits of pellet configuration, bag compression, rammer speed and other relevant 16-inch gun and turret operations.

CHICAGO (MAY 25) UPI - The impending harvest pressured May wheat but all other grain and soybean futures were higher Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Corn and soybean futures were supported by weather conditions and short-covering ahead of the long weekend. The commodity markets will be closed Monday for the Memorial Day observance.

Corn continued to set the pace as rainy weather interrupted field work. The pace of corn and soybean planting is behind normal, and there was more talk that farmers might switch some of their corn acres to soybeans.

A strong export sales report contributed to the strength of both corn and soybeans, although gains were trimmed by light profit-taking.

Soybeans rallied on spillover from corn but met some resistance at session highs. Commission houses dominated the buying in soybeans with commercials on both sides of the market.

May wheat was down one-half cent at the close in thin trading while the rest of the wheat was moderately higher.

At the close, corn was up 1 to 5, soybeans up 1/2 to 3 3/4, wheat off 1/2 to up 3 and oats up 1 1/4 to 2.

(MAY 25) UPI - Good news on the economic front. The Commerce Department reports that the nation's merchandise trade gap narrowed during the first quarter to 26-point-four-BILLION dollars. That's the lowest deficit since the fourth quarter of 1983. Both exports and imports hit record levels in the first quarter. Exports jumped five percent, to 96-BILLION dollars, while imports rose two percent, to 122-point-four-BILLION dollars.

Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov says he will resign if the nation's parliament rejects the government plan to move toward a modified market economy. Ryzhkov told reporters in Moscow today that he does NOT fear an unprecedented NO-confidence vote put forward by radical deputies yesterday. Officials at the Supreme Soviet say a vote on the motion is NOT likely today.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl reiterated his position that a united Germany must be part of the NATO alliance, and the United States must keep its military presence in Europe. But Kohl rejected what he termed ''utopian calls'' for a nuclear-free world, saying NATO will keep its nuclear weapons. Kohl addressed delegates in Bonn at the closing session of the Interparliamentary Conference on Disarmament.

The U-N is holding a rare session outside New York City to hear from P-L-O chief Yasser Arafat on the situation in the Israeli-occupied territories. But U-N officials ruled out making any decision to send U-N peace-keeping forces to the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Washington said in advance of the U-N Security Council meeting in Geneva that it will consider an on-scene investigation... something less than the U-N observer team first mentioned by Secretary of State Baker.

NEW YORK (MAY 25) UPI - Hewlett-Packard Co., the third-largest U.S. computer manufacturer, said Friday it expects to improve profitability in the second half of 1990, despite a general slowdown in the industry.

"Our product portfolio continues to be very strong in most areas of our business," said John Young, president and chief executive officer of the Palo Alto, Calif.-based manufacturer, who earlier this week briefed analysts on the company's business outlook for the remainder of 1990.

"While we are somewhat cautious about the general business environment for the remainder of 1990, we continue to feel we are very well positioned to capitalize on growth opportunities," Young said.

Among the areas of growth, Hewlett-Packard identified cellular communications, a sector expected to make up in part for the decline resulting from cutbacks in defense-related products.

Hewlett-Packard also outlined a strategy to respond to slowing sales of workstations - the easy-to-use individual units whose computing power can rival the lower line of mainframes.

Hewlett-Packard said it will unveil next month its first combined line of HP/Apollo workstations, following its acquisition last year of the Chelmsford, Mass.-based company.

The first HP/Apollo line will be equipped with Motorola Inc.'s 68030 microprocessor, and be upgraded before the end of the year with a 68040 chip with a speed of 30 million instructions per second or MIPS, the company said.

The computer manufacturer is also developing a new workstation that will be able to run at 50 MIPS, based on Hewlett-Packard's advanced submicron technology.

Young described growth in profitability as one of the company's main priorities throughout the 1990s, where slower demand is expected to lead to heightened competition.

"In the 1970s, the proportion of capital spending in the United States devoted to electronics rose rapidly," he said. "That percentage peaked in 1984 and has remained relatively stable ever since."

"The same trend is appearing outside the United States, so we can no longer count on the rising tide of electronic spendings to raise all boats " Young added.

Hewlett-Packard, the third largest U.S. computer manufacturer after International Business Machines Corp. and Digital Equipment Corp., said it has been facing rising operating costs which led the company to reduce its staff by 2,000 people over the past six months through attrition and early retirement. The company said it will consolidate manufacturing facilities to save about $60 million a year.

The company, which reported $11.9 billion in sales last year, recorded a 16-percent increase in revenues to $6.4 million for the first six months of fiscal 1990 ended April 30.

But profits for the first six months of 1990 declined to $359 million, compared with the $396 million in the year-ago period, due to an 18 percent increase in costs.

Hewlett-Packard, also a leading manufacturer of peripherals such as printers and scanners, said it has broaden its line of peripherals to meet the demand from users of Apple Computer Inc.'s Macintosh personal computers.

The Palo Alto company quickly endorsed the challenge thrown at Apple by Microsoft Corp., which Tuesday unveiled its new icon-based operating system Windows 3.0. Hewlett-Packard introduced this week NewWave 3.0, a software which can run multiple applications in connection with the Microsoft program.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (MAY 25) UPI - President Bush promised Friday to sign quickly a spending bill containing $720 million in aid for Panama and Nicaragua, pledging continued U.S. support for the two troubled Central American nations.

Bush telephoned Panamanian President Guillermo Endara and Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro early Friday to tell them Congress finally approved a $4.4 billion spending bill that contains the aid, said deputy White House press secretary Steve Hart.

The centerpiece of the bill is $420 million for Panama and $300 million for Nicaragua - an aid package for the U.S.-supported nations that Bush has been seeking since March. The two leaders in recent weeks have appealed for quick U.S. action on aid to their economically strapped countries. Chamorro, in a letter to Bush, warned that her nation is virtually bankrupt.

Although Bush has criticized Congress for loading the aid bill with unrelated spending projects, Hart said in a statement that the president will sign the bill ''as soon as he receives it.''

The deputy press secretary issued the statement shortly after Bush arrived at his summer home in coastal Kennebunkport for the Memorial Day Weekend. Bush was expected to have the aid bill on his vacation desk late Friday or Saturday.

The House passed the bill forged by a conference committee 308-108, and the Senate approved it by a voice vote shortly after midnight. The anticlimactic vote culminated months of disputes over issues as disparate as abortion and military aid to El Salvador.

Bush, criticizing congressional lollygagging that he said jeopardized two budding democracies in Central America, went so far as to urge Congress to work through its Memorial Day recess, which started Friday, to complete work on the bill.

Coming on the heels of the collapse of the Berlin Wall and the U.S. invasion of Panama, Bush in January proposed $500 million for Panama and $75 million for Eastern European refugee programs. He added a request for $300 million for Nicaragua in March shortly after the election of Chamorro a U.S.-backed candidate. The bulk of the Central American money is for economic development.

Democrats wanted to shift some aid to Eastern Europe or domestic programs, but nearly all of Bush's foreign aid request was approved by the House Apr. 3, the Senate May 1 and the conference committee Tuesday.

Hart said Bush called Chamorro and Endara Friday when Congress passed the aid bill and that the two ''expressed their gratitude for the congressional action and thanked the president for his efforts on behalf of their countries.''

''They stated that this is a major step forward in solidifying and supporting the growth of democracy in Panama and Nicaragua,'' Hart said. ''The president expressed his support of their efforts and stated the continued U.S. desire for close relations and the continued partnership with Panama and Nicaragua and the rest of Latin America.''

Major provisions retained in the bill included $1.2 billion for food stamps, $885 million for foreign aid, $529 million for veterans, $433 million for firefighting and $216 million for disaster relief. Not included in the total was $400 million in housing loan guarantees for Soviet Jews settling in Israel.

Most of the domestic spending was for mandatory programs and much of it, such as $110 million for the census, was sought by the administration. The non-mandatory spending is mostly offset by about $2 billion in defense cuts.

Bush and many lawmakers complained the bill was weighed down with pork-barrel provisions, and some - like a $238 million RDX explosives factory in Louisiana - were pared from the final version of the bill.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Slaughterhouses produced 3.05 billion pounds of beef, pork, veal and mutton last month, 3 percent less than in April 1989, primarily because of a slump in hog marketings, the government said Friday.

Pork production was down 6 percent, to 1.25 billion pounds, last month, compared to the year-earlier figure. Farmers sent 6.96 million head to slaughter, a drop of 6 percent. Average weight was down 1 pound to 249 pounds.

Red meat production for the first four months of the year totaled 12.6 billion pounds, down 1 percent from the same period in 1989. Pork was down 1 percent for the year, beef down less than 1 percent, veal down 14 percent and mutton up 9 percent.

Beef production totaled 1.75 billion pounds last month, a decline of 1 percent. Slaughterhouses handled 2.62 million head, down 1 percent. The average weight, 1,114 pounds, was down 1 pound.

Veal production, at 23 million pounds, was down 15 percent.

Lamb and mutton production was up 19 percent to total 31 million pounds.

BY LEON DANIEL - UPI

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - New evidence disclosed to Congress Friday on the explosion on the battleship Iowa has exposed more harebrained investigative tactics by Navy gumshoes.

A House Armed Services investigations subcommittee report already had criticized the shenanigans of the Naval Investigative Service, whose criminal probe of the 1989 blast that killed 47 sailors was branded as inept and biased.

Now scientists say the ''plausible cause'' of the tragedy was over-ramming powder charges into a 16-inch gun barrel, although Navy investigators adamantly had ruled out accidental cause or mechanical malfunction. Instead, the Navy blamed sabotage by gunner's mate Clayton Hartwig, who died in the blast.

The Navy claimed Hartwig planted an incendiary device between the bags of powder that were being loaded into the breech of the gun.

It buttressed its case with testimony from FBI officials who attributed the disaster to an elaborate scheme by Hartwig to cover his suicide.

The Navy gumshoes linked Iowa survivor Kendall Truitt to the explosion by hinting the sailor had a homosexual relationship with Hartwig, a charge Truitt flatly denied.

Sen. John Glenn, a former Marine astronaut and the first American to orbit Earth, came up with a dismal explanation for the Navy's actions.

''Blame was placed on Hartwig because of an inability to find other reasons,'' said the Ohio Democrat. ''The rush to blame Hartwig was flat wrong.''

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, who has never endorsed the Navy's findings in the case, said coyly after the new evidence was presented to a Senate panel, ''At this point I'd like to keep my powder dry, so to speak.''

But scientists at Sandia National Laboratories of Albuquerque, N.M., which recently completed independent tests and analysis of the Navy's Iowa investigation, had plenty to say to the Senate Armed Services Committee that was damaging to the Navy's case.

Sen. John Warner, the ranking Republican on the committee and a former secretary of the Navy, warned it was ''far too early to jump to any conclusions and that more testing needs to be done.

Other panel members refrained from pointing out to the Virginia Republican that it appeared to be only the Navy gumshoes who had prematurely leaped to a lot of bizarre conclusions.

The Navy's report on the tragedy, issued last September by Rear Adm. Richard Milligan, read like the dust jacket on a bad novel.

It opined that Hartig ''most probably'' committed mass murder and suicide because he was ''a loner, a man of low self-esteem who talked of dying in an explosion in the line of duty and being buried at Arlington National Cemetery.''

Fred Moosally, the Iowa's captain at the time of the explosion, retired from the Navy last month with a blast at his superiors, criticizing ''people who, in their rush to manage the Iowa problem, forgot about doing the right thing for the Iowa crew.''

It's past time for the Navy to do the right thing, starting with an apology to Hartwig's family.

JERUSALEM (MAY 25) UPI - Israel denounced a proposal Friday by Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat to station U.N. troops in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip following an upsurge in violence this week.

The Gaza Strip and much of the West Bank remained under curfew as reinforced army units patrolled the territories to prevent violence. An Israeli settler was stabbed by four Arabs in the West Bank, but, overall, the territories were quiet Friday and no other serious incidents were reported.

Throughout the Gaza Strip and West Bank, Palestinians gathered around radios to listen to Arafat's speech to the U.N. Security Council, which met in a special session in Geneva.

Arafat asked the council to send U.N. peacekeeping troops to the Israeli-occupied territories to safeguard the lives and property of Palestinians. The council's meeting was called to discuss the large number of Palestinian casualties this week in rioting that erupted after an Israeli killed seven Arab workers in the Israeli town of Rishon Le Zion.

The United States has said it might consider allowing U.N. inspectors to make a short visit to the area. In response to the speech, Israeli officials again rejected the proposal and denounced Arafat.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's spokesman, Avi Pazner, said Arafat had proved again he was ''an implacable enemy'' of Israel.

''I would like to state how disturbing it is that Arafat once again has been given such a platform from which to launch a completely unjustified and libelous attack against Israel,'' Pazner said.

The Foreign Ministry spokesman in a statement said Arafat had lied about Israel.

''Arafat, who is personally responsible for the murder of innocent people and whose organization is still engaged in terrorism, has cynically used the tragic murders in Rishon Le Zion,'' the spokesman said. ''Arafat's statement, which cannot promote peace and tranquillity in the region, should be rejected.''

After Arafat's speech, many Gaza City resident went to their rooftops to celebrate, whistling and shouting ''God is Great.''

In the West Bank, four Palestinians attacked an Israeli settler working in his banana groves early Friday, stabbing him in the chest and stealing his pistol before fleeing, military sources and Army Radio reported.

The military clamped a curfew on the nearby village of Tammun in a search for the assailants. Army Radio reported three suspects had been detained and a fourth, who apparently had the stolen weapon, remained at large.

The army was determined to prevent an increase in violence and at the same time keep Palestinian casualties to a minimum, military sources said. Fourteen Palestinians have been killed since Sunday and hundreds wounded in riots.

''The goal is zero casualties,'' one military source said. ''In the wake of (this week's) casualties, from the top commander to the lowest soldier, there is a real feeling that it is vital to lower the casualties and that has been the general trend.''

Maj. Gen. Matan Vilna'i, whose command includes the Gaza Strip, gave orders that only officers above the rank of lieutenant colonel could give permission to fire plastic or rubber bullets at demonstrators, the Israeli daily Al Hamishmar reported.

Israel came under sharp international criticism, including from its closest ally, the United States, for the high number of casualties, making the week one of the bloodiest in the 29-month-old uprising. Israeli leaders, however, have said their forces performed in an exemplary manner against thousands of rioting Palestinians.

They also accused Palestinian activists of using the workers' deaths to refuel the uprising in the territories, which have been relatively calm in recent months. In an effort to contain the violent reaction, the military slapped curfews on the entire Gaza Strip and much of the West Bank.

After violence by midweek, the military lifted curfews on several areas, but reimposed them Friday because of Moslem prayers. Area commanders had the authority to allow individuals to attend prayers at local mosques.

Police said they detained and were investigating a 16-year-old Arab at the Lion's Gate entrance to the walled Old City who had in his possession an ax, knife and mask.

Several hours after prayers broke up, an Israeli civilian was hit in the head by a stone as he was driving through Arab East Jerusalem, police said.

Five prominent Palestinians started a hunger strike at Red Cross offices in Gaza City, following the footsteps of dozens of West Bank and East Jerusalem Palestinians who began refusing food Sunday to demands the withdrawal of Israeli troops from the territories.

In the West Bank Friday, Zvi Elbaz, 45, was stabbed while working in the banana fields belonging the cooperative community in the Jordan Valley.

Elbaz managed to make his way to a neighbor's house with the knife in his chest and was flown by helicopter to Tel Hashomer Hospital near Tel Aviv in serious condition with stab wounds in his chest and right side of his body.

LIBREVILLE, GABON (MAY 25) UPI - France evacuated hundreds of foreigners from Gabon Friday as rioting sparked by the mysterious death of an opposition leader spread to the interior of the former French colony, security sources said.

In the capital, more than 100 prisoners escaped from a Libreville jail where guards have recently been on strike, seized weapons from a government armory and fired at government troops, police said.

Hundreds of French-trained elite Presidential Guardsmen then surrounded the armed prisoners, who built barricades in the Libreville neighborhood of Nkembo, said the sources.

President Omar Bongo blamed the introduction of a multi-party system for the unrest that began Wednesday after opposition leader Joseph Redjambe of the Gabonese Progress Party was found dead in mysterious circumstances in a room at the Hotel Dowe in the capital.

In Lambrene, 150 miles inland from Libreville, hundreds of rioters armed with clubs and stones battered down the gates of the city jail and freed about 50 prisoners inside, then overran and looted the city's biggest department store, the sources said.

It was not immediately clear if the Lamberene rioting was directly linked to Redjambe's death Tuesday, which political sources say has become a focal point for dissatisfaction with Bongo's rule.

Two French Air Force Transall transport airplanes ferried more than 500 foreigners, mainly women and children, from the southern oil city of Port-Gentil to Libreville Friday.

An Air France Boeing 747 and a French military DC-8 transport airplane sent by the French government collected the foreigners from Libreville and flew them to Paris. They were scheduled to arrive in Paris late Friday.

Diplomatic sources said the majority of those who asked to be evacuated were French but there also were scores of Americans and several Dutch and British nationals.

Gabonese authorities Thursday expelled three television crews from the French network TF-1 and a reporter for the French radio station Radio France Internationale, spokesmen in Paris said.

The Libreville shooting shattered a day of relative calm, and authorities prepared to impose a curfew for a third night running.

The leading L'Union newspaper said two people died in the three days of rioting and 17 others were injured. But hospital sources said the number of injured was higher. Officials have released no casualty figures.

At Port Gentil, 80 miles south of the capital, demonstrators attacked the offices of the state-run electricity board and French Foreign Legion troops sent in Thursday patrolled the streets, security sources said.

The French troops were sent in to Port Gentil Thursday to back Gabonese commandos who parachuted into the city, considered Gabon's economic center.

Bongo appealed to his countrymen Friday to understand ''one cannot play politics using the streets as a weapon.''

''I have said clearly that a multiparty system has advantages and many disadvantages,'' Bongo told France Inter radio.

The National Assembly Tuesday approved a new constitution introducing a multiparty state with elections to be held in October, ending 22 years of one-party rule by Bongo's Gabonese Democratic Party.

However Bongo said he would not go back on the reforms.

In Paris, Cooperation Minister Jacques Pelletier said the situation at Port Gentil remains ''tense and worrisome'' and that there were ''acts of looting'' in the city during the night.

About 3,500 of the 15,000 French nationals in Gabon are based at Port Gentil. Many foreigners are employed by oil companies operating in the African nation.

France flew 200 Foreign Legion troops to Gabon on Thursday to reinforce some 500 French troops based there under terms of a bilateral defense agreement.

A spokesman for ELF-Gabon, the largest oil company in Gabon, said its personnel will remain there for now but that it turned off its offshore oil production pumps on Wednesday.

The demonstrators have been demanding Bongo's resignation, alleging his aides may have been involved in the death of Redjambe. But in an interview with Le Figaro newspaper published Friday, Bongo seemed unruffled by the political crisis.

''Nothing is happening. In Libreville, everything is all right. Everything is back in order,'' he said.

''People are telling stories about the regime,'' Bongo said. ''People have written that there were assassinations in Gabon. You have to see how things have happened. When one is in politics and you go into a hotel with a girl ...''

Authorities say Redjambe was lured to the Hotel Dowe by a woman from the Ivory Coast, Jeanne Canonne, who has disappeared.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - In anticipation of next week's superpower summit, President Bush says he must persuade President Mikhail Gorbachev that a unified Germany in NATO is not a threat to the Soviet Union.

Bush made the remarks in an interview Thursday with a French television correspondent that was released by the White House Friday.

Gorbachev and his official entourage will arrive in Washington from Ottawa Canada Wednesday evening. He will be royally welcomed on his state visit on Thursday and afterward will plunge into a series of meetings with Bush, winding up the summit Sunday, June 3.

''I have to sell him (Gorbachev) on the fact that this (the new Germany in the Atlantic Alliance) presents no threat to the Soviet Union,'' Bush said. ''It doesn't present a threat. Indeed a NATO with a broader mandate I think helps provide for stability in Europe.''

Responding to a question, the president also said he thinks Gorbachev is in ''pretty strong control now, but facing enormous problems.''

Bush said it was not his concern to figure out if Gorbachev is having a problem ''with his right or left. It's mine to deal with what's on the table.

''And what's on the table is a strong leader, clearly in charge with whom we have a lot of business items.''

In an unusual twist, Bush indicated that the toughest part of the summit agenda is no longer arms control, but other ''contentious'' issues such as German unification and the declaration of independence by Lithuania.

In other matters, Bush said:

-He believes he can speak frankly with French President Francois Mitterrand in attempting to persuade France to rejoin the military arm of the Atlantic Alliance, adding that he has ''not only respect but affection'' for him.

-He does not expect to solve Middle East problems with Gorbachev. The president expressed his concern for the ''needless loss of life'' among the Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied areas of Gaza and the West Bank. ''We have to do better,'' he said. ''But I don't think it's a U.S.-Soviet role that's going to solve this problem.''

-He hopes to someday have better relations with Iran ''because I think (Iranian leader Ali Akhabarr) Rafsanjani is showing a sense of reasonableness in some areas that perhaps his predecessor didn't feel he could show, or didn't feel like showing.''

At the same time, Bush acknowledged ''we've lived through a terrible time in Iran,'' adding ''we still have difficulties there.''

Bush gave five-minute interviews Thursday to British, French, German and Soviet correspondents. The British and German interviews, along the lines of Bush's comments to French television, were made public Thursday. The remaining interview with a Soviet correspondent will be issued Sunday.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (MAY 25) UPI - Adobe Systems Inc. stock fell sharply Friday after the manufacturer of software used in laser printers announced second-quarter earnings will be significantly lower than expected because of declining royalties.

Adobe blamed the surprise shortfall on a decline in revenue from two large customers - IBM Corp. and NEC Corp. Both have recently introduced new printers that have yet to generate big sales.

Abobe's expected second-quarter results ending June 1 are revenue in a range of $33 million to $36 million and earnings per share ranging from 29 cents to 37 cents.

The company made its announcement after the close of trading Thursday. Adobe stock finished down $15.25 to $35.25 a share in the over-the-counter market Friday.

John Warnock, Adobe's chairman and chief executive officer, called the market's response an ''overreaction.''

''I feel very strongly that Adobe is sound,'' said Warnock, who founded thefast-growing company in 1982.

Analysts had been expecting Adobe to earn beween 50 cents and 53 cents a share on sales of about $41 million. In the second quarter last year, Adobe earned $7.6 million, or 35 cents a share, on sales of $28.1 million.

''It's a major shock,'' analyst Peter Schleider of Wessels, Arnold & Henderson in Minneapolis said. ''They totally faked out the street on this and the street's going to be merciless in trading Adobe stock.''

Initially, Adobe announced even worse figures. But the company revised them Friday, saying it had received new reports from Apple Computer Inc. - Adobe's largest customer - that Adobe's royalties from the Cupertino, Calif.-based Apple did not suffer a big falloff in the second quarter as Adobe had first believed.

Warnock said Adobe had received incorrect figures for April from Apple.

Apple, without notice, changed the five-year-old ''mechanism'' by which it reports royalties to Adobe so ''some shipments were missed,'' Warnock said.

''The critical number for its April shipments was incorrect. We worked all last night and got a correct number,'' Warnock said.

Adobe officials still expect royalties from Apple to be down in the second quarter, but not by as much as originally feared.

Estimates were not available. But Apple said its sales of Laserwriter printers were strong.

''For the first seven months of Apple's fiscal 1990, Apple has shipped more Laserwriter printers than in the same period a year ago,'' Joseph Graziano, Apple's chief financial officer, said. ''We expect this trend to continue through the remainder of the fiscal year.''

Adobe first said it expected second-quarter earnings to be between 27 cents and 35 cents a share on sales between $32 million and $35 million.

Adobe said that results should improve in the third and fourth quarters but that its year-end results will be below analysts' expectations. Company officials would not elaborate.

Analyst Bruce Lupatkin at Hambrecht & Quist Inc. in San Francisco said he was surprised by Adobe's announcement but is not changing his ''buy'' recommendation on the company's stock.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Presiding Bishop Edmond Browning of the Episocpal Church, in a letter to President Bush, said Friday the United States should consider ending aid to Israel until it stops ''violating the fundamental human rights of an occupied people.''

Browning, in his 1 1/2-page letter to Bush - an Episcopal Church communicant - praised the president for the concerns the administration has expressed over the situation in the Israeli-occupied territories since the slaying last weekend of seven Arab workers by an Israeli.

''Furthermore, I would agree with you that the delay of the peace process has clearly led to the eruption of Palestinian frustration in a resurgence of the intifada,'' Browning said. ''I commend you for underscoring this fact in the face of considerable opposition.''

But he said that even as Bush was speaking, the interim Israeli government headed by Yitzak Shamir, was announcing that it would spend $17 million for additional construction in the occupied territories - construction Browning contends is illegal.

''I believe,'' Browning told Bush, ''that it is time that the government of Israel be advised that the billions of American dollars it receives annually can no longer be provided unconditionally to a state that is violating the fundamental human rights of an occupied people as well as those of many of its own citizens.

''I urge you to inform the govenrment of Israel that it must comply more fully with international human rights standards, must refrain from the expenditure of its resources for expansion into territories occupied by war, and must actively demonstrate a willingness to engage in peace negotiations or risk the reduction of American support,'' Browning wrote.

Browning also expressed support for Secretary of State James Baker's suggestion for an international peacekeeping force in the occupied territories.

The letter signals a recent erosion of support for Isreal by U.S. church leaders stemming from a perceived instransigence by Israel to enter into a Middle East peace process. Worsening the situation are revelations that the Israeli government secretly helped finance an effort by armed militant Jewish settlers to occupy a church-owned hospice in the Christian quarter of Jerusalem on Good Friday.

Browning said the letter was part of a ''continuation of our sense of solidarity with religious leaders in the Middle East, especially the Episcopalians, as they work for a just peace.''

Browning said he felt a ''terrible need'' to speak out at this time because of the escalating state of violence.

The United States, he said, has ''a major role to play in the search for a lasting peace - and we don't have much time left.''

(MAY 25) UPI - Scientists told the Senate today that the ''plausible cause'' of the deadly explosion aboard the battleship U-S-S Iowa was an accident, caused by over-ramming powder charges into a 16-inch gun barrel. The blast on April 19th, 1989, killed 47 sailors. The testimony comes one day after the Navy ordered a halt to the firing of the massive 16-inch guns.

A lawyer for the family of Clayton Hartwig says he may file a lawsuit against the government, after the U-S Navy re-opened an investigation into a blast on the U-S-S Iowa that killed Hartwig and 46 other sailors. Hartwig's sister says the Navy should apologize for accusing Hartwig of causing the fatal gun turret explosion last spring.

A leading opposition party in Romania says it accepts the communist-led National Salvation Front's landslide victory in last weekend's multi-party elections. But the National Liberal Party says the campaign was seriously flawed. The opposition party finished third in the overall parliamentary elections, garnering six percent of the vote.

A vocal-cord infection has sidelined pop singer Madonna. The singer was forced to cancel tonight's sold-out, final concert in Chicago. A spokeswoman for Jam Productions says doctors examined Madonna yesterday and advised her also to cancel last night's performance, but she performed anyway and agreed to cancel tonight's performance.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 25) UPI - A former mental patient admitted Friday killing two Universal Studios security guards while stalking actor Michael Landon, but was found not guilty by reason of insanity and committed to a mental hospital.

Nathan Trupp, 43, pleaded guilty to two counts of second-degree murder in a plea bargain with the District Attorney's office.

Despite the plea, Superior Court Judge Clarence Stromwall found Trupp not guilty, ruling he was criminally insane at the time of the December 1988 shootings.

Stromwall also found that Trupp is still criminally insane and ordered him committed to a state mental hospital.

Prosecutors said Trupp could be hospitalized for the rest of his life. If he ever regains his sanity, he will be released, but Deputy District Attorney Sterling Norris said that was a remote possibility.

Trupp had been charged with special circumstance allegations that could have qualified him for a possible death sentence if convicted of first-degree murder. However, as part of the plea bargin, those special circumstances were dismissed in exchange for his guilty pleas.

Trupp, who remained in custody without bail, was ordered to return to court June 11 to be formally committed.

He is also charged with murdering three people in Albuquerque, N.M., in an attack in a bagel shop that occurred several days before the Universal Studios shootings.

Norris said he believes that New Mexico authorities will not try to extradite Trupp for prosecution as long as he is confined in the hospital for the criminally insane.

Authorities said Trupp walked up to a guard shack at an employees' entrance to the giant Universal Studios entertainment center in Universal

City and opened fire on the guards on Dec. 1, 1988.

Guard Jeren Beeks, 27, of La Crescenta, died at the scene. The other victim, Armando Torres, 18, of Los Angeles, died the following day.

A sheriff's deputy chased Trupp and shot and wounded him in the chest and arm. As he was being led away, Trupp screamed out, ''It wasn't my fault. I was told to do it.'' A paramedic said Trupp told him God had commanded him to open fire.

Norris said that Trupp told police he intended to kill Landon - the star of such shows as ''Highway to Heaven'' ''Little House on the Prairie'' and ''Bonanza'' - when he shot the guards in the belief that Landon and the victims were Nazis.

'''I was seeking out Michael Landon ... and attempting to kill Michael Landon because he was a Nazi,''' Trupp told police, according to Norris.

Norris said Trupp also believed the three people he allegedly shot and killed in Albuquerque were Nazis as well.

In those killings, Trupp allegedly shot to death a man and a woman inside an Albuquerque bagel shop and killed a shop employee who chased him Nov. 29, 1988.

Authorities said Trupp complained of ''poisoned bagels'' at the shop before opening fire and killing Richard Wilt, 38, his wife, Jeanne, 37, and her father, Joseph Famiglietta Sr., 63. The Wilts owned the shop.

Earlier in 1988, Trupp walked away from a mental hospital in New Jersey, where he had been committed and had continued to live after his release was approved.

PEARSON, GA (MAY 25) UPI - An Air Force F-16 fighter jet on a training mission crashed in rural Georgia Friday, killing the pilot and a woman on the ground and narrowly missing another woman who had been reading a Bible in her living room.

A sheriff's department spokeswoman identified the crash victim on the ground as Marion Lanier, a cleaning woman who was making her weekly visit to a client's home in a predominantly residential area of Atkinson County.

Lanier was working in one of six homes damaged by the jet, which went down in a ball of flames near Georgia Highway 441 around 9:40 a.m., sending billows of black smoke rising hundreds of feet into the sky until late afternoon.

Atkinson County Sheriff Earl Haskins said a woman in a home on the other side of the highway escaped injury by walking out of her living room, where she had been sitting and reading a Bible, just before the crash. The fuselage of the plane tore through the room just after she left to answer the telephone, he said.

''The woman was unharmed,'' Haskins said. ''It was miraculous.''

Haskins, after surveying debris on the ground from the crash, said the pilot did not survive.

The jet was flying in a ''two-ship formation'' with another F-16 at the time of the crash, said Master Sgt. Pat Miller of Moody Air Force Base. He said the cause of the crash was under investigation.

Miller would not confirm the death of the pilot or reveal his identity.

The jet was on a ''low-level routine training mission'' en route from the base, about 40 miles away, to Lake George Weapons Range in Florida when the crash occurred, Miller said.

The plane went down about 1 1/2 miles north of Pearson, a sleepy rural town of some 2,000 people 60 miles from the Georgia-Florida border, said Kathleen Guthrie, executive assistant to the sheriff.

Lucy Taft and her husband, Vance, were in the yard of their farmhouse about 80 yards from the crash site when the plane went down.

A patch of woodland kept the couple from seeing the crash, but Lucy Taft said they felt its impact.

''It jarred me,'' she said. ''There was fire. It was just around everything. Matter of fact, we thought the fire was coming here.''

Danny Bradford, standing outside his shop near the crash site, also heard the crash.

''I heard a silence,'' Bradford said. ''Then a boom. I heard both of them (planes) cut back and then a boom.''

Friends of the deceased housekeeper described her as a hard-working woman in her late 50s or early 60s who attended church regularly.

She was in the middle of her weekly visit to the home of Jack Keaton when the home was struck by either the jet or debris from the plane.

''It's hard for me,'' said Lois Cady, a longtime friend of Lanier. ''I knew her real good.''

Keaton's and at least five other homes were damaged in the crash, two of which were leveled, officials said.

Air Force security prevented reporters from getting close to the crash scene.

The Air Force was not supplying details of the crash, but John Higgs, a reporter with Georgia Southern Radio News Network, said a teacher at a nearby school reported seeing the plane ''blow up in midair and then crash.''

The F-16, nicknamed the ''Fighting Falcon,'' is a single-engine aircraft capable of flying at twice the speed of sound and up to 50,000 feet.

The aircraft is usually a single-seater, but can be converted into a two-seater for training missions, Air Force officials said.

NORFOLK, Va. (MAY 25) UPI - The commander of Atlantic Fleet surface ships reportedly is calling for the early retirement of the fire-scarred USS Conyngham, saying the guided missile destroyer is too badly damaged to warrant repair.

One officer was killed and 18 were injured when fire broke out May 8 aboard the 437-foot ship while it was on routine maneuvers about 80 miles off of the North Carolina coast.

Repair costs have been estimated at just under $22 million, said Lt. Cmdr. Carrie Hartshorne, a spokeswoman for the Atlantic Fleet. Repairs would take between four and six months to complete, she said Friday.

Vice Adm. Joseph Donnell III, commander of the 165-ship Atlantic Fleet Surface Force, said the Navy should not spend millions of dollars to repair the 27-year-old ship, which is already scheduled to be retired in June of next year.

The fire aboard the Conyngham, which began in a boiler room and spread throughout its midsection, damaged three decks and destroyed costly battle and communications equipment. The cause of the fire remains under investigation.

Donnell's recommendation was made this week to Adm. Powell Carter Jr., commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet, according to unidentified officers who spoke to The Virginian-Pilot.

Hartshorne confirmed a recommendation had been made, but said she could not comment on the specifics.

''Final decision is the important thing, and that hasn't been decided yet '' said Hartshorne.

If Carter accepts Donnell's recommendation, the matter would go to the chief of naval operations for final action.

The Navy recently stepped up retirement of older ships due to a tightened Pentagon budget. The Conyngham is one of 23 Charles F. Adams-class ships, most of which are to be phased out in the 1990s.

Navy officials said a fuel leak likely contributed to the Conyngham fire. Ship commanders have been warned to check for problems in fuel oil strainers used in pipes that supply fuel to boilers.

The sailor killed in the fire was Lt. Cmdr. Algernon Pope Gordon Jr., 34, of Montgomery, Ala. He died of smoke inhalation while trying to warn crewmates of the fire. The ship carried a crew of 388.

NEW YORK (MAY 25) UPI - A judge ruled Friday subway gunman Bernhard Goetz cannot interrogate one of the four victims in the notorious shooting who is suing Goetz for $50 million.

Goetz asserted Thursday that Darrell Cabey, one of the four youths he gunned down in the 1984 shooting, is not the ''mental vegetable'' he claims to be.

At a news conference outside City Hall, Goetz handed out a videotape of an interview with Cabey last December in which Cabey appeared coherent.

Cabey, who was left paralyzed from the waist down and was in a coma for two months after the shooting, claims in a $50 million lawsuit that Goetz shot him once, then leaned over and pumped another bullet into his back.

The electronics expert has repeatedly tried to get Cabey's complaint dismissed and even filed his own $100 million counterclaim against the four teens he shot when he thought they were about to mug him.

Bronx County Court Judge Barry Salman ruled in favor of a request by Ronald Kuby, one of Cabey's lawyers, for a protective order baring Goetz from obtaining a deposition from Cabey.

Salman ordered Goetz and anyone representing him or under his control to keep away from Cabey.

Salman also said he would appoint an independent doctor to examine Cabey.

Kunstler submitted a medical report last week asserting that the youth suffered ''profoundly impaired mental status'' and could not testify in the civil case.

Goetz said the report was fraudulent and Kunstler should be disbarred.

The report, by Mount Sinai Medical Center Dr. Wayne Gordon, said Cabey could not follow two successive commands, was unable to copy a square or write his own name and did not know the day of the week, date, month, year or the names of the president, governor and mayor.

''It can be concluded that Mr. Cabey's performance was indicative of severe cognitive impairment and comparable to the performance of those with a severe senile dementia,'' Gordon wrote.

The videotape, filmed by Goetz' paralegal Harry Katz, shows Cabey in a wheelchair at the United Cerebral Palsy rehabilitative center where he has been since he was released from St. Vincent's Hospital.

Cabey is able to name Mayor David Dinkins, who was due to be inagurated three days after the videotape was shot.

Katz obtained the videotape by posing as the brother of a man seeking admission to the facility, telling workers he wanted to introduce his brother to them.

A jury in 1987 acquitted Goetz of attempted murder and assault charges, but convicted him of possession of an unlicensed gun for the December 1984 shooting. He was released from prison last September after serving an eight-month sentence for the weapons conviction.

MOSCOW (MAY 25) UPI - Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov said Friday he would resign if the Parliament rejects the government's plan to move toward a modified market economy. Panic buying erupted in Moscow.

The official Tass news agency said consumers cleaned out a month's supply of sugar, tea, buckwheat, flour, eggs and macaroni in two-day panic buying spree set off by Ryzhkov's presentation Thursday of his move toward a market economy.

The Moscow city council immediately decreed that beginning Sunday, only residents of the capital and the Moscow region will be allowed to purchase in Moscow's stores.

Radical deputies, saying the government was incapable of solving the country's grave economic problems, proposed a no confidence vote on the government Thursday - an unprecedented move in a country run by secret order with virtually no public accountability before Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's reforms.

The session Friday ended without a vote of confidence being introduced and without a ballot on the economic plan, suspending the parliamentary drama until Monday.

Several liberal legislators acknowledged privately, however, that they lacked the votes in the 542-seat Parliament to topple the government, and a vote on the issue was thought unlikely to come to the floor.

In the Parliament chamber Friday, legislators reacted explosively for a second straight day to Ryzhkov's modified market plan. Tass commented: ''It was a hard day for Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov and his Cabinet.''

''We are engaging in alchemy once again, trying to wed things as incompatible as market and socialism,'' Armenian deputy Genrikh Igityan said in a speech.

Deputy Pavel Bunich, a leading economist and advocate of a genuine market, criticized Ryzhkov for proposing only price hikes and not a market mechanism free of control of central planning.

Ryzhkov called a press conference and told reporters during a break in the Parliament's debate he did not fear a no confidence vote proposed by radical deputies Thursday.

''I am not afraid,'' Ryzhkov said. ''I am honorably carrying out my duties. I believe in what I am doing and if I see that I no longer have the confidence of the people, then of course I will not go against its will.

''I would not allow myself to be sent from one podium to another'' to defend the economic program, he said. ''If there is no confidence in the government, then another government will work.''

Ryzhkov said he realized there was dissatisfaction with the economy and fear among many residents of the reform that will include steep price hikes and cuts in many subsidies.

''It is difficult for the government to work today,'' Ryzhkov said. ''Every day we receive ultimatums from this region, from that region. We are threatened with strikes, all sorts of difficulties, and of course in such a situation it is very hard to work.''

Gorbachev said the government had no choice but to impose reforms.

''We need a market in order to take our economy out of the predicament it is in,'' Gorbachev said at a news conference with visiting French President Francois Mitterrand.

He acknowledged, however, that Soviet ''society is not psychologically prepared'' for the price hikes and unemployment that will accompany the reforms.

''It is going to be painful at first,'' he said. ''We must discuss these things in a nationwide debate ... I hope the result will be general agreement on a market economy.''

Leonid Abalkin, a leading economist and the government minister in charge of economic reform, said: ''Losses and sacrifices are inevitable.''

''The key question is how are we going to distribute those losses and sacrifices,'' he said.

To compensate for low average Soviet wages of $320 a month, the government heavily subsidizes all foodstfuffs, keeping prices low and fueling budget deficits.

On July 1, bread prices are to triple from 40 cents a loaf to $1.20. Next January, meat and fish prices will also nearly triple.

Ryzhkov's plan to move the socialist country to a modified market economy over the next six years drew immediate furious protest when he presented it to the Parliament Thursday.

''The market does not tolerate half-cocked measures,'' snapped Alexander Orlov, a liberal deputy from the Ural Mountain city of Chelyabinsk.

(MAY 25) UPI - Veteran actor Vic Tayback is dead at the age of 60. Tayback died today of a heart attack at his home in Glendale, California. Paramedics called to the home by Tayback's wife found the actor on the floor... in full cardiac arrest. He was taken to a Glendale hospital, where he was pronounced dead by an emergency room doctor. Tayback probably is best known for his portayal of the tough but lovable cook and owner of Mel's Diner in the T-V sitcom ''Alice.''

The former sailor identified as a key figure in the 1989 blast on the U-S-S Iowa says he is ''bitter'' about the Navy's handling of the investigation. The probe was re-opened yesterday. Kenneth Truitt left the Navy last February. Now living in Marion, Illinois, he says unsubstantiated leaks regarding his friendship with shipmate Clayton Hartwig nearly cost him his marriage. After the blast that killed Hartwig and 46 other sailors, unidentified Navy sources leaked a story that Hartwig ignited the explosion after a homosexual relationship with Truitt ended.

(MAY 25) UPI - Authorities say Colombia's cocaine capital of Medellin is being wracked by a ''NEVER before seen'' wave of violence just days before national elections. Officials say the past two nights of unrest... including car bombs and shootings... have left 25 people dead. Top Colombian and U-S officials have said they believe a series of bomb attacks was likely before Sunday's vote.

It may be curtains for a Senate anti-crime bill, despite its political appeal in an election year. A ban on importing and making nine military-type assault weapons threatens to derail the bill. Talks broke down late yesterday between Senate Democrats and Republicans to cut the number of amendments. Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell put off action until June 5th. But Senate G-O-P leader Robert Dole says that ''there will be a great deal of pressure to kill the bill.''

WAMSUTTER, WY (MAY 25) UPI - A Greyhound replacement driver whose bus ran off a highway and into a drainage ditch was fired Friday by company officials who said the accident that slightly injured eight passengers was preventable.

Greyhound spokesman George Gravley said company investigators had yet to determine whether the driver was deliberately forced off the road by a semi-truck as he stated or fell asleep at the wheel as some passengers have said.

''In one sense it really doesn't matter which of those stories is correct because the accident was preventable and therefore chargeable to him and his ability,'' he said. ''Regardless of the circumstances that caused him to be on the median, he should have been able to control the bus and bring it to a stop before hitting that ditch.

''We've now completed our investigation and the driver is being terminated '' Gravley said. ''It's a driver error here and it was very poor judgment on his part.''

The bus went off the roadway along Interstate 80 Thursday and traveled about 1,100 feet in the median before hitting the drainage culvert. Eight of 45 passengers were hospitalized with minor injuries ranging from a broken nose to whiplash-type back injuries.

The driver, Bobby L. Williamson, 50, of Chicago was hired two months ago, after workers struck the nationwide carrier. Officials said he had a good record, with experience driving interstate buses and trucks.

Gravley said Williamson, who was not injured, was still under a 90-day probationary period with the company at the time of the accident, the worst the bus line has experienced since its drivers went on strike in March.

''We haven't had any accidents like this with so many people injured since the strike started,'' he said.

The Wyoming Highway Patrol and National Transportation Safety Board were continuing their investigation into the accident.

TAKOMA PARK, MD (MAY 25) UPI - This suburb of the nation's capital has invited Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to visit during next week's summit to experience life in a ''Nuclear Free Zone,'' Takoma Park Mayor Stephen Del Giudice said Friday.

''Our understanding is that the invitation was passed from the (Soviet) Embassy to Moscow, which shows me that they are giving this some serious consideration,'' Del Giudice said.

The city, which borders Washington, D.C., and was declared a ''Nuclear Free Zone'' by voter ordinance in 1983, sent an invitation last month, asking Gorbachev to visit and witness its efforts for peace.

''We invited him because we thought he'd have an interest in visiting the city and because we were the first nuclear-free zone by ordinance,'' Del Giudice said. ''We have also participated in a number of programs to strengthen ties with the Soviets since Gorbachev's perestroika.''

The city has also been involved in U.S.-Soviet exchange programs and the 1988 Soviet-American ''Peace Walk'' in Washington.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - As the summer gardening season begins, the government warned parents Friday not to allow children on riding lawnmowers, citing the case of an Ohio boy whose legs were amputated after falling off a mower.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said injuries and deaths to young children can be reduced or eliminated if they stay off, or not play near, riding lawnmowers or garden tractors. One of every five deaths associated with these machines involve children under 10, the agency said.

Last week, a Geauga County, Ohio, man was operating a riding lawnmover with his 5-year-old son in his lap. The boy fell and was trapped under the mower, severing his legs, the commission said.

Outdoor power equipment manufacturers have labels on their machines warning against young riders, but the commission said the warnings are going unheeded.

The commission and equipment manufacturers urge parents to never allow children to ride on the moving equipment, keep kids indoors and supervised when outdoor powered equipment is in use, never assume children will remain where you last saw them and never allow kids to operate a riding mower or tractor, even under supervision.

NEW YORK (MAY 25) UPI - The dollar ended mixed in thin New York trading Friday, strengthening against a politically troubled West German mark but losing nearly two yen against a rebounding Japanese unit.

Currency market participants said global dealings focused on resistance to a draft treaty on German economic and monetary union by West Germany's Social Democratic opposition party, jeopardizing the fusion.

''Activity has been characterized by a very weak mark,'' said Earl Johnson an analyst and currency manager with the Harris Trust & Savings Bank in Chicago. ''The Japanese yen has been the main beneficiary.''

Investors worried about a possible renegotiation of the treaty covering an economic union of East and West Germany on more costly terms have been liquidating mark holdings and moving mainly into Japanese yen.

The market effects of the heavy mark-yen dealings boosted the dollar against the mark but drove it down against the yen.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 1.6830 West German marks, up from 1.68 the day before, and at 149.30 Japanese yen, down from 151.10 yen late the previous session.

The recovery of the Japanese stock and bond markets from their sharp declines earlier this year has also drawn funds back into the yen. But Johnson said he doubted whether the yen rally would be long-lived.

''There are many people who have reservations about whether the yen is going to continue strengthening,'' he said. ''Longer term, there are still questions about the yen and the financial system in Japan.''

Other dollar rates: 1.4230 Swiss francs, unchanged; 5.66 French francs, up from 5.6525; and 1,235 Italian lire, up from 1,233.

The British pound eased to $1.69 from $1.6905.

In Europe, the dollar closed higher against the major currencies in a day of slow trading, supported by German mark weakness.

Currency trading after the Ascension Day holiday in most of Europe was marked by heavy mark-yen cross-trading, dealers said. Analysts looked for the yen to rise further - particularly as mark troubles deepen.

''There's been a revival of sentiment toward the yen, but people are worried about the inflationary implications of German monetary union,'' said Geoffrey Dennis, chief international economist with James Capel Co.

In Frankfurt, the dollar climbed as markets reopened, finishing at 1.6795 deutsche marks against 1.6715 Wednesday. The U.S. unit also was up in Zurich,at 1.4240 Swiss francs compared with 1.4080.

In London, the pound closed slightly lower at $1.6900 compared with $1.6925 Thursday. Sterling maintained a firm undertone on continued hope Britain will fully join the European Monetary System this year.

The dollar was up in Paris and Milan, at 5.6595 French francs against 5.6085 Wednesday and at 1,234 lire against 1,228.30 Thursday.

Brussels remained closed Friday after the Ascension Day holiday.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar plunged against the Japanese yen on news that a U.S. Treasury official said it was undervalued against all major currencies except the yen. It ended at 150.05, against 151.43 Thursday.

The reported remark lead to speculation that the United States would accept the dollar's fall against the yen, dealers said.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $368 an ounce, up from $366.50 Thursday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled spot gold at $368.20 an ounce, ahead from $366.50.

In Zurich, gold closed higher at $367 an ounce against $361.50 Wednesday; the market was closed Thursday. Goldt also was higher in London, where it closed at $367.25 an ounce compared with $366.50.

Republic closed cash silver at $5.23 an ounce, down from $5.245. Comex spot silver ended at $5.215, off from $5.228. Zurich silver was unchanged at $5.25 an ounce, but London silver fell to $5.23 an ounce from $5.27.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - American University and Moscow State University Law School, which is Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's alma mater, have signed an agreement to exchange students beginning in September 1990, American University officials said Friday.

The three-year contract provides for exchanges of students and faculty.

Two Soviet graduate law students and a Soviet professor of criminal statistics will attend American University in Washington. Four to eight American University undergraduate or graduate students will go to the Soviet law school for one to two semesters.

''American University students will be in classes together with Soviet students ... so they'll get a real Soviet experience,'' said Louise Shelley, chairman of American's Department of Justice, Law and Society. She added that many other exchange programs segregate Soviets and Americans.

Moscow State University is the Soviet Union's leading university. Gorbachev graduated from the school's law program.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Beech-Nut Nutrition Corp. is voluntarily recalling 11,000 cases of baby food that were distributed in 22 states east of the Rocky Mountains because they may contain pebbles, the government said Friday.

The small stones, ranging in size from one-eighth inch to one-half inch, were discovered during quality control inspections by the company. The pebbles were traced to a shipment of frozen peas from Europe, Beech-Nut said.

The St. Louis-based company said it has so far received only one complaint about the tainted baby food. There have been no reports of injuries

''Out of concern for our customers and in keeping with our high standards for quality, we at Beech-Nut made the decision to move as quickly as possible to remove these products from the store shelves,'' said Dr. Richard Theuer, Beech-Nut's vice president of research and development and quality assurance.

The recall affects three products, Beech-Nut Table Time Vegetable Stew with Chicken in 12-ounce glass jars, Beech-Nut Stages 3 Chicken Noodle Dinner in 6-ounce glass jars and Beech-Nut Stages 3 Dinner Variety Pack, which includes the chicken noodle dinner as one of four jars of food. No other products are being recalled.

Officials said the Table Time Vegetable Stew with Chicken subject to the recall could be identified by the code ''28FEB92 02A0848'' on the jar, followed by an A, B, C or D. The jars also carry the federal inspection mark and ''Est. No. P-68.'' The stew is packed 12 jars to a case and is intended for children ages 1 and older.

The Stages 3 Chicken Noodle Dinner involved in the recall has the code ''09MAR92 03B0212'' on the jar, follwed by an A, B, C or D. The jars carry the federal inspection seal and ''Est. No. P-68.'' The jars are packed 24 to a case and the food is intended for children ages 9 months and older.

In the case of the Stages 3 Dinner Variety Pack, Beech-Nut is recalling the entire pack although only the chicken noodle dinner might contain stones. In addition to the code on the jar, the wrapper on the pack carries the code ''USE BY MAR 92'' and either ''0423H'' or ''0424H.'' There are six variety packs to a case.

The recall involves Alabama, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, North Carolina, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas, Vermont, Virginia and West Virginia.

Beech-Nut said consumers should return the products to the store where they purchased them.

People with questions about the recall may call the government's toll-free Meat and Poultry Hotline at 1-800-535-5455 from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. EDT Monday through Friday. A tape recording with information about the recall will be provided when there is no one to answer the line. Callers in the Washington area can call the hotline at 447-3333.

Beech-Nut is a subsidiary of Ralston Purina Co. of St. Louis.

(MAY 25) UPI - After being higher most of day, U.S. crude oil prices slipped toward the end of pre-holiday trading Friday, ending the week down by as much as $2.60 a barrel.

But gasoline prices held firm, apparently helped by a fire at a large Canadian refinery after losing as much as 3 cents a gallon on the week.

The standard West Texas Intermediate crude for prompt delivery was bid at $16.05 a barrel on the U.S. Gulf Coast cash market, up 5 cents on the day but down $2.60 a barrel on the week.

WTI for July delivery ended the day down 3 cents on the New York Mercantile Exchange at $17.80 a barrel after trading as high as $18.17 a barrel. It lost $1.62 a barrel on the week.

Prompt delivery unleaded gasoline was bid at 63.40 cents a gallon on the New York Harbor cash market, up 0.15 cent on the day but down 3.15 cents on the week.

Unleaded gasoline for June delivery finished the day at 63.41 cents a gallon on the Merc, up 0.18 cents on the day but down 1.02 cents on the week.

The early part of the Merc's day was ruled by profit taking on short positions previously placed by traders in anticipation of a drop in crude prices, said Bob Jonke of Cargill Investor Services in New York.

Robert Baker, senior energy analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. in New York, said crude prices may begin to firm up.

''I think most all of the bad (oil glut) news is out. We could crude prices holding, but I don't see them jumping up,'' Baker said.

The analyst said gasoline prices may have received a slight boost from news of a fire at state-owned Petro Canada's Edmonton, Alberta, refinery.

A company spokesman said one worker was killed and output from the 125,000 barrel-a-day refinery reduced. Two workers also were seriously burned.

''The bulk of the refinery is currently down, and it will be several days before it is fully functioning again,'' the spokesman said.

He said the refinery was in the process of returning from its maintenance turnaround when the explosion occurred.

Gasoline prices also are being support to some extent by fears of a strike at Brazilian refineries after the state-owned Petrobras oil company said 20 percent of its refinery workers would be laid off.

The week was dominated, however, by the continuing glut in crude oil.The American Petroleum Institute reported Tuesday that U.S. crude stocks last week rose to their highest weekly level since March 12, 1982.

Despite the crude glut, U.S. gasoline inventories last week were 7.1 million barrels less than a year ago, the API said.

Refineries were apparently returning from their annual maintenance ''turnarounds'' from heating oil to gasoline production at a slower-than-usual rate - perhaps because of difficulties in meeting higher regional air-pollution requirements.

On the European cash market, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent crude was bid at $16.30 a barrel, up 5 cents on the day but down 99 cents on the week.

The United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - was quoted at $14.10 a barrel, down 8 cents on the day and 72 cents less than a week ago.

On the Merc, home heating oil for June delivery declined 0.15 cent to 49.66 cents a barrel, 2.26 cents less than last Friday.

Marathon Oil Co., the Findlay, Ohio, unit of USX Corp., lowered the posted price it will pay for crude at the wellhead by 25 cents a barrel to $16.75 a barrel for WTI, equalling the rate set by Sun Co. earlier in the week.

NEW YORK (MAY 25) UPI - Stocks ended up little changed on the week as the market consolidated the gains from its May rally, but the Dow industrials did manage to set three record highs.

The Dow Jones industrial average tumbled 34.63 Friday to close at 2820.92 for a gain of 1.01 points, or less than 0.1 percent, on the week.

Broader market averages were little changed. The New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 0.16 points to close the week at 193.71. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 0.06 to 354.58.

Advances led declines 1,018-879 among the 2,191 issues traded this week. Big Board volume totaled 817,687,860 shares, compared with 878,182,400 a week earlier and 848,901,470 a year ago.

The record highs were set in the first three sessions of the week, before the rally lost some steam and the market began to falter.

In each of those sessions, the Dow industrials overcame weakness either early in the session or at midday to close higher.

On Monday stocks fought off early weakness thanks to some computerized program buying and the blue chip index rallied 24 points to a new record.

In Tuesday's session prices seesawed but still managed to close higher and on Wednesday investors bid prices up just before the close to tack another 4 points on to the all-time high in the Dow.

It seemed the Dow just refused to close lower in the early part of the week, but by Thursday and Friday profit taking and a gloomy earnings forecast from a computer software company erased the week's gains.

The market was unable to fight off profit taking in Thursday's session, losing less than a point in the Dow industrials, and on Friday, the technology sector, which had led the May rally, dragged the Dow to its biggest loss since Feb. 20.

The selloff in technologies was sparked by a dismal earnings forecast from Adobe Systems, which said late Thursday it expected earnings and revenues for the second quarter of 27 to 35 cents a share, far below expectations.

Adobe revised the forecast slightly upward, to 29 to 37 cents, before the market's opening Friday. The revision was based on new information from Apple Computer, its largest customer, on April shipments. But the forecast was still far below what was expected.

In over-the-counter trading Friday, Adobe closed at 35 1/4, plunging 15 1/4. It was the most active issue and its announcement essentially erased the week's gains.

Analysts were not overly disturbed by the market's performance this week, considering its almost-month-long rally which has taken the Dow industrials to six record highs in the last two weeks.

''A flat week after the rise we had is not disappointing,'' said Alan Ackerman, senior vice president at Gruntal & Co. ''There's still a substantial cash cushion on the sidelines (institutional money not being put to work in the market) and as long as we don't have any surprises I think the retreat will work its way down to 2800 or 2810 and then we'll have another attempt at a rally.''

Jeff Kaminsky, head of institutional sales trading at Mabon, Nugent & Co. agreed, calling the week ''a temporary pause. I think the end of the move in the market will be marked by a string of data that will indicate the economy is in trouble.

''I don't know if or when that will come and as long there's money out of the market to fuel the rally it will go higher,'' he said.

Kaminsky also said there are a lot of uninvested institutional funds. ''The performance by institutional fund managers has not been terribly impressive,'' he said.

''I think there are still some legs left on this market,'' said Kaminsky.

On the trading floor this week, Texas Utilities was the most active issue, up 1/2 to 37.

Philip Morris followed, off 1 1/4 to 42 1/2. Nova Corp. of Alberta was third, unchanged at 6 7/8.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T fell 1 7/8 to 41 5/8, IBM was up 7/8 to 116 1/4, McDonald's rose 1 5/8 to 34 3/8 and Merck jumped 4 3/4 to 84.

On the American Stock Exchange, the Amex Market Value index rose 3.52 to close Friday at 359.84. Advances barely led declines 405-400 among the 1,008 issues traded.

Amex volume totaled 79,422,240 shares, compared with 69,671,675 traded a week earlier and 58,720,165 traded in the same week a year ago.

Hillhaven led the Amex actives, up 3/8 to 1 1/2.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 5.38 to end the week at 453.69.

Instead, the comet turned out to be much fainter than expected.

A state appeals court in Beaumont, Texas, has ruled that a diamond isn't necessarily forever. The ruling came in the case of Mark Durand, who gave his fiancee, Bambi Medley, a four-thousand-dollar diamond ring when they became engaged. He wanted it back when they divorced after a year of marriage, but she wanted to keep it. So they went to court. A state district judge ruled that Bambi Durand could keep the ring because it was a gift. But a state appeals court ruled yesterday that it was a ''conditional gift'' at best and she must return the ring.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - The International Monetary Fund agreed Friday night to resume lending to Argentina and to support a reduction of the country's debt to commercial banks.

At the same time, the IMF cancelled one $240 million disbursement to the South American country, financial sources said.

The IMF's executive board approved the reactivation of a Nov. 10 $1.4

billion medium- term loan to Argentina in support of the country's bal- ance of payments, ''in view of the forceful (economic) pro- gram implemented by the Argentine authorities,'' a fund spokesman said.

The IMF will make immedi- ately available a drawing of $239 million.

Argentina received a dis- bursement of a similar amount last year on the November loan but lost a second $239 million disbursement that was due February when the Buenos Aires government fell out compliance with the IMF's lending conditions.

At the time, the $1.4 billion ''stand-by'' was shelved until the fund could determine if the Argentine government was will- ing to stabilize the economy, which has been raked by fiscal deficits and a high rate of inflation.

The second drawing ''is lost to Argentina,'' a financial source said.

Future drawings from the IMF will include ''set-aside'' funds to support debt reduction operations, a fund official said.

Argentina's total foreign debt exceeds $60 billion. The country is $6.2 billion in arrears on interest payments to private banks.

FORT ERIE, ONTARIO (MAY 25) UPI - In a show of hands, a group of independent truckers agreed Friday to end a lingering blockade of two U.S. border crossings on the Niagara Falls peninsula.

The Canadian truckers earlier pledged to keep the bridges at Fort Erie and Queenston, Ontario, closed despite a deal reached Thursday with truckers in Windsor, Ontario, until they got assurances their specific concerns would be addressed by provincial officials.

Bill Wrye, Ontario's transport minister, sent a letter Friday to Richard Blackmore and John McLellan, representatives of the Owner-Operator Truckers Association, agreeing to meet with them next Wednesday.

Blackmore, using a police microphone, explained the details of the letter to about 100 truckers, who then raised their hands to vote on ending their blockade.

''It is my understanding that my agreement to meet with you will end the blockage,'' Wrye said in the brief letter.

Wrye said he would discuss additional rest areas, insurance costs, fuel taxes, needs of professional truck drivers, load broker practices and rates for independent owner-operators with the truckers, upset primarily at U.S.-based truckers who enjoy tax and other cost advantages.

Several hundred trucks at the Fort Erie and Queenston bridges began to disperse soon afterward, police and bridge officials said.

Ford Motor Co.'s Canadian operations were still feeling the effects of the blockade Friday, with one of its car assembly plants operating a four-hour day shift.

Ford spokesman Jim Hartford said the carmaker lost 2,100 units due to the truck blockade.

General Motors Corp.'s two car and one truck assembly facilities in Oshawa were ''up and running,'' but the flow of components into the complex dictated an hour-by-hour check, said spokesman Nick Hall. In all, GM Canada lost production of 3,000 units at its three assembly plants.

Walt McCall, spokesman for Chrysler Corp.'s Canadian subsidiary, said thatoperations were ''back to normal'' and that lost production totalled 260 mini-vans at its Windsor plant. Other than partial shifts at its truck assembly plant, Canadian operations were unaffected, he said.

In Alliston, Ontario, Honda Canada spokesman Arnold Norris said that no workers were sent home but that the company's plant lost production of between 500 and 600 units.

NEW YORK (MAY 25) UPI - Shearson Lehman Hutton Holdings Inc. announced Friday it will not declare a quarterly dividend on the company's common stock, in accordance with the terms of its merger agreement with American Express Co.

American Express also will not receive a quarterly dividend on the $750 million in convertible exchangeable preferred stock it owns.

Shearson and American Express reached an agreement in March calling for American Express to acquire all outstanding Shearson common stock that it did not already own.

In the merger, each publicly held share of Shearson common stock will be converted into 0.48 of a share of American Express common stock.

(MAY 25) UPI - Lithuanian officials says Soviet President Gorbachev appears to have eased his stand on the Baltic republic's independence declaration. One report says Gorbachev contacted a Lithuanian representative in Moscow and offered to discuss steps to resolve the independence crisis.

Also in Moscow, Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzgkov threatened to resign if parliament fails to approve a plan moving the Soviet Union toward a modified market economy. His comment came as a follow-up to a demand by radical legislators yesterday urging a NO-confidence vote on his leadership.

And on another front, dissident Boris Yeltsin appears to have moved a step closer to his goal of becoming president of the Russian republic. This came today when the incumbent withdrew his candidacy for the post. That leaves Yeltsin the clear favorite for election to the post.

The Commerce Department says the U-S merchandise trade deficit has shrunk to its lowest point since 1983. WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - United Press International and the Wire Service Guild have reached tentative agreement on a contract to replace a pact that expired last year, the union announced Friday.

The Guild, which represents 550 domestic UPI employees, said in a statement to its members that its negotiators ''believe the tentative agreement would be the best contract available to employees and recommended acceptance.''

The agreement must be ratified by Guild members. The union said a schedule for the vote would be announced soon.

''We're happy that the matter will be submitted for a vote and we look forward to that vote,'' said UPI spokesman Milt Capps.

The proposed 2 1/2-year agreement provides for a general pay increase of 3 percent effective July 1 and an additional 3 percent raise July 1, 1991. It also extends a 40-hour work week to all employees. Union-covered employees in larger news bureaus currently work 37 1/2 hours per week while employees in smaller bureaus work 40 hours a week.

The contract would replace an agreement that expired July 1. Negotiators for the Wire Service Guild and UPI have been meeting for a year.

SEATTLE (MAY 27) UPI - The Boeing Co. announced Friday that Iberia Airlines of Spain has agreed to purchase 16 757 twinjets worth about $1 billion and options on another dozen.

The value of the firm orders includes spare parts and training, Boeing said. Engine selection will be made at a later date.

Iberia said it is purchasing the planes as part of a fleet renewal program. The jets will be used on routes to European, African and Middle Eastern destinations.

The Iberia order was the second in as many days for Boeing that was worth $1 billion or more. Boeing Thursday announced that Japan Air Lines had signed a deal to purchase 20 747-400 jumbo jets worth more than $3 billion.

ORLANDO, Fla. (MAY 25) UPI - American Pioneer Savings Bank, a thrift with 36 branches statewide, was placed Friday in the federal government's conservatorship program in an effort to keep the thrift from slipping further into insolvency.

American Pioneer had $1.7 billion in assets, including $1.4 billion in 122,758 deposit accounts, at the time of it was taken over by the Resolution Trust Corp. On March 31, the financial institution reported liabilities of $1.66 billion.

''There will be no interruption of American Pioneer's operations,'' said Andrea Platter, an RTC official.

The thrift reported an operating loss of $25.5 million and a net loss of $14.3 million for 1989, despite a $19.6 million gain from the sale of 13 branch offices to Southeast Bank of Miami in December.

American Pioneer also sold two home building companies for $65.7 million in January in hopes of boosting the thrift's tangible capital by $15 million. However, losses for the first quarter of 1990 totaled $9.21 million.

''American Pioneer's condition is due primarily to poor management and a high level of delinquent loans and real estate owned, including loans originated by American Pioneer and troubled assets acquired in the acquisition of three thrifts in the mid-1980s,'' said the Office of Thrift Supervision.

The RTC was established to manage troubled savings and loans as part of a 1989 thrift rescue law. Under the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989, the RTC is charged with disposing of more than $94 billion worth of assets from more than 270 insolvent thrifts.

WASHINGTON (MAY 25) UPI - Orders placed with U.S. machine tool manufacturers reached $289.45 million in April, 8.9 percent above the March total of $265.85 million, the Association for Manufacturing Technology said.

In a statement for release Monday, the NMTBA noted that year-to-date machine tool orders - from both domestic and foreign clients - stand at $951.15 million, down 9.1 percent from $1.05 billion for the first four months of 1989.

April 1990 machine tool orders were 19.3 percent higher than the total for April 1989.

Machine tool shipments in April totaled $258.20 million, down 10.6 percent from the $288.90 million posted in March. Year-to-date shipments reached $1.041 billion, 11.1 percent higher than the $937.20 million for the first four months of 1989.

Compared to April a year ago, April 1990 shipments are up 3.5 percent.

The machine tool order backlog for April 1990 was $1.71 billion, up from $1.68 billion in March. The April 1989 backlog was substantially higher at $2.3 billion.

''For the second consecutive month, we see domestic machine tool orders up a positive sign for U.S. manufacturing,'' NMTBA President Albert W. Moore said. ''Most analysist had predicted the U.S. economy would be slow until the latter half of 1990, but recession fears have subsided.''

April orders for metal cutting machines totaled $206.85 million, up 4.4 percent from March's $198.20 million. Year-to-date metal cutting orders of $662.50 million are down 12.3 percent from $755.35 million in the first four months of 1989.

Orders for metal forming equipment rose 22.1 percent to $82.60 million in April from $67.65 million in March. Year-to-date metal forming figures are almost level with 1989, standing at $288.65 million, 0.6 percent below the 1989 figure of $290.50 million.

Comparing orders for April to April 1989, metal cutting are up 35.4 percent, while metal forming are down 8 percent, the association said.

PEARSON, GA (MAY 25) UPI - An Air Force F-16 fighter jet on a training mission crashed in rural Georgia Friday, killing the pilot and a woman on the ground and narrowly missing a resident who had been reading a Bible in her living room.

A sheriff's spokeswoman identified the crash victim on the ground as Marion Lanier, a cleaning woman who was making her weekly visit to a client's home in a predominantly residential area of southern Georgia's Atkinson County.

The jet went down in a ball of flames near Georgia Highway 441 around 9:40 a.m., sending black smoke billowing hundreds of feet into the sky until late afternoon.

The plane was carrying six practice bombs, but the crash impact caused none to blow up.

Six homes were damaged in the crash. Reporters at the scene said at least two of the houses were leveled, and the house where Lanier died appeared to have been destroyed by fire. Other houses had windows shattered.

A 73-year-old woman living on the other side of the highway narrowly escaped injury. Mabel Guthrie said she had walked out of her living room where she had been sitting and reading a Bible just before the crash.

A piece of the aircraft tore through the room a few minutes after she got up to telephone her daughter, striking the couch where she had been sitting.

''The Lord moves you out of the way when it's not your time to go,'' Guthrie said.

The jet was flying in a ''two-ship formation'' with another F-16 at the time of the crash, said Master Sgt. Pat Miller of Moody Air Force Base.

The jet was on a ''low-level routine training mission'' from the base, about 40 miles away, to Lake George Weapons Range in Florida when the crash occurred, Miller said.

Officials could not immediately explain why the jet crashed north of the air base when it was due to fly south to Florida.

The plane went down about 1 1/2 miles north of Pearson, a sleepy rural town of some 2,000 people 60 miles from the Georgia-Florida border, said Kathleen Guthrie, executive assistant to the sheriff.

Deputy Commander Stu Mosby, in charge of the team of military investigators examining the crash, said no identifiable pieces of the aircraft had been recovered. The heavy damage probably means it will be 30 days before investigators can draw any conclusions about the crash, Mosby said.

''The last time the pilot was in contact with us was when he took off,'' Mosby said, adding the transmission was routine. The deputy commander would release few details about the pilot, except to describe him as experienced.

Mosby confirmed the pilot ejected his fuel tanks before the crash, but held on to a practice sidewinder missile and six practice bombs.

The missile carried no detonator or motor, and the six bombs had low-detonation charges that did not explode on impact. The jet also carried an unknown number of 20mm bullets, some of which exploded in the fire triggered by the crash, Mosby said.

Mosby said investigators did not know if there was a midair explosion before the crash, as some witnesses reported.

Lucy Taft and her husband, Vance, were in the yard of their farmhouse when the plane went down some 80 yards away. A patch of woodland kept the couple from seeing the crash, but Lucy Taft said they felt its impact.

Several members of the community complained about the low flights often practiced over Pearson, saying they have become too dangerous.

''If they're going to have these bombing runs, they ought to have them over Okefenokee Swamp,'' said Aaron Royals. ''What I'm getting at is they don't have to fly over Pearson, Ga.''

The plane crashed about a mile from Atkinson County High School. Students said they felt the impact of the crash.

Andrew Royals, who is the son of Aaron and an 11th grader at the school, said the crash shook lights in the halls and cracked walls in mobile classrooms.

Friends of Marion Lanier, the dead housekeeper, described her as a hard-working woman in her late 50s or early 60s who attended church regularly.

She was in the middle of her weekly visit to the home of Jack and Kelly Keaton when the home was struck by either the jet or its debris.

Kelly Keaton, who works with a visiting nurses program in town, said it was a miracle she and her husband were not home when the jet crashed.

''I usually don't go in early. I just happened to go in,'' she said. She added her husband had been sick and planned to stay home from work Friday, but his supervisor called him Thursday night and sent him out of town suddenly.

The F-16, nicknamed the ''Fighting Falcon,'' is a single-engine aircraft capable of flying at twice the speed of sound and up to 50,000 feet.

The aircraft is usually a single-seater, but can be converted into a two-seater for training missions, Air Force officials said.

Mosby said the most recent crash involving a Moody jet was Feb. 10, 1988, when mechanical failure forced a pilot to eject safely. No one was injured and no damage was reported to private property.

In May 1989, a trainer jet out of Moody accidentally dropped a 500-pound bomb in west Georgia. It blew up in a wooded area, narrowly missing some houses. The Air Force blamed a faulty bomb rack.

PALM SPRINGS, CA (MAY 25) UPI - Japanese companies have purchased two desert resort golf courses in separate deals totaling $27 million, people involved in the deals said Friday.

The two courses are the Rancho Mirage Country Club, which was purchased by real estate investment concern GGS, of Tokyo, for $14 million; and the Desert Dunes Country Club, which was purchased by Hogyokudo California Ltd., an affiliate of Hogyokudo Co. Ltd. of Japan, for $13 million.

Japanese investors have become increasingly involved in buying American golf properties in recent years. Analysts say Japanese interest stems from both their passion for golf and the belief that Americans will begin playing golf in significantly greater numbers as baby boomers age.

The Rancho Mirage property was sold by Woodhaven Management, which is owned by David Miller, the founder of the Miller's Outpost retail chain.

California Pacific Resorts owner George Mooney said his company has been named to manage the Rancho Mirage property.

The Desert Dunes property was sold by Desert Dunes L.P., of which Barnhard Group is the general partner, said Ken Ohara, a real estate agent with MRI Realty, which brokered the deal. Ohara said the new owners plan to rebuild the clubhouse.

SACRAMENTO (MAY 25) UPI - Dianne Feinstein's wealthy investment banker husband, Richard Blum, has loaned the Feinstein campaign more than $3 million to get his wife elected governor, finance statements showed Friday.

The loans represent the bulk of the $4.8 million Feinstein has spent in a hard-fought Democratic primary campaign against John Van de Kamp.

''I think it raises once again the question of who is behind that money, and what they want from state government,'' said Vicky Rideout, a spokeswoman for the Van de Kamp campaign. ''The rest of us have to say who gives every contribution. We don't know where that money comes from or what interest they have in government.''

Van de Kamp has sought to make an issue of the loans from Feinstein's husband, asserting that the money came from special interests that can't be traced.

Feinstein has disclosed the names of Blum's corporate clients, but has refused to reveal individual clients on the grounds that it would violate their privacy.

The Blum loans played a crucial role earlier this year when Feinstein was able to buy television time in Southern California to make herself better known in a part of the state where voters knew less about her than Van de Kamp.

The Feinstein campaign shot back at Van de Kamp that relying on family money makes the former San Francisco mayor less reliant than the attorney general on contributions from special interests.

''It makes the Feinstein campaign independent from special interests. Van de Kamp has gotten a lot of money from special interests. He's gotten a $1 million from lawyers alone,'' said Feinstein spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers. ''Dianne hasn't had to do that.''

Candidates' spending statements had to be mailed to the secretary of state's office postmarked no later than midnight Thursday. Most major campaigns made them available on Friday.

The statements cover fundraising and spending from the beginning of the year through May 19.

They also showed that Sen. Pete Wilson, the certain Republican choice for governor in the June 5 primary election, has nearly $3.5 million in the bank, campaign reports released Friday show.

Running without serious opposition, Wilson has been able to bank large sums of money for the November election.

Van de Kamp and Feinstein are running virtually hand-to-mouth campaigns, spending money as fast as they can in an attempt to defeat each other in the Democratic primary.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 25) UPI - Several small adhesions have developed in former President Ronald Reagan's intestine, forcing him to cancel a trip to Europe next month, his office announced Friday.

The 79-year-old Reagan's physicians believe the adhesions are a result of his adominal surgery in 1985, and are not uncommon or dangerous, his spokesman, Mark Weinberg, said.

''He was in his office today and looked and felt fine,'' said Weinberg, adding the president's physicians consider him to be in otherwise excellent health.

The president and Mrs. Reagan, Weinberg said, canceled their scheduled trip to Germany, Poland and France in mid-June ''so that his physicians can evaluate and monitor him.''

The physicians have also advised the former president to limit his travel for the next several months, Weinberg said. An adhesion is the joining of body parts by fibrous tissue.

Reagan was found to have a cancerous tumor in his intestine during a routine physical examination in July 1985.

As the cancer was removed during surgery at the Bethesda Naval Hospital, Reagan temporarily transferred presidential powers to then-Vice President George Bush.

The president recovered quickly.

The surgery was the last major medical procedure done on the president while in office, although he subsequently had small, cancerous skin growths removed from his nose and face.

Reagan, who returned to live in Los Angeles after leaving office last year at age 77, recovered quickly from a gunshot wound inflicted in a 1981 assassination attempt.

SAN DIEGO (MAY 25) UPI - A federal judge rejected a proposal Friday that would have broadened the powers of the Border Patrol by allowing it to screen motorists for drugs at immigration checkpoints.

In his 16-page ruling, U.S. District Judge J. Lawrence Irving found that Border Patrol agents may search cars at the checkpoints only when there is ''probable cause'' to suspect drug trafficking.

The decision by grew out of an unusual request made by a federal prosecutor in two drug cases. Irving was asked to decide whether the Border Patrol could question drivers and search their vehicles for drugs even if the motorists could prove they were in the country legally.

''The court finds that such checkpoints may not be used for such a purpose absent probable cause or consent,'' Irving said. ''Such questioning should be limited to an inquiry of immigration status.''

However, Irving denied motions by defense lawyers to exclude evidence obtained against two men arrested for drug possession, ruling that both men had given Border Patrol agents probable cause to search them.

Irving's ruling involved activities at the San Clemente and Temecula highway checkpoints in northern San Diego County.

The checkpoints are about 80 miles north of the Mexican border. Agents at the San Clemente stop on Interstate 5 and the Temecula stop on Interstate 15 screen northbound vehicles for illegal aliens.

Agents in an initial inspection area who suspect a vehicle might be transporting aliens can direct the driver to a secondary inspection area.

Irving said Supreme Court rulings have established the legality of the checkpoints and routine screening for immigration purposes. However, he said, rulings dating to the Prohibition era protect the rights of drivers against unreasonable seaches.

The checkpoint issue stemmed from the arrests of Manuel Mac Bojorquez and Michael W. Franzenberg, who were taken into custody in separate incidents earlier this year when agents discovered they were carrying quantities of methamphetamine during checkpoint inspections.

Lawyers for both men sought to exclude evidence obtained by Border Patrol agents on grounds that the evidence was obtained in violation of Fourth Amendment protections against unreasonable searches and seizures.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Patrick O'Toole had recommended that agents be allowed to ask all drivers a few brief questions about drugs and direct them to a secondary inspection area if suspicions were aroused.

''The intrusion, if any, is merely being asked some questions designed to investigate drug smuggling, instead of just being asked some questions designed to investigate alien smuggling or immigration offenses,'' O'Toole argued.

But attorneys for the two suspects said their clients should not have been searched in secondary inspection once they established their legal immigration status.

Irving did rule that both men were properly sent into secondary inspection. Agents saw an empty gun holster in Franzenberg's car and the trunk of Bojorquez's car seemed unusually low to the ground, a possible sign of aliens being transported.

MIAMI (MAY 25) UPI - A tropical disturbance dumped heavy rain on Cuba Friday and headed for the Florida Keys carrying top winds near 30 mph, officials said.

The relatively weak disturbance, called a depression, came to life a week before the official June 1 start of the 1990 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season.

If a depression develops maximum sustained winds of at least 39 mph, it is classified as a tropical storm.

At 6 p.m. EDT, the center of the depression was at latitude 24.0 degrees north, longitude 82 west, or about 35 miles south southwest of Key West, Fla., said Jerry Jarrell, deputy director of the National Hurricane Center. The depression was moving near 15 mph toward the Keys.

Maximum sustained winds were near 30 mph, with forecasters predicting little strengthening during the next 24 hours. Gusts were recorded up to 36 mph.

The Hurricane Center had received reports of as much as 6 inches of rain in the Matanzas Province east of Havana since Thursday afternoon, Jarrell said.

''As it enters across the Florida Straits from Cuba, we will have showers spreading into this area, probably thundershowers,'' Jarrell said. ''It's quite possible some of the amounts could be heavy, like 2 inches to 4 inches locally.''

But the heavy rains were not expected to ease the 21-month south Florida drought because the showers were to stay away from Lake Okeechobee, which supplies much of the municipal water, Jarrell said.

''It's going to be in the wrong place,'' he said. ''This will be the extreme southeast of Florida. I don't think it will help our water table.''

ANCHORAGE, AK (MAY 25) UPI - A Japanese company has agreed to pay $900,000 to the United States to settle charges that one of its vessels repeatedly crossed into U.S. waters to fish illegally, a federal prosecutor announced Friday.

The settlement - involving one of the largest dollar amounts for a single vessel accused of violating U.S. fisheries laws - also states that if any of the company's vessels are caught fishing illegally in U.S. waters again they will be forfeited to the United States, Assistant U.S. Attorney Timothy Burgess said.

The agreement to forfeit vessels that break U.S. fishing laws in the future is unprecedented, Burgess said, but does not preclude the company from going to court to deny guilt in a future case.

A 19-count civil complaint filed last week in U.S. District Court had alleged repeated violations by the 170-foot Koei Maru No. 20. That complaint will be dropped as part of the settlement - once the money is paid, Burgess said.

He said the stiff fine plus the statement that in the future the United States will seize - and keep - company vessels fishing without permission in American waters was designed to send a message to foreign fleets that ''it is important that these laws not be violated,'' Burgess said.

This is the second settlement in a week between the U.S. Attorney for Alaska and a foreign fishing company that had a vessel seized in the U.S. 200-mile zone. A Soviet fishing company agreed to a $350,000 settlement of charges that its vessel, the Ilya Ilyin, fished in U.S. waters earlier this year.

''We're continuing to try to stop these violations,'' Burgess said.

In both cases, the vessels were allegedly just inside U.S. waters - the Koei Maru 2 miles over the line, the Soviets slightly more than 1 mile inside the U.S. zone, according to Coast Guard reports.

Foreign fishing fleets frequent an unregulated area of international waters in the Bering Sea west of Alaska known as the ''doughnut hole'' and surrounded by U.S. and Soviet waters. Federal officials and American fishermen have charged that these vessels operate at the eastern edge of the doughnut hole and then sneak over the line in bad weather and in darkness to fish in the U.S. exclusive economic zone.

Earlier this week a federal magistrate set bond at $1.75 million for release of the Koei Maru from Dutch Harbor, a fishing port in the Aleutian Island chain where the Coast Guard escorted the ship after taking it into custody May 11. The Koei Maru had 320 metric tons of processed fish on board.

No bond had been paid and the ship was still in custody when the settlement was reached. The Soviets were released last Friday after reaching a settlement.

The Koei Maru is owned by Marukei K.K. and its home port is Shiogama, Japan.

The Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act governs fishing in the U.S. 200-mile zone. Foreign vessels may not fish in the zone without a permit. At one time, permits were issued to foreign fleets, but in recent years the zone has been Americanized and reserved exclusively for American fishermen, though some foreign processors work in joint ventures with the American fishing boats.

LOS ANGELES (MAY 25) UPI - An independent autopsy was performed by a private pathologist Friday on the man allegedly shot to death by actor Marlon Brando's son, officials said.

The autopsy on Dag Drollet, who was the Tahitian boyfriend of Brando's daughter, Cheyenne, was conducted after the Coroner's Office did its own autopsy, a coroner's investigator said.

Drollet's body was released to a mortuary following Friday's autopsy.

The District Attorney's Office has charged Christian Brando, 32, with first-degree murder for allegedly premeditating the fatal shooting of Drollet, 26, on the evening of May 16 in Marlon Brando's 12-room house in the Santa Monica Mountains.

The results of Friday's autopsy, performed by Michael Baden, the former chief medical examiner of New York, were not available.

According to the television news magazine show ''Hard Copy,'' Marlon Brando, concerned about the original autopsy findings, arranged for Baden to conduct the second autopsy.

''Hard Copy'' was to broadcast its report on the autopsy next week.

Baden could not be reached for comment Friday. Baden rose to national prominence when he served as pathologist for the House Select Assassinations Committee in its inquiry into the slayings of President John F. Kennedy and the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. In 1979, he was fired as New York's chief medical examiner amid charges of irresponsibility and unprofessional conduct. Five years later, he was awarded $100,000 in damages stemming from his dismissal.

Baden was quoted by ''Hard Copy'' as saying, ''(Marlon) Brando is concerned about the original autopsy findings and how it correlated with what happened at his residence.''

''Brando had certain questions as to the nature of the death and how it occurred that had not been answered for him in the first autopsy and this is part of the process to try and make sure that all questions are answered because the body will be leaving the country sometime (Friday),'' apparently to be flown back to the victim's native Tahiti, Baden said.

The Coroner's Office said that the first autopsy determined that the cause of death was a ''gunshot wound to the head and neck.''

Deputy District Attorney Steven Barshop has charged that the victim was shot in the head from behind, while seated in a chair watching television, a cigarette lighter in one hand and a television remote control in the other.

Police said the shooting occurred after Christian Brando accused Drollet of physically abusing Cheyenne Brando.

However, in statements to police, Christian Brando claimed that the shooting was an accident that occurred while he and Drollet were struggling for a .45-caliber handgun. The younger Brando also claimed that he was drunk at the time of the shooting.

The second autopsy was apparently conducted to find medical evidence that would bolster Christian Brando's defense. Lead defense counsel William Kunstler has said that lesser manslaughter charges, not a murder count, should have been filed against his client since the shooting was an accident.

A judge on Tuesday denied a defense motion to set bail for Christian Brando, despite 18 character references submitted to the court, including one from actor Jack Nicholson.

Christian Brando remained in custody without bail and will return to court June 11 to schedule a preliminary hearing.

Although prosecutors are seeking a first-degree murder conviction, they are not seeking a death sentence against Christian Brando. If convicted, Christian Brando would be sentenced to 25 years to life in state prison.

''The messenger of misery has come to my house,'' Marlon Brando, who attended Tuesday's bail hearing, told reporters afterward.

OAKLAND, CA (MAY 25) UPI - A pair of anti-logging ''eco-guerrillas'' hurt in a pipe bomb explosion were arrested Friday and police said the two were believed to have been transporting the device in their car and may have intended to use it.

Judi Bari, 40, and Darryl Cherney, 33, members of the Earth First! environmental organization, were charged with the ''possession and transportation'' of the bomb that exploded Thursday in a station wagon in which they were driving, sending it careening into a car and a truck.

''The decision to arrest was based on the placement of the device, the nature of its construction and physical and other evidence developed by the investigators,'' police Lt. Mike Sims said.

A municipal judge set bail at $100,000 and arraignment on the charges was not expected until Tuesday, Alameda County Assistant Deputy District Attorney Christopher Carpenter said.

Sims announced the charges at a news conference held under heavy security as demonstrators gathered outside the Hall of Justice in Oakland to protest the arrests. He told reporters a device similar to the one in Thursday's blast partially exploded May 8 at a lumber mill in Cloverdale.

Police suspect Bari and Cherney had intended to use the bomb that exploded Thursday, Sims said.

''We don't know what form that would take,'' he said. ''We're making an assumption that, if a bomb is built, it was intended to be used.''

Bari's lawyer, Susan Jordan, said Bari, sedated and in pain, denied the charges from a hospital where she was listed in critical but stable condition.

''She's shocked at even the suggestion she was involved,'' Jordan said, adding, ''I'm scared. I think there's a murderer out there.''

Cherney, in a telephone interview from his jail cell with KMUD-FM radio station in Redway, denied the bomb was his. He recounted the explosion.

''I heard a crack and then my whole head started to ring like a Sitar ... and the car came to a screeching halt,'' he said.

''My head was bleeding. I knew I had a seat belt on and couldn't figure why my head was bleeding if I hadn't hit the windshield and then I heard somebody scream out, 'It's a bomb! There was a bomb!' and then it all made sense. Some one had tried to kill us.''

Cherney said the FBI questioned him. ''They were nice up to a point.

''They wanted to know where we'd been and who would do this to us and I explained to them that we received over 25 death threats over the last two months; that this kind of thing really wasn't all that unexpected, and all of a sudden the questioning changed and they kind of squinted down a little bit into my one eye that was left and they said, 'Now we can find out if that was your bomb or not, so why don't you just tell us.'

''And I said, 'Hey man, it never even occurred to me they would even remotely consider that we would be carrying a bomb in our car.' I was completely disgusted with that,'' he said.

A firefighter at the scene of the explosion had told reporters the device was apparently placed under the front seat of the car. Asked if there was evidence the defendants had made the bomb, Sims said, ''Yes,'' but would not elaborate.

The two environmentalists were headed for Santa Cruz, Calif., to recruit students for a summer protest when the blast occurred. They had been organizing college students nationwide to participate in what Earth First! has dubbed a non-violent ''Redwood Summer,'' of blocking logging trucks and picketing timber operations in Northern California's forests starting June 1.

Earth First! spokesman Alan Van Tress said in a statement that Cherney and Bari ''are thoroughly committed to non-violence.''

''It smells like a setup to me,'' he said.

Bari suffered a fractured pelvis in the blast and underwent surgery. Cherney was treated for facial cuts and turned over to the authorities.

Sims said police searched two houses in Oakland that had been visited by Bari and Cherney but did not find any other explosives. No other arrests were anticipated, he said.

The blast occurred near Oakland High School near where a track class was jogging, but no students were injured. School officials said if the blast had happened 10 minutes later, there would have been hundreds of students in or near the street on their lunch break.

The car was apparently in a convoy of three vehicles carrying Earth First! members. Just after the blast, a man in one of the other cars jumped out and started yelling, ''It's the loggers. The loggers are trying to kill us.''

Bari, of Mendocino, and Cherney, of Garberville, have been active in organizing the summer protest to help save some 30,000 acres of giant redwoods belonging to Pacific Lumber Co. Another 130,000 acres of redwoods are protected in federal and state parkland.

Bari said Tuesday during a radio interview that death threats have been phoned and tacked to her door, and that she was once run off the road by logging trucks while driving with her two children on a remote road near Mendocino.

Earth First! once advocated such methods of fighting logging as the ''spiking'' of trees with steel rods that would cause chainsaws to whip if they were hit, endangering the lives of lumberjacks. Last month, Cherney said such violent measures were not tolerated or practiced by the group.

Earth First!, based in Tucson, Ariz., claims about 15,000 members, who some call ''eco-guerrillas.'' They say they are fighting to protect 4 billion years of evolution.

(MAY 25) UPI - A break-through may be near in the Lithuanian crisis...

Scientists say deadly U-S-S Iowa blast probably was an accident... Lawyers for Marion Barry want his drug charges dismissed... And a South African court convicts an associate of Winnie Mandela of murder... U-P-I details these top stories and more, next.

Soviet President Gorbachev may be willing to cut a deal for Lithuanian independence.

The Lithuanian News Agency ELTA says Gorbachev called the chief of Lithuania's mission in Moscow and said he was prepared to talk about the crisis sparked by Lithuania's March 11th declaration of independence.

The Lithuanian official told reporters in Moscow that Gorbachev clearly said- quote- ''independence is acceptable.''

Gorbachev also reportedly said- quote- ''If there's a divorce, it would take two years to divide up the property.''

Also today, the Russian premier withdrew his candidacy for the presidency of the giant Russian republic. The unexpected move stunned the new legislature and clears the way for renegade Boris Yeltsin to win the powerful post.

In Moscow, Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov also is threatening to quit if the parliament rejects the government's new economic plan to overhaul the ailing Soviet economy.

A Senate panel opened a hearing today into the explosion that ripped the battleship Iowa last year, killing 47 sailors.

Scientists appearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee today said they believe that what they termed a ''plausible accident'' caused the explosion. They said this could have occurred by over-ramming charges into a 16-inch gun barrel.

The vessel was engaged in gunnery practice in the Atlantic Ocean when the blast occurred in a gun turret on April 19th, 1989.

An initial Navy investigation listed sabotage as the probable cause of the explosion. The report blamed gunner's mate Clayton Hartwig, who died in the blast. Family and friends disputed the Navy's finding.

Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn termed the Navy probe ''flawed.'' But in an interview, Defense Secretary Cheney said he is reserving judgment on the report.

(MAY 25) UPI - An attorney for Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Berry asked a federal judge today to dismiss the 14-count drug and perjury case against Barry.

Attorney R. Kenneth Mundy claimed in court papers that the F-B-I had illegally endangered Barry's life during his January 18th cocaine arrest in the nation's capital.

Among other things, Mundy claimed that law officers had provided Barry with 87 percent pure crack cocaine that Barry allegedly smoked during an F-B-I ''sting'' operation.

Mundy says Barry could have died from the effects of the drug. He says prosecutors knew the dangers because they posted emergency medical personnel outside the hotel room where Barry was arrested... and later had Barry's stomach pumped. Barry is scheduled to stand trial on June 4th.

A former bodyguard of Winnie Mandela was found guilty today of murdering a teen-age political activist.

The South African Supreme Court returned the verdict against 42-year-old Jerry Richardson, who was charged with murdering the 14-year-old youth. The case also involved claims that the wife of nationalist leader Nelson Mandela was present while the youth and three others were tortured.

The ruling raises the possibility that Winnie Mandela could face assault charges since the three surviving youths in the 1989 incident accused her of attacking them with her fists and whips. But a finding that the cause of the 14-year-old's death was stabbing appeared to exclude Mrs. Mandela from facing murder charges.

Nelson Mandela earlier this week defended his wife, saying she had been the target of government attempts to ''besmirch'' her reputation.

(MAY 25) UPI - Investigators are trying to determine what caused the crash of an F-16 fighter jet in rural Georgia earlier today. The crash killed the jet's pilot and one other person on the ground.

A spokesman at Moody Air Force Base says the jet was on a ''low-level routine training mission'' en route to George Weapons Range in Florida when it went down near Pearson, Georgia.

The jet's crash damaged six homes and blackened the morning sky.

Police officials have identified the crash victim on the ground as J-W Lanier, a cleaning woman who was working in one of the homes hit by crash debris.

Officials also report that another woman narrowly escaped injury when she went into another part of the house to answer the phone.

Moments later, the fuselage of the plane tore through the living room, which she had just left.

(MAY 25) UPI - A federal judge has ruled that an F-B-I videotape allegedly showing Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry smoking crack cocaine the night of his arrest may be used in Barry's trial next week. U-S District Judge Thomas Jackson also rejected defense claims that the whole case be dropped because the government risked Barry's life by supplying potent crack cocaine.

The Wabash River in Indiana today is reported at its highest level since 1969. The National Weather Service reports the river is two miles wide and flooding farmland in the southwestern part of the state. The flooding is the result of thunderstorms that soaked the nation's midsection this morning. Yesterday, at least 18 tornadoes ripped through the northern Plains and Mississippi Valley.

Boris Yeltsin won a plurality today in his bid to become president of the Soviet Russian republic. But his narrow victory means he'll face a run-off election tomorrow against a conservative nationalist Communist. The voting is confined to the republic's new Congress of People's Deputies. Yeltsin wants much faster economic reform than Soviet President Gorbachev, and the presidential post would give him a chance to fight for it.

A federal judge in San Diego today refused to broaden the powers of the Border Patrol by allowing it to screen motorists for drugs at immigration checkpoints. The judge found that Border Patrol agents may search cars at the checkpoints only when there is ''probable cause'' to suspect drug trafficking. The judge says agents should limit their questions to immigration status unless suspicions of drug trafficking are aroused.

(MAY 25) UPI - An investigator today told jurors in the McMartin Pre-School trial that an excavation at the now-closed pre-school may have uncovered secret tunnels where children have claimed they were molested. The former head of the F-B-I's Los Angeles office, Ted Gunderson, says excavators uncovered a subterranean opening, but do NOT know where it leads. A search several years ago found NO evidence of the tunnels.

LIMA (MAY 27) EFE - A violent prison protest by some 6,000 inmates in Peru, many of whom went on hunger strike to demand better conditions and the speeding up of trials, has ended after authorities agreed to meet some of their demands, Justice Minister Joffre Fernandez said.

Fernandez said the protest ended late Friday, a day after the inmates took to the roofs and set fire to mattresses at Lurigancho Prison in Lima.

The prisoners began the protest Thursday demanding "food, water, light and medecine", the speeding up of trials and an investigation into alleged corruption among judges handling their cases.

Lurigancho was built to hold 2,500 inmates.

Fernandez said that National Penitentiary Institute chief Victor Miranda had informed him earlier that the protest had ended following a meeting between authorities and the prisoners, but did not give details of their compromise agreement.

Prison authorities said one inmate was injured after falling from a roof during the protest.

The rebellion came after two weeks of increasing tension at the jail as authorities failed to respond to the prisoners' demands.

Fernandez said the prisoners principal demand was for changes in trial procedures.

Some 70 per cent of Peru's prison population, estimated at 25,000 inmates, are still awaiting trial.

Officials say that in the capital just 2 per cent of the 19,400 people in jail have been tried.

In Lurigancho prison, some 7 per cent of inmates are said to suffer from tuberculosis while a recent report by the National Union of Prison Workers said that 19 prisoners had starved to death.

MANAGUA (MAY 27) EFE - Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro Saturday welcomed a dlrs 300 million U.S. emergency aid package, claiming it would help rejuvenate the economy.

The package, approved by the U.S. Congress late Thursday, "represents a strong impulse for economic reactivation and is a symbol of international reconciliation," Chamorro said.

Chamorro took office April 25 after winning February elections against the leftist Sandinista party, which in its decade of power following the 1979 revolution became tied up in an economically- destructive war against U.S.-funded Contra guerrillas.

In 1985, the then-U.S. administration of president Ronald Reagan imposed an economic embargo which crippled the Nicaraguan economy.

U.S. President George Bush lifted the embargo after Chamorro's electoral victory and pushed for an early congressional acceptance of the dlrs 720 million aid package for Nicaragua and Panama.

Dlrs 420 million of the package is to go to the U.S.- installed Panamanian government of President Guillermo Endara.

Announcing the aid package, Bush said Friday it would "help the citizens of both nations reconstruct their economies after years of bad economic management".

MEXICO CITY (MAY 27) EFE - The Mexican Attorney General's office announced Saturday that it would seek the extradition of a U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) official who it claimed was responsible for kidnapping a mexican doctor allegedly involved in the 1985 torture-murder of a DEA agent.

In a statement to the press, the office named Hector Berrellez as the intellectual author of the abduction last March of gynaecologist Humberto Alvarez from Mexico to Los Angeles, where he was charged with involvement in the murder of DEA agent Enrique Camarena.

The statement denied that Mexican Attorney General Enrique Alvarez de Castillo had been informed of the abduction plot prior to its execution, as Berrellez told the Los Angeles federal court where Alvarez is being tried.

The DEA admitted Friday that it had paid dlrs 20,000 to have Alvarez abducted.

Camarena and his Mexican pilot were abducted in February 1985 by drug traffickers in Guadalajara. Their bodies were found one month later bearing signs of torture.

U.S. officials allege that Alvarez administered stimulants to Camarena to kep him conscious during the torture sessions.

The Mexican officials said that several Mexican police officers paid off by the DEA in connection with the abduction of Alvarez had been arrested.

The abduction caused an outcry in Mexico, where officials accused the United States of violating Mexican sovereignty.

This is the first time that Mexico has demanded the extradition of a U.S. federal agent, although it has previously invoked a standing extradition treaty with Washington to seek the return of wanted Mexican fugitives.

The affair has caused a new downturn in Mexican-U.S. relations, which had appeared to be on the mend after President George Bush took office last year.

ATLANTA (MAY 26) UPI - Ku Klux Klan members can wear hooded masks in public, a state judge said Friday, ruling a 39-year-old law designed to prohibit white supremacists from concealing their faces is unconstitutional.

State attorneys argued that abandoning the law will lead to a resurgence of Klan violence.

The law is overly broad and violates Klan members' rights to free speech, association and protection under the law, State Court Judge Howard E. Cook ruled in Gwinnett County.

''Even though the Klan may represent controversial ideas, even hateful ideas, such ideas are still entitled to the protection,'' Cook wrote in a 10-page decision.

John C. Jones, senior assistant to state Attorney General Michael J. Bowers, said the law will continue to stand until an immediate appeal to the state Supreme Court is heard.

Gwinnett County attorneys who defended the law with the help of Bowers's office and civil rights groups appealed the ruling 20 minutes after the decision was filed.

''The reasons for enacting this law are as valid today as they were then '' said Earl Shinhoster, the NAACP's Southeastern regional director. ''We have already seen an increase in Klan activity and violence in this country. Now they may do it under the cloak of anonymity as provided by the mask.''

Jones called the ruling ''erroneous'' and said he was confident the Supreme Court will overturn it.

The law makes it a misdemeanor to wear a ''mask, hood or device'' to conceal identity. It does not mention Klan masks specifically, but the lawmakers who conceived the idea admitted it was aimed at discouraging Klan activity.

The challenge to the law was launched in February after unemployed Klansman Shade Miller Jr. donned a Klan mask in front of the old Gwinnett County Court house in Lawrenceville. Klan members notified police in advance of their plans.

(MAY 26) UPI - Defense Secretary Cheney says a U-S-Soviet strategic nuclear arms reduction treaty is- in his words- ''clearly within our grasp.'' Cheney said that he's confident the United States can reach agreement with the Soviets on reducing strategic weapons by 30 percent to 35 percent. A strategic arms reduction treaty has been an elusive goal of U-S-Soviet summits since 1987.

A federal prosecutor in Anchorage, Alaska, says a Japanese company will pay 900-thousand dollars to the United States to settle charges that one of its vessels repeatedly fished illegally in U-S waters. The assistant U-S attorney says the settlement also stipulates that any company vessels caught fishing illegally in U-S waters again will be forfeit to U-S authorities.

Officials at the National Hurricane Center in Miami say the first tropical depression of the 1990 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season dumped heavy rain on Cuba Friday. They says winds gusting up to 36 miles an hour are pushing the system toward the Florida Keys. Officials say the system was about 35 miles south southwest of Key West, Florida, moving at nearly 15 miles-an-hour.

The National Council of Churches says U-S and Soviet church leaders will join together in prayers for peace and the success of the summit between President Bush and Soviet President Gorbachev. The prayer vigil and U-S-Soviet summit will be held in Washington from May 30th to June 4th. Similar prayer vigils have been held in both Moscow and Washington during the past three summits.

CHICAGO (MAY 26) UPI - An ailing, homeless girl whisked out of a hospital by her mother last week because of religious objections to blood transfusions underwent six hours of open-heart surgery Friday, hospital officials said.

Kimberly Winfield, 12, had one heart valve replaced and another repaired, Children's Memorial Hospital spokeswoman Jean Benzies said.

''The surgery was successfully completed,'' she said. ''Kimberly is in critical but stable condition.''

The family requested no further information be released.

Her mother, Caroline, a 35-year-old nurse and Jehovah's witness, was barred from the hospital during the operation, said David Schneidman of the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services.

''There was a court order that kept her away from the hospital during the surgery,'' he said. ''After the surgery, she can visit.''

The little girl had been asking for her mother, he added.

Caroline Winfield, a licensed practical nurse, spirited her daughter out of the hospital early May 10 - the day Kimberly was to have undergone tests to determine if surgery was necessary.

Relatives said Winfield took her daughter from the hospital because her religion prohibited the blood transfusions that would be necessary during open-heart surgery.

Several days later, Winfield voluntarily returned to Chicago with the girl and was arrested on kidnapping charges.

Kimberly and her two brothers were wards of the state at the time of her alleged abduction. The DCFS took custody of the children about two months ago after the family was found wandering the streets.

Doctors said Kimberly's heart condition stemmed from a bout with rheumatic fever five years ago.

HONOLULU (MAY 26) UPI - Immigration authorities said Friday that they arrested an alleged World War II Nazi S.S. member on visa fraud in the second such apprehension made in Hawaii this month.

Stefan Paal, 66, of West Germany was arrested Thursday after he arrived at Honolulu International Airport from New Zealand with a tour group, said acting director Roy Hendricks of the Immigration and Naturalization Service Friday.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael Burke said the alleged Auschwitz concentration camp guard's hometown was unknown but that his visa was issued in Stuttgart, West Germany.

Paal was on a tour group that had stopped in Bangkok, Thailand; Sydney, Australia; Auckland, New Zealand; and Fiji islands, Burke said. ''I understand his intention was to go back to Germany after his visit here,'' he said.

''He did admit to joining the S.S.,'' Burke said. ''He said he had joined an SS group of the army when he turned 18 in October 1942, and from mid-1943 to spring of 1944 he was stationed with an army unit outside Auschwitz.

''He initially claimed he never worked inside of the Auschwitz camp, but later admitted he served as a guard in the camp sometimes, once or twice a week,'' Burke said.

The S.S. was a quasi-military unit in Adolf Hitler's Nazi Germany. It was used as a special, elite police squad.

Burke said there was no indication of any charge of war crimes, and that the arrest was made only on allegations of gaining a visa by fraud for failing to admit past activities.

Paal was arrested after a routine check turned up his name on a watch list by the Justice Department.

A custody hearing was scheduled May 30 before a federal magistrate. If indicted and convicted, he could face five years in prison and a fine of $250,000 for visa fraud.

INS authorities arrested Joseph Aloysius Goertz May 8 after he arrived from New Zealand. The name of the alleged S.S. officer came up on a computer list of past and present Nazi party members, INS inspector Oscar Villa said.

He was accused of visa fraud for failing to disclose his Nazi affiliation when applying for a U.S. visa, Villa said. He told investigators he was forced to join the S.S. at the end of 1943 and remained a member until the end of World War II, Villa said.

Villa said records seized by the United States in 1945, however, indicate the man had been a member of the Nazi party since 1932.

NEW YORK (MAY 26) UPI - Attorney General Dick Thornburgh submitted to a lie detector test during a Justice Department investigation to determine the source of a news leak, a published report said Saturday.

Citing interviews with unnamed Bush administration officials, the New York Times reported that Thornburgh took and passed the polygraph test in secret on a weekend last September.

The administration officials said Thornburgh was the first attorney general to have taken a lie detector test.

The test came as part of an internal Justice Department investigation to determine the source of a leak to CBS News about Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., now the third-ranking Democrat in the House of Representatives.

The Times said that during the investigation, two of Thornburgh's top aides, David Runkel, his press secretary, and Robert Ross, his executive assistant, failed polygraph examinations.

Both men have since been reassigned as part of the changes Thornburgh initiated following controversey about his handling of the internal investigation.

Two weeks ago, the Justice Department's second-ranking official, Donald Ayer, resigned to protest what he said was Thornburgh's attempts at shielding Runkel and Ross from the investigators.

The Times said Thornburgh took the polygraph test at the request of Edward Dennis, the head of the department's criminal division.

Members of the investigating team had concluded they could not finish their inquiry unless key officials in the department were tested, the newspaper said.

The Times said it was unclear if Thornburgh was reluctant to submit to the test, but administration officials told the newspaper the meeting where the decision to conduct the examination was made had been tense.

Justice Department officials declined to comment on Thornburgh's testing, and the attorney general himself told the Times earlier in the week that he considered the matter closed.

The newspaper said the controversy over the investigation had prompted senior White House officials to express concern over Thornburgh's leadership at the Justice Department for the first time.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (MAY 26) UPI - President Bush signed a $4.4 billion spending bill late Friday that contains the long sought $720 million in emergency aid for the emerging democracies of Panama and Nicaragua.

''The funds will help the citizens of these nations to rebuild their economies after years of economic mismanagement and privitization,'' the president said in a statement released after the signing.

Bush telephoned Panamanian President Guillermo Endara and Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro early Friday to notify them Congress had only hours earlier approved the assistance he had been seeking for more than two months.

The centerpiece of the bill is $420 million for Panama and $300 million for Nicaragua.

The two leaders in recent weeks appealed for quick U.S. action on aid to their economically strapped countries. Chamorro, in a letter to Bush, warned that her nation is virtually bankrupt.

Endara thanked Bush in advance for the money, but said the package for his country would not guarantee economic recovery.

''It is not a panacea that by magic will liberate us from all our problems nor is it a guarantee of economic recovery,'' Endara said at a news conference Friday. ''We are going to achieve the recovery ourselves, with our work, with our common force.''

Deputy White House press secretary Steve Hart said that after final preparations in Washington, the bill was flown to Pease Air Force Base, New Hampshire, and rushed by car the final 45 minutes to the president's summer home in Kennebunkport, Maine, where he is spending the Memorial Day weekend.

Hart said the measure was signed at 10:19 p.m. EDT and Bush said in his statement, ''As further economic progress is made in Panama and Nicaragua, their democracies will grow stronger and add to the stability of Central America.''

The House passed the bill forged by a conference committee 308-108, and the Senate approved it by a voice vote shortly after midnight. The anticlimactic vote culminated months of disputes over issues as disparate as abortion and military aid to El Salvador.

Bush, criticizing congressional lollygagging that he said jeopardized two budding democracies in Central America, went so far as to urge Congress to work through its Memorial Day recess, which started Friday, to complete work on the bill.

Coming on the heels of the collapse of the Berlin Wall and the U.S. invasion of Panama, Bush in January proposed $500 million for Panama and $75 million for Eastern European refugee programs. He added a request for $300 million for Nicaragua in March shortly after the election of Chamorro a U.S.-backed candidate. The bulk of the Central American money is for economic development.

Democrats wanted to shift some aid to Eastern Europe or domestic programs, but nearly all of Bush's foreign aid request was approved by the House April 3, the Senate May 1 and the conference committee Tuesday.

Hart said Bush called Chamorro and Endara Friday when Congress passed the aid bill and that the two ''expressed their gratitude for the congressional action and thanked the president for his efforts on behalf of their countries.''

''They stated that this is a major step forward in solidifying and supporting the growth of democracy in Panama and Nicaragua,'' Hart said. ''The president expressed his support of their efforts and stated the continued U.S. desire for close relations and the continued partnership with Panama and Nicaragua and the rest of Latin America.''

Major provisions retained in the bill included $1.2 billion for food stamps, $885 million for foreign aid, $529 million for veterans, $433 million for firefighting and $216 million for disaster relief. Not included in the total was $400 million in housing loan guarantees for Soviet Jews settling in Israel.

Most of the domestic spending was for mandatory programs and much of it, such as $110 million for the census, was sought by the administration. The non-mandatory spending is mostly offset by about $2 billion in defense cuts.

Bush and many lawmakers complained the bill was weighed down with pork-barrel provisions, and some - like a $238 million RDX explosives factory in Louisiana - were pared from the final version of the bill.

In signing the measure, Bush objected to a provision in the bill that would require him to notify Congress 30 days before putting his signature to any agreement affecting NATO.

Bush said he believed the provision would infringe upon his constitutional authority to conduct foreign policy and he would therefore ''regard it as advisory.''

(MAY 26) UPI - A four-point-four-BILLION-dollar spending bill was rushed to President Bush Friday night at his vacation home in Kennebunkport, Maine, from Capitol Hill. The measure contains 720-Million dollars in aid for Panama and Nicaragua... funds Bush has wanted for many months. Bush signed the measure... freeing 420-Million dollars for Panama and 300-Million dollars for Nicaragua.

Colombian authorities imposed a curfew Friday in the cocaine capital of Medellin two days before presidential elections. Officials say 31 people were killed Thursday and Friday in Medellin as a result of a suicide car bombing, shootings and firefights between gunmen and police. In Bogota, another car bomb exploded Friday night... seriously injuring one woman.

American University officials says the school's students will participate in an exchange with Moscow State University Law School. The three-year contract provides for exchanges of students and faculty starting this September. Moscow State University is the Soviet Union's leading university. Soviet President Gorbachev graduated from the school's law program.

Presiding Episocpal Church Bishop Edmond Browning has sent a letter to President Bush saying the United States should consider ending aid to Israel until it stops violating human rights in the occupied territories. (MAY 26) UPI - French officials say vandals have desecrated two more cemeteries. Police say about 50 Roman Catholic tombs and a church were damaged late Wednesday or early Thursday in eastern France. And in the far north, vandals reportedly painted swastikas, Jewish Stars of David and anti-Semitic graffiti on about 30 graves at a cemetery that also holds Roman Catholic graves.

A spokesman for Ronald Reagan says the former president has to cancel his trip to Europe next month because of several small adhesions found in his intestine. The 79-year-old Reagan's physicians reportedly believe the adhesions are a result of his adominal surgery in 1985. The spokesman insisted that they are common and NOT dangerous.

(MAY 26) UPI - Maybe the San Francisco Giants should build a new ball park, something along the lines of Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium.

If it would keep Kevin Mitchell hitting the way he did Friday night, when the Giant slugger belted a career-high three home runs for five RBI, powering San Francisco to a 9-8 victory over the Pirates, it might be worth it.

''I was happy to get on the road,'' Mitchell said. ''I don't like hitting at Candlestick. This park and St. Louis, I just like to hit here. I really see the ball well here.''

Home hasn't been sweet to the rest of the Giants either. They have gone 6-16 in Candlestick, after losing their first nine games there this season.

The victory was something of a coming out for Mitchell, who feels he has struggled, despite hitting .307 before Friday night's outburst.

''I wasn't there all year,'' said Mitchell who now has 11 homers. ''I played softball all winter and was swinging up on the ball. That and working out with weights really screwed me up.''

But Mitchell has been working with hitting coach Dusty Baker on his mechanics, and if Friday night is any indication, it is working.

''He's hitting .300 coming in but he didn't have a lot of RBI,'' said Giants Manager Roger Craig. ''But now all of a sudden he has 20. This guy is awesome. Everytime he swings the bat he's capable of hitting it 500 feet.''

Will Clark and Jose Uribe also homered for the Giants while Jeff King, Barry Bonds and Bobby Bonilla homered for the Pirates.

John Burkett improved to 3-1. Jeff Brantley pitched out of a first and third jam in the ninth by getting Mike LaValliere to pop out and Jose Lind on a groundout for his fourth save.

Walt Terrell, 1-4, lasted just 3 1-3 innings, allowing four runs on six hits, including three homers.

''The fact is tonight we just didn't throw the ball well,'' Pirates Manager Jim Leyland said. ''We threw some fat pitches and they hit them. In a game like this you can look back at a 100 things.''

The Pirates have lost eight of 11 and fell out of first place in the National League East, slipping a half-game behind Philadelphia.

After falling behind 7-1, then 8-2, the Pirates got back to 9-8 with runners at first and third with one out in the ninth, but couldn't push home a run.

''It showed that we are battling,'' Pirates shortstop Jay Bell said. ''We're not playing as well as we were, but we still feel like we're the team that will be on top at the end. This is not the stretch run. We have to wait until September to see what happens.''

Elsewhere in the NL Friday night, Cincinnati shut out Montreal 5-0, San Diego edged New York 5-4, Philadelphia nipped Atlanta 5-4, Los Angeles plucked St. Louis 4-1, and Houston at Chicago was rained out.

In the AL it was Detroit 2, Chicago 1; Minnesota 16, Boston 0; New York 6, Kansas City 3; Baltimore 12, Texas 2; California 5, Milwaukee 4 in 13 innings; Oakland 5, Cleveland 2; and Toronto 3, Seattle 1 in 11 innings.

Reds 5, Expos 0

At Montreal, Jack Armstrong became the NL's first eight-game winner, combining with Randy Myers on a four-hit shutout to lift the Reds. Herm Winningham slugged a two-run triple and scored two runs to back Armstrong, who gave up three hits, struck out seven and walked none to improve to 8-1. Loser Dennis Martinez, 3-4, struck out 10 over eight innings.

Padres 5, Mets 4

At New York, Benito Santiago smashed a three-run homer and Phil Stephenson and Joe Carter added solo shots to propel the Padres. Dennis Rasmussen, 4-2, yielded seven hits over five-plus innings. Craig Lefferts picked up his seventh save. David Cone, 1-3, was roughed up by the Padres for five runs and five hits in four innings.

Phillies 5, Braves 4

At Philadelphia, Charlie Hayes hit a three-run home run in the eighth inning to give the Phillies their fourth straight win. Hayes hit his third home run of the season to score Von Hayes and John Kruk, making a loser of reliever Joe Hesketh, 1-1. Jeff Parrett, 2-2, pitched one inning and Roger McDowell earned his league-leading 12th save by pitching the ninth inning.

Dodgers 4, Cardinals 1

At St. Louis, Juan Samuel hit a two-run home run and Ramon Martinez pitched a five-hitter to power the Dodgers' third straight victory, also the third straight for Martinez, 5-2. Martinez threw his third complete game of the season and came within an out of his second shutout. He struck out eight to give him 65, tops in the NL. Only one Cardinal reached third base. Joe Magrane, 2-7, retired 18 of 20 batters after allowing a first-inning run, but faltered in the seventh.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (MAY 26) UPI - With just days to go before facing Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in the supowerpower summit, President Bush flashed concern, even frustration.

''Let me try this one,'' Bush said Friday, reaching for still another driver on the first hole at the Cape Arundel Golf Course.

The president, who had just smacked a pair of mediocre drives, blasted a picture-perfect one down the center of the fairway, smiled broadly and exhorted the ball to ''get up there.''

A seemingly confident Bush is spending the Memorial Day weekend in the resort village of Kennebunkport - enjoying some rest, relaxation and athletic competition prior to next week's summit in Washington.

Bush, who says sports helps clear his mind and improve his thinking, was on the golf course within a hours of arriving Friday at his summer seaside home.

The president, joined by family and friends, and staff, planned to resume a robust athletic regimen Saturday that would likely include jogging, tennis, golf, boating or fishing.

Or as he has done many times before on one vacation day, all of the above.

''You've got to get out, the mackerel are running out to sea,'' Bush informed reporters Friday.

Bush returns to the White House late Monday and holds his first in a series of wide-ranging talks with Gorbachev on Thursday.

Deputy White House press secretary Steve Hart described Bush's holiday schedule in Kennebunkport with one word: ''Relaxation.''

Hart said the president planned no pre-summit briefing sessions, but said ''he brought some books and papers to read if he wants'' to bone up for the talks.

In an interview with a French television correspondent, released Friday by the White House, Bush acknowledged the Soviet leader is under pressure at home, but said ''it is not my role to figure out whether Gorbachev has a problem with his left or right. It's mine to deal with what's on the table.''

''What's on the table is a strong Soviet leader clearly in charge with whom we have a lot of business items,'' he added.

The summit agenda will include arms control, conventional forces, reunification of Germany, NATO, and the Baltic states' drive for independence.

Bush issued a Memorial Day proclamation before rushing off to the golf course Friday. In it, he cited the democratic reforms in the past year in Europe, Latin America and Africa and said: ''The triumph of democratic ideals in countries that once suffered under the heavy yoke of totalitarianism is a tribute to all those Americans who have died to uphold the light of liberty and self government.''

On hand with the president for the holiday sojourn was his wife Barbara, who arrived earlier in the week, their son Marvin, their daughter-in-law Margaret and two young grandchildren.

Also joining the first family on the sunny but chilly Maine weekend were Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner and his wife Honey and a few staff members.

(MAY 26) UPI - The Boston Red Sox ran out of pitchers Friday night during a 16-0 blowout loss to the Minnesota Twins and turned to utility infielder-outfielder Danny Heep.

Heep became the first Red Sox position player to pitch in 38 years when he hurled the final inning, giving up four hits and one run in what was the best pitching performance of the night for Boston.

Meanwhile, Roy Smith, 3-5, limited the Red Sox to four hits in registering his first major league shutout. Smith mowed through the lineup, retiring 22 of the last 24 batters he faced.

''That was one of the ugliest games I've ever seen,'' Boston Manager Joe Morgan said. ''Their guy Smith really baffles us. He had a great fastball tonight. He'd throw that, then he'd throw some junk, then a curve and back to the fastball. He got a lot of strikes with that tonight.''

Boston starter Eric Hetzel, 1-4, gave up seven runs on five hits in 2 2-3 innings.

The Twins' first four batters reached base and three of them scored. Dan Gladden and John Moses came home on Kirby Puckett's triple. Kent Hrbek followed with a single, scoring Puckett to make it 3-0.

Minnesota blew it open with five unearned runs in the third, the big hit coming when Gene Larkin greeted reliever Dennis Lamp with a two-run double.

The Twins added two more off Lamp in the fourth inning when Puckett doubled home a run and scored on a Gary Gaetti single.

''We came out tonight and really swung the bats,'' Puckett said. ''During the course of the season, you're going to get blown out. We were the recipients of games like that twice in a row (on Tuesday and Wednesday). Tonight we were on the other side of the fence and it felt good.''

Reliever Wes Gardner gave up two more runs in the sixth for a 12-0 Twins lead, and Jerry Reed was touched up for three more in the seventh before Heep managed to ''hold'' Minnesota to a single run in the eighth.

Smith said the lead helped him nail down his shutout.

''It's not like it was 1-0,'' Smith said. ''I've got to prove that I can take this team into the seventh and eighth innings consistently. Once you get past the fifth inning with a lead like this, you don't have to be very fine.''

In other AL games, Detroit edged Chicago 2-1; New York topped Kansas City

6-3; Baltimore clobbered Texas 12-2; Oakland pounded Cleveland 5-2; Toronto shaded Seattle 3-1 in 11 innings; and California snuck past Milwaukee 5-4 in 13 innings.

In the NL, it was San Diego 5, New York 4; San Francisco 9, Pittsburgh 8; Philadelphia 5, Atlanta 4; Cincinnati 5, Montreal 0; Los Angeles 4, St. Louis 1; and Houston at Chicago was postponed because of rain.

Tigers 2, White Sox 1

At Detroit, Ken Williams doubled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning, helping the Tigers improve to 4-0 against Chicago this season. Both Detroit runs off Chicago starter Greg Hibbard, 3-3, were unearned. Paul Gibson, 1-1, pitched one scoreless inning in relief for the victory, with Mike Henneman pitching the last two innings for his 11th save.

Yankees 6, Royals 3

At Kansas City, Mo., Jesse Barfield doubled home three runs in the first inning to pace the Yankees. Barfield's hit came after four consecutive singles off Royals starter Storm Davis, 1-5, in a four-run first inning. The early outburst made a winner out of Chuck Cary, 2-0.

Orioles 12, Rangers 2

At Arlington, Texas, Joe Orsulak tied his career high with four RBI and reached base five times to lead the 13-hit attack that carried the Orioles. Pete Harnish, 5-1, gave up seven hits over seven innings for the victory. Kevin Brown, 5-4, lost for the fourth straight time, giving up the first seven runs.

Athletics 5, Indians 2

At Oakland, Calif., Mark McGwire drove in two runs with a home run and single and Jose Canseco smashed a two-run homer, his major league-leading 18th, to boost the A's. Scott Sanderson, 5-2, scattered five hits in 5 1-3 innings for the win, and Dennis Eckersley went the final 1 1-3 for his 12th save despite giving up his first run of the year. McGwire hit his 12th homer of the year off loser Greg Swindell, 2-4. Rickey Henderson stole his 20th base of the year and 891st of his career - one behind Ty Cobb for third on the all-time list.

Blue Jays 3, Mariners 1

At Seattle, Fred McGriff's two-run homer in the the 11th inning helped the Toronto Blue Jays snap a four-game losing streak. Jim Acker, 1-1, pitched 1 1-3 innings for the victory and Tom Henke recorded the final two outs for fifth save. Bill Swift, 2-2, took the loss.

Angels 5, Brewers 4

At Anaheim, Calif., Devon White scored from second base on a double error with one out in the 13th inning, giving the Angels their fourth straight victory. White doubled with one out off Tony Fossas, 1-3, for his third hit of the game off. White raced to third when Fossas threw into center field trying to pick him off, and Robin Yount's throw from center also went wild to send White home with the winning run. Willie Fraser, 2-2, pitched four scoreless innings in relief for the win.

The rampaging Ouachita River spared several towns in southern Arkansas
Saturday, while officials in Texas said some of the 3,000 flooded homes along the bloated Trinity River in Liberty County may remain underwater through the summer.

The crest of the rain-swollen Ouachita River surged past Camden, Arkansas,
Saturday, but was held back by earthen levees, authorities said.

''The levees are real high,'' Russell Brewster, a dispatcher for the El Dorado County Sheriff's Department, said.

The Ouachita crested at about 35 feet in Camden Friday, about 9 feet above flood stage, forcing only a few families from their homes.

''We're just glad it is not getting any higher than it did,'' a spokesman in the Ouachita County sheriff's office said.

Officials downstream in Calion said they were prepared for the flood crest and did not expect any major problems.

In Texas, the Trinity River rolled toward the Gulf of Mexico, leaving thousands of people homeless.

The Trinity continued dropping in southeast Texas as the record crest flattened out Friday at less than 30 feet, 6 feet above flood stage. The release of water from the Lake Livingston Dam, which reached a record 100,800 cubic feet per second last weekend, was falling steadily.

Area motels and apartment complexes were filled and emergency shelters were being abandoned because they are inappropriate for people who may be out of their homes until fall, authorities said.

Jim Mitchum, Liberty County emergency management coordinator, was scrambing tofind shelter for those left homeless. Mitchum said more than 3,000 homes in Liberty County alone were inundated, leaving about 7,000 people homeless.

Flooding continued along the Wabash River in southwest Indiana. The river was 2 miles wide in Gibson County at Interstate 64, cresting Friday at its highest level since 1969, the National Weather Service said.

Elsewhere, thunderstorms rumbled across parts of Kansas, Missouri and southern Illinois.

Early morning fog shrouded the Great Lakes and rain sprinkled the Middle Atlantic region and Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Temperatures were seasonable in the upper 50s in the northern half of the country and in the 60s and 70s in the southern half.

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA (MAY 26) UPI - Nicu Ceausescu, the playboy son of Romania's executed dictator, went on trial Saturday on charges of ordering a massacre of protesters in the final days of his father's rule.

A judge read charges of genocide and weapons offenses against the 39-year-old former ''Youth Minister'' as the nationally broadcast trial got underway in Sibiu, where he was Communist Party chief.

Widely regarded as a womanizer and a gambler, his extravagant lifestyle and rumored cruelty made him one of the most hated men in Romania.

''They hate him as much as they hated (dictator Nicolae Ceausescu),'' said Deputy Chief Prosecutor Miguerel Florescu.

''The vast majority of Romanians lived in dreadful conditions, in hunger and fear, forced to go to bed at 10 o'clock like animals. We had no music, no wine and could not bear this gang who had everything they wanted.''

Florescu said he was confident he could prove the charge of genocide, which stems from Nicu Ceausescu's alleged order to security troops to fire on anti-government protesters in Sibiu, a picturesque Transylvanian city 130 miles north of Bucharest.

The killings continued even after his father was overthrown Dec. 22, Florescu said. The prosecutor's office revealed earlier in the week that 1,033 people were killed during the Romanian uprising, inculding 92 in Sibiu.

''The genocide was useless. He already knew what had happened in Timisoara and that all was lost for the former regime,'' Florescu said. ''That is the revolting part of all this.''

Known as the ''Little Prince,'' the dictator's youngest son and heir-apparent was trailed by stories of womanizing, wild parties and orgies, some of which were described in former foreign minister and defector Ion Pacepa's book, ''Red Horizons.''

''The beautiful women of Sibiu, and there are many, would walk in fear on the streets, in case Nicu noticed them. Because they knew he could have any woman he liked,'' Florescu said.

One of Nicu's most famous conquests was Romanian gymnastics superstar Nadia Comaneci, who has alleged she was brutalized and forced into having sexual relations with him over a period of 11 years.

The Romanian press also has carried stories alleging that Nicu, reputedly a compulsive gambler, squandered millions of dollars in public funds in casinos in Las Vegas and in the seedy Black Sea resort of Neptune.

Nicu was stabbed shortly after his arrest in what has been called a vigilante attack but has recovered. He has remained imprisoned in Bucharest.

In an interview with the Italian magazine ''Oggi,'' Nicu denied ordering security forces to fire on demonstrators but conceded, ''Perhaps I didn't do enough for the people.''

Florescu said despite widely felt hatred for the Ceausescu family, Nicu would be tried fairly and would not be made a scapegoat for the abuses of his father's 25-year reign.

''We are not trying to get our revenge on the Ceausescu family,'' he said. ''We are investigating crimes.''

MOSCOW (MAY 26) UPI - Renegade Communist Boris Yeltsin fell 28 votes short of a necessary majority Saturday in runoff elections for the effective presidency of the Russian republic, forcing a new election.

Neither Yeltsin nor his opponent, conservative Communist Party official Ivan Polozkov, received the needed 531 majority of all 1,060 members of the Congress of People's Deputies.

With 1,032 deputies voting, Yeltsin received 503 and Polozkov 458 and 71 delegates crossed off both names on the ballot, officials said.

The failure of either candidate to win a majority in two ballots will force a new election.

In the initial vote among three candidates Friday, Yeltsin received 497 votes, Polozkov received 473 and a minor third candidate, Vladimir Morokin got 32.

The deputies voted by paper ballot and each had to be counted by hand and signed by the four members of the election commission to avoid irregularities.

The votes came after Russian Premier Alexander Vlasov stunned the new legislature by withdrawing his candidacy, leaving Yeltsin the favorite to win the post that would give him a strong base from which to challenge the central government of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

''On Sunday I will gather strength and on Monday morning I will be ready '' Yeltsin said. ''Too many people believe in me and I can't betray that faith.''

Before Vlasov announced his withdrawal, Yeltsin accepted his nomination in a bracing speech in which he said, ''Russia is ill'' and declared himself the man with a cure.

Polozkov, known for his opposition to fledgling cooperatives and other independent businesses, has been linked to neo-Stalinist forces. Vlasov's withdrawal increased the likelihood Yeltsin would be able to draw the support of moderate deputies.

The broad-shouldered Yeltsin, appearing relaxed and confident, mapped out a program of rapid transfer to a market economy for the republic that takes up three-quarters of the Soviet Union and includes half its 285 million people.

Yeltsin told the other deputies he could work with Gorbachev, who Wednesday took the podium at the 1,060-seat legislature and attacked Yeltsin's notions of Russian autonomy.

''Relations (with Gorbachev) should be businesslike, principled, using dialogue and negotiations, without harming the priority of Russian independence,'' Yeltsin said.

The two men enjoyed close ties when Yeltsin was a candidate member of the Communist Party's ruling Politburo and boss of the powerful Moscow city apparatus, but the relationship began to deteriorate in late 1987 when Yeltsin lost those posts after criticizing the pace of Gorbachev's reform program as being too slow.

Their relationship has been further strained in the past 15 months with Yeltsin's landslide election last March to the first U.S.S.R. Congress of People's Deputies, his subsequent selection from that body to the country's standing Parliament and now his likely ascension to the No. 1 position in all of Russia.

''If I had certain personal concerns, I would put them aside,'' Yeltsin said of his relationship with Gorbachev.

But the 59-year-old Yeltsin, born 29 days before Gorbachev in 1931, again confronted the Soviet leadership for delaying radical action, criticizing ''the federal government's indecision and inconsistency over the past five years.''

TOKYO, JAPAN (MAY 26) UPI - An explosion Saturday ripped through a chemical factory in an industrial district of northern Tokyo, killing seven employees, injuring 19 other people and igniting a fire that destroyed nearly half of the complex, police and fire officials said.

Police said six victims were found dead in the factory while a seventh died at a hospital of burns.

Four of the injured where reported in serious condition with burns covering their bodies.

The explosion occured at 10:40 a.m. in a building of the Dai-ichi Chemical Industries complex, where 15 employees were packing highly volatile benzoyl peroxide, the chemical plant's main product used in making plastics, officials said.

Fire officials said they suspected the explosion was caused by mishandling of the chemical, which can explode if subjected to heat or sudden movement they said.

The explosion caused several other explosions and ignited a fire that gutted nine buildings of the 20-building factory, officials said.

Crews if 45 fire engines battled the fire for nearly two hours before bringing it under the control and another hour and a half to extinguish it the officials said.

A total of 51 people were working at the plant at the time of the explosion and most of the victims were among the employees, officials said.

JERUSALEM (MAY 26) UPI - The Israeli army Saturday lifted a curfew on Nablus, the largest West Bank town, but the Gaza Strip remained under curfew for a seventh day to guard against a repeat of rioting that left 14 Palestinians dead and hundreds wounded earlier in the week.

The curfews were imposed May 20 following the killings of seven Arab workers by an Israeli in the town of Rishon Le Zion.

Despite the harsh security measures, rioting spread throughout the territories. Fourteen Palestinians were killed and hundreds wounded in the violence that tapered off toward the end of the week.

The territories were relatively quiet Saturday, Palestinian sources said, as the U.N. Security Council ended inconclusively a two-day emergency session in Geneva to discuss the upsurge in violence in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

After the curfew on Nablus was lifted, some Arab residents demonstrated but no injuries were reported, Palestinian sources said.

Stores opened for about two hours in the city of 105,000, then closed to observe a three-day commerical strike called to protest the deaths of Palestinians during the week. The army also ended the curfew on Ramallah.

The army reimposed curfews on the Gaza Strip villages of Beit Hanun and Beit Lahia, making the curfew on the impoverished territory complete. The army has said it is trying to exercise ''maximum restraint'' to prevent further casualties.

Two Gazans were wounded by plastic covered metal bullets in clashes late Friday, Palestinian sources said.

In Arab East Jerusalem, police arrested 15 Palestinian demonstrators near the U.S. Consulate after stones were thrown at a patrol and tires burned, police and Palestinian sources said.

In its Leaflet 57, the clandestine Palestine leadership of the 29-month-old uprising called for an escalation of the struggle against Israeli occupation and instructed Arabs not to cooperate with military Civil Administration until June 10.

GENEVA (MAY 26) UPI - The U.N. Security Council ended a public debate on Palestine Saturday and agreed to start work in New York next week on ways to stem the mounting violence in the Israeli-occupied territories.

The 15-member Council met for five hours Friday and five hours Saturday, finally recessing at 2.30 p.m. Saturday when there were no more speakers.

Delegates agreed to meet at the New York headquarters next Tuesday to begin expected weeks-long ''consultations'' - negotiations - on a resolution.

The Geneva meeting was only the third ever held by the Security Council away from U.N. headquarters and was convened to enable Yasser Arafat to speak after the United States denied him a visa.

Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, called on the Council to send a U.N. emergency force to protect his people in the West Bank and Gaza.

He also demanded international sanctions against Israel and an end to the flow of Soviet Jewish migrant-settlers to occupied Arab lands. He was rebuffed on both counts.

The United States rejected the idea of a U.N. force as well as sanctions although it and the other four permanent Security Council members held out the possibility of a fact-finding trip by a special observer.

Other permanent members with veto rights on the 15-nation Council are Britain, China, France and the Soviet Union, and all made statements.

Thomas Pickering, the U.S. ambassador, chose not to speak publicly despite a harsh attack by Arafat on American support for Israel.

Any U.N. presence at all, whether permanent or temporary, was repeatedly rejected by Israeli Deputy Foreign Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, who held no less than three news conferences as well as addressing the Council.

Besides his formal speech Friday, Arafat also held a news conference Saturday in which he said Palestinians have reached the limits of patience and endurance, and warned of growing danger of a new Middle East war.

''Where do we go from here, where do we go from here, where do we go from here?'' Arafat said the Security Council wound up the first part of a debate on the violence in the region.

''We are running out of patience,'' the PLO chairman said.

He said that while the 30-month-old Palestinian intifada, or uprising, continues he would consult with Arab leaders on other possible measures at next week's Arab summit in Baghdad.

''I am warning of a war, not threatening a war,'' he said. ''I am warning about what is being prepared by Israel as the Israelis are preparing for the next war.

''We are facing a very dangerous and expolosive situation in the West Bank Gaza and East Jerusalem,'' Arafat told his news conference before leaving for the Arab summit.

''We are running out of patience and the suffering my people are subjected to is beyond human endurance,'' he said.

In the past 30 months, Arafat said, 1,200 Palestinians have died and 80,000 have been wounded. He said land and homes had been burned and demolished and schools and universities closed by the Israelis.

''Is it possible for my people to take all this?'' he said.

Arafat said Israel ''says no to everything'' and called especially on Americans ''to play a more effective role in bring about peace'' because of ''total Israeli dependence on the United States.''

(MAY 26) UPI - Around the world... around the block... U-P-I brings you the world, next:

President Bush is spending his weekend at his summer home in Kennebunkport Maine... relaxing before his summit next week with Soviet President Gorbachev. Bush says sports help clear his mind and improve his thinking. He was on the golf course within hours of arriving yesterday.

But it's NOT all vacation pleasure for the president. Bush last night signed a multi-BILLION-dollar spending bill that was flown and driven to Kennebunkport from Washington. The measure contains the long-awaited 720-Million dollars in emergency aid for the new governments of Panama and Nicaragua.

The United States promptly rejected P-L-O Chairman Yasser Arafat's suggestion for emergency United Nations forces and observers in the Israeli-occupied territories. But a top U-S official says ''a brief visit'' by U-N fact-finders is acceptable. Israel has rejected any U-N presence whatsoever in the West Bank or Gaza.

Defense Secretary Cheney says that he's reserving judgment on the Navy in the wake of evidence that the explosion aboard the battleship U-S-S Iowa was an accident. 47 sailors died in the explosion. Officials say the explosion maybe was caused by over-ramming powder charges into a gun barrel.

31 violent deaths in two days have prompted Colombian officials to clamp a curfew on the cocaine capital of Medellin two days before presidential elections. Colombian authorities also announced another car bomb explosion in the capital of Bogota last night. Police say one woman was injured seriously.

NEW YORK (MAY 26) UPI - Burglars broke into two automatic teller machines at a Chemical Bank branch on Manhattan's West Side, stealing more than $250,000 early Saturday, police said.

The heist at the Chemical branch was discovered at 9:30 a.m. by bank security workers, who found the bank door open, said Sgt. Ed Burns, a police spokesman.

''The security people think it happened between 3 a.m. and 9:30 a.m.,'' Burns said. ''They got away with more than a quarter million dollars.''

How the thieves got access to the back of the ATM machines was a mystery. ''There was no sign of forced entry,'' Burns said.

Further details were not immediately available.

BOSTON (MAY 26) UPI - A demonstration by striking Greyhound drivers turned violent at the Park Square bus terminal when a replacement driver struck a striking picket with a billy club, police said Saturday.

There were five arrests during the Friday night incident after 80 to 100 striking drivers and supporters blocked buses from leaving the terminal for more than an hour, police said.

Shortly after police arrived to clear a path for buses bound for New York City and Hartford, Conn., a replacement driver got into a shouting match with pickets, then grabbed a police officer's billy club and began swinging it at pickets, witnesses said.

One picket, striking Greyhound driver Dale Binegar, 54, of North Providence, R.I., was struck on the back of the head. He was treated at a local hospital for a head wound.

''I was walking away and he just came up and hit me from behind,'' said Binegar, a bus driver for 26 years.

Police charged four suspects with disorderly conduct and one, Dennis Leary 29, of Cambridge, with assault and battery on a police officer.

One of the other four, Willie W. Kennedy, 38, will be charged with assault and battery in the attack on Binegar, police said.

KHARTOUM, SUDAN (MAY 26) UPI - Powerful aftershocks from this week's massive earthquake toppled government buildings and left more than 300,000 people homeless in southern Sudan but no deaths were reported, a government minister said Saturday.

A quake last Sunday measuring 7.5 on the Richter Scale struck rural areas 60 miles northeast of provincial capital Juba, 770 miles south of Khartoum.

More powerful than the quake that hit San Francisco last October, the temblor hit in such an isolated part of the country that it caused virtually no damage.

But strong aftershocks Thursday, Friday and Saturday toppled government buildings and razed houses, said Brig. Dominique Kasiano, member of the ruling Revolutionary Command Council. The shocks left more than 300,000 living in the open.

Thursday and Friday's quakes, measuring 6.8 and 7.1 respectively on the Richter scale, he said, struck at Terakeka, only 40 miles north of Juba on the west bank of the White Nile.

Saturday's aftershock was less powerful, said Khamis Sindani, deputy governor of Juba's Equatoria region. It knocked down houses in Juba, a city of about 250,000 people, but harmed no one, he said.

He said a commission was set up to assess damage. Western relief officials said it could be many days before the effects of Sunday's quake could be judged because southern Sudan has very few roads, virtually no telecommunications and is in the grip of a 7-year-old civil war.

Its annual rains, which make most southern roads impassable, are due to begin in June.

Kasiano, the political commissioner for the area, appealed to the Sudanese people and to friendly countries in the region for urgent assistance in coping with the 300,000 people whose homes, mostly huts and tin shanties, were flattened by the series of earthquakes.

Egyptian seismologists who recorded the original quake had predicted the aftershocks and attributed the temblors to volcanic activity in the area. Terakeka lies between the forested mountains that form Sudan's southern border and the thinly populated semi-marshlands that stretch away to the north along the Nile.

BOSTON (MAY 26) UPI - The special grand jury investigating the Carol Stuart killing is stalled over the role Matthew Stuart played in the heinous crime believed carried out by his brother, a court transcript shows.

The 36-page edited transcript, released Friday, calls Charles Stuart's younger brother a ''potential target'' of the Suffolk County grand jury probe into the deaths of Carol Stuart, 30, and her prematurely born son.

The transcript involves an April 5 Superior Court hearing in which prosecutor Thomas Mundy asked that Charles Stuart's former lawyer be released from his lawyer-client confidentiality obligation in the interest of justice.

At that hearing, Mundy called Matthew Stuart a ''potential target'' of the grand jury investigation, and indicated the panel was questioning the truthfulness of statements Matthew made about his role in the crime.

Charles Stuart and his pregnant wife were shot Oct. 23, 1989, after they left a birthing class at a Boston hospital. Stuart, who called authorities for help over his car phone, told police the attacker was a black gunman.

Stuart, the manager of a Boston fur store, jumped to his death Jan. 4, shortly before police were to arrest him. His brother Matthew went to police with evidence incriminating him.

Investigators now believe Charles Stuart shot his wife in the head, killing her and, as it would turn out, their unborn son, and then shot himself in the abdomen to divert suspicion.

At the hearing, Mundy told Judge James Donohue it appeared that Charles Stuart discussed the murder plot in a two-hour conversation with his lawyer, John T. Dawley, on Jan. 3.

''The inferences point that he may well have told Dawley exactly what occurred. And that information may be very important to the grand jury's inference they wish to draw from Matthew Stuart's purported statements to several witnesses in determining what charges to bring,'' Mundy said.

The panel heard testimony that Matthew told various people he believed he was helping his brother carry out an insurance scam when he agreed to meet him in Boston's Mission Hill neighborhood to take items Charles would later report stolen.

Matthew told several people that when he pulled up beside his brother's car, he was unaware his brother was injured and mistook his fatally wounded sister-in-law for a duffel bag or laundry bag on the front seat, the transcript showed.

There was also testimony that Matthew said his brother passed him several items, including a gun, Mundy said at the hearing.

The grand jury has photographs and a videotape of the car, showing how Carol Stuart appeared and is ''now faced with the dilemma of: Is Matthew telling the truth, or should they draw a reasonable inference that he's not telling the truth based on the physical evidence?'' Mundy said.

The lawyer-client relationship between Dawley and Charles Stuart should be ended ''in the interest of justice,'' Munday said. But lawyer Nancy Gertner, representing Matthew Stuart, argued against it. She said there is no precedent in Massachusetts case law for such an action.

At the hearing, which was closed, Judge Donohue said he would be inclined to order Dawley to answer the grand jury's questions, but did not rule on the matter. He asked the state appellate court to decide whether Dawley should be compelled to testify.

The issue is now before the Appeals Court, which released the partial transcript Friday at the request of the Boston Herald newspaper.

The special grand jury has met 10 times since Charles Stuart jumped from the Tobin Bridge to his death in Boston Harbor.

NO 'TODAY' FOR DOONESBURY: Cartoonist Garry Trudeau was tempted to do some ''Doonesbury'' strips about the ''Today'' show turmoil that resulted in his wife, Jane Pauley, being dumped from the show. Trudeau was the commencement speaker Thursday at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and beforehand had a lunch with student leaders during which he talked about the ''Today'' controversy. ''He said it has been personally difficult,'' a student told The Baltimore Sun. Although it seemed like a natural topic to lampoon in ''Doonesbury,'' Trudeau said ''he had to stay way from it,'' the student said.

BERNSTEIN BETTER, GOING TO EUROPE: Leonard Bernstein, released earlier this week from a New York hospital where he was treated for pneumonia, will got to Prague June 3-4 to conduct performances of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, which has become the symbol of the freedom sweeping Eastern Europe. It will be the first time Bernstein has conducted the Czechoslovakian Philharmonic since 1946 and President Vaclav Havel will be among the dignitaries attending the June 3 concert.

DIZZY AND THE DUKE: Dizzy Gillespie will be getting an award named for another jazz great June 10 in Washington, D.C. He will receive the Duke ASCAP Award, named for Duke Ellington, for his 50-year career.

REAGAN NOT GOING TO EUROPE: Ronald Reagan canceled next month's trip to Europe after his doctors found several small adhesions in his intestines. Doctors for the 79-year-old former president say the adhesions are a result of his abdominal surgery in 1985 and are not uncommon or dangerous. ''He was in his office today (Friday) and looked and felt fine,'' said Reagan aide Mark Weinberg, who added that the ex-president's physicians consider him to be in otherwise excellent health. Reagan and his wife, Nancy, had been scheduled to visit Germany, Poland and France in mid-June but his physicians want to keep an eye on his problem and have advised him to limit his travel for several months.

EX-BEATLE BOWS OUT: Paul McCartney knows when he's not wanted. He's shucked plans to perform at the Yale Bowl in New Haven, Conn., in July, bowing to residents who feared a concert would disrupt the neighborhood too much. ''I have decided that the strength of local opposition was formidable enough to have us reconsider the proposed New Haven show,'' McCartney's manager, Ogdan Nash, said in a statement. ''Paul is very sensitive to community concerns of this sort and has no desire to be the catalyst for such a deep and divisive controversy within the city.'' Alderman Jonathan J. Einhorn said, ''It wasn't Paul McCartney. It was the concept of opening the Yale Bowl for these kinds of commercial concerts.'' The concert was to have been the finale of McCartney's international tour and was expected to pull in $325,000 in profits for the city, which is facing a $10.7 million deficit in the current fiscal year.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (MAY 26) UPI - Engineers made final preparations Saturday for the overnight start of the countdown of the repaired shuttle Columbia, with all systems ''go'' for a blazing predawn launch Wednesday on a 10-day astronomy mission.

The shuttle's carefully scripted countdown was set to begin at 1 a.m. EDT Sunday with the spaceplane's seven-member crew - a post-Challenger record number of astronauts - scheduled to arrive at the Kennedy Space Center later in the day for final preparations.

If all goes well, Columbia will light up the sky with a fiery nighttime liftoff at 12:38 a.m. Wednesday to kick off the 36th shuttle mission, the fourth of nine planned for 1990.

''We're go. We're not even working any minor problems that would prevent a launch Wednesday,'' said NASA spokeswoman Lisa Malone. ''It's just clean as a whistle.''

Launch originally was planned for May 17, but the flight was delayed two weeks after engineers discovered a faulty valve in one of two critical cooling systems. The valve was replaced last week and Columbia, NASA's original shuttle, was cleared for launch.

At the controls will be commander Vance Brand, 59, and co-pilot Guy Gardner, 42. Their crewmates are flight engineer John ''Mike'' Lounge, 43, Robert Parker, 53, Jeffrey Hoffman, 45, and civilian astronomers Ronald Parise, 39, and Samuel Durrance, 46.

Durrance and Parise are the first non-professional astronauts to be launched aboard a shuttle since satellite engineer Gregory Jarvis and schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe perished in the 1986 Challenger disaster.

Throughout the flight, Durrance, Parise, Hoffman and Parker - who hold doctorates in astronomy - will operate a battery of sophisticated telescopes in Columbia's payload bay to photograph and analyze X-rays and ultraviolet radiation from deep space that is blocked by Earth's atmosphere.

Such light, invisible to the human eye, is generated by especially hot, violent astronomical targets such as quasars, exploding suns, young galaxies and other high-energy objects. By studying such radiation, astronomers can learn more about the forces that govern the universe.

Columbia's flight is the second shuttle mission in a row dedicated to astronomy, the latest step in a $9 billion program to study Earth's solar system and the universe at an unprecedented level of detail expected to revolutionize humanity's understanding of the cosmos.

Unlike the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope launched last month from the shuttle Discovery, the $150 million ''Astro-1'' instruments carried into space aboard Columbia will remain in the ship's payload bay throughout the mission and be operated from the crew cabin by remote control.

To gather as much data as possible, the astronauts will work around the clock with Hoffman, Lounge and Durrance making up the daytime ''blue'' shift and Parker, Gardner and Parise making up the nighttime ''red'' shift. Brand is not assigned to a specific shift.

More than 200 astronomical observations are planned using three instruments to study ultraviolet light and one to study the X-ray region of the electromagnetic spectrum.

The Hubble Space Telescope was built to study the universe primarily in visible light, that is, electromagnetic radiation with wavelengths that are detectable by the human eye as a spectrum of color running from blue to green to yellow to red.

But stars, galaxies, quasars, supernovae and other astronomical targets shine in a variety of wavelengths the human eye cannot detect, and studying the universe in visible light alone would be like trying to appreciate a symphony without being able to hear all the instruments.

The Astro-1 instruments aboard Columbia will greatly expand humanity's vision beyond the blue end of the spectrum in a crucial interim step until larger X-ray and gamma ray satellites can be launched later this decade.

LONDON (MAY 26) UPI - The lead of the opposition Labor Party, its popularity on the rise amid public furor over the unpopular poll tax, has slipped 10 points against the Conservative Party, according to a survey published Saturday.

A National Opinion Poll survey for The Independent newspaper and British Broadcasting Corp. showed that Labor is now 15 points ahead of the ruling party, compared with a 25-point lead the main opposition party held in April.

Forty-nine percent of those surveyed said they intended to vote for Labor in the next election, down 5 percent from April; 34 percent said they would vote for the Conservatives, a 5 percent rise from the previous month.

The Liberal Democrats gained 1 percent to reach 8 percent, while the remaining voters were split among the Green Party, the Social Democrats Party and others.

In recent weeks, the Conservatives have stepped up their verbal attacks on Labor, trying to paint their opponents' policies as vague and ineffectual. Their ''summer offensive'' includes posters showing Labor's trademark red rose wilting.

Poll results showed 63 percent said Labor ''has vague policies'' and 28 said it has ''clear policies,'' The Independent newspaper said.

For the third month in a row, Labor leader Neil Kinnock edged out Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher when voters were asked to judge their suitability to be prime minister. Kinnock averaged 5 out of 10 points on a scale of one to 10, Thatcher 4.8 points.

The poll tax, or head tax, a highly unpopular tax replacing property taxes that took effect April 1, remains the top issue on voters' minds, the survey said.

The tax requires local governments to levy a flat sum on every Briton at least 18 years old, with some exceptions, and has sparked a series of often violent demonstrations. Thatcher and her party saw their popularity plunge to new lows amid the uproar.

Hundreds of anti-poll tax demonstrators turned out in Hackney, northeast London, Saturday to burn their poll tax bills in defiance of the government. Authorities said the protest was peaceful and there were no arrests.

The survey suggests, however, that the poll tax's negative impact on the Conservative government seem to be easing.

Sixty-seven percent said they disapproved of the poll tax, down 5 percent from April, while 25 percent approved of it, up 5 percent.

The poll, which surveyed 1,574 voters throughout Britain, was conducted May 19-21, just before the Labor Party released its latest policy review pledging new tax laws, replacement of the House of Lords with an elected chamber and sustained economic growth if it wins the next general election.

WASHINGTON (MAY 26) UPI - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, like two of his summit predecessors, will spend time in the relaxed setting of Camp David, a favorite weekend oasis of President Bush.

Bush invited Gorbachev to the mountain retreat near Thurmont, Md., for a day of meetings June 2 to discuss some of the toughest hard-core issues dividing the superpowers. Such issues include the reunification of Germany and Soviet relations with the Baltic republics, which seek independence from the Soviet Union.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower met with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev at the retreat in 1959, and in 1973 at the height of detente, President Richard Nixon and Leonid Brezhnev discussed arms control and took golf cart rides there.

Camp David earned a lasting place in history as the setting for the Middle East peace talks sponsored by President Jimmy Carter, who worked with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The agreements, reached in 12 days during 1978, became known as the Camp David Accords.

The secluded site was created in Maryland's Catoctin National Park for the handicapped President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1942 to permit him to get away from Washington's oppressive summer heat while staying in close touch with the White House war room during World War II.

After Gen. Jimmy Doolittle's bombing raid on Tokyo, Roosevelt decide to name the retreat Shangri-La in honor of the location from which he said the bombers were launched. Roosevelt and his advisers held many military strategy meetings at the retreat.

Eisenhower named the camp after his grandson David.

Security around Camp David has become more restrictive during the nearly half century of its existence. Barbed wire now rings the perimeter and armed Marines guard the premises.

While at Camp David, Bush and his wife, Barbara, stay in the comfortably furnished Aspen Lodge made of native woods and stone. The lodge has a huge fireplace. Outside the main building are other smaller cabins where family members and White House aides live when the Bushes are in residence.

There is plenty to do. Residents can swim in the pool, play miniature golf go hiking or participate in target shooting.

Eisenhower often stayed at Camp David until he bought the Gettysburg Farm adjoining the Civil War battlefield in nearby Pennsylvania. Nixon, who installed top secret communications and planned to conduct more official business at the camp before his resignation, never liked to miss a weekend at Camp David.

Carter also escaped to Camp David whenever he could, except during the periods when he would take longer vacations to Plains, Ga., his hometown.

Presidents Harry S. Truman, John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson were not enthusiatic devotees of Camp David, although Truman did keep the lodge open year-round and had steam heat installed in the cabins. Jacqueline Kennedy, who sought privacy for herself and her children, went to Camp David before she chose the hunt country in Middleburg, Va., as her favorite weekend escape from the White House.

Johnson, who did not enjoy solitude, never went to Camp David without inviting a large entourage of friends to share the weekend with him. But when Johnson wanted privacy for top secret meetings with his advisers during the Vietnam War, he would travel to the rustic sanctuary.

Nixon invited foreign heads of state to Camp David on 11 different occasions, and his daughter Tricia and her husband Edward Finch Cox spent their honeymoon at Camp David.

President and Mrs. Reagan relished the retreat where he could ride horses and she could take carefree strolls in the bucolic environment. The Reagans looked forward to Fridays when they would don their casual attire and happily board the helicopter that would whisk them away from the White House.

Reagan, in a plaid shirt, khaki slacks and cowboy boots would deliver his weekly five-minute Saturday radio addresses from the lodge. The Reagans would invite staff workers to join them for a Saturday night movie, with an order that none be X-rated.

The Bushes also find Camp David to be a welcome respite, and it is a rare weekend when they do not head for the mountains to relax and get away from it all.

Bush, who revels in outdoor life, is anxious to meet with Gorbachev in a setting where they can have their tete-a-tetes without the world watching to iron out some of the touchy points in the improving U.S.-Soviet relationship.

Whether Gorbachev, who is more businesslike, cottons to wearing a windbreaker and taking walks in the woods remains to be seen.

RANGOON, BURMA (MAY 26) UPI - Candidates in Burma's first multiparty election in 30 years Saturday shook off fears of military restrictions in a burst of campaigning only hours before the polls were due to open.

At the end of a dull three-month campaign under tight military restrictions, candidates launched whirlwind tours around their constituencies, addressing gatherings of 200 to 300 voters in party branch offices.

Some parties ignored a military ban on public assembly by holding rallies of up to 3,000 people at football fields and open areas. Campaigners were apparently emboldened by the presence of some 60 foreign journalists and television crews allowed into Burma for the first time since a military crackdown on opposition politicians last June.

Pickup trucks and vans emblazoned with party symbols toured Rangoon urging voters to come to the polls when they open at 6:00 a.m. Sunday local time.

Army troops stayed off the streets, but police searched all motor vehicles coming into the city following military warnings that underground groups and ethnic insurgents would try to disrupt the polls.

In the jungle headquarters of the Democratic Alliance of Burma, however, dissident leaders said they would organize mass protests only if there was fraud or coercion in the polling.

The burst of campaign activity came after police tightened security Saturday throughout Burma, prompting increased concern by international observers that the contest will not be free and fair.

A number of candidates in Sunday's election have been arrested or detained in recent weeks, and politicial meetings have been tightly controlled by the ruling military government.

Former U.S. President Jimmy Carter said in Atlanta Sunday's contest in the Asian nation of 41 million was an ''unfortunate contrast to other elections which have been taking place around the globe.''

Carter, who has been asked to observe controversial elections in Latin America but who has not been invited to Burma, said in a statement from Atlanta Friday that the military government cannot expect the international community to accept the election as a ''true expression of political will on the part of the people'' of Burma, recently renamed Myanmar.

Burmese dissident students and monks in neighboring Bangkok, Thailand, marched in front of the Burmese Embassy Saturday to protest the contest, charging the military government would rig Sunday's national election unless martial law is ended.

''The military promised to hold these elections only to cool the demands for an end to dictatorship,'' said a protester, who asked not to be identified. ''Now they are using every trick they can to defeat the will of the people.''

Election officials said a total of 2,209 candidates from 93 political parties are contesting the elections, marking the first time multiple parties have been allowed to compete in Burma since 1960. Two years after those elections, the military seized power and instituted a one-party socialist system.

That system collapsed in September 1988 amid nationwide pro-democracy demonstrations, but the military stepped in to crush the demonstrations and seize direct power.

The demand for democracy was so strong, however, that the military promised ''free and fair'' multiparty polls.

Diplomats in Rangoon, however, said the military has continued to keep a tight rein on opposition parties, arresting thousands of political activists, banning most rallies and censoring political speeches.

Among those arrested were former Prime Minister U Nu, and the two leaders of the National League for Democracy: former Gen. Tin U and Aung San Suu Kyi, the outspoken daughter of Burma's independence hero, Gen. Aung San.

Kyi Maung, a candidate for the leading opposition party, the National League for Democracy, predicted his party would win a majority in the polls despite the arrest of its top leaders and many of its activists.

Two parties, the League for Democracy and the pro-military National Unity Party, are contesting more than 400 of the 485 seats at stake in the polls. Two other parties - one led by Nu, and the other by former Brig. Gen. Aung Gyi, a cautious, but longtime critic of the former regime - are also expected to win a significant number of votes.

Gen. Saw Maung, the leader of the ruling military junta, however, has said he will not turn over power to the newly elected legislature until it drafts a new constitution, a process that could take years.

An election commission spokesman said votes would be counted at the polling booths immediately after polls close at 4:00 p.m. (6 a.m. EDT Sunday) to rid voters of any doubt as to the fairness of the election.

Initial results would be announced Sunday night, and the main cities and towns should have reported by Tuesday, he said, but collecting the votes from more remote areas could take up to three weeks.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (MAY 26) UPI - President Bush marked the second day of his Memorial Day weekend Saturday by playing on land and at sea - and by taking some time to bone up for next week's superpower summit, aides said.

Bush played tennis at his seaside summer home in the village of Kennebunkport, and rode his red-white-and-blue speedboat Fidelity in the Atlantic, said deputy press secretary Steve Hart.

Hart said the president also reviewed briefing books for his talks that begin Thursday in Washington with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

White House aides declined Saturday comment on some tough pre-summit remarks by the Kremlin leader.

Gorbachev said Friday that if a reunited Germany becomes a full member of NATO the Soviet Union would review its policies on arms control and security negotiations and maintain troops in eastern Germany.

Bush, in an interview with French television last week, acknowledged that German reunification will be a major summit topic, but expressed optimism.

''Gorbachev has handled up until now change in Eastern Europe with great ability,'' the president said. ''And so I will approach him and make my case for a Germany in NATO.

''But I have to sell him on the fact that this presents no threat to the Soviet Union,'' he said. ''Indeed a NATO alliance with a broader mandate, I think helps provide for stability in Europe.''

Gorbachev favors a reunited Germany belonging to both NATO and the Warsaw Pact. Bush wants Germany only in NATO.

Bush, accompanied by family, friends and aides, arrived in Kennebunkport Friday. He is to return to Washington late Monday, after possibly attending the town's traditional Memorial Day parade.

WASHINGTON (MAY 26) UPI - With their doubts about Mikhail Gorbachev inflamed by his hard-line stance toward the independence-minded Baltic republics, many American conservatives are approaching the superpower summit with anxiety and new questions about President Bush.

But even as they hope Bush will toughen his stance against Gorbachev, many also recognize the pragmatic truth that they may have little influence on a man who is enjoying one of the longest runs of presidential popularity in recent memory.

Not responding to the right wing ''can cause him some problems, but when you've got an 80 percent approval rating, you can say a lot,'' said one leading conservative.

In reality, many movement conservatives have never really accepted Bush as one of their own and his willingness to help Gorbachev has, in a number of right-wing quarters, only heightened their wariness of the president's conservative credentials.

In addition, Gorbachev's tough stance against the Baltic republics proved to some that he was not the democratic reformist leader he was billed to be. And reports that the Soviets might not be adhering to some arms control agreements only added to their skepticism.

If Bush goes too far to back Gorbachev, some of the conservatives theorize he may be headed for danger.

''The worst thing for the United States to be doing is to be legitimizing the Communist Party of the Soviet Union,'' said Howard Phillips of the Conservative Caucus, a strident right wing organization.

''(Bush) is in effect telling the world that Gorbachev is our guy,'' added Phillips. ''It doesn't make sense for Bush to be meeting with Gorbachev when he hasn't given us a blessed thing and when he's cracking down in the Baltics.''

''When the blood (in the Soviet Union) turns from ounces to pints, Bush is going to go down with Gorbachev,'' noted Phillips.

''This is fraught with danger for the president,'' added Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz.

''If Gorbachev is repressing further, it's going to make the conservatives less happy,'' McCain noted, adding that by tying himself too closely to the Soviet leader, Bush could be giving himself little wiggle room.

But Bush has defended his support for the Soviet leader and while conceding that Gorbachev's actions in Lithuania and Latvia have ''put some tension on the summit,'' he has insisted that the talks must take place, with the possibilty of locking the Soviets into a new arms control pact.

''We have a broad agenda of items that we must go forward on,'' the president said recently. ''We've negotiated with the Soviets when all of Eastern Europe was in captivity and when we had Cold War times.''

''I'm unhappy about the state of play in the Baltics because I'd like to see them obtain their desire of freedom as soon as possible. But I feel it's important from our standpoint, the important standpoint of Eastern European countries and Western European allies and indeed the whole world that we have these discussions with Mr. Gorbachev,'' he added.

Bush, who prides himself on building good personal relations with other people, has said he is mostly looking forward to the private sessions with Gorbachev where he hopes to ''get a better feel'' for his counterpart's problems and attitudes.

But some conservatives are hoping that Bush will use those private sessions to make it clear to Gorbachev that improvements in human rights and in treatment of the Baltic states are essential to better relations with the West.

''We just wish he would raise the noise level on human rights,'' said McCain.

But to some very hard-line conservatives, Bush, by pursuing a friendly posture toward the Soviets, has already put himself in danger with the right wing.

In 1992, said Phillips, Bush ''is going to face intraparty opposition and I think it's going to be heavily fueled by his foreign policy.''

''I think that anti-communism remains a core element of the conservative movement,'' added Phillips, noting that Bush was ''pursuing policies Mike Dukakis could pursue. But if Mike Dukakis were pursuing them, they would be roundly denounced by the Republican leadership.''

(MAY 26) UPI - Bush signs a spending bill that contains aid for Nicaragua and Panama.

Arms negotiators take a break in Geneva to attend the Washington summit.

Beech-Nut recalls 11-thousand cases of baby food that may contain pebbles.

And, a judge says Ku Klux Klan members in Georgia can wear masks.

U-P-I has this and other top news today.

President Bush last night signed a four-point-four-BILLION-dollar spending bill. The legislation contains 720-Million dollars in emergency aid for Nicaragua and Panama.

Quoting the president- ''The funds will help the citizens of these nations rebuild their economies after years of economic mismanagement.''

Bush telephoned Panamanian President Guillermo Endara and Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro earlier yesterday to let them know Congress had approved the bill.

Panama will receive 420-Million dollars and Nicaragua 300-Million.

Endara thanked Bush in advance for the financial help, but added the package will NOT guarantee Panama's economic recovery. Endara said- ''We are going to achieve the recovery ourselves, with our work, with our common force.''

Congress passed the bill Thursday- two months after President Bush initially requested the money. The measure was stalled by controversial issues such as abortion and U-S military aid to El Salvador.

(MAY 26) UPI - The government says the Beech-Nut Corporation is voluntarily re-calling 11-thousand cases of baby food because the food may contain pebbles.

Quality control inspections conducted by Beech-Nut revealed the small stones- a choking hazard. The pebbles ranged in size from one-eighth inch to one-half inch. A Food and Safety and Inspection Service officials says the New Jersey-based baby food company traced the pebbles to a shipment of frozen peas from Europe.

NO injuries have been reported. But Beech-Nut is encouraging consumers to return the products to the store where they purchased them.

The baby food was distributed in 22 states. The recall affects three products- Beech-Nut Table Time Vegetable Stew with Chicken in 12-ounce jars, Beech-Nut Stages three Chicken Noodle Dinner in six-ounce cans, Beech-Nut Stages three Dinner Variety Pack, which includes the chicken noodle dinner as one of four jars of food.

NO other products are being re-called.

Officials say the Table Time Vegetable Stew with Chicken could be identified by the code ''28FEB92 02A0848'', followed by an A, B, C or D. The jars also carry the federal inspection mark and ''Estimated Number P-68.'' The stew is for children ages one and older.

The Stages 3 Chicken Noodle Dinner has the code ''09MAR92 03B0212'' on the jar, follwed by an A, B, C or D, and federal inspection seal ''Estimated Number P-68.'' The food is intended for children ages nine months and older.

The Stages 3 Dinner Variety Pack, Beech-Nut is recalling the entire pack. The pack carries the code ''Use by March 92'' and either ''0423H'' or ''0424H.'' There are six variety packs to a case.

(MAY 26) UPI - A Georgia state judge has ruled Ku Klux Klan members may wear hooded masks in public to conceal their faces. Judge Howard Cook ruled in Atlanta the 39-year-old law is UNconstitutional, overly broad, and violates Klan members' rights to free speech, associaion and protection under the law.

Georgia attorneys argued abandoning the law will lead to a resurgence of Klan violence. They plan to file an immediate appeal... and until then, the law will continue to stand.

Quoting Justice Cook- ''Even though the Klan may represent controversial ideas, even hateful ideas, such ideas still are entitled to the protection.''

The director of the N-double-A-C-P's Southeastern regional office says the law is as necessary today as it was when it was enacted. Quoting Earl Shinhoster now- ''We already have seen an increase of Klan activity in this country. Shinhoster added... ''Now they may do it under the cloak of anonymity provided by the mask.''

(MAY 26) UPI - The Greyhound bus lines has fired a replacement driver whose bus ran off a highway and into a ditch... slightly injuring eight passengers.

Greyhound spokesman George Gravley says company investigators are trying to determine whether the 50-year-old driver was deliberately forced off the road by a truck... as he stated.

Some passengers have said the driver fell asleep at the wheel.

In either case, company officials insist the accident was preventable.

Officials say the bus went off Interstate 80 near Wamsutter, Wyoming, Thursday and traveled about 11-hundred feet in the median before hitting a drainage culvert. Eight of 45 passengers were hospitalized with minor injuries ranging from a broken nose to whiplash-type back injuries.

The driver... Bobby Williamson... was hired two months ago after workers struck the nationwide carrier. Officials say he had a good record with experience driving interstate buses and trucks.

(MAY 26) UPI - Independent Canadian truckers have agreed to end a lingering blockade of two U-S border crossings in the Niagara Falls peninsula.

The Canadian truckers earlier pledged to keep the bridges at Fort Erie and Queenston, Ontario, closed despite a deal reached Thursday with truckers in Windsor, Ontario. The Windsor truckers requested and received assurances their specific concerns would be addressed by provincial officials.

Ontario transport minister Bill Wrye sent a letter Friday to representatives of the Owner-Operator Truckers Association agreeing to meet with them next week. Wrye said he would discuss additional rest areas... insurance costs... fuel taxes... the needs of professional truck drivers... load broker practices and rates for independent owner-operators with the truckers.

The blockade ended after trucker representative Richard Blackmore explained the details of the letter to about 100 drivers, who voted to end the blockade with a show of hands.

MOSCOW (MAY 26) UPI - Panic buying of staple foods spread Saturday to half the Soviet Union and Moscow ordered limited rationing to stem the rush of purchases that followed announcement of economic reforms earlier this week, officials said.

Muscovites awoke Saturday to learn that for two weeks beginning Monday only residents of the capital and the Moscow region will be allowed to shop in Moscow stores and that the amount of staples they purchase will be limited.

The wave of buying also has spread to the giant Russian republic, which represents half of the Soviet population, as well as the nation's breadbasket of the Ukraine and Moldavia bordering Romania.

The surge of panic purchases began late Thursday with the tripling of prices for bread, milk and fish after Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov presented the government's plan for a transition to a modified market economy.

Ryzhkov told a news conference that ''a wave of buying by people stocking up on goods was noticed in half the country'' and called it ''a very negative trend.''

Ryzhkov, who is staking his political career on the goverment's economic plan, said he would resign if the people show they have no confidence in his measures. The Supreme Soviet has put off a vote on the plan until Monday and radical deputies have threatened a vote of no-confidence.

The crisis adds to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's worries as he prepares for next week's summit with President Bush. The superpower meeting is already clouded by the issue of Lithuanian independence and sharp disagreements over whether a unified Germany should be a member of NATO.

Vladimir Karmaukhov, an official of the Moscow retail trade division of the city government, added to the bad news at a Saturday press conference, reporting panic buying in Moldavia and the Ukraine.

He also said panic buying has swept 43 areas in the giant Russian Federation, largest of the 15 Soviet republics. The Russian Federation covers three-fourths of the Soviet Union, including all of Siberia, and has half of the population.

Moscow Deputy Mayor Sergei Stankevich said busloads of buyers streamed into the capital late Thursday and all day Friday, cleaning out one month's supply of flour, vegetable oil, flour and various kinds of grain.

He said some shoppers became violent when they found empty shleves.

''So far the city authorities, with the cooperation of law enforcement organs, have been able to keep the situation under control,'' he said.

The Moscow Pravda newspaper said the capital's trade unions demanded the restrictions.

''The Moscow trade unions appealed to the Moscow council to introduce immediate limitations for the foodstuffs that one person can buy by showing a passport with Moscow or Moscow region residence,'' the newspaper said.

Mayor Gavriil Popov explained that Moscow, with a population of 9 million, was the last of the major cities to introduce a passport system that allows only residents of the city and its regions to shop in local stores.

But although the decree in Saturday's newspapers said the limitations would start Sunday, Popov said they would not take effect until Monday and urged people to remain calm, saying Moscow had enough reserves for two months.

Popov also said that special sections of stores would be reserved for Soviet citizens who have to travel on business to Moscow.

He said Moscow officials were coordinating with city officials of areas outside Moscow for them to send special representatives to the capital to purchase goods for their areas.

Moscow is greatly resented by non-residents because it is supplied punctually with goods from other regions, while non-Muscovites must travel to the capital to buy goods that stores in their regions lack. Up to a million non-Muscovites visit Moscow by bus and train daily to shop.

MOSCOW (MAY 26) UPI - Renegade Communist Boris Yeltsin fell 28 votes short of an necessary majority Saturday in runoff elections for the effective presidency of the Russian republic, forcing a new election. Yeltsin said he would continue his fight Monday.

Neither Yeltsin nor his opponent, hard-line Communist Party official Ivan Polozkov, received the needed 531-vote majority of the 1,060 members of the new Congress of People's Deputies.

With 1,032 deputies voting in Saturday's runoff elections, Yeltsin received 503 and Polozkov got 458, official results showed. Seventy-one deputies crossed off both names on the ballot.

The failure of either candidate to win a clear majority in two ballots forced a new election, likely to take place next week after Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has left for his summit with President Bush.

Yeltsin said he would run again when nominations open Monday.

''On Sunday I will gather strength and on Monday morning I will be ready '' Yeltsin said. ''Too many people believe in me and I can't betray that faith.''

Polozkov, who seemed to draw most of his support from anti-Yeltsin sentiment, is considered unlikely to run again. The most likely challenger for the next round is Yuri Manaenkov, a member of the Communist Party Central Committee's powerful Secretariat appointed by Gorbachev.

Polozkov, known for his opposition to fledgling cooperatives and other independent businesses, has been linked to neo-Stalinist forces.

Saturday's vote was the first stumble in Yeltsin's remarkable three-year comeback from political disgrace based on strong popular support expressed through new democratic elections.

Yeltsin lost his post as Moscow's Communist Party boss and candidate membership in the ruling Politburo after criticizing Gorbachev's reforms as too slow in November 1987.

The vote Saturday was a victory, although perhaps a temporary one, for Gorbachev, who on Wednesday slammed Yeltsin's support for Russian autonomy in a speech to the congress.

Yeltsin shrugged off the effects of the speech, saying it may even have helped him, but called on the Soviet president to seek compromise and stop opposing his election.

''Gorbachev has no other choice because now the people, not the Parliament are going to decide,'' Yeltsin said.

Oleg Rumyanstev, a leader of the radical Democratic Russia bloc backing Yeltsin, said that miners in the northern city of Vorkuta and other areas were preparing to go on strike Monday to support Yeltsin.

Any unrest would come amid panic buying sweeping the giant Russian republic after the announcement of a government plan to raise prices.

The setback for Yeltsin came after intensive last-minute lobbying by Democratic Russia supporters unable to sway delegates nervous about the populist leader's radical ideas on Russian sovereignty.

''Yeltsin's ideas on the armed forces mean the dissolution of the Soviet Union,'' said an army officer and deputy to the congress who refused to give his name. In his nomination speech on Friday, Yeltsin proposed forming semi-autonomous army units in each of the country's 15 republics.

Moderates who argued that despite Yeltsin's faults he was the only person who could unify the fractious congress also failed to change deputies' votes, suggesting that he faces an uphill struggle in getting the support he needs to win.

Yeltsin is running for the post of chairman of the congress and the Supreme Soviet, or standing parliament, a body selected from among the congress's members.

The position is the republic's effective presidency, and would give Yeltsin a powerful platform to challenge Gorbachev.

The deputies voted on paper ballots signed by the four members of the election commission to avoid irregularities.

In the initial vote among three candidates Friday, Yeltsin received 497 votes, Polozkov received 473 and a minor third candidate, Vladimir Morokin got 32.

Friday's vote came after current Russian Premier Alexander Vlasov stunned the new legislature by withdrawing his candidacy with no explanation.

WASHINGTON (MAY 26) UPI - Raisa Gorbachev, who played one-upmanship with Nancy Reagan, is expected to hit things off better with Barbara Bush.

The Soviet first lady, who will accompany Mikhail Gorbachev to his summit with President Bush, reportedly wants to avoid the limelight that marked two previous trips to America.

But that may not be possible since she and Mrs. Bush are expected to command international attention when they deliver commencement addresses to graduates of Boston's all-female Wellesley College on June 1.

Some Wellesley students protested Mrs. Bush's scheduled appearance, saying she was not a proper role model for career-minded women. But backed by hundreds of letters of support, Mrs. Bush said she knows where the women are coming from and believes the differences are ''generational.''

Some spectators are wondering how much Mrs. Gorbachev, a former college professor with a doctorate, will be able to attune her remarks to the era of perestroika after expressing such strong views as a socialist ideologue. Nancy Reagan heard a lot of Mrs. Gorbachev's philosophy at their social teas.

Mrs. Bush and Mrs. Gorbachev, who have met casually on three occasions, are bound to become better acquainted this time since they will accompany their husbands to the Camp David retreat for an outing June 2.

The White House is handling the Gorbachevs' trip to Washington as a regular state visit. Mrs. Bush will drink coffee and chat with Mrs. Gorbachev after formal arrival ceremonies. Later in the day the White House will host a state dinner. The following evening the Bushes will be guests at a Soviet Embassy dinner.

But Mrs. Gorbachev ''does not want a lot of attention this time,'' a Soviet source said.

Since Raisa Gorbachev, who dressed fashionably and carried a credit card, did not fit the stereotype of the revolutionary Russian woman, she created a minor sensation on her early trips abroad as first lady.

She sometimes appeared to be trying to upstage Mrs. Reagan, who took it as a challenge. Mrs. Reagan was irked when the Soviets passed the word that the 1986 Reykjavik, Iceland, summit would be strictly business and Mrs. Gorbachev showed up with her husband.

The Soviet first lady also annoyed Mrs. Reagan when she requested the song ''Moscow Nights'' at a state dinner and all the guests burst into singing. Mrs. Reagan felt that Mrs. Gorbachev was taking over.

Mrs. Gorbachev also has suffered criticism at home for taking center stage. But since then she has noticably fallen out of the spotlight.

She may have had a hard time adjusting to the new trends in the Soviet Union with free markets on the way, freer speech and even the practice of organized religion, of which she spoke disparagingly in the past.

Mrs. Bush suggested several possible sightseeing activities while Bush and Gorbachev are meeting, including a visit to colonial Williamsburg, Va., but Mrs. Gorbachev apparently preferred the relaxed atmosphere of Camp David in the mountains of Western Maryland.

Mrs. Bush says she is looking forward to the visit, and the expectation is that while the two women may not be soul mates when the summit is over, they will have a friendly relationship. Mrs. Bush is not one to have it otherwise.

Meanwhile, dispensing with past feuds, Raisa Gorbachev and Nancy Reagan will see each other again when they and their husbands breakfast in San Francisco on June 4.

WASHINGTON (MAY 26) UPI - Security officers preparing for Mikhail Gorbachev's arrival next week hope the Soviet president won't repeat his 1987 impromptu stroll on a crowded street, but if he does, they're ready.

''From a security standpoint, the spontaneity of it is troubling. We certainly would like to avoid it if we can,'' said Secret Service spokesman Bob Snowe.

Gorbachev, while visiting former President Ronald Reagan in December 1987, stopped his motorcade on Connecticut Avenue to shake hands with the lunch-hour crowd. He scored a public relations coup, but it proved to be a headache for Soviet and U.S. security details.

Should Gorbachev make a similar gesture during the May 30-June 3 summit, Snowe said the Secret Service will simply stick with him.

''If he wants to stop and shake hands, let him,'' Snowe said. ''He knows what the security package is. He probably has the same view as most heads of state. If Mr. Bush suddenly decides he wants to go out to dinner, he's under the attitude that if nobody knows he's going, there should be nobody there to harm him.''

While in Washington, Gorbachev and his entourage will be protected by the Secret Service, the U.S. Park Police, the Metropolitan Police and the Maryland State Police.

Security officials would not discuss details such as how many officers will be appointed to help protect Gorbachev and President Bush.

While recent political upheaval in the Soviet Union is expected to increase demonstrations during the summit, security officers said they do not think such activities will require extra measures.

''It won't be any different,'' said Snowe, who emphasized that the main job for the Secret Service at the summit - in addition to protecting Bush - is to protect Gorbachev, his wife, Raisa, and Soviet officials.

''There will be different players on both sides, but political problems don't make our job harder,'' Snowe said. ''We work with the KGB to ensure a secure environment, we know we have to take into account world intelligence reports.''

U.S. Park Police said one of their biggest tasks will be providing security for Saturday's summit meeting at the Camp David retreat in Western Maryland.

If Bush and Gorbachev choose to drive, as has been discussed, Park Police and Secret Service vehicles will lead the motorcade.

''Whenever there's a motorcade you have to lay out the roads,'' said U.S. Park Police spokeswoman Sandra Alley. ''Sometimes we close intersections or depending on the situation we'll close an entire road.''

Park Police will also have to handle the myriad demonstrations planned for the Ellipse and Lafayette Square, across from the White House.

''We've gotten about 10 permit requests from 10 separate groups for demonstrations on park grounds,'' Alley said. ''No reason to believe any of them spell trouble.''

Snowe said the Secret Service has been meeting with city police, fire and medical authorities.

''We cooperate with local authorities so they know what is going on and where they can help out,'' he said.

''We are working in shifts, so there's not always a great deal of overtime plus we're working with the KGB and advance people in protecting him as well,'' Snowe said.

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (MAY 26) UPI - An extraordinary communist party congress adjourned after only three hours Saturday after regional branches from half of Yugoslavia's republics refused to send delegates.

The plenary meeting was a continuation of the 14th Special Congress that was disrupted Jan. 23 when the Slovenian delegation walked out in a dispute over the pace of reforms.

The communist parties of three of Yugoslavia's republics, Slovenia, Croatia and Macedonia, refused to send delegations to Saturday's meeting. The communists lost power in Slovenia and Croatia in multiparty elections earlier this spring.

Delegates from Serbia, Montenegro and Bosnia and Hercegovina set a Sept. 29 date for the next congress and then adjourned after only three hours, radio reports and the official news agency Tanjug said.

At the January meeting, the communist delegates voted to abolish the party's 45-year monopoly on power but differed sharply over proposals for deeper political and economic reforms and greater autonomy for the individual republics.

The meeting came a day after Prime Minister Ante Markovic, a leading advocate of reform, announced plans to form a separate party to compete in general elections expected later this year.

WASHINGTON (MAY 26) UPI - When George Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev meet for their superpower summit, America's big-name television anchors will be at the scene.

And so will 5,000 other reporters, photographers, producers and technicians from about 50 nations, including the Soviet Union, Israel, Japan, France, Australia, Poland and East and West Germany.

''There's plenty of interest,'' said Romain Leick of the West German magazine Der Spiegel.

He said while some reporters will track arms control and the fate of the Baltic states, ''For us, the big issue is German reunification and NATO.''

From the moment the Soviet president steps off his jet on May 30 - scheduled for 6:30 p.m. EDT - the summit is certain to be an international media event extraordinaire.

''The Gorbachev arrival should be the first feed on the nightly news - live,'' said Frank Shanbacker, NBC's producer of special news events.

The anchors Peter Jennings of ABC, Dan Rather of CBS, and Tom Brokaw of NBC are all coming to Washington from New York for the show. They will anchor from temporary wooden booths set up across from the White House on the grassy grounds of the Washington Monument.

CNN's Bernard Shaw, based in Washington, will anchor from the cable network's building. CNN, though, will maintain a position on the Monument grounds for picturesque ''live shots'' and interviews.

Many print and broadcast media will set up shop at The George Washington University's Charles E. Smith Center, a sports complex being converted into an international press center.

Just five blocks from the White House and across the street from D.J.'s Fastfood carryout, telephone lines are being laid across the basketball court for a wave of reporters, including the St. Louis Post-Dispatch's Larry O'Rourke.

O'Rourke has been covering U.S.-Soviet summits since President Lyndon Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin got together in Glassboro, N.J., from June 23-25, 1967.

''Back then, there were only a few hundred reporters overall, most of them from the White House, a handful from the Soviet Union,'' O'Rourke said. ''Hell, we all fit fine on the little campus of Glassboro State College.''

O'Rourke said the size as well as the mood of the press corps has changed. A generation ago, he said, reporters seemed to regard a summit as another day at the office, but ''today, we cover them with a sense of breathlessness.''

''To a great extent, the public responds to what we present,'' he said. ''The fact that more reporters are covering it stimulates interest.''

Andrew Fedyashin, chief Washington correspondent for Tass, the Soviet news agency, offers a Kremlin view of the upcoming news at the summit.

''The Soviet people are interested in progress in arms control. They are concerned about the money being spent on the arms race,'' Fedyashin said. ''They realize money is needed for the Soviet economy.

''The Soviet people are also interested in the human interest stories of the summit - how Gorbachev is treated, how Raisa Gorbachev is treated, how laymen respond to them,'' he said.

American networks plan live coverage of news conferences, treaty signings and joint appearances. They also will go live for other events as warranted, pre-empting regular programming.

The 5,000 media representatives - from journalists to film couriers - credentialed for the summit is more than the total credentialed for two of the biggest media events in America last year - the Superbowl and the World Series, which had about 3,500.

Jeff Gralnick, ABC's executive producer of special news coverage, succinctly explains the significance of the summit: ''Two presidents will be discussing world peace. That should draw.''

NEW YORK (MAY 26) UPI - A young Haitian immigrant set afire by a bully in his Brooklyn neighborhood met Saturday with the president of Haiti, who came to boost the boy's morale as he neared the end of his hospital stay.

David Opont, a frail 12-year-old whose plight drew nationwide attention, met for 15 minutes with President Ertha Pascal Trouillot. The president gave Opont a bouquet flowers, later saying she came to offer ''the support of the Haitian people.''

Opont, who was dragged into an abandoned basement in Flatbush, tied to a pipe and set afire, has been visited in his hospital room by former President Ronald Reagan and a host of other celebrity well-wishers.

Officials at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center say Opont could be released from the hospital within a week.

President Trouillot was in New York to visit the city's burgeoning Haitian immigrant community, now estimated to be 300,000 strong. Most Haitian-American families in New York, like Opont and his parents, live in Brooklyn.

Speaking in French through a translator after the hospital visit, Trouillot said, ''I tried to help his morale.

''He has been the victim of an unfortunate incident and I came to give him my help and the help of the support of the Haitian people.''

Doctors have described Opont's recovery as nothing short of remarkable, saying he was near death following the March 7 attack. He is scheduled to be tranferred within a week to St. Mary's Hospital for Children in Queens to undergo long-term care and rehabilitation.

Opont, who was burned over 55 percent of his body, underwent a number of skin-graft operations. This week, a picture on the front page of one of the city's tabloids showed him standing up and beaming at his well-wishers.

On Thursday, a judge allowed prosecutors to use as evidence Opont's bedside identification of his attacker. Opont picked out the suspect from a series of photographs.

The 13-year-old suspect in the attack, who was charged as a juvenile, is currently being held in the Spofford Juvenile Center.

CINCINNATI (MAY 26) UPI - A controversial exhibit of photographs by Robert Mapplethorpe closed its seven-week display in Cincinnati Saturday, but a legal tangle remains to be settled.

Several of the photos by the late Mapplethorpe depict erotic homosexual situations. On the day the exhibit opened, a Hamilton County grand jury indicted the Contemporary Arts Center and its director, Dennis Barrie, on charges of pandering obscenity and depicting children in the nude.

Several pre-trial hearings have been conducted, but no trial date has been set. A judge is considering requests by the Contemporary Arts Center and Barrie to throw out the indictment.

The furor over the exhibition received extensive news coverage, and the show drew 75,000 viewers, three times more than any other exhibit in the history of the gallery.

Although the exhibit is leaving Cincinnati and is scheduled to be displayed in Boston next month, Barrie says what eventually happens in the Cincinnati courts will be important.

''Every museum in the country will be watching because every museum realizes it is also on trial,'' said Barrie. ''They know if the Contemporary Arts Center loses, every museum in the country will be open to policing by law enforcement agencies. The libraries, the bookstores, the schools are next.''

The Mapplethorpe exhibit generated a classic arts vs. obscenity battle in Cincinnati, a city in which public officials have traditionally strictly enforced anti-obscenity laws.

But Barrie figures the huge attendance at the Mapplethorpe exhibit means Cincinnati's general public does not generally support such strict prosecution. A public opinion survey taken by University of Cincinnati polling team a few weeks ago showed most Cincinnatians thought the Mapplethorpe photos should be exhibited in the city.

''I think the city has for too long allowed itself to be positioned as more conservative than it is,'' said Barrie. ''I've had people on the street come up to me and shake my hand and say, 'Thank you for what you are doing.'

''I think it could very well carry over into the elections of the public officials involved in the issue. The biggest event of the year here has been concerned with art and expressing our basic freedoms. Here is a whole city talking about nothing else but art and freedom. That is a healthy thing.''

WASHINGTON (MAY 26) UPI - The State Department issued a travel advisory Saturday, warning Americans that ''a threat exists against U.S. personnel and facilities'' in the Philippines.

In a statement, the department said: ''This threat is heightened in the period leading up to and during the Philippine-U.S. base negotiations,'' which began this month.

''During this period, Communist elements in the Philippines are likely to expand their current terrorism campaign beyond U.S. officials and active duty U.S. servicemen to include retired personnel and the places they frequent,'' the department said.

The statement noted that the U.S. ''private community'' may be at increased risk, especially those living around U.S. military facilities.

But, the department added, most major tourist attractions and urban areas generally have not experienced the type of civil disorder found in such areas as Samar Island, Basilan Island, and the provinces of Masbate, Sulu, Lanao Del Sur, Kalinga Apayao, the Cagayan Valley in Cagayan and Isabela Provinces.

''Because of criminal activities, travelers should exercise caution at night in the downtown entertainment districts of major cities and should avoid travel to remote mountainous areas,'' the department said.

The department also advised Americans to use only national highways or paved roads and to avoid night travel.

On May 13, two American airmen were killed May 13, forcing U.S. officials to cancel all leaves and liberty for Americans stationed in the Philippines.

The communist New People's Army (NPA) has claimed responsibility for the slayings and vowed to continue attacking Americans until Washington dismantles its military bases in the Philippines. U.S. basing rights expire Sept. 16, 1991.

At least 11 Americans have been killed in insurgency-related incidents over the past three years.

KANSAS CITY, MO (MAY 27) UPI - Trans World Airlines Inc. Chairman Carl Icahn said he would require an $80 million wage concesssion from the airline pilots' union before agreeing to an employee buyout of the company a newspaper reported Saturday.

Icahn's remarks were made to the Kansas City Star.

But Bill Compton, the head of the pilots union's negotiating committee, told the newspaper that pilots would not give Icahn any further wage concessions. Compton said Icahn, who received $500 million in concessions in past negotiations, was asking for too much, the newspaper said.

Analysts and union officials said at least three different employee buyout plans have been discussed for the money-losing carrier, which has its hub at Lambert-St. Louis International Airport,

One idea, a 100 percent employee buyout of the airline, would not involve a cash payment to Icahn and would not involve outside financing, but would eliminate Icahn from a managing role at the airline, the newspaper said.

Another proposal, a split of the airline into two companies, would leave

Icahn in charge of finances. The employees would operate TWA.

The pilots' union advocates a third plan, reducing TWA's debt load by having junk bond holders exchange their notes for TWA common stock. That proposal would dilute Icahn's control and possibly make way for new management.

Icahn told the Star that TWA needed further concessions from pilots because the machinists' union would face financial difficulties in an employee-run company. Machinists have proposed a 100 percent employee buyout of TWA.

The newspaper described Icahn as ''adamant'' about the need for an $80 million concession. TWA is currently carrying a debt load of about $2.67 billion.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (MAY 26) UPI - President Bush said Saturday that he will seek to persuade Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev at their summit next week that a united Germany in NATO would pose ''no threat'' to the Kremlin.

But Bush, on a pre-summit holiday break at his family retreat in Kennebunkport, Maine, acknowledged that it will ''take a while before we have an agreement on how a post-German reunification will look.''

Bush made the comments on the first tee at the Anne Arundel Golf Club in response to a warning issued Friday by Gorbachev in which the Soviet leader said Moscow would review its policies on arms control and security negotiations if a united Germany became a NATO member.

But Bush said: ''My job is to convince him that there is no threat. And I am absolutely convinced that there is no threat to him.''

''I think really one can make the case that it (Germany belonging to NATO) is in their interest,'' the president said without further elaboration.

Bush, in an interview with French television last week, acknowledged that German reunification will be a major summit topic, but expressed optimism.

''Gorbachev has handled up until now change in Eastern Europe with great ability,'' the president said. ''And so I will approach him and make my case for a Germany in NATO.

''But I have to sell him on the fact that this presents no threat to the Soviet Union,'' he said. ''Indeed a NATO alliance with a broader mandate,

I think helps provide for stability in Europe.''

Gorbachev favors a reunited Germany belonging to both NATO and the Warsaw Pact. Bush wants Germany only in NATO.

Bush marked the second day of his Memorial Day weekend by playing on land and at sea - and by taking some time to bone up for next week's superpower summit, aides said.

The president played tennis at his seaside summer home in the village of Kennebunkport, and rode his red-white-and-blue speedboat Fidelity in the Atlantic, said deputy press secretary Steve Hart.

Hart said the president also reviewed briefing books for his talks that begin Thursday in Washington with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Bush, accompanied by family, friends and aides, arrived in Kennebunkport Friday. He is to return to Washington late Monday, after possibly attending the town's traditional Memorial Day parade.

CHICAGO (MAY 26) UPI - Reeling from a judge's order that would cost a combined $1 million in fines and expel him and his firm from the futures industry, GNP Chairman Brian Monieson called the ruling a ''political'' decision designed to protect a government agency rather than the industry itself.

Monieson, a former Chicago Mercantile Exchange chairman, called the order by George Painter, a Commodity Futures Trading Commission law judge, ''definitely more of a political than legal decision.''

The CFTC is attempting to defend its jurisdiction from the Securities and Exchange Commission ''by proving they are the toughest cops in town,'' said Monieson. Proposals have been made to have the SEC oversee the futures industry.

Painter's order Friday called for fines of $500,000 to be levied on both GNP and on Monieson, who was found to have ''acted in bad faith'' when he allegedly ignored fradulent actions by two of the firm's traders. Monieson immediately appealed the decision.

The brokers, Norman Furlett and Ira Greenspon, were accused of cheating smaller customers between 1984 and 1986 by taking credit for profitable trades while putting losing trades in customer accounts. The two were also fined $75,000 and banned from the industry. Their attorney said that decision will be appealed.

GNP was just about to be sold for millions of dollars before the allegations of fraudulent trading came to light.

''The shame of this case is that GNP and Monieson were so callously indifferent to the wrongs done to their most vulnerable customers,'' Painter wrote.

Some industry leaders said they agreed with Monieson and his attorney, Jerrold Salzman, that the penalty was too harsh. Robert Wilmouth, president of the National Futures Association, the industry's self-regulating body, called the penalty ''extremely excessive.'' He said he had received calls from industry officials who were ''shocked'' by the order.

But Dennis Klejna, chief enforcement officer of the CFTC, said the decision was not a political one.

He said the harshness of the penalty was ''because of the kind of people who were abused, the length of time the scheme went on and the fact that several people testified they went to Monieson and yet he did nothing about it.''

GNP employees testified Monieson took no action against Furlett and Greenspon even though he was warned the men were involved in the scheme. Monieson also testified and said he fired the men, and said he was not warned about the men.

The case has been well-publicized because of Monieson's stature in the industry and because of testimony on his behalf from some high-profile officials, including Clayton Yeutter, agriculture secretary and former CME president.

The case next is to go before the commissioners of the CFTC. If Painter's ruling is upheld, GNP can take the case to a federal appellate court.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (MAY 26) UPI - An extremist group claiming to hold two American hostages warned Saturday that the United States and Israel ''will pay the price'' for the massacre of seven Palestinians by an Israeli last week.

''America is directly responsible for shedding the blood'' of the Palestinians, said the Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine in a one-page, handwritten statement delivered to the offices of a Western news agency in Moslem west Beirut.

The statement by the group, which claims to be holding American professors Alann Steen and Jesse Turner, was accompanied by a colored photograph of the two men. Both had overgrown beards, were seated and appeared smiling in the picture.

It was the first statement issued by hostage keepers since the release last month of U.S. citizen Frank Reed.

The Islamic Jihad group claimed to have kidnapped Steen and Turner along with Robert Polhill on Jan. 24, 1987, from the campus of the U.S.-affiliated Beirut University College. Polhill was released a week before Reed.

Reed and Polhill were freed amid growing hopes the hostage issue was on its way to be concluded, but observers said the latest statement shattered hopes that the remaining 16 Western hostages, especially Steen and Turner, might be released soon.

''We warn America and Israel that the future developments will not be of anyone's interest, and they will know that the blood will not be wasted and they will pay the price,'' the statement said.

''The Islamic Jihad Organization declares that the only deterrent method is force,'' it said, without specifying what action it might take.

Last Sunday, seven Palestinians were killed by a Israeli outside an Israeli town. Since then, 14 Palestinians have been killed and hundreds wounded in riots that erupted.

Israel came under sharp international criticism, including from its closest ally, the United States, for the high number of casualties, making the week one of the bloodiest in the 29-month-old Palestinian uprising against Israeli occupation.

The Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine said in its statement that the U.S. stand was only a cover for its support to Israel.

''America is trying to preserve its base (Israel) ... and it will not even accept any verbal resolutions to negatively infringe upon Israel,'' it said.

Iran and Syria, believed to have great influence over the kidnappers have repeatedly voiced their willingness to help free all hostages ''for humanitarian reasons.'' They said the release of Polhill and Reed was the fruit of efforts they had exerted on the Moslem Lebanese kidnappers.

Among the 16 Westerners still detained in Lebanon are six U.S. citizens, four Britons, two Swiss, two west Germans, an Irishman and an Italian.

CHICAGO (MAY 26) UPI - Chicago Cubs outfielder Jerome Walton sat out the first game of Saturday's double-header after learning his half-brother was shot and killed in Atlanta.

Cubs Manager Don Zimmer said after talking to Walton for 40 minutes Saturday, he decided not to start the center fielder in the first game of a double-header against Houston. However, Walton pinch-hit in the seventh inning and started in center field in Game 2.

''You don't know how to handle something like that,'' Zimmer said. ''I told him, 'I'm not going to tell you what to do, you tell me.'''

Zimmer said Walton told him the shooting took place Friday, when an unidentified man drove by the car wash that Walton's half-brother opens each day and shot him in the back. Funeral arrangements were pending.

Atlanta Homicide Capt. Calvin Wardlaw said the victim, Clifford Anderson Hudson, 31, originally of Newnan, Ga., died at Grady Memorial Hospital of a single gunshot wound in the lower back. Hudson lived long enough to tell police he did not know who shot him, Wardlaw said.

DALLAS (MAY 27) UPI - Heather Preas met Joan Aldcroft Saturday, two years after the woman saved her life.

''Are you well?'' Joan asked.

''Yes,'' Heather replied.

In 1988, Aldcroft, who is from England, donated the bone marrow that doctors said the deathly ill Preas needed to survive. The Texas teenager, suffering from an acute form of a disease called aplastic anemia that destroys the body's immune system, received the marrow in a transplant in June that year.

She is now 18 and will graduate from her high school in Midland this week. Preas met Aldcroft, 45, in a lounge at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport on Saturday, giving the woman a bouquet of flowers.

''I was terrified, absolutely terrified, that I was about to meet Heather and her mom,'' Aldcroft said later.

In January 1988, Heather's doctors told her she might have only four months to live because her bone marrow was not producing the platelets and red blood cells neccesary to the function of the immune system.

A transplant was her one chance of survival, they advised her.

Doctors could not find compatible marrow for the girl, and an international search was started. It turned up Aldcroft, found to have marrow matching Preas's.

''I have a daughter the same age as Heather,'' Aldcroft said. ''Had she been in the same boat as Heather, she would have needed somebody as well. No question about it, it was right for Heather and I had to do it.''

A Baylor, Texas, hospital nurse flew to England to harvest the donor marrow. Preas received Texas's first transplant of bone marrow involving an unrelated donor and recipient.

Despite the surgery, doctors still gave Preas only a 50 percent chance of survival. In following months, she underwent medication and chemotherapy. She gained 80 pounds and her hair fell out.

The teenager did schoolwork at home. Last fall, she was able to return to school for her senior year.

On Wednesday, Preas will graduate in a ceremony where she is to be recognized for her battle against disease. Aldcroft will be there.

The young woman has received a scholarship from the Midland Medical Society and is planning to become a doctor.

Present Saturday with Aldcroft and Preas were the Baylor nurse and Preas's sister Holly and mother Cynthia.

''I'll always be grateful,'' Cynthia Preas said of Aldcroft's donation. ''There'll always be a link between us - that one life link.''

LOS ANGELES (MAY 27) UPI - Actor Robert Wagner and actress Jill St. John were married Saturday at his home, Wagner's publicist said.

Wagner, 60, and St. John, 49, were married in a small ceremony in the garden of the actor's home in Pacific Palisades, publicist Alan Nierob said.

Present at the private ceremony were Wagner's three daughters: Kate, 26, who served as maid-of-honor; Natasha, 19, and Courtney, 16, both serving as bridesmaids, Nierob said.

J. Watson Webb Jr. served as Wagner's best man and Wagner's sister, Mrs. Albert Scott, was matron of honor, according to Nierob, who said both of the couple's mothers attended the ceremony.

The marriage is Wagner's fourth. He was married twice to actress Natalie Wood, who drowned Nov. 29, 1981.

It is also the fourth marriage for St. John. She was once married to singer Jack Jones.

(MAY 26) UPI - Renegade communist Boris Yeltsin today fell 28 votes shy of a necessary majority in key run-off elections for the presidency of the Russian republic.

Neither the favored Yeltsin NOR his opponent, conservative Communist Party official Ivan Polozkov, received the needed 531 majority of the one-thousand 60 members of the Congress of People's Deputies.

The failure of either candidate to win a clear majority in two ballots forces a new election.

Yeltsin is pushing for Russian independence and a market economy and says he plans to consolidate his strength and be ready for the next vote.

Many predict Yeltsin will win the next run-off... and he's then likely to go head-to-head with Soviet President Gorbachev .

The two men shared close ties until Yeltsin, as boss of the powerful Moscow city apparatus, began ripping Gorbachev for the slow pace of his reforms.

The playboy son of Romania's executed dictator testified today that he ordered the secret police to ''use any means possible'' to halt the rebellion against his father.

Nicu Ceausescu ... once known as ''The Little Prince...'' spoke in Sibiu, Romania, on the opening day of his nationally broadcast trial on charges of genocide.

The 39-year-old former ''Youth Minister'' conceded that he told local security forces to ''crush'' last December's uprising. But he also said he later ordered them NOT to use gunfire.

Widely regarded as a womanizer and a gambler, Ceausescu's extravagant lifestyle and rumored cruelty reportedly made him as hated as his father.

Romanian gymnastics super-star Nadia Comaneci has alleged that the younger Ceausescu brutalized her and forced her into sexual relations with him over a period of 11 years.

The Romanian press also reports that Nicu squandered Millions of dollars in public funds at casinos in Las Vegas, Nevada.

(MAY 26) UPI - Moscow has imposed food rationing to stem the rush of panic-buying that is spreading throughout the Soviet Union.

For two weeks, beginning Monday, only residents of the capital will be allowed to shop in Moscow stores... and their purchases will be limited.

The rush on staple goods has spread to the giant Russian republic, which represents half of the Soviet population, as well as to the nation's breadbasket of the Ukraine and Moldavia.

The surge of panic purchases began late Thursday with the tripling of prices for bread, milk and fish after Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov unveiled the government's plan for a transition to a modified market economy.

Ryzhkov, who is staking his political career on the economic reform, says he will resign if the people show they have NO confidence in his measures.

The Supreme Soviet has put off a vote on the plan until Monday, and radical deputies have threatened a vote of NO-confidence.

East Germany's defense minister says he has cut his country's military forces by more than one-fifth in the month since taking over from his communist predecessor.

Defense Minister Ranier Eppelmann is a Lutheran clergyman who once went to jail for refusing to enter military service. Eppelmann's broad-scale military reform has already pared troop numbers from 170-thousand to 135-thousand.

The defense minister says the cuts could go deeper... up to 40 percent in the coming months.

Under his plan, expenditures for military hardware, spare parts and new construction have been reduced by 30 percent since the nation's democratically elected government took office two months ago.

Eppelmann says he WON'T dismantle the military, however, while there still are two power blocs in Europe. He says disarmament- quote- ''must be done in a very cautious way to prevent uncertainty and insecurity among our neighbors, our partners and NATO.''

(MAY 26) UPI - Memorial weekend usually finds many Americans at the beach.

But as they prepare for the pilgrimmage, an environmental group has provided a disturbing reminder that they are likely to find more than sea shells.

They will find garbage... and lots of it.

The Center for Marine Conservation... reporting on its second annual coastline clean-up last fall... says volunteers picked up 861 tons of trash from beaches in 25 states.

Florida's beaches weighed in with the most garbage... some 400-thousand pounds of it.

But volunteers picked up mountains of trash on beaches in Texas, California, Hawaii and North Carolina, too.

Beachcombers say they mostly collected bottle caps, fast-food wrappers and syringes.

The most bizarre items included an 18-karat gold ring, a medicine bottle containing pills from the Navy battleship U-S-S John F. Kennedy and several inflatable dolls.

Veterans of the evacuation of 300-thousand Allied troops from Dunkirk returned today to the French town to mark the 50th anniversary of the legendary ''Operation Dynamo.''

The harbor was lined three-deep with 75 of the original ''little ships'' that ferried troops from bullet-strafed beaches to English ports from May 26th to June 4th, 1940.

Most of the escapees were members of the British Expeditionary Force trapped by the advancing German ''blitzkrieg.''

Ceremonies marking the ''Miracle at Dunkirk'' peak tomorrow with a solemn service on the beach, at which thousands of veterans are expected. During the ceremonies, a Royal Air Force helicopter will lower a wreath into a circle formed by the little ships.

Dunkirk was decorated today with British flags, store windows displayed Whitbread beer and the sidewalks were filled with Britons.

BEIJING (MAY 27) - Chinese authorities have stepped up security measures in the capital in an apparent move to hinder protests during the first anniversary marking the crackdown against the pro-democracy movement on Tiananmen Square on June 4.

The official People's Daily Sunday said about 15,000 policemen and tens of thousands of other security officials have been involved in anti-crime actions, which led to the dismantling of 148 gangs and helped solve more than 1,000 crimes.

The aim was to guarantee public order in view of the Asian Games in China in September, the daily added. It described the large-scale campaign as a strike against crime.

Chinese Communist Party leader Jian Zemin recently warned against the possibility of new disturbances and recalled events on June 4 lat year when army troops and tanks reportedly killed hundreds of students calling for the introduction of democracy.

China's press Sunday urged the population to preserve ''stability'' and warned students against anti-government activities.

More military than usual were seen in the streets of the capital, while night controls of cars were reintroduced.

But observers said there was no information from student circles or the population that pro-democracy actions were planned as a result of government threats to use force against protests.

PRETORIA (MAY 27) - At least 35 people died, three bombs extensively damaged property and hand grenades been hurled into four black township homes and a municipal office in a week of political violence, police said Sunday.

Twenty-three of the 35 dead had been slain in war-torn Natal Province, where the socialist United Democratic Front (UDF) and the more conservative Zulu Inkatha have waged a four-year-long battle against each other, police said.

Eleven people were shot dead in bloody clashes with police in Thabong township near the staunchly conservative Orange Free State Province town of Welkom earlier this week, while a former black town councillor was lynched by black township residents on Monday.

Police said nine people died in Natal overnight, six of them in a faction fight near Richmond in rural Natal. Sixty huts were also razed in the frenzy.

Among the people killed in Natal in the past week are a black woman crushed to death after being pushed off a bus, four people who were "necklaced " -- petrol-soaked tyres placed around their necks and set alight -- and a woman who was dragged from her home and hacked to death as a witch.

Meanwhile, African National Congress (ANC) deputy president Nelson Mandela has strongly condemned the police for shooting dead at least 11 people in running battles with black ANC demonstrators in Thabong.

But he gave the assurance after talks with Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok on Friday that the killings would not derail talks between the ANC and the government.

Thabong was left in tatters after the killings which also heightened tension in neighbouring Welkom, where armed rightwingers have allegedly threatened and assaulted black workers. Righwingers have in turn accused blacks of turning on them and intimidating them in the city.

In Pretoria, suspected rightwingers late Wednesday bombed Melrose House -- the building where the Boers signed away their independence -- only a few days away from a massive righwing rally at the Voortrekker Monument near the city Saturday which drew more than 40,000 people.

Less than 24 hours after the bombing, two blasts extensively damaged six large petrol tankers and a sub-power station in the conservative Transvaal Province town of Louis Triechardt early Thursday. Police found two Soviet-made limpet mines near the scene of the blast.

Three black men were injured, two seriously, when hand grenades were hurled into two houses at Nseleni township outside Empangeni near coastal Natal on Tuesday. A security guard was injured late Wednesday when a grenade blast rocked the municipal offices in Mamelodi township near Pretoria, while the houses of two Soweto policeman were attacked with hand grenades late Thursday.

Police spokesman, Major Reg Crewe told Agence France-Presse Sunday that while the level of violence in the country was worrying, "it has not yet reached a stage where it has gone overboard."

"South Africans are either geared up or fearful of change, so no-one can tell if the violence will flare up further or tone down .... It's like a pot simmering."

MOSCOW (MAY 27) - The Kgb, the Soviet security service, has flatly denied having anything to do with an alleged attempt to kill radical Soviet politician Boris Yeltsin in a plane crash.

The allegation that two planes carrying Yeltsin had been sabotaged originated from the press service of the InterRegional Group, a parliamentary caucus that Yeltsin belongs to. On Saturday, Yeltsin narrowly missed election to the Russian presidency.

''The Kgb has absolutely nothing to do with the 'incident' and has requested the Soviet prosecutor to investigate the circumstances of this report in the Leningrad newspaper Smea,'' security spokesmen said, according to the newspaper Pravda on Sunday.

According to the media service, as quoted by Smea, two planes used by Yeltsin on a trip to Barcelona had serious faults.

In one, the navigation system failed, electric power had to be shut down and the undercarriage was faulty. Passengers were switched to a second plane where the fuselage vibrated. ''Passengers said the plane was not airworthy,'' the Leningrad newspaper said.

''Naturally one should have irrefutable proof in order to claim that the Kgb was involved in an attempt to cause an air crash.

''The press service of the InterRegional Group can, for obvious reasons, not adopt this responsibility. But this and other signs make clear to us the unarguable fact that the party apparatus does not use kid gloves when it is a matter of power,''

NEW DELHI (MAY 27) - Indian environmentalists have declared war on big dams, using an internationally-funded, 15-billion-dollar project as the main target of a growing movement against "destructive development."

The movement is led by the aged and internationally-renowned Baba Amte, who calls the Narmada Valley Project (NVP) a symbol of the "ferocious" face of development.

He says such projects serve to destroy natural heritage and uproot thousands of poor from lands they have lived on for generations.

The 74-year-old environmental activist describes the colossal project as a disaster on all grounds -- social, economic and environmental -- and is determined to see it scrapped.

"We should not tolerate this ferocious, ugly face of development," Mr. Amte said in a recent interview here. "Development should have a humane face. This project is not development, it is destructive development."

Mr. Amte, who won the Philippines' Magsaysay award and the British Templeton prize for his social and environmental crusades, shows his age. He is not in the best of health and his bad back needs to be held up using a supporter.

But his is the most powerful voice in the battle against big dams, which India's late first prime minister Jawaharlal Nehru once described as the temples of modern India.

Today, environmentalists dub them tombstones.

In mid-1989, the Baba left the quiet environs of his Anandvan Ashram in Maharashtra state and settled down on the banks of the Narmada river to spearhead the campaign which has now won worldwide support.

In India anti-dam activists have held scores of demonstrations, hunger strikes and marches demanding a halt to construction of the NVP, partly financed by a 450-million-dollar World Bank loan and Japanese development aid.

And abroad criticism has been voiced in the U.S. Congress on environmental grounds and Japanese conservationists recently asked Tokyo to review its financial commitment for NVP, the world's largest riverine project.

Many global environmental groups such as Greenpeace have supported the campaign.

WARSAW (MAY 27) - Polish Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki arrives in Paris on Monday for a two-day official visit during which he will stress the need for stronger bilateral economic cooperation, officials said here Sunday.

Polish leaders think the two countries' economic relationships are far below the level of their special political relationship, which is to be reaffirmed at meetings Mr. Mazowiecki will have with President Francois Mitterrand and Prime Minister Michel Rocard.

In the political field, Polish officials point to a marked identity of views, particularly in connection with the question of German unification, which government spokesman Malgorzata Niezabitowska said "was evident during the previous visit to Paris (on March 9) by the Polish prime minister and chief of state General Wojciech Jaruzelski."

During that 24-hour visit, Poland won French support for its participation in the Two-plus-Four Conference (the two Germanies and the four World War II allies) in connection with points related to Poland's western border.

This time, Mr. Mazowiecki is to be accompanied by Finance Minister Leszek Balcerowicz and Economic Cooperation Minister Marcin Swiecicki.

The Poles will emphasize the problem of their country's foreign debt, now some 40 billion dollars. A 9.4-billion-dollar rescheduling was approved in February by government creditors grouped in the Club of Paris, and Poland is to sign a bilateral rescheduling agreement in Paris.

But the Polish government would like to go much farther, obtaining an 80 per cent reduction in its debt, cutting debt service to 800 million dollars a year, two per cent of national income. Otherwise, payment of principal and interest will amount to 6.9 billion dollars next year.

Franco-Polish trade amounted to only five billion francs (about 900 million dollars) last year, with a balance of 114 million francs in Poland's favor. That trade total was a 20 per cent increase over 1988.

Out of 1,200 foreign firms registered in Poland, only 65 are French. The 875 joint ventures in the country include 58 Franco-Polish ventures.

Some other bilateral issues, such as visas and cultural and scientific exchanges, will also be discussed during the visit.

BOGOTA (MAY 27) - Presidential elections opened peacefully Sunday following the country's bloodiest presidential campaign, authorities said.

"There is total peace across the country," Interior Minister Horacio Serpa said.

Polling places opened at 8 a.m. (1300 GMT) to the sound of bugles and the roll of drums, he said.

The polls were to close at 5 p.m. (2200 GMT).

Authorities said only nine million of the country's 13.9 million eligible voters were expected to cast ballots for a successor to outgoing President Virgilio Barco.

Cesar Gaviria, the ruling Liberal Party candidate, was widely expected to win the election, which comes against a backdrop of spiraling violence.

Since August, three presidential candidates have been assassinated, allegedly by gunmen linked to drug traffickers. Some 1,300 people have been killed in often drug-related bombings and shootings since January.

Colombia also has been wracked by violence from leftist rebels and paramilitary death squads.

Although Sunday's voting began calmly, the previous night a gunman shot and killed four people in Medellin, home to a violent cocaine cartel of the same name.

Also in Medellin, the nation's second-largest city some 240 kilometers (150 miles) northwest of Bogota, two small bombs exploded at separate police posts.

One of the bombers was shot and killed by police.

A curfew was imposed Friday in Medellin to stop the latest wave of terror that had left 39 dead within the preceding 24 hours. Police generally blame the drug barons for the violence there.

More than 100,000 soldiers guarded Colombia's 48,695 polling stations, while the remainder of the 250,000-strong armed forces were placed on alert.

Throughout the country troops patrolled the streets, where heavy-vehicle traffic has been prohibited. Parking was forbidden within three blocks of the polling places. A ban on liquor sales began Saturday and was to continue until Tuesday.

BUCHAREST (MAY 27) - Anti-Communist protesters occupying a central Bucharest square are ignoring calls to end a hunger strike, one week after reformed Communists were confirmed in office in Romania's first multi-party vote in 44 years.

"In the beginning I thought that the struggle would be easy but now I realize that the old structures are still around", Catalin, 33, said undoing his tent on the lawn outside the National Theatre in University Square where the sit-in began on April 22.

He added cheerfully however that the sheer number of protesters in the square for the last five weeks was "a step forward".

Sunday about 40 tents, some mere plastic covers, were still pitched in front of the theatre, "guarding kilometer zero of democracy", as one protester put it.

Up to 8,000 demonstrators joined hunger strikers and other protesters in the square in various rallies since the sit-in started, but the December 21 association, which co-signed the protest, has now urged the remaining hunger strikers to end their movement.

The group should show "courage and reason" and start eating again "because of their critical condition", December 21 chief Alexander Nancu said in a statement published early Sunday.

His plea came after Doina Cornea, a prominent dissident under the late dictator Nicolae Ceausescu, called on the protesters to end their movement and continue the struggle for democracy in political parties.

Mrs. Cornea ended a seven-day hunger strike against the ruling National Salvation Front and what she called Romania's dishonest election campaign on May 18.

Thirteen people, down from some 40, were still refusing food Sunday, according to Danut Lungu, a 28-year-old plumber from Bucharest. "The others gave up, mostly after the election. For them all hope (of democracy) was gone".

The protesters have been demanding the ouster of communist officials tarnished by years of collaboration with the hardline Ceausescu regime and the resignation of Mr. Ceausescu's successor Ion Iliescu, a reformed Communist.

Mr. Iliescu, who took over last December was confirmed in office by a large majority in the May 20 presidential and parliamentary elections.

Mr. Lungu did not believe that the December 21 call to end the protest would be heeded. "If the health minister failed to convince us, the December 21 association will not succeed either", he said.

Last Thursday most organizations which started the protest called it quits and announced that demonstrations would now be held every Thursday to press for democratic changes. But the hard core of protesters refused to budge.

On Sunday University Square continued to be sealed off from the rest of the city and makeshift barricades on each side indicated entrances to the so-called neo-communist-free zone.

But as passers-by have grown indifferent and bad weather has kept away the onlookers, the strikers were facing the crucial question of what form their increasingly isolated protest should take in future.

MADRID (MAY 27) - The fourth international congress of Aids-infected people here Sunday called on the world to treat in a humane way persons carrying the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome virus.

The final resolution urged everyone all over the world to report about human rights violations against people infected with Aids.

The 500 delegates from 42 countries condemned rising restrictions on the movement of people carrying the deadly virus. It urged all governments and international bodies not to hold meetings on Aids in nations implementing such discriminatory laws.

There were restrictions in 40 nations including the United States, Canada and Cuba, the resolution read.

''The world for people infected with Aids has become smaller,'' said Manuel Jose Trillo from Spain. ''Aids does not always mean death. There is still a lot of meaningless fear ahead of us.''

Aids-afflicted acknowledged their responsibility in informing society about their sickness and its consequences, he added. A respectable life was still possible with Aids.

ZBROSZA-DUZA, Poland (MAY 27) - Voters in this village famed for its ferocious resistance to the former communist leadership shunned Poland's first free municipal elections in 50 years Sunday in what local officials called a revolt against rapidly worsening living conditions.

Teresa Beliniak, a voting official and veteran of the June 1989 legislative elections carried by Solidarity, told Agence France-Presse "only two to three per cent of the 1,029 voters had voted by 10:30 a.m."

Interviewed in the schoolroom that serves as a polling booth in this village south of Warsaw, she said: "There's no longer the euphoria of that period. Living conditions are very tough. People are angry and there's an atmosphere of lethargy ... politics is the least of their concerns."

Church bells pealed as worshippers filed out of the nearby church following Sunday mass. Some 300, many of them young people, poured into the street. But only a dozen headed for the flower-covered polling station.

"Last year they came in droves, waving banners and chanting. Hope was running high. Many people had already voted by this time," Mrs. Beliniak recalled.

But this year, according to a pro-Solidarity Roman Catholic priest, "many parishioners are distressed over the little results their efforts brought."

"Freedom is great, but people have to live and their everyday existence is not easy," said Father Czeslaw Sadlowski, who once led his faithful in fighting anti-riot troops sent here to prevent him from building his church.

"The bureaucracy and communist officials have killed their spirit of enterprise," he added.

Three farmers who refused to identify themselves said they were furious about the Balcerowicz plan," an austerity project whose author is Finance Minister Leszek Balcerowicz.

SANTIAGO (MAY 27) - Two former members of the now-defunct secret police were arrested here after robbing a print shop, police said Sunday.

The attackers robbed the print office of some 15,000 dollars worth of pesos and then tried to flee in an automobile, but they were captured by the proprietors of the shop, police said.

Police identified the robbers as retired army captain Lorenzo Badillo Molina and martial arts expert Lorenzo Fernandez Herrera.

Authorities said both men were ex-members of the National Information Center (CNI) -- the secret police force that operated during the presidency of General Augusto Pinochet, who seized power in a bloody 1973 coup.

The CNI was officially disbanded just before Gen. Pinochet relinquished power to elected President Patricio Aylwin, who assumed office March 11.

The CNI conducted a brutal "dirty war" against alleged subversives and opponents of the Pinochet government. Human rights groups have accused CNI agents of involvement in the disappearance of more than 700 political detainees, torture, and other human rights violations during the Pinochet government.

LUSAKA (MAY 27) - Anti-apartheid guerrillas and retired officers from the South African army wound up their first peaceful meeting face-to-face here Sunday with suggestions on how to merge their opposing forces.

A joint statement admitted to sharp differences of opinion over the histories of the two enemy forces, but both delegations expressed support for a mutually binding cessation of hostilities.

Retired officers from the South African Defence Force (Sadf) spent four days talking to the armed wing of the African National Congress (Anc), Umkhonto We Sizwe, which is known by the initials Mk and is based here in Zambia.

They agreed military conscription in South Africa should be phased out faster and guerrillas allowed to return home.

Delegates suggested the country would need a smaller, professional territorial army that would be, according to one delegate, ''meaner and leaner'' since there would be no threat from any country in the region.

South Africa currently has an army of over 100,000 men, which could swell to nearly 400,000 with full mobilisation of reserves.

BEIRUT (MAY 27) - Schools in East Beirut, closed for the past four months will resume classes on Monday, putting into action the second step of a papal-sponsored peace agreement to end Christian feuding in East Beirut.

Maronite Bishop Roland Abu-Jawdeh announced that all Catholic schools would reopen on Monday in keeping with the wish of Pope John Paul Ii and promises by the feuding leaders general Michel Aoun and Samir Geagea to consolidate the ceasefire.

Geagea's Lebanese Forces militia have been fighting army units loyal to general Aoun for control of the Christian enclave in central Lebanon. Some 1,090 people have been killed and 3,450 wounded in the feuding which started January 31.

The reopening of schools indicated that a five-point agreement announced by papal envoy to Lebanon Pablo Puente Saturday to end four months of Christian feuding in central Lebanon has a chance to hold.

Puente said a Vatican-sponsored peace plan was accepted by both general Aoun and Geagea. It stipulated halting all military operations, consolidating a permanent truce, reopening schools, suspension of media campaigns and exchanging prisoners.

BERLIN (MAY 27) - West Berlin Mayor Walter Momper said Sunday a Western military presence should be maintained in his city as long as Soviet troops remained in Germany.

The forces of the three Western allies -- the United States, Britain and France -- should stay in what is now West Berlin as long as Soviet forces are in what is now East German territory, the Mayor said, but he said the question should be regulated by treaties.

"I am of the the opinion that the Two-plus-Four conference is restoring German sovereignty in its entirety, and that afterward there should be treaties (between Germany and the concerned powers) authorising the stationing" of troops, he said.

The Two-plus-Four conference, dealing with external aspects of German unification, groups the two German states and the four victorious allies of World War II which still have rights in Berlin and Germany as a whole.

The three Western powers have slightly more than 12,000 troops stationed in West Berlin, while the Soviet Union has 380,000 troops in East Germany.

Mr. Momper said the number of Soviet troops on German soil should be "reduced to zero as quickly as possible," but added that as soon as there is a new security system in Europe "the Western troops will be able to leave."

Meanwhile East Berlin's mayor designate, Tino Schwierzina, announced border checks between the two halves of the city "will be abolished by July 2" when monetary union goes into effect.

Controls by East German border guards and customs officials have eased greatly since authorities opened up the Berlin Wall on November 9.

Mr. Schwierzina, who is to be formally elected mayor Wednesday, told a congress of East Berlin's Social Democratic Party (SPD) his administration's main task would be to work out "the route leading to the unity of Berlin".

Mr. Momper, addressing the same meeting, said scrapping inter-German border controls meant regulations governing the two Germanies' borders with other countries would also need to be harmonized.

The Western Allies, he added, would have to change rules that allow East Europeans free entry to West Berlin for up to 31 days.

German authorities accuse Poles of flooding into the West to hawk goods purchased at much cheaper prices in Poland and East Germany.

A few days ago East Germany tightened up entry for Romanians who had also started to pour into the country.

On moves to unify Berlin, Mr. Momper said West Berlin's Senate and the East Berlin City Hall would hold the "great majority" of their sessions together from now on.

BEIRUT (MAY 27) - A senior pro-Iranian Lebanese figure Sunday said some British hostages held in Lebanon might be freed if Britain expelled Salman Rushdie, condemned to death by Iran and currently under British police protection.

Hussein Musawi, head of Islamic Amal, said in a press statement: "It would not be necessary for Rushdie to be handed over to us, or sent to Iran or Syria. Proof that he had left Britain would be sufficient. Mrs. Thatcher (British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher) can send Rushdie wherever she likes."

Mr. Musawi spoke of the "possibility of obtaining the release of certain British hostages in Lebanon" if Mr. Rushdie were "expelled from Britain."

The Indian-born British author has been in hiding in Britain since February 1989 when the late Iranian spiritual guide, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, condemned him to death on grounds that his novel "The Satanic Verses" had blasphemed Islam.

Britain's refusal to surrender Mr. Rushdie or to meet Iranian demands that it distance itself from the book triggered a break in Iranian-British diplomatic relations in March of last year.

Mr. Musawi has denied any involvement in hostage-taking but has issued several recent statements on efforts to free Western captives.

"The British are acting more positively than the Americans in trying to secure the freedom of their hostages," he said Sunday without elaborating.

Four Britons and six Americans are among 15 Western hostages believed held in Lebanon, several of whom are reportedly in the hands of pro-Iranian Shiite factions.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (MAY 27) - President George Bush Sunday told the Soviet people that Moscow's pressure on the Baltic republics was hindering chances for a complete and open U.S.-Soviet economic relationship.

"We've got some problems in the Baltic states that inhibit total openness here," Mr. Bush said in a Soviet television interview recorded last week and broadcast in the Soviet Union Sunday.

A transcript of Mr. Bush's comments was released in this seaside resort where he and his family were spending the Memorial Day weekend.

The U.S. president stressed that Moscow's attempts to force Lithuania to rescind its March 11 independence declaration was one of the obstacles to cooperation with the Soviet Union.

"We think reforms need to be taking place before we can have the full exchange of economic interests there," he said.

U.S. officials recently linked the granting to the Soviet Union of most-favered-nation trade status to Moscow's progress on opening a Soviet-Lithuanian dialogue.

"I have to have (Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev) understand the constraints on any U.S. president until self-determination is visible" in the Baltic republics, Mr. Bush said in the interview recorded Thursday in Washington.

Mr. Bush also discussed other points of disagreement between Washington and Moscow that might impede his summit with Mr. Gorbachev in Washington this week.

Mr. Bush said he would try to convince Mr. Gorbachev that the unification of East and West Germany and a unified Germany's membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) is "not only no threat to the Soviet Union, but preserves the kind of stable Europe that the Soviets should welcome."

Although he acknowledged that "big differences" exist between the superpowers, Mr. Bush said he felt he could speak "very frankly" with the Soviet leader.

"I'm confident we can have good, open discussions. And where we have differences, we will try to iron those out," he said.

Mr. Bush assured his Soviet audience that he would treat Mr. Gorbachev with respect during their Thursday-through-Sunday summit.

"We don't seek anything other than peace and prosperity for the people of the Soviet Union. I've got to convince Mr. Gorbachev of that," he said.

LAGOS (MAY 27) - More than 190 illegal immigrants, including Europeans and Asians, have been deported from Nigeria in the past week, the Lagos-based newspaper Punch said Sunday, quoting a senior immigration official.

The report said most of them had been living in Lagos and were nationals of nations belonging to the Economic Community of West African States (Ecowas).

However those arrested also included illegal aliens from Europe, Asia and Lebanon, according to deputy director of immigration Usman Umar.

Some of the deportees had no travel or residential documents while some others were found to be using fake documents and expired visas, he told the independent newspaper.

LISBON (MAY 27) - Cypriot President George Vassiliou arrived here on Sunday for a four-day visit at the invitation of his Portuguese counterpart Mario Soares.

Speaking at the airport, Mr. Vassiliou said he planned to discuss the division of Cyprus with Portuguese officials as well as the island's relations with the 12-nation European Economic Community (EEC).

Mr. Vassiliou is scheduled to hold talks Monday with Mr. Soares and Prime Minister Anibal Cavaco Silva.

Cyprus entered into a Customs Union agreement with the EEC in 1987 and is expected to apply formally for community membership later this year.

But diplomats say Cyprus stands little chance of gaining admission as long as it remains divided into Greek- and Turkish-speaking sectors.

Mainland Turkish troops invaded and occupied the northern third of Cyprus in 1974 following a coup in Nicosia by right-wing Greek-Cypriot extremists.

Northern Cyprus under Turkish-Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash proclaimed itself independent in 1983, but its sovereign status is recognized only by Turkey.

CHICAGO (MAY 27) UPI - Police Sunday searched for a hit-and-run driver who witnesses said struck a woman on a bicycle, then pried her battered body from his windshield, dumped her on the ground and fled.

The woman, approximately 35 to 40 years old, died about 20 minutes later and has not been identified, authorities said.

''She was on his windshield, he stopped the car and pulled her off and drove away,'' Sgt. Robert Covelli said. ''She was stuffed in the windshield; he had to pull her off.''

Police, who interviewed several witnesses to the aftermath of the collision, said the man drove the car a full block before stopping.

''She was on the car for a while ... and when she was put down she was in pretty bad shape,'' Richard Jacobs, a witness, told WLS-TV.

Covelli said the victim was struck by a black 1989 Nissan at 1:11 a.m. Saturday as she rode her bike on Western Avenue, a major thoroughfare on the city's North Side.

She was pronounced dead at Illinois Masonic Medical Center at 1:30 a.m., a nursing supervisor said.

Police found the car at 5:00 a.m. at a North Side residence, said Watch Commander Paul Lewis. Lewis said the owner of the car, who is thought to be a foreign national, did not live at the residence where the car was found.

Lewis said a check of the vehicle identification number on the car led them to another North Side address. Lewis said police searched the house at about 6:30 a.m.

''They found blood-stained clothing that apparently belonged to him (the driver) and some papers with some identification on it showing that he did live there,'' Lewis said.

The Nissan had ''extensive damage'' to its windshield, he said.

(MAY 27) UPI - The Houston Astros, last in the NL West when they hit Chicago, proved that misery loves company Saturday by bouncing the Chicago Cubs into the NL East basement with a double-header sweep.

Don Zimmer's Cubs were a captive audience during a virtuoso performance by Glenn Davis.

The first baseman went 6 for 9, hitting three home runs and driving in nine runs, to power Houston to 8-1 and 12-3 victories.

His third homer of the day and three-run double paced the Astros in Game 2 while he hit a pair of home runs, driving in five runs, in Game 1 to support Mike Scott's complete game.

Houston had won only three of its last ten games going into the twin bill, while Davis had suffered through a 6-for-42 slump at the plate.

''It's been hard for this ballclub,'' said Davis. ''Everybody's been struggling, trying to do too much. Today, everybody had a great day.''

Davis, who had hit three home runs in his career at Wrigley Field prior to Saturday, leads the Astros with 10 homers and 31 RBI. His trio of homers tied a club record set by Roman Mejias in a doubleheader May 6, 1962, against the Milwaukee Braves.

''This was the best day in my career as far as I can recall,'' Davis said. ''It will help me make up for lost ground last week.''

Jim Deshaies, 2-2, was the winner in Game 2, giving up six hits over 5 2-3 innings, and striking out five. It was his first win in seven starts. Larry Andersen pitched the final 3 1-3 innings for his second save.

''This was a shot in the arm,'' said Houston Manager Art Howe. ''I sure am looking forward to getting back out here tomorrow.''

Greg Maddux, 4-4, lost Game 2, giving up nine hits and five runs over four plus innings.

Scott recorded his first complete game since Sept. 9, 1989, and the first by a Houston pitcher this year in Game 1. The right-hander, who entered the game with a 6.33 ERA, gave up nine hits, struck out two and walked two.

''I haven't been pitching well,'' Scott said. ''The bottom line is my velocity hasn't been what it was.''

Rookie Shawn Boskie, 1-1, was the loser, going seven innings in his second major league start.

It was the first doubleheader between the two teams since July 7, 1979, when the Cubs swept a twinbill at Wrigley Field.

--- AROUND THE NL ---

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh bombed San Francisco 10-4, Cincinnati dumped Montreal 5-3, Atlanta rocked Philadelphia 12-3, New York blanked San Diego 11-0 and Los Angeles creamed St. Louis 8-0.

Pirates 10, Giants 4

At Pittsburgh, Wally Backman went 3 for 5 with three RBI and three runs scored, Mike LaValliere went 4 for 4 and Doug Drabek scattered six hits in his first complete game of the season to push the Pirates back into first place in the NL East. Drabek, 7-1, allowed four runs, including Kevin Mitchell's fourth home run in two games, while striking out six and walking none. Scott Garrelts, 1-5, allowed seven runs on 11 hits, walked two and struck out two in four innings.

Reds 5, Expos 3

At Montreal, Barry Larkin delivered a two-run single in the ninth inning to lift NL West-leading Cincinnati to its third straight win. Rob Dibble, 3-0, registered the win, and Randy Myers worked the ninth inning for his ninth save. Chris Sabo belted a two-run homer in the seventh inning to give the Reds a 3-2 lead.

Braves 12, Phillies 3

At Philadelphia, Jeff Treadway hit three home runs to help Atlanta snap a three-game losing streak. Treadway's six RBIs and third, fourth and fifth homers of the season made it easy for Atlanta starter Pete Smith, 4-3. The three-homer game by Treadway was the first for the Braves since Ken Griffey hit three on July 22, 1986. Philadelphia had a four-game win streak snapped and dropped out of the division lead.

Mets 11, Padres 0

At New York, Sid Fernandez, 3-4, and Alejandro Pena combined for a five-hit shutout. Mike Dunne, 1-2, gave up seven hits in four innings, but allowed only three earned runs of the six the Mets scored against him. He struck out three and gave up a walk, a balk, a wild pitch and a home run. The Mets banged out 16 hits. Gregg Jefferies homered for the third straight game and seventh of the year, and Darryl Strawberry belted his sixth.

Dodgers 8, Cardinals 0

At St. Louis, Mike Morgan tossed a five-hitter for his league-leading third shutout of the season and Lenny Harris and Stan Javier drove in three runs each to send Los Angeles to its fourth straight victory. Morgan 6-3, struck out two and walked one in going the distance for the fourth time this year. The Dodgers have won four straight on the road for the first time since 1988. Bryn Smith, 5-4, took the loss.

GERMANTOWN, IL (MAY 27) UPI - Five teenage girls in one car were among six people killed in a fiery, head-on collision Saturday between a car and a pickup truck on a two-lane rural road, state police said.

The accident took place at 3:37 p.m. on Illinois Route 161 near Germantown about 35 miles east of St. Louis, said Trooper J.L. Walker. There were no survivors.

A 1980 Oldsmobile Cutlass, driven by Tammy L. Koopmann, 16, collided with a 1975 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Sharon R. Kluthe, 47, Walker said.

Also killed in the crash were Sharon L. Hemker, 15, Sharon K. Hemker, 16, Tina L. Becker, 16, and Lori G. Baker, 15.

Kluthe's truck was eastbound on Route 161 and Koopman's car was westbound, Walker said.

The car crossed into the eastbound lane, then swerved back. However, Walker said the truck already had swerved into the opposing lane and collided with the car. The two vehicles were engulfed in flames.

The cause of the accident was under investigation, Walker said. A state police accident reconstruction team has been assigned to determine what led to the crash.

The weather was clear at the time of the accident, authorities said.

(MAY 27) UPI - Ty Cobb and Rickey Henderson have something in common, but not for long.

When Henderson stole his 892nd base of his career in the fifth inning of Oakland's 6-3 win over Cleveland Saturday, he tied Cobb for the all-time American League record.

''It will mean a lot to me to break the record and I know I'll do it here (in Oakland) because we have a few more games on this home stand,''

Henderson said. ''I'm very pleased with the ovation the fans gave me.''

Felix Jose hit a two-run homer and Carney Lansford stroked three hits and drove home two runs to propel the A's to their sixth straight win.

Bob Welch, 6-2, scattered nine hits over seven innings for the win, walking two and striking out one and Dennis Eckersley got the final three outs for his 13th save.

Cleveland starter Sergio Valdez, 1-1, gave up four runs and eight hits over 4 1-3 innings to take the loss.

With Jose Canseco at the plate in the fifth inning, Henderson stole third without even drawing a throw from Cleveland catcher Sandy Alomar who dropped the ball.

''I didn't know that Alomar had dropped the ball but I don't think he had a chance to get me anyway,'' Henderson said.

Although he stole third without a throw being made, it still made an impression with his manager and teammates.

''When Rickey tied the record I had an idea of what it means to him, but to see Ty Cobb's name up there (on the scoreboard) made an impression on all of us,'' Athletics Manager Tony LaRussa said.

''Cobb's record is tied but Rickey's got a lot to do yet in his career,'' LaRussa said.

LaRussa was also impressed with the performance of his ''little'' guys - the ones not named Canseco, McGwire or Henderson.

Jose showed his power in the fourth inning when he smacked a two-run home run to center field breaking a 1-1 tie.

And Henderson showed his speed.

--- AROUND THE AL ---

In other AL games, Chicago clobbered Detroit 10-4, Minnesota edged Boston 6-5, Kansas City pounded New York 9-4, Baltimore shaded Texas 7-5 in 11 innings, Toronto thumped Seattle 11-4, and California blasted Milwaukee 10-3.

White Sox 10, Tigers 4

At Detroit, Lance Johnson and Ivan Calderon each singled home a run in a three-run sixth inning to spark Chicago from a 4-3 deficit. Jeff Robinson, 4-4 took the loss and Ken Patterson, 1-0 earned the victory with 2 2-3 innings of hitless relief. Chicago put the game away with four runs in the eighth.

Twins 6, Red Sox 5

At Minneapolis, Kirby Puckett belted a tie-breaking home run in the eighth inning and Gene Larkin added two homers to power Minnesota. Puckett's homer, his sixth of the year, came off the first pitch of the inning from loser Rob Murphy, 0-2. John Candelaria, 5-1, came on in the seventh to get the win. Rick Aguilera pitched the ninth inning to pick up his 12th save.

Royals 9, New York 4

At Kansas City, Rey Palacios and Jim Eisenreich each drove in three runs to boost the Royals. Tom Gordon, 2-2, allowed seven hits, all singles, and did not permit a runner past first until the eighth inning. Kansas City scored five times in the second off New York starter Andy Hawkins, 1-4, and twice in the third and fourth innings.

Orioles 7, Rangers 5, 11 innings

At Texas, a throwing error by catcher John Russell allowed Billy Ripken and Joe Orsulak to score in the 11th inning to lift Baltimore. Jeff Russell, 1-4 took the loss. Texas had five errrors in the game. Greg Olson 2-0, pitched three innings for the win.

Blue Jays 11, Mariners 4

At Seattle, George Bell and Kelly Gruber each hit three-run homers to power Toronto. Frank Wills, 4-2, picked up the win in relief of Todd Stottlemyre. Brian Holman, 6-3, took the loss. With the game tied 4-4 in the seventh, John Olerud delivered a two-run single to give Toronto the lead for good. Gruber broke it open with his three-run homer in the eighth.

Angels 10, Brewers 3

At Anaheim, Calif., Johhny Ray and Max Venable both belted three hits and scored three runs to power the Angels. Bert Blyleven, 3-3, went the distance for the win, walking one and striking out four. Mark Knudson, 3-2 suffered the loss as California collected 15 hits in the onslaught.

WARSAW, Poland (MAY 27) UPI - Poles voted in their first post-war free elections Sunday as the Solidarity government grappled with railway workers who threatened to escalate the scope of a week-old rail strike.

Polls opened at 6 a.m. in elections for 48,000 local government posts, the majority of which were expected to be won by candidates from Solidarity, the union-led democracy movement that took power from the communists last August.

But the elections seemed overshadowed Sunday by the strike, the worst crisis the Solidarity government has faced in its nine months in power.

Striking railworkers, who are conducting the job action in some parts of the country without the consent of the union, called for a nationwide warning rail strike Monday to protest low wages.

The call for the nationwide action came despite a last ditch effort by Solidarity Union leader Lech Walesa, who went to the northwest Polish city of Slupsk for four hours of unsuccessful talks with the railworker's strike committee that lasted until 3 a.m.

''Nothing has come out of it, goodbye,'' Walesa told reporters on emerging from the talks.

Walesa had proposed a two-week moritorium for the striking workers, during which time he would personally negotiate their grievances with the Solidarity government of Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki, who has steadfastly refused to discuss pay increases while in the midst of his economic stabilization plan.

''If your demands are not met, I shall come to you and we will fight together,'' Walesa said he told the strikers.

He said he urged them to end their strike because the conflict was hurting the fledgling democracy.

''Do it for Poland. We don't want civil war in this country. It is important to go and vote,'' Walesa said, adding ''the government can not make any concessions regarding wages because in line are the coal miners and textile workers. Concession would mean he who strikes gets whatever he wants.''

The strikers attacked Walesa for his ties with the government, a charge the union leader denied.

''I am not the government's agent,'' Walesa said.

The strikers issued a communique saying there would be a general warning strike on Polish railways between noon and 1:30 p.m. Monday and said all freight lines would be blocked May 29. The strikers are asking that a government delegation negotiate their demands.

The workers, whose strike has disrupted train traffic across northern Poland for more than a week, seek an 85 percent wage hike and re-organization of the Polish railroad management.

A total of 72 passenger trains were idled Saturday by the strike action, a railway official said. The Baltic ports of Szczecin in the northwest is blocked with 21 ships waiting to be serviced. The town and port of Gdynia, adjacent to Gdansk, is also idle, with 17 vessels waiting for unloading.

(MAY 27) UPI - Powerful thunderstorms rolled through parts of west-central Oklahoma Saturday night... spawning heavy rain, baseball-sized hail and at least three tornadoes. Witnesses say they saw one tornado about one mile west of the town of Hinton. An Oklahoma City television station reports damage to some houses, and vehicles overturned in Hinton, but NO injuries. The National Weather Service reports another twister five miles west of nearby Binger, and a third minutes later about two miles east of the town.

President Bush took time out from playing golf Saturday to tell reporters he'll try to convince Soviet President Gorbachev at their summit next week that a unified Germany in NATO is NO threat to Moscow. Bush is spending the holiday weekend at the family retreat in Kennebunkport, Maine. Aides say he'll spend at least part of the time boning up for next week's summit.

For his part, the Kremlin leader says he expects to narrow the differences over a united Germany's membership in NATO when he meets next week in Washington with Bush. Gorbachev's comments came in an interview released Saturday. He says he feels his relations with his U-S counterpart have improved since their last meeting in Malta.

The playboy son of Romania's executed dictator went on trial Saturday in the city of Sibiu. 39-year-old Nicu Ceausescu looked gaunt and frightened as a judge read charges of genocide and weapons offenses against him. Under questioning, Ceausescu admitted he had ordered the secret police to ''use any means possible'' to crush the rebellion against his father last December. But he also said he later told them NOT to use gunfire.

MANILA, Philippines (MAY 27) UPI - A Philippine Air Force soldier ran amok and opened fire upon a crowd during a funeral wake in the northern Philippines, killing seven people and wounding 12 others, officials said Sunday.

An Air Force spokesman said Airman Carmelo Dugay, 36, was one of 11 vigil guards Saturday night at the wake of a fellow slain soldier when he went berserk in Bacarra town, some 250 miles north of Manila.

Air Force spokesman Col. Avelino Abiol said Dugay was resting in a room when he suddenly emerged and fired his M-16 rifle at two vigil guards then at mourners nearby. He fled after the killing spree and remain at large.

Killed were seven people, including an Air Force sergeant and six civilians. Two other soldiers and 10 mourners were wounded, said Abiol.

WASHINGTON (MAY 27) UPI - A list of 19 alleged co-conspirators in the drug investigation against Mayor Marion Barry includes eight people who told authorities they provided cocaine to Barry, a published report said Sunday.

Friends and girlfriends of Barry, as well as D.C. business figures are among the 19 alleged co-conspirators whose names prosecutors turned over to Barry's attorneys last week, the Washington Post reported.

None of the 19 have been charged with any crime and most are expected to testify against Barry at his trial scheduled to begin June 4.

Barry is charged with conspiracy to possess cocaine, a misdemeanor, 10 counts of misdemeanor cocaine possession and three counts of lying about drugs.

Prosecutors have granted immunity against prosecution to eight of the 19 who said$they provided cocaine to Barry, the newspaper reported.

Among the 19 are advertising executive Jeffrey Mitchell, lawyer Lloyd N. Moore Jr., Atlanta public relations executive Hank Wilson and former D.C. government employees Darrell Sabbs and Daniel Butler. Also on the list are former Barry girlfriends Theresa Southerland, Bettye L. Smith, Doris Crenshaw, Maria McCarthy and Hazel Diane ''Rasheeda'' Moore. Lloyd Moore and Rasheeda Moore are not related.

Mitchell, a longtime friend of Barry, said he would not be able to help the government's case. Mitchell said he never did cocaine with Barry and never helped him purchase the drug.

Another person on the list, restaurant manager Sammad Arshadi, denied he knew Barry or had talked to law enforcement officials.

Several other people on the list, including Sabbs, Wilson and Butler, have denied knowledge of Barry's alleged involvement with drugs.

RANGOON, Burma (MAY 27) UPI - Burmese headed to the polls Sunday in controversial multi-party elections that were marred early when a bomb exploded in a southeastern town and wounded 11 people.

The ruling military government, which has been criticized by international observers for arresting opposition politicians and controlling campaign demonstrations, called the first multi-party election in 30 years to elect a 485-member National Assembly.

Election officials said 20.6 million people in the Asian nation were eligible to vote in the election and early voter turnout in Rangoon Sunday was heavy under sunny skies.

Official Rangoon radio reported anti-government insurgents injured 11 people when they hurled a bomb into a medical clinic the town of Thanbyuzayat, about 125 miles southeast of Rangoon, on Saturday afternoon.

''Insurgents have been hampering and disrupting peace and tranquillity and causing destruction with the aim of obstructing the elections,'' the report said.

But the radio provided no details about the alleged insurgents or why the clinic was chosen as a target.

Anti-government groups, including ethnic minority insurgent groups fighting the Burmese government along the country's border with Thailand, have dismissed the election as unfair, but they have not said they would try to disrupt it.

Leaders of the groups said Saturday, however, they would organize mass protests if there were reports of fraud or coercion at the polling booths.

Voters began lining up at polling stations in Rangoon at 4 a.m., the hour curfew in the capital was lifted, according to witnesses.

''I am quite impressed by the disciplined behavior of our voters, and I am quite sure they made their choice freely and independently,'' said U Pe Thein, an electrical engineer and a candidate in east Rangoon for the Democratic Party for New Society.

Dozens of parties have fielded candidates, but observers say the National League For Democracy is the most formidable of the opposition parties faced by the military government, which gained power after a brutal crackdown of pro-democracy protesters in 1988.

The party's top leaders are under house arrest or in jail.

But a candidate of the National League in central Rangoon, U Ne, said he saw no evidence of fraud.

''Not a single case of irregularity or dispute occurred in our polling booths, and the voting has been going along fine,'' he said.

The atmosphere in the capital was calm, but there were few taxis and buses in the streets and few shoppers in the markets.

The military government has prohibited international observers from monitoring the elections and only allowed 60 foreign journalists into the country at the last moment.

The government has not allowed foreign observers to monitor the fairness of the vote and only Saturday agreed to allow a handful of foreign journalists into the country to cover the election.

Burma grew prosperous following its independence from Britain in 1947, exporting 2 million tons of rice per year as well as crude oil, jade, rubies and saphires.

But since 1962, when General Ne Win seized power from the elected government, the country has deteriorated. In 1987 it was granted least-developed-nation status by the United Nations and the following year the current military government took power.

VALLETTA, Malta (MAY 27) UPI - Pope John Paul II warned the youth of Malta not to be lured by drugs, sex or materialism at a large rally Sunday during the final day of his three-day visit.

The pointiff, who has been in Malta primarily to mark improved relations between the government of the Mediterranean island and the Vatican, was to later sayr a climactic mass which tens of thousands were expected to attend.

He was scheduled to depart for Rome in the evening, ending the first-ever visit by a pope to the island that has been a Christian stronghold for 2,000 years.

The pope arrived at Valletta's National Stadium at 10 a.m. to receive a rousing welcome from about 30,000 people who filled the arena to capacity.

Squads of youths in brightly colored track suits performed coordinated dances to disco music. A choir sang and a Scottish pipe band blared out tunes in a quaint reminder of the island's 160 years of British colonial rule.

The pope, after being driven around the stadium in his bullet-proof vehicle, sat on a pastel-colored podium beneath a large cross, waving and smiling at the enthusiastic crowd.

Beneath a sun umbrella, he called on Maltese youth to follow the teachings of Christ and resist temptation in a reiteration of a key theme of his visit - that any anti-Catholic ideas should be forbidden in the Christian island.

''You yourselves know how strongly young people can also be absorbed by passing trends and shortlived goals; how they can be taken in by the promise of immediate happiness in irresponsible sexual behavior, in drug addiction and alcohol, in the frivolous search for material things,'' he said.

A youth spokesman, George Camilleri, said some Maltese were ''slaves to materialism, victims of a degrading consumerism ... trying to satisfy by a futile escape into drugs, premarital sex.''

Although Malta remains one of the most devoutly Catholic nations of Europe its church has been afflicted by falling attendance and challenges to its tenets prohibiting divorce, contraception and abortion.

''We don't really give hoot what he says,'' said Francis Coliero, a hotel worker. ''We just like the carnival.''

Earlier in the morning, the pope visited a church where he met some of the republic's intellectuals.

He said the demise of communism had shown the need for Christian faith, but warned that there were signs of a ''weakening of moral commitment and a narrow sense of spiritual inspiration.''

The pontiff during his stay made many pointed criticisms of the shallowness of socialist thought, and has openly endorsed the christian democrat government of Prime Minister Eddie Fenech Adami.

His Nationalist Party in 1987 ousted a socialist government, which during its 16 years in power had engaged The Vatican in a protracted dispute over the status of the church.

It is the pope's 48th overseas visit since his October 1978 election as leader of the world's 840 million Roman Catholics.

BOSTON (MAY 27) UPI - A fire apparently sparked by careless smoking swept through a two-story home early Sunday, killing a family of five and a friend who were caught in their bedrooms, authorities said.

The four-alarm fire broke out shortly after 4 a.m. in a wooden structure in the city's Roslindale section.

''The fire started on the first floor,'' Fire Commissioner Leo Stapleton said. ''When the department arrived, the first floor was fully involved and the fire had already extended into the second floor.

''All six victims were found on the second floor. The fire department knocked the fire down fairly rapidly, but really couldn't do anything to get to the victims in time,'' he said.

The victims' names were being withheld pending notification of relatives.

''They were all found in bed or adjacent to bed,'' the commissioner said. Unfortunately, there was a family. A husband and wife and three young children perished, and also a friend.''

Stapleton said the children were three girls, ages 8 months, 2, and 4.

''It started in an overstuffed couch or chair in the living room,'' Stapleton said. ''One of the victims had been smoking shortly before the fire. We're pretty certain that was the cause of it.''

Stapleton said one woman, apparently the girls' maternal aunt, escaped by climbing out a back window. She was hospitalized for smoke inhalation. Her male companion was killed, Stapleton said.

A neighbor whose smoke detector was triggered by the blaze notified the fire department, Stapleton said.

JERUSALEM (MAY 27) UPI - An Israeli was sentenced Sunday to four years in prison, with one year suspended, for desecrating hundreds of Jewish graves in northern Israel.

David Goldner, 41, was convicted last week of spraying anti-Semitic graffiti, some calling for the extermination of Jews, on more than 300 gravestones in Haifa-area cemeteries earlier this month. Another Jewish suspect in the case is undergoing psychiatric observation.

Police have said the vandalism was motivated by the hope that desecrations would unify Jews to fight perceived Arab threats against Israel's existence. Police described both Israelis as intelligent and highly educated men who joined a Messianic sect several years ago.

Goldner, an engineer from the Haifa suburb of Kiryat Motzkin, told reporters after his sentencing, ''I did it in order to enlighten the Jewish nation and to unite it against its enemies,'' Israel Radio reported.

Goldner argued he did not intend to cause damage to the graves, Magistrate Court Judge Amiram Rand rejected said it was the court's obligation to hand out a stiff sentence for the vandalism. Rand said the incident could have had far-reaching repercussions, including a harming relations between Jews and Arabs and sparking violence between the two groups.

Slogans written in Hebrew on the gravestones included calls for Moslems to kill Jews and for the establishment of a Palestinian state. Israeli and Arab leaders denounced the desecrations, which occurred within a week of vandalism at a Jewish cemetery in southern France.

WEST PALM BEACH, FL (MAY 27) UPI - A man dressed in a clown suit and mask shot a 40-year-old woman point-blank in the head as she accepted balloons and flowers from him at the front door of her home, police said Sunday.

Marlene Warren was taken to Palms West Hospital, where she was listed in critical condition after the shooting Saturday. A nursing supervisor referred inquiries about her condition Sunday to the Palm Beach County sheriff's department, but deputies there said they could not comment.

Warren was shot at least once in the head by a clown wearing a red wig, red bulb nose, gloves and a white clown mask with a big red smile, police said.

''This is the strangest thing I've seen in all my 19 years in law enforcement,'' Palm Beach County sheriff's spokesman Bob Ferrell said. ''It certainly seems well planned out.''

The clown walked to the front door of Warren's ranch-style home in a high-income neighborhood about 11 a.m. Saturday, carrying a bouquet of red and white flowers and two balloons, detectives said.

The balloons were imprinted with the slogan, ''You're the Greatest!'' and one had a picture of Snow White, police said.

Warren answered the door and, ''as she went to take the flowers and balloons, the clown shot her,'' Ferrell said. ''As far as I know, nothing was said.''

The clown then dropped the bouquet and the balloons and fled in a white carwith no license plate, Ferrell said.

Warren's two teenage sons and several of their friends witnessed the shooting, he said.

Detectives found a car matching the description of the getaway vehicle at Palm Beach International Airport later Saturday, but it was not clear whether it was the one used in the crime, police said.

Investigators were checking with friends and business associates to see if any knew of a possible motive for the shooting. They also were questioning workers at stores selling balloons and baskets.

Warren's husband, Mike Warren, owns Bargain Motors, an automobile sales and leasing business in West Palm Beach. He was at work when the shooting occurred.

The Warrens' home sits near the 12th fairway on a golf course in a neighborhood with a polo field, private landing strip and homes ranging in value from $200,000 to $5 million.

Neighbors said they had no idea why anyone would want to shoot Marlene Warren.

''She was a friendly, nice person,'' one neighor said.

WASHINGTON (MAY 27) UPI - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev will be traveling with 250 advisers, his own satellite station, six Soviet Zil limousines and 18 Russian airplanes when arrives this week for the superpower summit.

Instead of Blair House, the president's guest house, Gorbachev chose to stay in the Soviet Embassy where he can have his own secure lines of communication.

Despite rising expectations for the summit, U.S. chief of protocol Joseph Reed insists Gorbachev will treated as just another ''state visitor'' with the usual trappings accorded on such occasions, on orders from President Bush.

Reed said Bush wants to institutionalize Gorbachev visits to make them the norm in a relationship, instead of the unusual.

''This is the first state visit of the president of the Soviet Union,'' Reed said. ''It will have the specific architecture of a state visit. It's the correct way to do business.''

To some observers, however, the Bush decision to treat Gorbachev's trip as a state visit reflects a desire to play it down.

But no matter how it viewed in the White House and State Department, a Gorbachev visit is still seen as extraordinary and the gathering of the superpower leaders will be touted as a summit.

Gorbachev will arrive from a two-day Canadian state visit 6:30 p.m. EDT Wednesday and will be welcomed at Andrews Air Force Base by Secretary of State James Baker, his wife, Susan, and other officials.

There will be a red carpet greeting by Bush on the White House South Lawn at 10 a.m. Thursday, after which the two presidents will adjourn to the Oval Office for their first talks since they last met in Malta in December 1989.

The agenda will reflect the historic changes in the past year in Eastern Europe.

Discussions will focus on arms control, including nuclear and conventional forces disarmament, German reunification and its proposed membership in NATO - which Gorbachev opposes, the Baltic States, regional conflicts, Soviet Jewish emigration and an improved trade relationship between Washington and Moscow.

After their first White House meeting, expected to last 2 1/2 hours, Gorbachev will have four free hours during which he plans to host a luncheon for 70 American intellectuals and to visit the Library of Congress.

In the evening, Bush and his wife, Barbara, will give a state dinner in honor of Gorbachev and his wife, Raisa.

Reed, who has been involved in the planning for the visit for weeks, said the Bushes wanted total control over the guest list for the coveted black tie affair. Gorbachev will wear a business suit in Soviet tradition.

On such occasions, the first couple, in addition to inviting the usual official cast of dignitaries, often considers the engraved invitation an expression of gratitude for political support and doles them out accordingly for the allowed 95 guests. There also will be 14 Soviet guests.

On Friday, Mrs. Bush and Mrs. Gorbachev will fly to Wellesley College in Massachusetts, with both scheduled to speak at the commencement ceremonies and perhaps to take a side trip to Boston.

Gorbachev and Bush will meet again Friday and will sign a number of agreements, including a chemical warfare treaty and other documents denoting closer ties. Whether a trade treaty, which has been completed, will be signed, remains up in the air.

Following the White House signing ceremonies, Gorbachev will return to the Soviet Embassy where he and his wife will host a return dinner in honor of the Bushes. Caviar and vodka will be on the menu.

Reed said at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, the Bushes and Gorbachevs will fly to Camp David for a ''family day'' in which casual attire will be the order as the leaders engage in talks on some of the touchiest East-West problems.

Gorbachev will return to Washington Saturday night.

Bush and Gorbachev will make joint statements Sunday in the East Room of the White House and hold a nationally televised news conference at 10 a.m.

Reed said Gorbachev was offered an array of possible activities in the United States and he chose to go to Minneapolis Sunday afternoon to meet with agribusiness leaders.

DETROIT (MAY 27) UPI - Chrysler Corp. will settle allegations that a subsidiary overcharged the Air Force on more than 100 contracts by paying $2.9 million in penalties and removing top executives of the subsidiary, it was reported Sunday.

U.S. Attorney Marvin Collins in Forth Worth, Texas, was quoted by the Detroit News as saying that the government and the No. 3 automaker had resolved a three-year investigation into alleged overcharges overcharges by Electrospace Systems Inc. The investigation covered the years from 1980 to 1987, before Chrysler bought the firm.

Collins would not identify the personnel of the Richardson, Texas, Chrysler subsidiary who were involved, but said: ''Part of the agreement is that the persons who had responsibility were removed.''

Senior Chrysler executives said the four founders of the subsidiary retired Tuesday from top company posts under an arrangement worked out when the automaker bought the firm in 1987.

John Stellman, vice president for finance and planning of Chrysler Technologies, disputed Collins' statement in carefully constructed language.

''There's nothing in the agreement that specifically refers to or is conditional on any personnel or employee changes,'' he said.

Government sources told the Detroit News that Chrysler representatives assured federal prosecutors and Pentagon officials the four officers were fired and suggested the shakeup was part of an internal housecleaning.

Collins and Chrysler officials stressed that the alleged overcharges occurred before the automaker purchased Electrospace. The allegations reportedly include assertions that more than $100 million in electronics contracts were rigged.

Stellman said the automaker settled the case ''to avoid the cost and disruption of a prolonged dispute.''

Federal law enforcement sources said Pentagon investigators recommended that Electrospace be prosecuted criminally for inflating labor costs on aircraft modification work, but prosecutors began discussing a civil settlement several weeks ago.

Sources said Chrysler and the government, after negotiations, agreed tentatively to estimate the overcharges on more than 100 contracts at $1.47 million. The automaker agreed to double the amount.

Collins said the case was not prosecuted criminally because ''in a lot of defense procurement cases, we reach the point where we believe there was some intentional misconduct, but it does not rise to the level'' warranting indictments.

The criminal investigation stemmed from the discovery by Pentagon auditors that Electrospace officials misled the Air Force by indicating in cost and pricing data that personnel at the firm's Waco, Texas, hangars had done all work on aircraft modification contracts.

Investigators actually learned that the work on contracts dating to 1972 was done by Lear Siegler Industries of Oklahoma City, a subcontractor that charged lower rates.

Sources said that in 1984 auditors warned the Air Force contracting officer, Billy Burnette, that Electrospace was using Lear Siegler as a subcontractor, but Burnette let the firm use its own labor rates in negotiating a contract to upgrade the electronics on communication planes.

Burnette, who had overseen Electrospace contracts for years, joined the defense contractor in 1987.

Alleged overcharges on contracts before 1980 could not be pursued because the statute of limitations had expired.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (MAY 27) UPI - Under bright blue skies on Maine's rugged coast, President Bush attended a Memorial Day service Sunday where he expressed hope that the upcoming superpower summit will help produce a ''world at peace.''

Standing beside a stone memorial to Army Spc. 5 Terry Drown, a local resident killed in the Vietnam war, Bush sang and prayed with a gathering of about 150 people and saluted all those who have served the nation.

''Everybody, regardless of their faith or background, aspires to see a world at peace,'' the president told reporters when asked to share his thoughts about Memorial Day and his summit talks with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev that begin Thursday in Washington.

''That is what this little service is about, and certainly that is what this summit coming up with Gorbachev is about,'' said Bush, flanked by family and friends, veterans and parishoners from the First Congregational Church.

Asked if he anticipated progress at the summit, which will cover matters ranging from arms control to the reunifiction of Germany, Bush said softly ''We hope so. We hope so.''

The memorial service was held across the street from the white church on a grassy plot of ground between a stop sign and a waving American flag.

Bush, a Navy bomber pilot in World War II, joined in a prayer and a hymn for America's fallen warriors.

''In gratitude and praise for all these loved persons, we offer our prayers of remembrance and we pray for peace and reconciliation among all nations,'' those attending the ceremony said.

Bush, spending a pre-summit vacation at his summer home in Kennebunkport, then returned to his compound and went out for a ride in the Atlantic aboard his red-white-and-blue speedboat Fidelity.

ATTICA, NY (MAY 27) UPI - More than 450 inmates at the Attica Correctional Facility refused to return to their cells and spent the night in four of the maximum security prison's recreation yards, prison officials said Sunday.

There were no reported injuries in the incident and the 459 prisoners returned to their cells Sunday morning after spending the night in the yards, prison officials said.

The prison was secured and officials said they were attempting to determine why the inmates refused to leave the recreation yards.

State Police said they were advised of the situation and described the incident as ''minor.''

Attica, the scene of the nation's bloodiest prison uprising in 1971 in which 43 corrections employees and inmates were killed, currently houses about 2,000 inmates.

Last week, an inmate died after he allegedly assaulted three corrections officers. Authorities said the inmate, James Charles, 30, of New York City assaulted the three officers at about 10 p.m. Thursday in the prison's A yard exercise area.

Charles, serving 5 to 15 years for first-degree assault, died at the prison hospital after the incident.

(MAY 27) UPI - TODAY'S PEOPLE:

ST. JOHN-WAGNER WEDDING: Longtime companions Robert Wagner and Jill St. John have finally married. The couple were wed Saturday in the garden of Wagner's home in Pacific Palisades with his three daughters, Kate, 26, Natasha, 19, and Courtney, 16, as attendants. It was the fourth marriage for Wagner, 60, whose previous wife, Natalie Wood, drowned in 1981, and also the fourth for St. John, whose ex-husbands include singer Jack Jones.

MUDDY LIVES: There will be realistic touches to a statue of the late Muddy Waters sculpted for the Delta Blues Museum in Waters's hometown of Clarksdale, Miss. His wife, Marva Morganfield, donated one of Waters's suits and the likeness also will include one of his Telecaster guitars. The statue, sculpted by Ray and Mary Daub of Wilmington, Del., will be unveiled at the museum on June 4.

BILLY'S REBUTTAL: Billy Joel is trying to squelch stories that his marriage to Christie Brinkley is in trouble. The reports started when Brinkley was seen with race car driver Danny Sullivan and things escalated with a tabloid story about Joel and another woman. ''Our marriage is very solid,'' he told People magazine. ''It always has been. I guess when celebrity news is slow, the press starts cooking up the old Billy-Christie split story. The most aggravating thing about it is that there is a child involved here (Alexa Ray, 4, their daughter) who is still young enough to be troubled by these rumors. I say enough is enough. Leave us alone.''

WELCOME TO RAISIN LAND: The creator of the California Raisins has grand plans. Will Vinton wants to transform a railyard in the Old Town district of Portland, Ore., into a motion picture studio and $70 million entertainment center. Vinton's plans reportedly call for a mall featuring a mix of shops and things like theaters showing 3-D movies, a conservatory with an aviary and perhaps a giant amusement park ride along the lines of Disneyland's Space Mountain. Vinton also wants to develop movie facilities there so he can move his Claymation studios out of a converted warehouse in Portland. A Vinton representative emphasizes that the project is still in the early planning stages.

HANK JR. KICKS OFF: Hank Williams Jr. is looking for some rowdy friends. Williams will be in Nashville, Tenn., Monday filming new ''ABC Monday Night Football'' promotional spots and some 400 extras are needed. The extras were asked to wear what they would if attending one of Williams's concerts. Last year's ''Monday Night Football'' spots featuring Williams singing ''All My Rowdy Friends Are Here for Monday Night'' were filmed at a private party.

WASHINGTON (MAY 27) UPI - The United States will be unable to win the drug war without more help from Mexico in stopping traffickers who increasingly are smuggling drugs in by land, congressional investigators reported Sunday.

After a tour this month of drug war command centers in the Southwest, the members of the House Armed Services Committee's investigations subcommittee said the United States ''is winning the air war against the drug lords.''

But Reps. Nicholas Mavroules, D-Mass., Lane Evans, D-Ill., and Jim McCrery R-La., said drugs are more likely to enter the United States hidden in some of the millions of vehicles that rumble across the Mexican border every year.

The congressmen faulted the Bush administration for an excessive reliance on expensive ''gimmicks'' used in the air war against drugs, such as radar systems. Instead, they called for more emphasis on gaining the help of the Mexican government, including U.S. funding of Mexican drug patrols.

''The air war against the drug lords ... should soon be history,'' the congressmen, who visited five facilities in California and Texas, said in a letter to Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., House Armed Services Committee chairman.

''Mexico becomes the key to the next chapter in the drug war - the battle over our land border,'' the letter said. ''We cannot succeed - and, in fact, will fall behind the power curve - if Mexico is not enlisted on our side in this war.''

The call for Mexican help comes at a time when U.S.-Mexican relations have been strained by the abduction of a Mexican doctor charged in the 1985 torture-slaying of U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena in Guadalajara, Mexico.

The doctor, Humberto Alvarez Machain, is accused of administering drugs to Camarena to revive him and allow his captors to continue their interrogation.

The Drug Enforcement Administration reportedly paid bounty hunters to abduct Alvarez Machain from his home in Guadalajara and take him to El Paso, Texas, where he was arrested April 3 by U.S. agents.

The Camarena case has raised questions about links between drug dealers and Mexican officials.

Yet, the Mexican government has said the doctor's abduction violated its sovereignty, and the letter from the congressmen took pains to say that Mexico should not be asked to ''waive its sovereign rights'' in the drug war.

But the letter also said there is a need for more strike forces in northern Mexico with links to radar centers on the U.S. side of the border and it suggested that the United States pay the entire cost of such forces.

The congressmen said traffickers currently fly into northern Mexico and then hide their drugs in shipping containers, which are put aboard trucks.

The letter said the United States inspects about 1 percent to 2 percent of the cargo crossing its borders and could never inspect it all. The key, it said, is stopping the drugs before they are put in the containers in Mexico.

(MAY 27) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... U-P-I has the latest news, next:

Heavily armed police officers and soldiers have fanned out across the country of Colombia. They are trying to prevent any more of the bloodshed that has marred the campaigning leading up to Sunday's presidential elections. Three of the 13 parties contesting the election have seen their presidential candidates killed by suspected drug cartel hitmen. Dozens of ordinary Colombians and police officers also have died.

Burma's 20-Million eligible voters began casting ballots Sunday in the Southeast Asian country's first multi-party election in 30 years. But with the ruling military junta having arrested many opposition leaders, diplomats doubt Burma is close to returning to democracy. Security is tight because of fears underground opposition groups will try to disrupt the polling. But there were NO immediate reports of violence.

Hopes of freedom soon for the remaining Western hostages in Lebanon may have been dashed with the release Saturday of a statement by an extremist group claiming to hold two Americans. The group warns the United States and Israel ''will pay the price'' for last Sunday's killing of seven Palestinians by an Israeli man. It's the first word from hostage-keepers since the release last month of U-S citizen Frank Reed.

Reed is scheduled to return to his hometown of Malden, Massachusetts, Sunday for a visit with his 91-year-old mother. It's his first visit home since he was kidnapped in Lebanon more than three years ago. The Boston suburb plans to celebrate Reed's homecoming with a parade Tuesday.

RANGOON, Burma (MAY 27) UPI - The staunchest anti-government opposition party surged to an early lead Sunday in Burma's first multi-party elections in 30 years, sending supporters dancing to the streets of the capital.

The results were tempered by the fact the two leading opposition candidates are under arrest and the results will count only if the military rulers of the Southeast Asian socialist republic give their approval.

The National League for Democracy, or NLD, whose top two leaders are being held for defying the ruling military junta, won the first eight seats declared, politicians and diplomats monitoring the vote counting said.

Amid scenes of wild rejoicing at party headquarters, an NLD spokesman predicted the party would sweep all seats in Rangoon and said favorable reports were coming in from the major cities of Mandalay and Moulmein.

Rangoon radio formally announced only one of those victories, however. Complete results may not be known for two weeks.

''But everywhere the early word is the same - the NLD is doing well,'' said one Western diplomat.

Crowds of NLD supporters began dancing in the streets outside party headquarters after the results began coming in.

The NLD under charismatic party leader Aung San Suu Kyi, the 45-year-old daughter of Burma's independence hero Gen. Aung San, has become a symbol of defiance of the military. She and co-leader Tin U were arrested last July.

The pro-military National Unity Party fared poorly in the capital, receiving only 16 percent of the vote in one district.

Many of the 20.6 million eligible voters lined up at 4:00 a.m. - two hours before the polls opened - in eagerness to vote despite the uncertainty of ousting the military from power.

Military strongman Gen. Saw Maung told reporters as he left the polls that he would turn over power ''according to law'' if the NLD won a majority. He is prime minister, defense minister and chairman of the State Law and Order Restoration Council - the ruling junta.

There is, however, no clear law on the formation of a new government since Saw Maung abrogated the constitution when he seized power in September 1988. He said recently the elected representatives would have to draft a new constitution before they would be allowed to form a government.

If the results leave the 485-seat legislature badly split the process could take more than a year. A total of 2,209 candidates from 93 parties competed for seats in a legislature whose powers have been left undefined.

And diplomats cautioned that the military party, which ruled in a one-party system for 26 years, was certain to fare better in areas outside Rangoon where people are less politically sophisticated and more subject to military control.

Burma grew prosperous following its independence from Britain in 1947, exporting 2 million tons of rice per year as well as crude oil, jade, rubies and saphires.

But since 1962, when General Ne Win seized power from the elected government, the country has deteriorated. In 1987 it was granted least-developed-nation status by the United Nations and the following year the current military government took power.

Reporters, including a contingent of about 60 foreign journalists allowed into the country for the first time in nearly a year, were not permitted to leave Rangoon to report on the election in the countryside.

The only violence reported was a bomb explosion in the southeast that wounded 14 people, but that incident happened the day before the polling. Official Rangoon radio blamed the blast on unidentified insurgents and said it was meant to obstruct the elections.

''The atmosphere in Shan State seems to be much more fearful, with the military making its presence more obvious,'' said one diplomat. The Shan State in northeastern Burma has an active ethnic insurgency which demands regional autonomy.

In contrast to the past 22 months of ponderous military presence and control, no army troops or police were seen anywhere near the polling stations in the capital of Rangoon.

The election was the first with multiple parties since 1960 when Prime Minister U Nu led his party to victory. That government, however, was overthrown two years later by the military which ushered in 26 years of one-party rule.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (MAY 27) UPI - With just days to go before the superpower summit, President Bush's face contorted with concern, even pain.

''What's it going to do?'' asked Bush, trying to line up a tricky 10-foot putt on the ninth hole at the Cape Arundel Golf Club.

Club pro Ken Raynor offered advice, Bush nodded and then with a firm stroke sank it.

''Yeah,'' said the president, doffing his red baseball cap in glee.

Bush didn't fret much this Memorial Day weekend about his summit talks, which begin Thursday in Washington with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Instead, the president - who says athletics ''clears his mind,'' ''rejuvenates his soul'' and recharges his batteries - was in sports overdrive.

In addition to golf, Bush, joined at his summer home by family and friends and fellow competitors, played tennis, tossed horseshoes and rode his red-white-and blue speedboat Fidelity in the Atlantic.

''The president's here to relax,'' said White House deputy press secretary Steve Hart.

He said Bush boned up for the summit last week with nearly daily briefings with top aides, and may engage in more skull sessions Tuesday and Wednesday.

In Kennebunkport, the president worked out his lean, angular 65-year-old body. And the former Yale firstbaseman played to win.

''I'm going for a hat trick,'' Bush told reporters Saturday after beginning the day with a pair of victories in tennis and horseshoes.

He got the ''hat trick'' - jock jargon for three wins - when he and Raynor defeated pal Spike Heminway and Transportation Secretary Skinner in round of golf.

Bush said he brought two ''fat'' pre-briefing summit books with him on vacation. But he admitted with no excuses, no apologies, that he barely cracked them.

The president was to return to Washington late Monday, after possibly attending the town's traditional Memorial Day Parade.

On Saturday, Bush took a few moments at the golf course to talk with reporters - briefly - about the summit.

Bush said he will try to convince Gorbachev that a reunited Germany in NATO would pose no threat to the Soviet Union.

He admitted, however, ''I think it's going to take awhile before we have an agreement.''

Bush then turned around and teed off. ''Let's go,'' he said.

On Sunday, Bush attended services at the First Congregational Church, saluted the nation's war dead at a small Memorial Day ceremony and prayed for peace.

And then he went out for another spin in speedboat and scheduled a third straight day of golf.

BOSTON (MAY 27) UPI - Former hostage Frank Reed returned home Sunday for an emotional reunion with his 91-year-old mother, but the joy was tempered by his Memorial Day weekend remembrance of the ''mates'' he left behind in captivity in Lebanon.

More than 50 people turned out at Logan International Airport on a sunny day to welcome back the 57-year-old educator, who was held hostage in Lebanon for 44 months before being freed April 30.

''How can you ever forget a mother? Mothers are always great,'' said Reed, who last was in Boston in 1982. ''She looks lovely, my mother. My mother's a tough gal.''

''I say rejoice, give thanks. He's back,'' said Leota Sprague, who was in a wheelchair to greet her son.

Asked what he planned to do on his three-day visit before returning Wednesday to a hospital outside of Washington, Reed said, ''Enjoying Boston, enjoying my family.

Reed said he was looking forward to ''lobsters, Barbra Streisand. Tell Barbra Streisand it didn't rain on my parade today. God, so many things, fishing for salmon.''

But Reed also spoke passionately about the remaining hostages in Lebanon, saying they were ''not well.''

''This weekend, we are memorializing the dead that fought for our country. Let us hope that one day we don't have to have a day to memorialize the hostages that are dead, or will die,'' Reed said. ''Let's not forget that there are still six Americans still in captivity, and the news is not good as far as I'm concerned. The hostages are not well.

''We must do something. We must get the other hostages free, somehow. Let us not forget them, let us not forget them because they haven't forgotten you.''

Reed said he felt an ''obligation, a duty'' to them, and said he was

''worrying about my mates that I left behind.''

Reed was kidnapped in West Beirut on Sept. 9, 1986. He had moved to Lebanon in 1977 and worked at the University of Beirut before founding the Lebanese International School. He converted to Islam to marry his Syrian-born wife, Fahimeh.

Dressed in a dark suit, Reed said Sunday he had weighed just 133 pounds, down from 185, when he was released from captivity and said he had been ''severely malnourished'' during his ordeal.

''What we've been doing is, basically, as far as my health goes, is trying to do some 'medical sleuthing,' trying to find out some things, why I am so severely anemic,'' he said.

''In spite of it all, they say my heart is fine. My lungs are fine. My liver's fine. I'm still feisty, still try to be as tough as I can about a few things.

''I'm not going to spend four years in captivity and come out and have something happen here, I hope.''

Reed said Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., would sponsor a private bill to guarantee his ''continued health care, and welfare.''

A motorcade with four limousines took Reed and his family, including his wife, Fahimeh, and 9-year-old son, Tarek, to his daughter's home in suburban Malden for a lobster dinner and family reunion.

The town of Malden plans to celebrate Reed's homecoming with a parade on Tuesday. Reed is scheduled to address residents after receiving an official welcome from Mayor James Conway.

The Centre United Methodist Church in Malden held a special service Sunday to mark Reed's return. Throughout Reed's captivity, a sign outside the church read ''Pray for the release of Frank Reed.'' After the hostage was freed, the sign was changed to ''Our prayer has been answered.''

KABUL, Afghanistan (MAY 27) UPI - With an eye on Wednesday's superpower summit, President Najibullah is pushing ahead with reforms designed to project his pro-Soviet government as the only credible political force in the war-torn country.

However, diplomats in Kabul say Najibullah's latest moves to broaden the base of his Communist regime and make it more acceptable to the majority of the people are largely cosmetic.

''It's like saying tea is wine,'' said one diplomat. ''It will taste like tea whatever you call it.

''These are the same kind of things Najibullah has tried before, and they had no effect then,'' he said, referring to previous moves by Najibullah since taking office in 1987 to attract more support for his government.

''He just wants to show the superpowers while the summit is going on that he is not as weak as they think,'' the diplomat said.

Meanwhile, the U.S.-backed Moslem guerrillas, who have rejected Najibullah's latest peace moves and insist they can still achieve a military victory, have stepped up rocket bombardments against Kabul in the past week, causing scores of casualties, in what diplomats say is an attempt to prove the regime's vulnerability.

''They want to show that the government is not in a position to flush them out and that they are still able to attack Kabul at will,'' the diplomat said. ''The purpose is propaganda.''

Earlier this month, Najibullah, displaying growing confidence after surviving more than a year without the support of Soviet troops, lifted a state of emergency imposed three days after the February 1989 Soviet withdrawal, and revived the powers of the National Assembly.

He also replaced hard-line Communist Prime Minister Sultan Ali Kishtmand with a non-member of his People's Democratic Party of Afghanistan, Fazle Haq Khaliqyar. The new premier last week announced a Cabinet of 35 members 23 of them from outside the PDPA.

This week, more than 350 delegates from around the country are to attend a traditional Grand Assembly, known as a loya jirgah. The meeting is expected to approve constitutional changes committing the country to a multiparty system.

''The main task of the loya jirgah will be democratization,'' said Fareed Mazdak, at 32 the youngest member of the Politburo. ''The new constitution will be more pluralistic.''

He said the meeting would also approve measures liberalizing almost all sections of the economy.

Within the next few months, the PDPA is to hold its first congress since the 1978 Communist revolution, and diplomats say it is likely to change the name of the party and disavow its Marxist-Leninist past.

The congress would also have the power to replace Najibullah as PDPA general secretary, the country's effective leader. Diplomats say the president, fearful of such an action, has sought in recent months to reduce the number of senior officials from the Khalq faction of the party, which has longstanding disputes with Najibullah's Parcham wing.

Najibullah in March crushed a coup attempt led by his defense minister, Shahnawaz Tanai, the head of the Khalq faction in the PDPA.

The president has further offered to hold elections under U.N. supervision but has declined U.S. calls for him to hand over power to an interim administration before such a vote.

The government has also stepped up a campaign to highlight rebel involvement in heroin production and trafficking and the Kabul authorities' attempts to halt it.

Diplomats say all the moves are part of a political offensive aimed at building a more moderate image for his regime and to influence the May 30 superpower summit in Washington, at which ways to end the 12-year-old civil war are expected to be discussed.

They say the former head of the secret police is capitalizing on rebel military ineptitude and a reported narrowing of differences between Washington and Moscow over Afghanistan.

The United States supplies weapons to the guerrillas but, faced with the rebels' disappointing performance in the past year, is reportedly seeking ways to disengage from the conflict, which has cost Washington billions of dollars. Earlier this year, Washington dropped its insistence that Najibullah step down before the start of any peace negotiations.

WAXAHACHIE, TX (MAY 27) UPI - Police Sunday were trying to locate a woman identifed as a suspect in the kidnapping of a newborn baby taken from his mother's arms in a hospital.

Davion Jamal Hughes, 3 days old, may have been taken by a woman who kept close tabs on Mechele Hughes' pregnancy by talking periodically with a mutual friend, Waxahachie police Capt. Albert Kelso said Sunday.

FBI agents and local authorities were looking for the suspect in the small town of Italy, about 10 miles south of Waxahachie, officials said.

The 14-year-old mother told authorities a woman introduced herself by telephone as a family friend and came into her room at Baylor Medical Center on Friday afternoon.

Hughes allowed the visitor to hold the baby and after a brief conversation excused herself to use the lavatory in the hospital room, police said.

But when Hughes returned, the woman and the baby were gone, officers said.

Hughes' mother, Karen Johnson, said her daughter was hysterical when she realized her newborn son was gone.

Hughes ''stays calm until she hears a baby crying,'' Johnson said Saturday. ''She's blaming herself. It's just tearing her up.''

The mutual friend, Lashell Washington, said the suspect had approached her several times and asked detailed questions about Hughes' pregnancy.

The woman ''said she had her own little baby, but I never saw her with it '' Washington said. ''She asked me about how many months was she (Hughes' pregnancy) and when was she going to have it and where she was staying.''

Investigators believe the abductor may be trying to replace a baby she lost through stillbirth or miscarriage, Waxahachie Assistant Police Chief James Hill said.

''We're trying to work on that now,'' Hill said late Saturday. ''It's possible it could be so many things, but that's what we believe as of now.''

(MAY 27) UPI - Americans laughed and cried, played and prayed, sang and stood silent on Sunday, midway through a Memorial Day holiday weekend with a split personality: part solemn commemoration and part kickoff to a summer of barbequing and beachgoing.

The party atmosphere around the nation was nowhere more evident than at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, where hundreds of thousands gathered in the stands and the always wild-and-crazy infield for the 74th Indianapolis 500. A large proportion even took time out from the festivities to watch the race.

But even the high-volume car chase that promotes itself as the ''greatest spectacle in racing'' took a back seat - at least for a quiet moment - to the original meaning of the Memorial Day holiday as ''Taps'' was played before the start in honor of the nation's war dead.

Memorial Day - now marked in most states on the last Monday in May, but in some on the traditional date of May 30 - began as Decoration Day, a time for the graves of Civil War dead to be strewn with flowers.

The observance eventually was extended to all U.S. war dead. The three-day weekend also serves annually as the unofficial start to the season of swimming, backyard cookouts and other summer fun.

President Bush, on holiday at his retreat in Kennebunkport, Maine, attended a service Sunday honoring the town's war dead and expressed hope that this week's summit in Washington with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev will help produce a ''world at peace.''

Standing beside a stone memorial to Army Spec. 5 Terry Drown, a local resident killed in Vietnam, Bush sang and prayed with about 150 people.

''Everybody, regardless of their faith or background, aspires to see a world at peace,'' the president told reporters before leaving the service to take a boat ride and get in a holiday round of golf.

''That is what this little service is about, and certainly that is what this summit coming up with Gorbachev is about,'' he said.

Formal and informal Memorial Day commemorations were under way across the nation a day before Monday's official observance.

Just after dawn Sunday, a small veteran's group gathered for a ceremony at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C., a vanguard of the thousands of people expected at the site before Monday night. Families strolled solemnly along the black wall etched with the names of U.S. soldiers, sailors and airmen killed in Vietnam, pausing along the flower-strewn path to read messages left by those still mourning their dead.

''Missing you doesn't get easier,'' said one note signed ''Di'' and left to honor Army enlisted man Thomas M. Fitzpatrick, who was killed in 1969 at age 21.

''Some days the pain is worse than when I first lost you,'' the note said. ''There's a part of me that died with you in Vietnam.''

Later Sunday, a Memorial Day observance in the form of a concert featuring the National Symphony Orchestra and the U.S. Army Chorus was to be held outside the Capitol and telecast nationwide.

Maryland's new Korean War Memorial was to be dedicated at Baltimore's Canton Waterfront Park. The 7-acre memorial, overlooking the Patapsco River opposite Fort McHenry, honors 525 Marylanders who died in the Korean conflict from June 1950 to July 1953.

The centerpiece of the memorial is a 2 1/2-foot ring of granite, about 50 feet in diameter. The northern half of the ring is engraved with the names of the dead. The southern half is a series of panels with a history of the conflict.

Frank Reed, the American educator released last month after 44 months of captivity in Lebanon, returned to his home in the Boston area Sunday and called on Americans to remember the living as well as the dead this Memorial Day.

''This weekend, we are memorializing the dead that fought for our country. Let us hope that one day we don't have to have a day to memorialize the hostages that are dead, or will die,'' Reed said. ''Let's not forget that there are still six Americans still in captivity. ... We must do something. We must get the other hostages free, somehow.''

A glasnost-era Memorial Day observance was on tap for Monday in Nome, Alaska, where Soviet World War II veterans were to arrive for ceremonies commemorating the U.S. delivery of warplanes through Alaska to Soviet forces fighting Nazi Germany. The delegation was to go on to Fairbanks and Anchorage later in the week.

(MAY 27) UPI - There will be a joyful reunion in the Boston suburb of Malden today... when former hostage Frank Reed returns home to visit with his 91-year-old mother. Reed hasn't seen his mother since he was kidnapped in Lebanon more than three years ago. The 57-year-old Reed has been recuperating from his ordeal at a Maryland hospital since his return to the United States. A spokesman says Reed will return to the hospital for another two weeks after the holiday weekend.

Countdown clocks are ticking at Cape Canaveral for this week's launch of the shuttle Columbia. If all goes well, Columbia will light up the sky with a fiery night-time lift-off early Wednesday. The 36th shuttle mission is the fourth of nine planned for 1990. Columbia's 10-day mission will study hot stars, galaxies, exploding suns and other high-energy astronomical targets. NASA says there are NO foreseeable problems that would prevent a launch.

At least three tornadoes... powerful thunderstorms... and baseball-sized hail raked parts of west-central Oklahoma last night. Authorities report property damage but NO injuries. Officials report damage to some houses and vehicles in Hinton. The National Weather Service also reported another tornado five miles west of nearby Binger and another twister just minutes later about two miles east of the town.

Illinois State police say five teenage girls in one car were among six people killed in a fiery, head-on collision yesterday afternoon. The accident between a car and a pickup truck on a two-lane rural road took place about 35 miles east of St. Louis. There were NO survivors in the collision between a 1980 Oldsmobile Cutlass and a 1975 Chevrolet pickup truck. Authorities are investigating the cause of the accident.

FORTESCUE, NJ (MAY 27) UPI - A cruise ship with 1,360 passengers and crew on board lost power Sunday and grounded itself on the sandy bottom of the Delaware Bay, the Coast Guard said.

There were no injuries reported and the 642-foot M.V. Regent Star - grounded about 5 miles off the New Jersey shoreline - did not appear to have suffered any damage, Coast Guard Lt. Jim Weakley said.

An attempt to refloat the vessel at high tide around 1 p.m. was unsuccessful and the Coast Guard was trying to come up with a plan to extricate the ship when high tide returned around midnight, Weakley said.

''Two commercial ocean-going tugs had lines attached and we had hoped it would refloat, but it didn't,'' Weakley said. ''What we are doing is trying to develop a plan to refloat it as quickly and as safely as possible.

''The next high tide is around midnight and we will see where we go from there,'' he added.

The Bahamian-registered ship, chartered by the Regency Cruise Line, was heading up the Delaware Bay to Penn's Landing in Philadelphia when a small electrical fire broke out in the 24,114-ton ship's engine room just before 1 a.m., Weakley said.

The fire was quickly put out with carbon dioxide extinguishers, he said, but the blaze left the ship without steering or engines. It drifted onto the bottom and was stuck on an even keel in 22 feet of water about 5 miles off Fortescue in Cumberland County, he said.

The ship had been heading to Philadelphia from Nassau in the Bahamas when the accident occurred, although officials could not say how long the ship had been at sea.

There were no immediate plans to evacuate the ship, Weakley said.

''We are working with the owners to get a phone number where families could get updates on the ship,'' he said.

Weakley said Coast Guard officials were on board the Regent Star and were working to make sure it does not leak fuel oil into the bay.

''A ship like that carries quite a bit of fuel and we want to make sure they are monitoring the tanks and not taking on water into those tanks,'' he said.

WASHINGTON (MAY 27) UPI - With only days to go before President Bush and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev begin summit talks, the Bush administration Sunday sought to defuse a potential stumbling block over German membership in NATO.

In a series of interviews, Bush, Secretary of State James Baker and National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft attempted to reassure Gorbachev of the benefits of a reunified Germany joining the NATO alliance of Western nations.

In an interview conducted last Thursday at the White House by Soviet TV's Valentin Zorin, Bush again said he hopes to convince Gorbachev that a reunited Germany with full membership in NATO will not be a threat to the Kremlin.

''A Germany in NATO not only is no threat to the Soviet Union, but preserves the kind of stable Europe that the Soviets should welcome,'' Bush said in the interview, broadcast Sunday in the Soviet Union.

Baker, in an interview with CBS's ''Face the Nation,'' echoed Bush's statement that it is the president's job to convince Gorbachev that NATO is a defensive alliance and ''a force for stability in Europe for 40 years.''

''A Germany with full membership in NATO will be a Germany that will not be concerned with establishing its own security requirements,'' Baker said. ''And that's very important to Europe and to the Soviet Union.''

When asked if the Soviet Union could block the reunification of Germany, Baker said: ''They've got certain legal rights as well as responsibilities as one of the four (post-World War II) powers (with jurisdiction over Germany).

''Of course, they could refuse to permit those rights and responsibilities to devolve,'' Baker said.

Scowcroft noted that discussions over the reunification of Germany were likely to dominate an agenda that also will include arms control talks, the independence-minded Baltic states, Soviet Jewish emigration and trade relations between the United States and Soveit Union.

''I think the fundamental issues at the summit are not going to be arms control,'' Scowcroft told ABC's ''This Week with David Brinkley.'' ''The fundamental issues are talking about remaking the political map of Europe and, also secondarily, what's going on in the Soviet Union.''

Bush, in the interview with Soviet television, said he anticipates a frank tough, yet civil, exchange at his four-day summit with Gorbachev, which begins Thursday.

''We have a responsibility ... for a broad agenda of items, including world peace,'' Bush said. ''I've got grandchildren and he's got a family, and we can talk about it as human beings. Hey, what are we going to do to make things a little safer?''

''If we argue, we will do that pleasantly,'' Bush said of his discussions with Gorbachev. ''He's a tough guy. He'll listen. I've been around him enough to know that he drives his point home.''

The president again expressed hope that progress can be made on strategic arms control and cuts in conventional forces in Europe, and said the Baltic states' drive for independence is an issue that cannot be ignored.

''I have to have him understand the constraints on any U.S. president until self-determination is visible and forthcoming,'' said Bush, who has thus far declined to impose any tough measures on the Soviet Union as a response to Moscow's embargo on Lithuania.

Bush said at a news conference last week, however, that he would likely withhold normal trade status from the Soviet Union as long as the Lithuanian question remains unresolved.

Asked about his personal relationship with Gorbachev, Bush said, ''I'd like to think they are good. Wait until I see him and then I'll be able to tell you, because he may be mad with me over some things, because we do have some differences.

''But I have said to the American people that I respect what Mr. Gorbachev has done, the way he's managed and handled the dramatic changes in Eastern Europe,'' Bush said.

''We've got some diffferences,'' Bush added, ''but we're reasonable. We don't seek anything other than peace and prosperity for the people of the Soviet Union. I've got to convince Mr. Gorbachev of that.''

LOS ANGELES (MAY 27) UPI - At least 19 people were killed in a spate of shootings and stabbings during the first half of a bloodstained Memorial Day holiday weekend, authorities said Sunday.

Nine of the killings were believed gang-related, including the death of a teenager shot in Bell Gardens Saturday night. At least eight people were wounded.

Four men were standing in the front yard of a home in suburban La Puente about 1:10 a.m. Sunday when a man opened fire on them with a semiautomatic rifle, sheriff's Deputy Dean Scoville said.

The shots killed a 20-year-old Valinda man and wounded three others who were taken to nearby hospitals in stable condition, Scoville said. The victims' names were not immediately released.

Alvaro Ortega, 26, of Los Angeles, died early Sunday and friends who brought him to the hospital said he had been shot along a South Los Angeles street, Scoville said.

A man standing in front of a home in South Los Angeles was hit by gunfire from a car about 3 a.m., Sgt. Earl Paysinger said. The gunman then got out of the car, chased the victim and shot him two more times, killing him, Paysinger said.

Another unidentified man was killed in Anaheim about 1:40 a.m., Lt. Ted Labahn said. Police did not disclose how he was slain.

A 23-year-old Maywood man was killed in a gang-related drive-by shooting in suburban Maywood about 12:30 a.m., Sgt. Steve Nagy said. The gunman was armed with an automatic weapon, possibly an assault rifle.

About the same time in Los Angeles, officers saw a motorist crash into a building near downtown and called paramedics, who determined the man had been stabbed and shot, Lt. John Wessely said.

The unidentified victim died in surgery.

In attacks Saturday night:

- Jesus Garcia, 21, died in a gang-related drive-by shooting as he stood on a corner in South Los Angeles; another gang shooting killed a teenaged boy in Bell Gardens; two related attacks about 10 blocks apart Saturday night left two people dead; and an unidentified man was found shot to death on the back porch of a home in Pomona.

In earlier attacks:

-A 9-year-old boy was in critical condition and near death after being hit in the head by bullets from suspected gang members while he played in front of his home in South Central Los Angeles, Sgt. Brian Thomspon said.

-Ricardo Rangel Gaytan, 25, was stabbed to death during a quarrel in an apartment in North Hollywood. Gaytan and the suspect had been drinking with friends.

-Yellow Cab taxi driver Dane Wittenberg, 30, was shot in the head and killed in the exclusive Bel-Air area. Daniel Guil, 22, was arrested by Beverly Hills police on suspicion of murder.

-A 21-year-old man was killed in a gang-related drive-by shooting west of downtown Los Angeles.

-Warren Francisco Pena, 18, of Compton, was killed in a gang-related drive-by shooting in Compton.

-Gang member Roberto Nunez, 21, was shot and killed in West Los Angeles.

-Ricardo Hernandez, 16, and Jesus Coronado, 15, were stabbed to death during at party in East Los Angeles. The killings were believed gang-related.

-A nightclub security guard was shot as he stood at the door of the Latin Lovers Club in East Los Angeles.

CHICHESTER, NH (MAY 27) UPI - Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., said in an interview published Sunday that he will run for the state Senate - and then its presidency - confirming speculation that began a year ago when he announced his retirement from Washington politics.

''I've been saying for a long time that I'm inclined to run,'' Humphrey told The New Hampshire Sunday News. ''I am no longer inclined to run. I am running.''

Humphrey, 49, who is leaving the Senate after two terms, said he wants to bring New Hampshire back to its conservative roots by winning a state Senate seat.

''The state's conservative character is being eroded,'' he said. ''I want to play a part in rebuilding it.''

The former pilot, who is one of the most conservative members of the Senate, said his campaign began over the weekend when he began collecting signatures to get his name on the November election ballot.

Humphrey is seeking the state Senate seat being vacated by William Johnson who is, in turn, seeking the first congressional seat of Republican Rep. Bob Smith. Smith is running for Humphrey's Senate seat.

If elected, Humphrey said he may run for the Senate presidency being vacated by state Sen. William Bartlett, who is considering a gubernatorial bid.

''I'm interested in being governor, president and emperor of the world as well,'' Humphrey joked.

INDIANAPOLIS (MAY 27) UPI - Dutchman Arie Luyendyk won the 74th Indianapolis 500 Sunday, beating 1986 winner Bobby Rahal to the finish line in the fastest Indy 500 ever.

Luyendyk, driving a Lola-Chevrolet, managed an average speed of 185.984 mph, topping Rahal's 1986 record of 170.722 mph. Luyendyk became the first driver to earn his first win in an Indy car at Indianapolis since Graham Hill in 1962. He completed the 200-lap race in 2 hours, 41 minutes, 18.248 seconds.

Rahal finished second, 10.7 seconds behind in a Lola-Chevrolet, followed by defending champion and polesitter Emerson Fittipaldi in a Penske-Chevrolet. In fourth place, one lap down was Al Unser Jr. in a Lola-Chevrolet, followed by three-time winner Rick Mears, four-time champ A.J. Foyt, Scott Brayton, rookie Eddie Cheever, Kevin Cogan and rookie Scott Goodyear.

The best previous finish for Luyendyk, racing in the 76th Indy car race of his career, was a second place in 1988 at Portland. His best previous finish at Indianapolis came in his rookie year of 1985, when he finished seventh.

Luyendyk, 36, who started on the outside of the front row, ran with the leaders all day and moved into first place when he passed Rahal low in turn three with 32 laps remaining and Rahal in the pits. Luyendyk made a pit stop five laps later and kept his lead. He had led previously on laps 93 and 94.

With 50 miles to go, Luyendyk held a 1.1-second lead over Rahal and increased the margin to 4.5 seconds in the next three laps. With 12 laps to go, his lead was 8.5 seconds and with 25 miles left he pushed the advantage to 11 seconds.

At that point, the only suspense was whether Luyendyk would make it to the finish without re-fueling, but he made it easily.

Luyendyk's purse will not be announced until Monday night. Fittipaldi earned more than $1 million for winning last year.

For most of the race, it looked like Fittipaldi, who qualified at a record 225.301 mph, would successfully defend his title.

MOSCOW (MAY 27) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev, seeking to stem frantic buying nationwide because of planned price hikes, appealed to the Soviet people Sunday ''not to give in to panic'' and to accept a transition to a market economy.

Gorbachev, speaking calmly and confidently on the evening television news show Vremya, called the movement toward free markets ''a new revolution'' without which the country cannot end its economic decline.

''I appeal to you, dear comrades, not to give in to panic,'' Gorbachev said. ''Don't give in to panic. Let's look at this soberly and realistically.''

Gorbachev's 45-minute address came after two days of frenzied buying that swept half the country. In Moscow, consumers cleaned stores of a month's supply of goods in 48 hours.

The frantic surge came after Premier Nikolia Ryzhkov presented the government program Thursday for a three-stage transition to a regulated market economy by 1993 with bread prices to triple on July 1 this year.

Gorbachev also called for an emergency budget for the second half of this year - with cuts acrosss the board, including the defense budget - to stem the deficit that is financed only by printing rubles of ever-decreasing value.

Gorbachev said his economic reform has stalled and pleaded for the people's ''consent'' to introduce a regulated market system that will compensate people for price increases by wage indexing and outright grants to those below the poverty line.

''In general, we need agreement in society, and not just agreement in name '' he said, reading from half-sheets of paper.

Admitting that there will be unemployment, he promised job retraining but said that the nation can no longer afford to subsidize unproductive workers.

Seeking to calm consumer fears, Gorbachev said prices on the most essential goods would be regulated to prevent price-gouging.

''Uncontrolled price-setting by a still unstable and unformed market is simply unacceptable, since it would be a heavy blow to the people's standard of living,'' he said.

The Soviet president conceded that the wave of frenzied buying had alarmed authorities and that unspecified measures would be taken.

''Since in some places, such attitudes (panic buying) have arisen, then clearly both state organs and the public have to take the situation under control,'' he said.

He repeated and angrily expanded on earlier statements that Soviet bread has been ridiculously cheap because of state subsidies. He said Americans pay four times as much for bread.

''The cheapness of bread bears no relation to the sweat and toil that goes in to making it,'' he said. ''We see how children in schoolyards play soccer using rolls.

''All the trash cans are filled with remnants of uneaten bread,'' Gorbachev said. ''All the trash heaps are filled with spoiled bread that is thrown out.

''Bread is bought to be fed to animals at the same time that we import grain to make bread, paying for the imports with hard currency (dollars) '' he said. ''Is this situation permissible? It offends the peasants. ....

''There is no other country with such a lack of respect for bread. In the United States and Canada, which produce enough bread that they can export it, nonetheless bread costs $2 a kilogram (or about 80 cents a pound) compared to our 14 or 20 or at most 40 to 50 kopecks (from 6 cents to 23 cents a pound),'' Gorbachev said.

ANNAPOLIS, MD (MAY 27) UPI - A National Organization for Women chapter has said it will picket Monday night's Naval Academy graduation ball to protest alleged harassment of female midshipmen.

The Anne Arundel County NOW chapter called the protest to bring attention to reports of hazing at the 145-year-old Annapolis institution.

Gwen Dreyer of Encinitas, Calif., left the academy recently, complaining that officials did not punish sufficiently the midshipmen who handcuffed her to a urinal after a snowball fight in December and photographed her.

Another female student, Julie Simas of Bowie, Md., said in an interview published Sunday that she resigned last year after being made to stand and listen to a lecture about how to properly walk through the midshipmen's dormitory. Her menstrual period had started and blood was soaking through her uniform shorts.

''I wasn't allowed to go to the restroom and take care of myself. They just made a joke out of it,'' Simas told the Baltimore Sun.

She never reported the incident and resigned at the end of the 1989 school year.

The academy also is investigating the rape of a Annapolis woman by a midshipman on the grounds of the historic institution.

Academy officials say they are attempting to determine whether the complaints represent isolated incidents or a broad problem. Other investigations or inquiries by Congress, the General Accounting Office and the Navy's inspector general are under way.

''It's a natural progression from one report to several reports to the point that you have to seriously look at what's going on here,'' said Lt. Cmdr. Mark Van Dyke, an academy spokesman.

Reports from the Philippines today say seven people were killed and 12 wounded when an Air Force soldier went wild... opening fire upon a crowd during a funeral wake in the northern Philippines. An Air Force spokesman says the 36-year-old airman was one of 11 vigil guards at the wake of a fellow soldier. NO reason was given for the soldier's rampage.

Convicted killer Thomas ''Scrappydoo'' Baal says he's abandoned his appeals and is ready to die at the Nevada State Prison Friday for the murder of a Las Vegas woman. The 26-year-old convict says he wants to spend his last week playing the guitar and recording country music for his family. For his last meal, Baal wants crispy, greasy fried chicken, sushi, jelly doughnuts and bubble gum ice cream.

(MAY 27) UPI - Pope John Paul is on the Mediterranean island nation of Malta today... where he warned young people NOT to be lured by drugs, sex or materialism. The pontiff spoke at a large rally during the final day of his three-day visit. His pleas may be falling on deaf ears. Said one hotel worker... ''We don't really give hoot what he says. We just like the carnival.''

Columbia will have a full crew complement for its scheduled lift-off early Wednesday. In addition to a pilot and co-pilot... the shuttle will carry four astonomers and one flight engineer as part of the spacelab program. The countdown began early today at Cape Canveral... and NASA officials report all systems ''go'' with NO problems anticipated.

Israel's Supreme Court today rejected the appeal of Mordechai Vanunu... who was convicted in 1988 on three counts of espionage and treason for revealing Israeli nuclear weapons secrets to a British newspaper. Vanunu worked as a technician at Israel's weapons plant for nearly 10 years. Vanunu claimed he acted out of moral opposition to nuclear warfare. He received an 18-year prison sentence.

The son of Romania's executed dictator is on trial for genocide charges in Bucharest. Nicu Ceausescu, once known as the ''Little Prince''... is widely regarded as a womanizer and a gambler. He said yesterday that he had ordered the secret police to halt the rebellion against his father, executed dictator Nicolae Ceausescu... and ordered security forces to open fire on protestors.

ATTICA, NY (MAY 27) UPI - More than 450 inmates at the Attica Correctional Facility refused to return to their cells and spent the night in four of the prison's recreation yards, prison officials said Sunday.

There were no reported injuries in the incident, and the 459 prisoners returned to their cells Sunday morning after spending the night in the yards, prison officials said.

The maximum-security prison 30 miles outside Buffalo was secured, and officials said they were trying to determine why the inmates refused to leave the recreation yards.

The prison will remain locked down until Monday morning, when the entire facility will be searched for contraband, state Department of Correctional Services spokeswoman Amy Colodny said.

''We've got to do the legwork now to figure out why they did it,'' Colodny said. ''All the inmates will be interviewed.''

She said a contraband search was normal after any situation where inmates are grouped together for a long period of time.

She said she could not recall another incident at the prison where inmates spent the night outdoors afer refusing to return to their cells.

Attica, the scene of a bloody prison uprising in 1971 during which 43 corrections employees and inmates were killed, currently houses 2,042 inmates, Colodny said.

State Police said they were advised of the situation, and described the incident as ''minor.''

Colodny said the prisoners in the yards were watched closely overnight. ''They weren't going anywhere,'' she said.

Last week, an inmate died after he allegedly assaulted three corrections officers. The inmate, James Charles, 30, of New York City, assaulted the three officers at about 10 p.m. Thursday in the prison's A Yard exercise area.

Authorities said Charles, serving 5 to 15 years for first-degree assault, died at the prison hospital after the incident. Prison officials have not released information on the cause of death.

Colodny said she would not speculate on whether Charles' death and the situation Saturday night were related.

(MAY 27) UPI - The official Tass news agency says Interior Ministry troops killed six Armenians in Yerevan yesterday during a shootout at the rail station in the Armenian capital. Tass said that 15 Armenian militants fired at a guard in the building of the Yerevan terminal, and the troops shot back. The report said 10 serviceman were injured, three seriously.

There was more violence in the occupied territories today just hours after the Israeli military lifted curfews that have been in effect for one week. One Palestinian was killed and 14 others were wounded. The violence came a week after seven Gaza workers were killed when an Israeli posing as a soldier opened fire on them.

48-thousand local government posts are up for grabs today in Poland in the first post-war free elections. The majority of the positions are expected to be won by candidates from the Solidarity Party. The election is being held as striking railworkers are calling for a nation-wide rail strike tomorrow to protest low wages. The rail workers are striking without the consent of the union.

Almost a month after his release from three years in capitivity in Lebanon Frank Reed is finally going home today. The former hostage is scheduled to return home to Malden, Massachusetts, for a visit with his 91-year-old mother. Reed has been recuperating from his ordeal at a Maryland hospital. Reed's attorney said Reed has made ''terrific'' progress in his recovery and has been well enough to play golf.

An eight-foot statue of the late President Kennedy will be unveiled Tuesday at the Massachusetts Statehouse on what would have been his 73rd birthday. Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg and John Kennedy Junior will unveil the memorial to their father. The statue shows J-F-K in full stride with one hand in his suitcoat pocket.
